SAMPSON GUILTY ON REMAINING CHARGES

Clarence Sampson was found guilty on Saturday afternoon of stealing cattle from John Deen and Stuart Clydsdale of Dummer, and sentenced to three years in the penitentiary. Practically this was but the formal disposition of the charges that remained after that on which he was previously found guilty of stealing from Arthur Carveth and sentenced to three years at Kingston. The two terms fixed on Saturday run concurrently with that of the former sentence. At this hearing the evidence of the first case was used, the only addition being the identification of the remaining three hides.

Town Topics.

The effect of the selling that has been going on in Beth. Steel should soon wear off. It does not look as if actual insiders were especially alarmed about Russian payments and the necessity to bridge these over with financing to attempt to liquidate at this time. Had insiders desired to liquidate their holdings, long since would we have seen a movement to cut down the size of the shares or distribute new stock. Bethlehem has grown fat on war profits. Some lean comes along with the fat at times. The stock will recover sharply in our opinion. Meantime the practical stoppage of export business pending the running down of commercial raiders will give way to the escort plan probably. We are very bullish on stocks generally and especially steel and iron and coal stocks and shipping shares. The rise in marines is very significant especially as new strong buying has been taking place by bankers who failed to appreciate the possibilities of Marines before their big rise. The common stock we think the best thing in the street as a speculation. Smelting looks very good and Coppers are acting all right. National Lead is one of the "sleepers" on the market. Its cartridge profits must be large as it was not a new business that was undertaken. Equipments are splendid to have. Airbrake is worth much more. The Locomotives Crucible, Atlantic Gulf, Alcohol are among specialties that should advance sharply. We expect a better market to-day and next week pending the big Steel developments.

MISSING ARMY AVIATORS WERE FOUND IN MEXICO

Two Men Lived For a Week on Two Sandwiches and Two Oranges--Men May Be Court Martialled For Starting On Disastrous Flight Without Orders

WELLTON, Aris., Jan. 23.—Lieutenant Colonel Harry C. Bishop and Lieutenant W. A. Robertson, U.S.A. Aviation Corps, have been found. The aviators, who have been missing since the morning of January 10, were forced to land in the wilds of Northern Mexico. They had with them two sandwiches and two oranges, and the only water was in the radiator of the engine of the biplane. Those supplies gave out after four days, and since that time the army officers had been without food and tramping in the desert country trying to find a way out.

Lieutenant Colonel Bishop suffered most from the hardships and when found, thirty miles behind Lieutenant Robertson was speechless from exhaustion.

The experience of the two army officers will go down in American aviation history as one of the most harrowing ever falling to the lot of aviators. On the morning of January 10 Lieutenant Colonel Bishop and Lieutenant Robertson left an aviation school and started on a flight, Calexico being their objective.

Landed in a Dessert.

It is said that when the aviators reached a point about two hundred and fifty miles south of the Mexican boundary something went wrong with their engine, forcing them to make a landing. The aviators found themselves in the foothills of the Gila Mountains. Those foothills are little more than high sand dunes. There is practically no vegetation in the country, except here and there a cactus, and no living animal or stream of water was found.

Lieutenant Robertson said they had two sandwiches and two oranges, which he had placed in the aeroplane just before starting, thinking they might come in handy." The only water was about a gallon or so in the radiator of the engine. It was absolutely essential that they should conserve their supplies, so they decided that a meal should be one bite from a sandwich. The greater demand was made on the water because of the terrific heat in the day time. In order to carry the water it was necessary to break the engine, and this was dangerous, because some of the precious liquid might have been spilled.

With such rations the two officers set out to walk back to civilization, which they knew to be about two hundred and fifty miles distant. By "a bite a meal" the sandwiches lasted four days, or for twelve meals. Lieutenant Robertson said that not an edible herb or root could be found nor did they cross a stream or see a spring. It was dust, dust; dust in the eyes and mouth, and but very little water to quench a terrible thirst. The nights were bitterly cold, which made it necessary for the officers to carry their heavy aviators' garments during the heat of the day.

Lieutenant Robertsons' Account.

"We left San Diego at half-past eight o'clock in the morning, January 10, intending to go across the mountains east to Calexico. Insufficient maps made it necessary to rely largely on compass readings. For that reason to keep north of the Mexican border we sailed a course twenty-five degrees north of east. I counted on that course putting me into the Imperial Valley, well north of the border, and then having to sail south for about fifty miles.

"In order to cross the high mountains it was necessary to travel high, averaging more than seven thousand feet. From this altitude it was impossible to detect a very strong wind which I encountered in the mountains.

"I then turned southeast. After about thirty minutes on the course I could see distinctly through a haze a large body of water we thought to be the Salton Sea. The only map of that section I had, showed Salton Sea much too far south so that confirmed my belief I was right. As my gas was running low my only course was to keep going farther south in order to strike Calexico. Colonel Bishop thought his body of water to be the Salton Sea, so both of us were satisfied we were going in the correct course.

"Neither Colonel Bishop nor myself could possibly figure on the drift of the machine. As it was hazy it was impossible to pick out objects clearly. The strong north wind also made our rate of travel much faster than was figured on. When about thirty minutes of search was made for the Southern Pacific Railway, which I knew to be near Salton Sea, I decided to land and investigate. The landing was almost completed when the aircraft struck soft ground and the plane tipped up. This was at half-past twelve in the afternoon and I still thought we were at Salton Sea, and we were only convinced of our error after close examination. We then decided on walking back to the Imperial Valley.

"We put one gallon of water from the radiator in an extra oil can and with a light lunch started northwest. That was at half-past four o'clock in the afternoon.

"We kept a north-west course, travelling by night and day. Our water gave out Sunday, January 14. By that time Colonel Bishop was so weak our progress was slow. We agreed it would be wise to separate when we could travel no farther and take the only available course, and to continue on and send back aid if possible.

"This I did at daybreak Wednesday the 17th. I kept to the Northwest and at daybreak, on the 18th, found a trail of one of the rescuing parties. Following this trail I caught the party about nine o'clock Thursday morning. They immediately set out to find Colonel Bishop, and following my directions they found him about nine o'clock that night, January 18. He was too weak to move, but still conscious. It was necessary to leave him quiet for a few hours until he could recover his strength. I was brought here by automobile, leaving Colonel Bishop in care of the rescuing parties, which had consolidated."

It was said that Lieutenant-Colonel Bishop and Lieutenant Robertson took the aeroplane from the North Island School, at San Diego, on their own initiative.

The finding of the aviators ends the most exciting border search since General Pershing went after Villa. Hundreds of army aviators, civilians and Mexican troopers have been looking for the men.

Says Question of Court Martial Rests with the Washington Authorities.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 23.—Asked if Lieutenant Colonel Bishop and Lieutenant Robertson would be court-martialled for aking out an aeroplane without permission, Colonel W. A. Glassford, commandant at the school, said that the question of court martial would be for the authorities at Washington to decide.

Father of Lieutenant Colonel Bishop Weeps at News of Safety.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Jan. 23.—Louis H. Bishop, of Normal, Ill., father of Lieutenant Colonel Harry G. Bishop, broke down and wept at the news of his son's safety. No personal message has been received from Lieutenant Colonel Bishop.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 23.— In the absence of Secretary Baker, War Department officials did not comment on suggestions that the aviators might be court martialled for starting on their disastrous flight without orders. A report from the commandant of the San Diego station will be awaited before any action is taken.

Market was strong and from 10c to 15c higher than a week ago yesterday. The decline at the latter end of last week was more than recovered, and more loads of choice butcher cattle sold at the top prices than on any market this season. There was a fair run of cattle in, but not a heavy run, and some loads held over from last week, sold at an advance. Sheep and lambs were strong. Hogs steady at $14.00 fed and watered.

KEEPING EVERY RECORD THAT WILL HELP COMPILE CANADA'S PART IN WAR

Baron Beaverbrook, Formerly Sir Max Aitken, Publishes an Apologia on the Charge That the Official "Eye Witness" Did Not Witness

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Sir Max Aitken (Baron Beaverbrook) publishes an apologia of his work in the War Records Office as a report to Sir Robert Borden. Answering the charge that although the "Official Eye Witness" he did not witness any of the events. He says the system of supplying official eye witness accounts from the front ended in the fall of 1916, when the British authorities substituted accredited press correspondents. The Canadian press failed to agree on the appointment of a correspondent.

"I then endeavored," he says, "to get permission to continue work of Canadian eye witness. This demand was refused by the military authorities. They pointed out that the messages of accredited correspondents were passed as long as they were not against the public interest, but that this did not render the military authorities liable for the facts contained in them. On the other hand, the work of an official eye witness must be vouched for as correct. In fact, such work could not be published safely until nine or ten months after the events described. Eye witness articles, therefore, ceased, and so far no accredited newspaper correspondent has gone out to fill the gap."

FAILURE TO MEET IMMEDIATE DEMAND.

He admits the failure to meet the demand for immediate news since the post of eye witness was abolished, laying the blame upon Canadian inability to agree upon a press representative, but declares there is still every prospect of a solution being reached. He maintains that the principal work of his office has been the assembling, compiling, and keeping securely every document of fact covering Canadian war doings. The United States spent three million dollars compiling records of the civil war; Canada spent $25,000.

The book "Canada in Flanders" earned $5,000 for Canadian charities, the author himself paying all expenses. Photography and cinema have been extensively, effectively, and profitably used. The photographs' profits have totalled $16,000. A record of every locality is compiled and accounts and origin of every Canadian regiment and its actions in the field have been preserved. Sir Max Aitken claims that in the adequate compilation of every shred of evidence bearing upon Canadian corps in the present campaign his department has not failed.

Dandruff Surely Destroys the Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do his, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

Was Anaemic FOR OVER A YEAR

Anaemia, or blood turning to water, is caused by the heart becoming deranged, and if the heart becomes weakened it cannot pump the blood as it should. As a result the blood becomes impoverished, and it loses its nourishing qualities. The face becomes pale and thin, and the lips bloodless. There is a weakness, tiredness and loss of weight.

When those suffering from thin or watery blood start taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills they can see a change from the outset.

Every dose introduces into the blood those vital elements necessary to make it rich and red. The pale cheeks take on the rosy hue of health, the weight increases, and the whole being thrills with a new life.

Mrs. R. J. Grey, Fredericton, N. B., writes: "When I was a girl working at general house work I overtaxed my strength and became completely run down. For over a year I was very bad with anaemia. A friend told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I got a box and when it was done I decided to get six more When I had taken them I gained not only in strength, but in flesh and colour, and best of all was good health."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box; three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Drawn War Is Impossible Between Belligerents

That Is the View of the British Press in Regard to President Wilson's Use of the Term "Peace Without Victory"

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Jan. 23.—British Editors to-day were generally cautious in attempts to analyze and interpret President Wilson's speech in the Senate.

Most of the comment, however, hinged on the American Executive's use of the term 'peace without victory' most papers insisted that there cannot be a drawn war between the spirit with which Allies and animated on the one side and on the other, the spirit of Prussian militarism.

As a whole the Press applauded the lofty principles in the President's statement, but balked at most of applications thereof.

The general impression among both press and public seems to be that the speech was neither pro-Ally nor pro-German, but rather pro-American designed primarily for American consumption.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"DESTINY"

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

Thayre leaned over. "I say, men," he suggested with the enthusiasm of a new and bright idea sparkling in his eyes, "let's call the head waiter and have Burton play for us. The management will be jolly well pleased when they know that they are getting the greatest instrumentalist in New York."

Paul protested, but Thayre was a man of quick action, and a moment later the waiter had brought the head waiter and the head waiter had gone for the manager.

Such patrons as these the managers had every wish to oblige and he was by no means unwilling to utilize such an artist as Paul Burton when the lights came on again and his patrons rose to their feet for the national anthem.

"Of course, cautioned Thayre, "Mr. Burton does not want his name announced," and even to that restriction, limiting the value of his extemporaneous "feature," the manager reluctantly acceded.

To live for music and to have no instrument with which to express one's emotions means a tortured privation of the spirit. Paul Burton as he took his seat at the piano forgot that it was New Year's eve on Broadway, forgot the lights, the confetti and the toy balloons. He remembered only that here were keys which unlocked his dream world of music, and when he began to play the the clamour of the place slowly and quite unconsciously subsided and quiet came—not at once, but as a delirium may soften slowly into sleep under the stroke of a soothing hand.

When from an outlying table a woman, grown louder of laughter than she realized, interrupted this quiet, a score of faces turned angrily in her direction, rebuking her with their glances.

But the music went on and the great crowd which had a few moments before been abandoning itself to noise and riot now found itself listening—listening in a sort of rapt trance—with its many gazes converging on a slender young man. His pallid face and cameo features seemed exalted, and his eyes burned strangely under the dark locks that fell across his forehead.

They did not hear the first peal of the midnight clock until the sudden darkness which that stroke heralded reminded them of the hour.

The place which had blazed with light was now as black as some sea-floor cavern, and that should have been the signal for a hundred horns and rattlers and shouts of greeting and the reaching of hands to meet and grasp other hands across the tables.

But in Kenley's it was quiet except for those peals of music that came from the platform. At last the strains ended in silence, and a deep breath passed among the tables as though from one composite pair of lungs. Then once more the instrument spoke—spoke with a grotesque inappropriateness for a night that was not to end till morning—for the notes that sounded across the place were the opening bars of "Home, Sweet Home."

There were only a few bars—and after that a loud crash as though a number of hands had simultaneously fallen, with violence, upon the keys—and then the lights blazed again from the opalescent chandeliers and all the wall brackets.

Instantly from tables near the centre two young women in paper caps leaped from their seats and kissed the men and the women of the party. A wave of greetings swept the place.

At once the lights went out again, leaving the place dark, and the voice of the manager was heard from the platform, a little strained in tone as he sought to conceal the tragedy which, should it become known, would end the night's profit for his establishment.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he lied resourcefully, "I hope that you will all keep your seats and indulge the management for a few moments. A fuse has burned out, but it will at once be remedied. Our pianist, I will add, has suffered a fainting spell, but is in no danger."

When the lights came on again, the figure at the piano was no longer there. Just back of the platform was a door used by the cabaret performers and through this he had been borne.

But the faintness which had come upon Paul Burton was the faintness of death, and there were those among the merry makers who could not forget the grotesque attitude of which they had caught a glimpse, and who found subsequent merry making impossible.

"Notify the coroner," ordered a policeman who had come in from the corner through a service entrance. "This is a case for him."

The manager bent an ear toward the outer door and recognized that there had been no resumption of the satyrnalian chorus between his walls. "Mr. Thayre," he commented bitterly to the guest who had followed into the private room, "your friend there has put New Year's eve on the blink for my place—this thing costs me thousands."

"Who's the dead man?" demanded the officer blutely, and when Thayre replied with two words, "Paul Burton," he gave a long, low whistle of astonishment. The name of Burton was not yet forgotten in New York.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Mary Burton was returning from a Sixth avenue delicatessen shop with the bottle of milk and the box of crackers which constituted the marketing for to-morrow morning's breakfast. She felt very faint and unspeakably sick at heart. There was no longer even a trivial thing with which to interest the pawnbroker. She had had little sleep for many nights, and her temples throbbed with pain. She had been trying to think out some way to mend their misfortunes and each day brought her nearer the point where the grinding struggle must end in starvation.

"If it were only myself," she said bitterly as she turned the corner under the superstructure of the Elevated and shivered in the cutting wind of the blizzard which was sweeping the city, "it would be simple." She paused a moment later and halted against the wall of Jefferson Market Court where a brick abutment broke the force of the bluster. Mary was not so warmly clad as this rigorous weather warranted. The last thing she had taken to the sign of the three balls was a heavy cloak.

"For me," she said to herself as she bent her head into the smother of wind driven snow, "life ended there in that office—when he died. If I had just myself to consider I don't think that God would blame me much for ending it."

But it was not only herself she had to consider. The doctor told her that her mother's tenuous life strand might snap at any time in sudden death or might stretch indefinitely in helplessness and dethroned reason. Even in the mean lodgings she occupied other tenants were sometimes prone to the drawing of lines and Mary knew that the landlord did not regard it as helpful to his business to have "a crazy lady in the house. Some guests objected." So when she began falling into arrears she did not delude herself with false hopes of charitable indulgence. Her father, too, though he had dropped down the scale of life to a forlorn old man who loafed his hours away in saloons until he was turned out, was still her father, and while the breath remained in his disreputable body his stomach required food as well as drink.

The girl went in at the dark door of the house which was not greatly different from a tenement, and then climbed the double flight of stairs. From a place by the window her mother looked up from the chair where she sat incessantly rocking. She held in her lap an old blank book and her expression was vacant. "I have just been reading Ham's diary," she querulously annotated. Mary shuddered. Of late her mother was always reading that old record of boyhood ambitions, which to her was always new since no memory—save those of other years—outlasted the hour.

"Ham thinks he's going to be a great man some day, and I hope he's right. He's a good boy and a dutiful son and—"

But the daughter was not listening—her eyes had encountered an envelope on the dresser mirror, and, as she tore the end off it, she felt a premonition of its contents.

"How about some money on account?" questioned the writer. "Unless I get some by to-morrow I want my rooms vacated."

So the ultimatum had come. Mary Burton stood before the mirror for a moment and out of her body all the strength seemed to flow. Her knees shook, and her hands grew moist and chilly. Lest her sudden weakness be apparent to her mother, turned and went wearily into the other room. There she sat on the edge of her bed and tried to think.

"To-morrow!" She dully repeated. "To-morrow we are put out—then a public asylum for my mother—and the street or the almhouse for my father." Even now she was not thinking of herself. If it came to that she still believed that God would not resent her opening for herself the single door of escape.

But these two old and helpless people! To Mary they were desperate burdens but perhaps that only made her love them the more, and fight for them the more loyally.

For a long while she sat there in silence, then she rose with a red spot burning on each cheek and put on her hat again. At the lower landing she encountered the landlord. He was not a prepossessing man at best, and his face just now did not indicate that he was at his best.

"You got my note?" he inquired bluntly, and the girl nodded.

"I think," she faltered, "probably I can do something about the rent to-morrow."

"Thinking is not going to satisfy me," he announced. "To-morrow's the limit of my patience."

Mary suddenly remembered that to telephone costs a nickel, and that she had none with her. For a moment she stood on the sidewalk before climbing the two flights again to aid the little supply of her purse. The endless anxiety and the unbroken strain of these calamitous months had weakened her to the point of realising that the stairs were steep. Then she remembered that the Italian woman at the delicatessen shop was her friend, and would trust her for the five cents. She fought her way along to the store through a wind which threatened to sweep her off her feet, and which cut her like whiplashes.

Her trembling fingers made a task of turning the pages of the directory, and finding the number of a newspaper on Park Row, but at last she succeeded.

"Is Mr. Smitherton there?" she asked, and the operator direction came back, "Hold the wire."

Smitherton was sitting at a desk littered with newspaper clippings and sheaves of copy paper. His shirt sleeves were rolled to the elbow and the light of his desk bulb shone on his ruffled hair as the "cop-kid" called out to him with that insouciant freshness which stamps his kind.

"Dame wants you on the wire. Got a voice like a million dollars worth of peaches an' cream." Mary with the receiver to her ear heard the subtle compliment of those mixed metaphors.

"Well?" he inquired shortly. "What is it? This is Smitherton."

At once he recognised the voice, which replied, and recognised that it came faintly and full of indecision.

"This is Mary Burton, Mr. Smitherton. Do you think you could still find me work in vaudeville?"

"Oh!" The reporter's office brusqueness fell away and his tone changed. He knew that this was the girl's last stand and that she had not admitted its necessity until every other effort had failed, every path of escape closed. "I don't think, Miss Burton," he assured her, "I am certain."

"Do you think," the voice was even fainter—"it would be possible to get a little money—some sort of an advance—soon—to-morrow?"

"Leave that to me," he confidently commanded. "Just give me your address, and I'll be at your place in the morning."

Mary slept but little that night. Against her windows screamed and whined the wind, driving a swish of the hard snow in its breath. From the two rivers came the dull groaning of the fog horns. But the storm which kept her eyes hot and sleepless was one within her own breast.

Over and over again she told herself that the work for which she was volunteering was in no wise disgraceful. Probably many women who were her superiors were doing it with willingness, even with warrantable pride. It would mean for her mother as the reporter had reminded her, comfort and competent nursing. Perhaps in surroundings of greater ease, her father might even get rehabilitate himself into a manlier old age. Save to serve them her own life was already lived out.

"LOOK AT YERSEL'"

I happened to be at Inverness at a municipal election about twenty years syne, and attended a meeting when a candidate man seeking election to the council had much to say anent the condition of several streets requiring repaving and mentioning especially Inglis street bad, Castle street worse and Church street worst. A voice—"Look at yersel'." The general laughter caused the fat man to subside, and there was one candidate fewer on election day.—Alex. Rose, Toronto.

Good Old Home-Made Family Cough Remedy

Much Better than the Ready-Made Kind—Easily and Cheaply Prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you would hardly have in them all the curative power that lies in this simple "home-made" cough syrup which takes only a few minutes to prepare.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth); pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 54 cents and gives you 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Tastes pleasant, and never spoils.

This Pinex and sugar syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes that line the throat, chest and bronchial tubes, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, be sure to ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE WAYS OF FATE

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Miss Dorothy Campbell knew that it had rained and frozen during the night. She opened the door and stepped out to find that the top stone step was still a glare. Miss Dorothy was falling and screaming when a male pedestrian who happened to be passing at that moment, rushed part way up the steps and received her in his arms. The shock landed both of them on the walk, but on their feet and they suffered no injury.

"You will excuse me, miss," said the man as he raised his hat.

"Not only excuse, but thank you," was the reply.

"And you were going out without rubbers?" he queried.

"I never wear them."

"Oh, I am pretty surefooted," she laughed as she noticed that he had provided himself with a pair. "Thanks again."

As Miss Dorothy was moving away she noticed that her rescuer was a man of perhaps twenty-five, with a professional look about him. He had dark hair and eyes and a smile that was good nature itself. He was still standing, and she realized that he would watch her until she had crossed the street, and, though there was ice under her feet, she stepped out boldly. She saw two or three pedestrians slipping and falling, but she would take no warning. By sheer good luck she reached the destination she had set out for, and in time she started to make her way home. She had made half the distance when a rough neck of a man in passing her seemed to give her his elbow with intent to make her fall, and fall she did. But Miss Dorothy didn't go right down amid the slush. A pair of strong arms prevented her, and as she was lifted on her feet again she turned to find the man who had saved her before.

"Why—you—you"—

"Yes," he smiled. "I was not following you to act the part of a guardian, but I had to come back this way and had only just seen you when the big loafer brought about the collision. I was near enough to save you from a fall."

"And I owe you my thanks again," she said.

It was about the middle of the next May, and there were early roses instead of slush and ice that Miss Dorothy Campbell arrived at a little country railroad station twenty miles out of the big city. She had come down to pay her sister a brief visit, and they were to meet her at the station with an auto. The auto had not arrived yet, and the girl was standing on the platform, waiting.

"Look out! Look out!" shouted a dozen voices in chorus, and then there was a mad scramble among those on the platform. One of the freight cars being pushed along by the locomotive had partly left the rail and broken loose from the train, and it would be almost sure to bump into the platform.

Miss Dorothy was about the only one in the crowd who did not see the danger. Most of them had got away, and she was still standing and wondering, when an arm went around her waist and she was lifted up and half carried and half dragged to the far end of the platform and thence half way across a street. She turned to find "that man." He lifted his hat and calmly explained:

"I have come down here to visit my brother, who is to meet me here. I was on the car with you, but you did not see me. I am glad to have been of service to you. Three or four people have been hurt and will require the aid of a surgeon. You, doubtless, have friends coming to meet you. Will you excuse me while I go and see what I can do for those who have been injured? I am a physician, you know."

Just then her sister came up in the auto and called to her. So she and the young man had met once more, though she had never expected to see him again.

After she recovered her composure and had been asked a dozen times over for the particulars of the incident, she related her whole story from the beginning.

A week passed away. If Dr. Roy Goodsend took any measures to discover where the young lady was stopping, no one but his brother knew. If Miss Dorothy Campbell was rather anxious to find where the doctor was located she kept it to herself, but Fate solved the problem. In walking about her sister's gardens Miss Dorothy stepped in a hole and fell forward and broke an arm. A telephone call was sent out over the country neighborhood for a doctor—and a doctor that could come with a rush. Half an hour later Dr. Roy Goodsend appeared at the house, and in less than an hour the broken bone was set and splinted and bandaged, and about all he said of any consequence before he took his departure was:

"I was sorry I was not at hand to catch you as you fell. Really, Miss Campbell, you seem to need the care of a guardian."

Before the broken bone had completely knit Dr. Roy Goodsend had something to say. He sat amidst the roses climbing over the veranda. He hadn't a wife and two or three children, but wanted them, and Miss Dorothy was sensible enough to let him rescue her for the fourth time.

Nearly Every Girl Can Make Herself Pretty and Attractive

Probably you know just such a girl.

Perhaps she is sixteen — good to look at, and pretty— quite interesting because she reflects the graces and charm that give promise of happiness to herself and others. But she is not strong. The colour in her cheeks, once so rosy, has faded away —her eyes are listless—the buoyancy of spirit and vigour she once possessed are sadly lacking. Parents, friends, this girl needs Ferrozone— needs it that her blood may be renewed — needs it to restore the nerve force that growth, study and the development of her fresh youth have exhausted. This girl will become a queen with Ferrozone — which will restore her colour—bring back her old-time energy— give brightness to her eyes and vivacity to her spirits. In Ferrozone every girl finds strength—then she can do things. In Ferrozone there is endurance —that drives away morning tiredness and languor. For the girl or woman that wants to be happy, healthy, winning — who values rosy cheeks, laughing eyes and abundant good spirits, nothing can compare with Ferrozone. 50c. per box, or six for $2.50. A HORRIBLE BUTCHERY.

Carpathians Are a Vast Cemetery for Hungarians.

The Hungarian committee entrusted with the care of the graves of fallen soldiers have issued a report, in which it is stated that their researches in the northern Carpathians have resulted in the discovery altogether of 200,000 graves of Austro-Hungarian and German soldiers, says the Budapest correspondent of The Glasgow Herald. Of these over 35,000 were common graves, where more than one body is interred. The crosses over the graves were re-marked, and the names—where these were known—rewritten. The figures given indicate that during the winter of 1914-15 over 25,000 men were killed in the battlefields of that region—a fact never before revealed. The publication of the report in question therefore has caused the greatest depression, for it is well known that the majority of the units who were engaged there against the Russians were composed of Hungarians, only a small fraction of the forces being German and Austrian. The "Nepszava," commenting on the report, points out that at that time the Russians were the attacking party. "Now we are the attackers, and it is hardly necessary to say more," says the writer. "What if the Russians in the winter of 1914-15 had had the artillery and munitions that they have now and will have during the winter of 1916-17? How would that have affected the number of casualties in a defensive campaign? The difference between the defensive campaign and the offensive campaign of this autumn affords much food for reflection."

A horrible butchery is in fact going on in the wooded Carpathians, where thousands and thousands have been sacrificed in the endeavor to drive a wedge between the Russian and the Roumanian line. The plan of campaign is conceived solely with a view to German interests, although the men who lie in those graves among the mountains are mostly Hungarians.

"From Orsova to the Uzsok Pass the Carpathians are a vast cemetery," says the report, and 7,000 men are being employed in identifying the graves and restoring them. "The work has to be completed before the snow covers everything over and the floods wash away all traces of the resting-places of those who have fallen." The committee, therefore, have but a very short time at their disposal. If General Falkenhayn and the Archduke Karl do not succeed in breaking through the Russian and Roumanian lines, next year the committee will have to begin their work all over again, for at the present rate of butchery in the Carpathians and the Transylvanian Alps the number of graves will soon be doubled.

Rhinoceros Horn as Cure.

Rhinoceros horn is one of the chief remedies resorted to by Chinese doctors in the treatment of typhoid fever. An epidemic of typhoid recently swept through Wenchow in the Chekiang Province, China, and resulted in the death of many persons. During the epidemic foreigners had an opportunity to study the treatment of the disease used by native physicians. Cold towels were applied to the head of the patient while the abdomen was covered thickly with mud kept cool and moist by frequent application of cold water. Some of the more prosperous patients were given as much as $12 worth of ground rhinoceros horn in a single day.

Russia's Ice-free Harbor.

Russia's most important transportation undertaking since the construction of the Trans-Siberian railway is the new road from Petrograd due north to an ice-free port on the Arctic Ocean, says Paul P. Foster, in the Review of Reviews. No country in the world with the possibilities that Russia possesses is so unfortunately situated with regard to access to the sea. Archangel and the other northern ports are closed with ice during a great part of the year, and this is true also of the Baltic outlets. The war closed the Dardanelles to Russia, and Vladivostock, 6,000 miles from the capital, has hitherto been the only year-round ice-free harbor of the great empire. But at Novo Alexandrovsk, on the Kola peninsula of Lapland and well within the Arctic circle, the influence of the Gulf stream keeps the mouth of the bay free from ice the year round. The Russian Government has therefore rushed the construction of a railway which will bring her sorely needed supplies without interruption during the winter months from this isolated port to the capital. At last accounts all but the brief stretch of road that lies between Soroka and Kamdalaksha had been completed. This is the most difficult section, for it passes through the vast forests and treacherous swamps that border the White Sea. There is every reason to believe, however, that the last rails will be laid in December, when the whole road should be in working order.

BIRDS FLY AT NIGHT.

Thousands Migrate in the Darkness During Fall.

It is difficult to believe that at times during the season of migration the sky at night is filled with birds from dusk until dawn. Onward they hurry through the darkness. If they see the earth below, it must be too dim to guide them on their journey. Still they find their way just as surely as do those birds which travel by day.

The day flyers are hardy rovers which are used to the open and do not hesitate to venture far from cover. But the night flyers, writes Frank M. Chapman in The Travels of Birds, are the shy, retiring birds of thickets and undergrowth, which rarely go far from their own doorstep. Or, if they live in trees, their flight is usually only from tree to tree. The Thrushes, Warblers, Virels, and small Fly-Catchers are all night flyers.

Most of the Snipe live along the beaches or in treeless places, and, as we have learned, they travel by day. But that retiring member of this family, the Woodcock, lives in the dark, shady places and waits for the sun to set before he starts on his journey.

For several reasons, we know more about the travels of the night flyers than we do about those of the day flyers. First, because many more birds travel by night than by day; second, because practically all birds that fly by night are real migrants; third, because the night flyers seem unable to avoid the lighthouses in their way.

By night as well as day our ears can tell us much about the number of birds that are passing overhead. Indeed, during nights when many birds are flying, we can, from favorable places, such as high hills, hear their call-notes almost constantly. The hill brings us nearer the birds, and the city lights bring the birds nearer to us. Light seems to attract them as it does moths.

An ornithologist at Madison, Wis., states, that on the night of September 14, 1906, no less than 3,800 bird calls were heard from one place. The average was 13 calls for one minute. But at times so many calls were heard that it was evident the air above was thronged with birds.

Study the birds' time-table, and some night during the season of migration go out of doors and listen. You may hear the chirp of Warblers, the metallic chink of the Bobolinks, the soft whistle of the Thrushes. Nothing I can write will make you realize more clearly how wonderful is the journey, through darkness, of these small feathered travelers.

A Turkless Mecca.

A sanitary pilgrimage to Mecca should not pass without a word. In the past the devout who journeyed across the Arabian desert fell prey to many a scourge of disease, not to mention incursions of bandits. This year the returning travellers tell a different story. Among other things they tell of a Mecca minus the Turks who have ruled it so long, and of a Grand Sherif, a descendant of Allah who has not only revolted from the Ottoman Empire, but has studied hygiene.

The ceremony of receiving the Holy Carpet at Cairo on its return from Mecca took place in the presence of the Prime Minister, representing the Sultan, who is indisposed. The pilgrimage was accomplished this year without any untoward incident. All those who took part in it are highly satisfied with the manner in which the Grand Sherif of Mecca cared for their needs. Especially remarkable were the hygienic precautions taken by his highness, precautions to which the immunity of the pilgrimage from cholera and plague is in great measure ascribed.

There were about 30,000 pilgrims this year, including 5,000 Indians, 2,000 Egyptians, and 18,000 from the Hedjas.

It is said that the Indians and Moslems from other regions that were met at Mecca were similarly favorably impressed and that the news spread by returning pilgrims of the successful accomplishment of the pilgrimage, amid conditions contrasting strikingly with those existing before the war, when pillage and bloodshed were of daily occurrence, and epidemics and terrible privations followed in the wake of the pilgrims, will go a long way to convince the Moslem world of the beneficial effects accruing to it from the Grand Sherif's blow for independence.

The Reason.

"That is why he is always in the hole."—Baltimore American.

Give no reins to your inflamed passions. Take time and a little delay. Impetuosity manages all things badly. —Statius.

THE SPEED OF SHIPS.

On first thought the sea's depth seems of little importance if the ship finds depth enough to give her an easy draft. If she can run free apparently it makes little difference whether she has six feet or 600 feet between her keel and the bottom. Such an inference is, however, erroneous, for the depth exercises an important influence.

The British cruisers Blake and Blenheim were expected to run twenty-one knots, but actually ran two knots less in shallow water. They ran again under the same power, but the depth was between 135 and 165 feet, and their speed was twenty-two knots, one knot in excess of the maximum calculation.

The difference in speed is attributed to the influence of the "wave of translation" displaced by the ship as she moves forward, which acts as a brake. The nearer the ship's keel to the bottom the stronger the friction. A ship drawing twenty-seven feet of water—say a ship of 12,000 tonnage—feels that friction over a depth of 250 feet. According to some calculations, the dragging influence ceases to be felt at a depth equal to ten and one-half times the draft if the ship stands high out of the water.

A curious feature of the matter is that the speed of the ship is as important an element as the depth of the water—that is to say, the influence of the depth on the ship's speed is more or less powerful in proportion as the speed is great.—A ship increases her speed more readily over deep water; but, on the other hand, the faster a ship runs the more depth of water she requires to prevent the hindrance caused by the dragging influence of the friction which is always felt when the ship's keel "senses" bottom.

Running ten knots an hour, a ship must have between twenty-six and twenty-seven feet of depth or she is dragged from below. If running twenty knots she needs a depth of 104 to 105 feet, and when running thirty knots she feels the drag over a depth of nearly 324 feet.—Exchange.

Two Cases of Eczema and How They Were Cured

Further Proof That Dr. Chase's Ointment is a Positive Cure For Chronic Eczema

If you read these letters you will find that Dr. Chase's Ointment is not to be classed among ordinary salves and ointments.

By actual curing itching, stinging eczema in many thousands of cases it has stood the most severe test to which any ointment can be put.

Mr. J. Brice, Temperance road, Parry Sound, Ont., writes: "Just a line to praise Dr. Chase's Ointment for what it has done for my wife. She has been suffering from eczema in her head for two years, and has spent no end of money with doctors and for ointments, which did her no good. She had about given up hope of ever being cured, when someone told her to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. By the use of this Ointment the trouble has left her entirely, so we have unbounded faith in it. I have told several people about the Ointment."

Mrs. W. G. Dowden, Greenspond, Bonavista Bay, Nfld., writes: "I suffered with eczema on my hands, and for eighteen months was so bad that I could not use a needle to sew or do anything. I could scarcely dress myself. Though I had lots of salves from doctors, I could never get much benefit from them. Then I sent for a sample of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and found it very different in action. It was not long before my hands begn to heal, and four 60c. boxes made them well. I cannot praise Dr. Chase's Ointment too highly, and frequently give some to others to get them using it, for I know that it will cure."

In the home Dr. Chase's Ointment is of almost daily usefulness, for by relieving chafing and irritation of the skin it prevents eczema and similar itching skin diseases. Applied to all cuts and wounds, it prevents blood poisoning and heals the skin. Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

This is new

The Peps way of treating coughs, colds, bronchitis and lung and throat troubles. How? Well, up to now people with these chest and throat troubles have swallowed cough mixtures, sickly syrups and the like, into their stomachs. Sore lungs and throat get no good by dosing the stomach. Peps work differently.

Peps are tablets made up of Pine extracts and medicinal essences, which when put into the mouth turn into healing vapors. These are breathed down direct to the lungs, throat and bronchial tubes—not swallowed down to the stomach, which is not ailing. Try a 50c. box of Peps for your cold, your cough, bronchitis or asthma. All druggists and stores or Peps Co., Toronto, will supply

TOAST OF THE ROYAL SCOTS

SALONIKA—There is a Scotch regiment here which takes its liquor to a truly Caledonian toast:

"Here's tae us! Wha's like us? Damn few!"

That sentiment did not make for popularity once. only those who would truckle for whiskey's sake drank with them. After that announcement had been repeated about five grim times the wise boss of a barroom turned out the light and hid under the bed. Nowadays it goes with a roar and a chorus. Even those who are buying their own drinks on army pay and at the Salonika scale join in on it:

THEY HAVE MADE GOOD.

Because the Jocks have something more than made good the Scotch claim to be fighting men, it is a little early to say that this regiment or that are the best Britons at Salonika, but the opinion seems to be unanimous that if the Jocks are at the back, the regiment in front is sure they'll stay there. If the Jocks are in front, the regiment behind will have to scramble to get part of the fun. There is no invidious rating between the Scotch regiments. They are all dour, grim, enduring fighting men.

I haven't quite made out what the captain of the battery was doing in this show. The fighting was on the Struma, and his battery had had a part of it. Three days they had been under shell fire. The story of that battery's part is a story in itself, because for three days they "stuck it" under the most accurate fire that any man of them had ever experienced. In the soft ground the six-inch shells that were being dumped in on them made holes twenty feet across and eight feet deep, and yet in the three days not a man or a gun was scratched.

The captain of the battery doesn't account for it. He bears rather a hard exterior finish, does the captain, but there is an accent of awe in his voice when he tells the story. It was a bit of a miracle, says he.

BULGARS THREE TO ONE.

Anyhow, the Royal Scots were one of the regiments sent up to hold the line. There were three Bulgars to one against them, at the least, and no one who has fought the Bulgarians will say that they are not good fighting men. Maybe they don't "stick it" as well as some other people. In army phrase they "get the wind up 'em" after they have been hammered to bits for a time. But as long as they have the top hold they are roaring, cursing, hard-hitting scrappers.

The Royal Scots had had two days and two nights of continual fighting. They were very tired. The men fell asleep against the walls of the trenches and lay at full length in the Struma mud, which is extraordinarily mean mud. At 2 o'clock in the morning of the third day the Bulgarians attacked in force.

"It was a rotten night," said the captain of eighteen-pounders. "My word! Raining and cold no end."

The old colonel of the Royal Scots gave an order and the kilties scrambled out of their trenches and lined up on the Bulgarian side of the barbed wire. The captain of the eighteen-pounders was unable to more than indicate the scene. He was dimly conscious that on either side of him ran a line of men, grimly silent, resting, as though carved in stone, on their muskets.

Now and then a flash of lightning pierced the wet veil of night. He caught dim plimpse of their sodden bonnets and their dripping kilts, and their hard faces. Then came the pipes.

"He played' em forward into action," said the captain of the eighteen-pounders, "I don't know what the tune was. I was never in Scotland in my life. But I went forward along with them."

The line moved on silent, steady elbows touching, in an alignment that seemed almost perfect. Now and then the lightning came and before the Royal Scots could be seen the pipers, heads up, elbows pumping, a screech of some old reviving tune skirling from their bags. On ahead the Bulgarians were shooting bloody death at them, but the Royal Scots marched on.

They worked their way through the wires and came to the lip of the great trench in which the Bulgarians were sheltered and still the pipes screamed that wild melody under the stormy sky.

"You should have heard 'em say 'hoo'—softly— as they dropped into that big trench packed with men," said the captain of the eighteen-pounders.

No doubt he had a reason for being there — a reason he can give to his C. O., and quite unconnected with bagpipes — but at the moment it does not appear. A little later on he climbed a minaret and standing on the balcony from which the mullah calls the faithful to their prayers he directed the fire of his battery.

Frightened, of course, he says. No man not a born fool could be other than frightened in such a place, with the bullets nicking the soft brick about him, and his own shells passing so near he could feel the wind, and now and then a Bulgarian shell just ticking the pointed top of the minaret. But every now and then the wind died away and the noise of battle was lulled and the drive of the ram seemed to soften, and then he could hear the pipes of the Royal Scots leaped into that trench in the ward into battle.

"But the thing of all I'll never forget," says he "is the way the Royal Scots leaped into that trenche in the black night and the way they said 'hoo' — softly — as they sent in the steel."

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood, and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying, and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S TWO GORE GATHERED SKIRT.

By Anabel Worthington.

In separate skirts the plaited and the gathered models have taken splendidly with those who follow fashion's moods and in the garment illustrated we see the season's main style features well expressed.

The smart touches that add to the charm of the model are the side yokes and the odd pockets. The tops of the two gores are gathered where the yokes are joined. It is interesting to note how the right front of the yoke laps the left in a way to give the effect of a belt. You may omit the yokes and pockets for a less impressive style and yet have a design that is graceful and new. A raised waistline is used and the lower edge of the garment in size 24 measures 3 yards.

All dark and neutral colors are popular for street and afternoon wear and one may choose from a variety of materials, including broadcloth, gabardine, serge, wool check, satin charmeuse, taffeta and velveteen.

If you regard quality, novelty and fit of equal importance you will turn to making up this design according to the pictured pattern instructions.

The skirt pattern, No. 8,084, cuts in sizes 24 to 32 waist. To make in size 24 requires 4¼ yards of 36 inch material, allowing for yokes and pockets; 3⅝ yards of 36 inch goods without yokes.

To obtain the pattern, send 10 to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Sunday Sermon For Those Who Do Not Go To Church

(By JAMES SUTHERLAND)

St. John 11th chap., 43rd to 46th verses:

"And when He had thus spoken He cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth."

There is nothing that we naturally shrink back from more than the grave—it is a heart-rending thought even to the best and the bravest of us to leave those that we have companioned with all along life's journey from youth to old age, who has ministered to all our wants, and whose presence has lifted our burdens and lightened our sorrows. It is hard to leave the darlings of our home, the joy and the sunshine of our lives. It is hard to think that we shall never clasp hands or meet their happy, joyous smiles again. God has planted those ties and those affections in the human heart, never to be dissolved or broken again. If we are His in time we shall be His in eternity, and we shall meet those that we have loved and lost awhile, to part no more. And this is the victory, that in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible. Then we shall say, O grave where is thy victory. John 5th chap., 25th verse. Verily, verily, I say unto you, the hour is coming and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear shall live. Jesus speaks through the Bible, through His servants, through afflictions, troubles and trials, and is calling men everywhere to repentance. The first recorded sermon of Christ's was repent, for the kingdom of Heaven is at hand. This was also John the Baptist's theme. This was the Apostle Peter's theme at Pentecost. Repent, that your sins may be blotted out and that times of refreshing may come from the presence of the Lord. Wherever the gospel is preached under the inspiration of the Holy Ghost souls are saved. It was so at Lazarus' grave. The Saviour's prayer and address led many of the Jews to believe on Him. It was a happy day in Bethany. Sorrow was turned into rejoicing; grief and crying and tears into songs of praise. Lazarus was restored to the bosom of his family. He was again clasped in their arms, safe and sound I can imagine with what joy and gladness they met at family worship that evening, and their song would be: Return unto thy rest, O my soul, for the Lord hath dealt bountifully with thee. All their unbelief and doubts were cleared away; the clouds were dispersed, and joy and gladness filled their glad hearts. His promises, His tarrying, His trial of them—all was explained, and Mary sat at His feet and heard His words, and her faith in Him was stronger than ever, and their joy was still further increased because many of the Jews believed on Him. The Shepherd had found some of the lost sheep that night and there was joy among the angels of God over the saved ones. It was a birthnight for eternity.

The voice that called Lazarus forth pierced many a heart. The cottage at Bethany would be like a little heaven that night. The Jews believed when they saw the things that Jesus did—just as the dying thief believed on Jesus when he saw His calmness, His love, His pity. He could not but believe that this was the Son of God, the Saviour of the world, and draw from Him that dying prayer, Lord, remember me when thou comest into Thy kingdom.

The Jews saw the amazing love of Jesus to Lazarus, to Martha, and to Mary. They saw His tears; they heard His groans; they heard Him thank and praise His father, and they could not but believe on Him. They saw divine power and divine love to sinners. It is the same thing which persuades sinners now to believe. Some of the great gathering at the grave were saved, and some went away unsaved, for they went and told the Pharisees all about the raising of Lazarus from the dead, so the Pharisees and the chief priests came together in council and said, What do we, for this man doeth many miracles. If we let him thus alone all men will believe on Him and the Romans shall come and take away both our place and notion. Then from that day forth they took counsel together for to put Him to death. Jesus therefore walked no more openly among the Jews; they sought for to take Him and gave commandment that if any man knew where He was he should show it that they might take Him. They expected that He would come to the passover. They were determined not to believe His miracles, neither would they acknowledge Him as their Messiah. They despised His mean appearance—so different from their carnal ideas. Caiphas was a hold, profane politician; he considered that Christ should be sacrificed, thinking it even expedient that an innocent person should be put to death, rather than that the nation should suffer. Some members of the Sanhedrim, notably Nicodemus and Joseph of Arimithea, did not concur in these resolutions. When Caiaphas uttered his wicked counsel God was pleased to guide Him to utter a remarkable prophecy declaring that Jesus should be an atoning sacrifice for the sins of the world, suffering the just for the unjust, that by His death He might save the world from perishing. The evangelist here expounds the meaning of the Holy Ghost who spake by him; and that bitter enemy of Christ was constrained to bear testimony to the great doctrine of Salvation through His atoning blood. Even Balaam was constrained to bless Israel when bent on cursing; the counsel of Caiaphas determined the Sanhedrim to devise measures for putting Jesus to death. Jesus willingly died to gather the children of God into His Kingdom. Christ's dying is the great attractive of our hearts. For this end He is lifted up, to draw men to Him. His love in dying for us is the great loadstone of our love. Christ by the merit of His death recommended all the saints in one to the grace of God. Heb. 2nd, 11 and 13 vs. It was our Lord's purpose to suffer death at the ensuing feast of the Passover. He was pleased to retire to an obscure part of the country where He abode with His disciples till within a few days of the Passover, when they came to Bethany to the home of Lazarus, Martha and Mary, to sit at their table for the last time on earth, to linger under the shade of the fig tree, and to speak those loving farewell words that angels nor historian has ever written, but will ever be remembered by the happy family at Bethany.

It has been a great pleasure to me to write these Sunday sermons. I have been profited myself, and many others are reading them, I hope to their own good. What suggested this subject to me was this: I was at a prayer meeting, and while a lady was giving her testimony she was weeping. I thought of Jesus weeping at Lazarus' grave, and Martha and Mary in tears. And then I thought of the tears I have shed while standing at the little grass covered mound, the grave of my loved ones.

Yours sincerely,
James Sutherland.

Tightening Up On Passports For All The Outer Empire

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Applications for passports for Canada as well as for other places, are bein scrutinized here closely now. Persons between sixteen and sixty years of age in both sexes who might likely be of use in munition making or some other form of national service have little chance of obtaining permission to proceed to other parts of the Empire.

Many applications for passports for women wanting to go to Canada for domestic service have recently been turned down.

Emigration and steamship agents, who get a commission, naturally are much perturbed, but the official reply to protests is that the national emergency is of such a character that it is impossible to allow anybody who might possibly be useful to leave the country.

When Tank Meets Tank

News from Roumania of a new German armoured automobile, 25 feet long, with wheels a foot wide, encased in solid rubber, propelled by 1-100 horse-power engine, capable of carrying ten men and machine guns, is proclaimed with an assurance intended to give impression that this monster is calculated to outtank the British tank.

Asserted speed of 25 miles an hour may show superiority in this respect over the snail-like English tank; but can it cross trenches, bridge chasms, knock down and clamber over buildings?

These inventions are symptomatic in one respect, at least, of English and German mental characteristics—the one a leader in inventive genius, the other an able imitator with clever adaptability.

Of 70 odd basic inventions of world-wide importance, conceived since about the middle of the 17th century, the Teutonic allies have been but small contributors. Bulgaria and Turkey furnished none; Austria, one; and Germany, four—a total of five. Entente Allies are credited with 34, of which Italy boasts two, France, 12; Great Britain, 20.

"Yankee ingenuity," moreover, gives added evidence of superior capacity for great invention among English-speaking peoples, for during the past 250 years Americans have originated nearly as many great inventions as all the rest of the world Among these are the cotton gin, successful steam navigation, friction matches, typewriter, electric telegraph, sewing machine and the telephone.

Whether or not protracted war stimulates invention, it is noteworthy that nearly a fifth of our great inventions were brought out from 1861 to 1866, including the iron-clad steam battery, gatling gun, automobile torpedo, etc. About two-thirds of the great English inventions in the last 2 1-2 centuries were conceived during war times.

On His Furlough.—The reading lesson was on, and the word "furlough" occurred. Miss Jones, the teacher, asked if any little girl or boy knew the meaning of the word. One small hand was raised. "Furlough means a mule," said the child. "Oh, no; it doesn't," said the teacher. "Yes, ma'am," insisted the little girl. "I have a book at home that says so." Miss Jones told the child to bring the book to school. The next morning the child came armed with a book, and triumphantly showed a picture of an American soldier riding a mule, under which was the caption—"Going home on his furlough."

Her Tragic Death Follows Reverses

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Family reverses, both social and financial, are believed to have caused Mrs. Eleanor R. Schlaepfer, wife of Carl Schlaepfer, of Paterson, N.J., at one time manager of the American branch of the Naef Brothers Silk Manufacturing Company, of Paterson, to rush in front of a train at the Broadway station. Frank Gallagher, motorman, stated that she jumped from the platform as the train he was driving approached, and he could not make a complete stop until five cars had passed over her body.

From all accounts, Mrs. Schlaefer stood in the middle of the platform until the train came into the station and then jumped to the tracks. While it is stated by members of the family that there was no estrangement, the police and other Paterson sources give information which may explain the death.

Immediately after Schlaefer's act a call was sent for a fire truck, but before it arrived Policeman Schopper, of the West 177th street station, who had heard the cries of the passengers on the platform, extricated the body from beneath the train and placed it on the platform. In her handbag was a sealed letter addressed to Carl Schlaefer, Braun Building, Market street, Paterson, N.J. Also the bag contained $7.16, a wedding ring inscribed "Carl to Ella, April 6, 1892," and minor articles.

Forty-Eight Years Old.

In Paterson it was established beyond doubt that the woman was Mrs. Schlaepfer. It was said that she was forty-eight years old and lived with her daughter, Miss Lenore Schlaepfer, at No. 106 Northern avenue, near 181st street, this city. She has one son, Rudolph, twenty-eight years old, who served until recently with the New Jersey National Guard on the border; also a daughter, twenty-five years old, a Vassar graduate, employed as the secretary of a Mr. Parker, general sales agent of the Library Bureau, No. 316 Broadway, New York city. Her husband after the liquidation of the Naef Brothers Silk Manufacturing Company became associated with the Victory Silk Company, of Paterson.

For many years while Mr. Schlaepfer held his first position the family was prominent socially. They were all members of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, and Mrs. Schlaepfer was one of the managers of the Paterson General Hospital. She also was connected with the Woman's Guild of the church. It was stated that financial reverses caused the separation of the family recently.

The Rev. D. Stuart Hamilton, pastor of St. Paul's Church, was sure, he said, that there was no family estrangement because only last Sunday the family, except Mrs. Schlaepfer, had dinner with friends in Paterson. At the time she was indisposed and could not attend, he said.

Miss Lenore Schlaepfer said at her home that she was certain her mother's death was due to an accident. "I am certain that she was overcome with dizziness and lurched forward under the cars," she declared.

Miss Schlaepfer said her mother had told her she was going down town to do some shopping. Her mother kept house for her while she went out to business, Miss Schlaepfer said, and they had both been very happy.

DON'T LET YOUR SOLDIER LACK ZAM-BUK

Scores of men at the front have written home to friends and relations asking for Zam-Buk. They need it to apply to chapped hands, cold cracks, frost bites, chilblains, cold sores, stiff joints, and other similar ailments incidental to trench life. These ailments, although not serious enough to unfit a man for duty, cause him endless pain, and the soldier who is supplied with Zam-Buk will be saved much unnecessary suffering. Nothing stops pain like Zam-Buk, nothing draws out the soreness and heals so quickly.

For hands, sore and blistered after trench-digging, Zam-Buk is splendid, and applications of Zam-Buk to the feet before long marches will prevent the feet from becoming sore and blistered. The letters below illustrate the soldier's need and appreciation of Zam-Buk.

Private J. R. Smith of the "Princess Pats" writes: "Tell my friends, if they want to help me, to send Zam-Buk."

Sapper G. T. Webster, 2nd Field Co., Canadian Engineers, writes: "You can have no idea how much we appreciate Zam-Buk out here. It is splendid for sores, cuts, bruises, sprains, etc."

Shoeing-Smith McIlwraith, of the 2nd Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders, writes from France: "I have used Zam-Buk for 14 years in the British Army in South Africa, India and France, and have never found its equal. There is no fear of blood-poisoning from cuts or scratches if Zam-Buk is applied. The trouble is that Zam-Buk is too scarce out here—our friends should send us more of it."

This applies to you, so be sure to include a few boxes of Zam-Buk in your next parcel to the front! All druggists 50c. box, 3 for $1.25, or direct from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Had Severe Cold PAIN IN CHEST SPASMODIC COUGHING

Many people when they contract a cold do not pay any attention to it, thinking perhaps it will pass away in a day or two. This is a mistake for before they know it, it has settled on the lungs.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that on the first sign of a cough or cold it must be gotten rid of immediately, otherwise it may cause years of suffering from some serious lung trouble.

Mr. A. George, 30 Blevin's Place, Toronto, Ont., writes: "Having greatly benefitted from your remedy, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, I take the liberty to write you a few words about the effect of that wonderful syrup. Two years ago I caught a severe cold followed by a spasmodic cough and pain in my chest. I was treated by many doctors but without any benefit, and also took many proprietory medicines which all failed to cure. One of my friends recommended Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after using three bottles I was completely cured. I recommend it to anyone as a God-sent remedy."

PARLIAMENT TO ADJOURN TO LET THE PREMIER ATTEND IMPERIAL CONFERENCE

This Step Seems Practically Certain Following the Development of the Opening Day's Debate on the Address---Varied Comment on President Wilson's Peace Proposal Speech to the Senate ---Little Activity From the War Fronts.

THE GERMAN RAIDER HAS DISAPPEARED

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, January 23.—That Parliament will remain in session for a month longer and then adjourn for a period of at least six weeks in order to allow the Prime Minister to attend the Imperial Conference, appears to be practically certain, following the developments of the opening days' debate on the address.

MADISON, Wis., January 23.—Wm. Jennings Bryan is opposed to the proposition of the United States joining a league of nations to enforce peace.

Commenting on President Wilson's speech before the Senate, Bryan to-day declared it to be a "wonderful eloquent appeal to the nations at war," but said the President had sown "wheat and tares together," and expressed the hope that the Senate would "reject the tares."

PARIS, January 23. — The French press is frankly critical to-day of President Wilson's address to the American Senate. All editorials agreed in the general belief that his message is not without merit, but adjudge utopian because it is to be applied to Germany and pan-Germanism.

LONDON, January 23.—"Victory for the Allies," says the Pall Mall Gazette, "is the first essential safety, after that we can talk about permanent suppression of war at our leisure."

The Times lauds Wilson as the first individual in a big nation who advances as a practical plan "the dreams of many thinkers for a great number of centuries."

"The Allies believe that a victorious peace is essential however," the Times concluded, "as Lincoln believed it essential in the Civil War."

WASHINGTON, January 23.—That literal working out of the President's suggestions regarding "a direct outlet to the great highways of the seas" for all nations would mean complete neutralization of the Panama, Suez and Kiel Canals, as well as the neutralization of Gibraltar and the Dardanelles, is the interpretation by British, German and neutral officials here to-day.

NEW YORK, January 23.—With few exceptions the Democratic press of the United States to-day hailed President Wilson's speech to the Senate as a great step in the history of the nation and of the world.

Editorial comment to-day showed political party division. Some Republican newspapers attacked it, but others merely expressed fear that its advanced idealism would lead to misunderstandings abroad and dispute at home.

The New York Tribune (Republican), declares that the President "has gone from bad to worse," while the St. Louis Globe (Democrat), calls the speech "either a monumental mistake or an act that will fill a glowing page in history."

To a certain extent a similar division is apparent in the Democratic press. The Louisville Courier Journal, on the other hand refers to the speech as the "proposal of a transcendental dreamer."

The New York Staats Zeitung (German), declares the President's words "will ring through the centuries," while the Illinois Statts Zeitung (German), declares he "spoke without authority."

BUENOS AIRES, January 23.—The German raider has apparently disappeared just as mysteriously as she arrived in the South Atlantic.

Rio de Janeiro reported several vessels, which might be the raider and consorts, sighted on the North Brazil coast, but there was no tangible evidence that any of these were actually the raiders.

Rumours that the British cruiser Glasgow had sunk the raider were entirely discredited to-day.

RIO DE JANIERO, January 23.—During the night the guns of the Fort of Santa Cruz halted the steamer Hammershus, flying the Danish flag, and leaving here with a cargo of provisions and munitions, believed to be for the German raider. The steamer put back to port and is now under surveillance.

BERLIN, January 23.—A gigantic scheme in food swindling has just been uncovered through the arrest of Frau Kupfer and her pretty daughter by the police to-day. Berlin's first citizens, it is now revealed, have been swindled out of millions of marks in a story of financing and manipulation that rivals fiction.

LONDON, January 23.—Sixty-nine persons were killed, 72 seriously injured, and 328 slightly hurt, in the explosion in a munitions plant "in the neighbourhood of London," last Friday, according to official figures issued to-day. This was said to be a complete list of casualties.

PARIS, January 23.—A cannonading between the Aisne and the Oise was the only feature of a calm night along the western front, to-day's official statement declared.

Clock Contest At Oak Hall A Big Feature

The Clock Contest at Oak Hall promises to be a lively one, from the way guesses are coming in. No doubt the contest will be more keenly contested this year, as the public had the experience of last year's clock tested out. The question is, will there be much, if any, difference, in the time. Last year's clock was a $12.00 one. This year Oak Hall is giving a $17.00 clock, with their special January sale prices, and dollar day bargains on the merchandise Oak Hall offers, with the opportunity to win a $17.00 clock, makes Oak Hall a magnet for Dollar Day. Bring your blanks filled out and deposit in ballot box at the store.

AN APPEAL TO THE EMPLOYERS OF LABOUR

An appeal is here made to employers of labour to redeem the promises made publicly if not privately, that work would be found for the men returned from service, especially those who served in France, and who have had disablements.

Then there is the class of men who went to England, were discharged from service as medically unfit and who have come back. Pretty much as they were before enlistment. How far does the promise as noted above apply to these men? Not their fault that they were not on the lines.

Many men come into the office and complain that they are refused work, that is, no places are open to them. Possibly some places open are not to their liking. One man complains, and this man saw service and was returned disabled, that where he was employed a girl was taken on in his place at $1.25 per day. He says he would not work for that wage, so quit.

Now we might just as well be plain about this matter. These men have a right to expect some consideration. Are they getting it? It is practically impossible to telephone to thirteen factories three or four times a day to see if there are vacancies. For the last two weeks not one employer has signified that there was employment to be given, that places would be made.

Employers should have consistency enough to instruct some one in the service to notify the Patriotic Fund office of any opportunity to place men, and to do so without being stirred up. On the other hand if we have reached the point in the city where there is no employment to be had, why not say so. Let us not go ahead on a fiction, as at present.

This is an appeal to employers to wake up, so far as the returned man is concerned. Don't shove the duty off onto the other fellow. What about your shop? Any openings? Then advise.

And it will be taken, and rightly so, that if no one says that men can be taken on that there has ceased to be a want for men. Then the returned man can be told, as he will be told, that out of town for him. That is the only alternative.

Is there anything else we can do? And who will do it?

Toronto, Jan. 21.—The Provincial Attorney-General would like to get the names of the people who send out the so-called Golden Chain Prayer. "The letters are anonymous, and we have no one to prosecute," said Hon. J. B. Lucas to-day." The circulation of the letters is causing worry to wives and mothers of soldiers, who are asked to send out seven copies of it to others, failing to do which great misfortune will come. The prayer implores a blessing on soldiers and sailors.

The Lindsay Post says: The Post was informed to-day that Lieut.-Col. Glass O. C. 222nd Batt., has notified Brigadier-General Hemming, G.O.C., Third Military District, Kingston, that he wished to be relieved of his command of the battalion at present being recruited in Victoria and Haliburton counties.

On receipt of the information a reporter interviewed Lieut.-Col. Glass. The officer stated that he felt that the great expense entailed in recruiting in the united counties was not productive of the results anticipated, and in view of this disappointing aspect of the situation he did not feel he was justified in having these conditions continue. Recruiting for the 222nd Battalion commenced the latter part of October.

ROSS RIFLE CONDEMNED BY HAIG AND FRENCH

Correspondence Tabled by Premier Borden in the House of Commons Yesterday Afternoon---Full Story Has Not Yet Come Out.

GEN. HAIG'S REPORT

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.— A part of the story of the Ross rifle, Mark III., with which Canada's troops were armed at the outbreak of the war, is told in voluminous correspondence between the Government and the War Office, tabled by the Premier in the Commons this afternoon. It is only a part of the story which is told, however; the real story will doubtless come out later, when a Parliamentary inquiry is obtained.

The correspondence tabled to-day begins with a letter sent on March 30, 1916, in which Sir R. L. Borden asked Sir George Perley to report as to the real facts regarding the efficiency of the Ross rifle. This report was asked for because the Government wanted to know as to whether further orders for the manufacture of the rifle should be placed. It will be noted that this request comes only after the Canadians had been in the trenches for more than a year, and had long since fought the battle of St. Julien. It was after this battle that the stories began to come back to Canada as to trouble with the rifle.

General French's Ordered Re-arming.

There is enclosed to the Canadian Government Sir John French's report on the Ross rifle, under date of June 19, 1915. In this report General French says that in view of a growing want of confidence in the Ross rifle, he had caused the committee to have a test made. The result of the committee's findings was that the Ross rifle could not be relied upon to work smoothly and efficiently in rapid fire with any ammunition other than that of Canadian manufacture. He notes that no Canadian ammunition was at the time available. Consequently, he says, he ordered the re-arming of the infantry of the Canadian Division with the Lee-Enfield. This was carried out before they went into action on June 16. He suggests a further investigation by the Army Council through the most highly qualified experts available, with a view to finally determine whether it might be advisable to restore the Ross rifle to the Canadian divisions. He adds: "In conclusion, I would observe that I have never condemned the Ross rifle, nor have sufficient data to justify me in doing so."

He notes that the main trouble seemed to be that the ammunition of British manufacture was not suitable for use with the Ross rifle, and he recommends "a slight alteration to the chamber of the rifle, which will better adapt it for use with the British ammunition."

How Long Was It Withheld?

There is nothing in the correspondence, as tabled, to show that this report of Sir John French was given to the Government here until July of 1916. It was not until the spring of last year apparently that Sir Robert Borden finally took decisive action to

WAS THREE TIMES ON BOATS THAT WERE SUBMARINED

Brother of Peterboro Woman Has Had an Exciting Time in the Merchant Service, Which he Joined since the Beginning of the War

TELLS HIS EXPERIENCE

Mrs. T. Carpenter, 196 Reid street, has received a letter from her brother, S. Carpenter, who has had a remarkable experience in the merchant marine service, having been on three ships that have been submarined, and in another that was sunk in another way. He has only been in the service since the war broke out. He gives an interesting account of the last experience in his letter to his sister. He says:

"We have been sunk by a German submarine again at 2.30 p.m. Thursday. I was taken aboard the submarine for nearly an hour. They were very good to me when I told them it was my third time. We were in a little boat for 10 1-2 hours, being picked up by a Dutch steamer at 1 a.m. It was a Godsend for us, for there was a big sea on all the time, and we were tossed from one side of the boat to the other.

"We were well looked after on the Dutch boat, which was a passenger steamer of 12,000 tons. We were on her until Saturday morning at 8 a.m. We had our breakfast on the Downs, our dinner in Deal, and our tea in the Sailors' Home at London.

He says that the submarine commander did not care to torpedo the ship he was on for fear of attracting the attention of other British ships. It was only a small sailing vessel with five men on board, and the commander, after taking all the food, ordered the skipper and his men to go aboard the submarine. This they did, after which the pirate sent two men in a small boat to put bombs on board. When they returned to the submarine, they sailed for an hour, and then ordered the British sailors to take to the small boats. Before they left the commander of the submarine gave them two buckets of drinking water, but this was soon upset owing to the rough sea. Seaman Carpenter says that the submarine commander spoke excellent English. Despite his exciting experiences he has been ordered, and is quite ready, to take another long journey across the ocean.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

NORTH WEST TORONTO.

Hon. W. D. McPherson, the new Provincial Secretary in the Hearst government, who went back to his constituency in Northwest Toronto, was yesterday re-elected by a largely reduced majority—of about 1,600 as compared with his majority of 2,416 in the general election of 1914, in a three man contest. Thus another reduced majority for a Hearst government candidate, appealing to the people under the most favourable circumstances—in a by-election, with concentration of government influence—with the help of the "Tory machine" in Tory Toronto, with the prestige of ministerial standing. Toronto electors have Hogtown characteristics. Mr. McPherson was made minister at the point of a pistol, Toronto sending a solid contingent of eight supporters, demanded the portfolio and got it. The electors, independently of other considerations, would naturally be anxious that Toronto should have another representative in the cabinet, if only till the general elections two years hence. The Liberal candidate made a good run, and the Liberals challenged by Mr. McPherson to put a man into the field, justified his candidature. The benighted people of Toronto had the Liberal policy of progress presented to them, and it is hoped that the educative process will do them good.

THE PETERBOROUGH SENATORSHIP.

From Peterborough's point of view, the despatch announcing the appointment of a batch of Senators, is remarkable for what it does not contain—no appointee for the Peterborough district. The nearest approach to local senatorial representation is the appointment of Mr. Frederick Nicholls, associated or connected with Peterborough as president of the Canadian General Electric Company and, thereupon, our congratulations are in order. But that is not specific enough to satisfy Peterborough's desires and claims to representation in the Senate. It is noted that the seven Senators appointed are described as "long and faithful supporters of the Conservative party." If that is the grounds upon which elevation to the Senate is made, Peterborough can abundantly qualify, not only on that score, but on the score of ability and creditable qualification for the office of Senator.

It is to be hoped that without reference to party, the influential members of Peterborough citizenship will get into action and bring pressure to bear in order to induce the Government to fill one of the seven remaining vacancies with a Peterborough man. As politics go, no matter what our claims to Senatorial honours may be, we shan't get it unless we "get busy."

FARMERS AND LAWYERS.

A platform friend of the farmers told the electors of West Simcoe, in the recent by-election, that they were represented in the Ontario Legislature in a very log-headed way—in a house composed of 111 members, there are only 17 farmers. We can't exactly explain how, but that relative preponderance of the legal profession applies to or affects all legislative bodies. The New York Herald tells of a committee of the House of Representatives at Washington—the Committee on House Rules—of eleven members, of which eight are lawyers, in full standing, and that of the other three, one was educated as a lawyer, another is a doctor, and the other a plain lone farmer. Yet with this great array of legal talent, the committee finds it necessary to "to employ outside counsel at the expense of the taxpayers to conduct its desk investigation."

We don't suppose that our Canadian political lawyers, any more than the United States lawyers of the same class, are expected to violate professional "ethics" by doing purely legal work for nothing—for the poor, paltry sessional indemnity of $2,500 per session—only $27 per day, for the average session. There is argument on the lawyers' side, of a kind. Farmers employ lawyers to do their private business, and pay pretty handily for it sometimes. It is logical, then, to hold that lawyers are necessary to do the business of a province of farmers in the Legislature. The farmers seem to think that is all right; for they continue to elect lawyers, instead of farmers. It is also natural that law making should be done by lawyers; without their help the proverbial coach-and-four hole in the average statute might be forgotten; opportunities for subsequent litigation might be neglected. After all the chief objection to electing lawyers to Parliament is that they are thereby subjected to the temptations that the wiles of practical politicians plant in the way of the unwary, and are in danger of having the traditional honesty of the legal fraternity corrupted.

A FAT RED HERRING.

There is suspicious unanimity of Government journals in the denunciation of the Liberal candidate in Dorchester, Quebec, who is opposing the newest Nationalist Minister in the Conservative Cabinet of Sir Robert Borden. The organs claim that Mr. Lucien Cannon, the Liberal candidate, is disloyal. It is averred that in a speech he declared that he was opposed to Canada taking part in the war. This charge is based on this alleged declaration by Mr. Cannon:

"There are considerations national and Canadian. Are we to ruin our country from the point of view of men, and wealth, and everything else for England? I say 'No' without any hesitation."

Thereupon the organs and politicians lash themselves into a fury of denunciation and loyalty, and can't say enough that is bad enough about the "disloyal" Liberal candidate, judged by his words. But the words quoted are not his words, or if they are somewhat like them, are separated from their context and a misleading interpretation put upon them. Mr. Cannon's statement of his position does not justify the blame that is put upon a few detached and distorted words. Here is what he says:

"The Conservative reports of my speech in Dorchester are greatly misleading. I understand they are obeying the order of their 'bosses' in vile attempts to divide Liberals, and create ill-feeling between both races in this country, when a united effort is necessary. My programme as expounded to my electors, is as follows: 'I am proud to be a British subject and wish to remain so. I believe that Canada should give to the mother country all possible help in money and men, but most strenuously object to being robbed, as we were at Valcartier and other places, by Government friends.'

"As Lord Shaughnessy said, 'Our country should not be drained of all her manhood and resources.' I am opposed to conscription, if it should commence in Quebec, as suggested by Sir Sam Hughes, when Minister of Militia. Vancouver, Winnipeg, and many other cities think as I do in this respect. I think the government should ascertain the available resources of the country in men and wealth, but believe that the National Service cards are badly worded and badly distributed, and not the best means to attain the object in view."

The false version of what Mr. Cannon says is declared to be the result of "a premeditated scheme to discredit the Liberal candidate and the Liberal cause." His platform, as given above, is one with which all loyal Canadians will agree, especially the reference to Government waste of public money in its promotion of war measures. With this, however, disloyal Canadians will not agree, for their partisanship condones all this extravagance to "save the party's face."

It does not need much shrewdness to see why the party organs and party hacks are lashing themselves into a fury over the alleged disloyal utterances of the Liberal candidate—only made so by distortion of their meaning and garbling of their text. The reason is, their indignation, their blatant, pumped-up and affected anger is thrown out as a red herring to draw the scent from the trail that leads to the greater and more notorious and more disastrous disloyalty of the Government. The Borden Governments has from its beginning contained in important Cabinet positions, and still contains, three or four representatives of the only truly disloyal element in Canada, outside a few German and Austrian immigrants. Three or four followers of Bourassa, whose doctrine is that we Canadians owe no allegiance or anything else to Great Britain—"have no use for England and the English," that we must denounce naval preparation for Canada, and cut ourselves off from all idea of sympathy or interested connection with the Mother Country.

This is a surprising record for a loyal government, but it is only half as wonderful as the fact that a large section of the party which arrogates all loyalty to itself, condones this disgraceful and disloyal truckling to a disgraceful and disloyal element, and justifies it as a means of keeping power. It is not too much to assert that the Borden Government holds power by the grace and votes of the Nationalists of Quebec. If it were not for the some twenty Nationalists standing solidly behind the Government in the House, the Government majority would be reduced to the precarious margin of majority of nine or ten, or at most a "devil's dozen." This Nationalist humiliation—a trifle worse than the reciprocity "pact"—is the price of a compact, by which the Nationalists—the shoot-the-flag Nationalists—were to support the Borden Government on condition of the Borden Government killing the Laurier Naval Bill, calling for a Canadian navy. The Government has not dared to do this, but it has perpetrated an equivalent—it has rewarded Nationalists with fat Cabinet positions—shuffled Cabinet positions, not to give strength to the Government, but to give Cabinet emoluments to traitors—to keep up the succession.

This is why the politicians and yellow journals of the party are screaming themselves hoarse with condemnation of the Liberal candidate, founded upon garbling and distortion of his utterances. They think they will draw away attention from the damning record of the Government in its toadyish subserrency to Nationalism, a national outrage, that finds its latest expression in advancing another Nationalist to Cabinet honours over the of loyal Quebec Conservatives.

THE PROBLEM OF POST BELLUM RECONSTRUCTION IN CANADA

In his address last week, Sir Herbert Holt presented a vivid sketch of post-war conditions. He pointed out that there is no permanence in war prosperity, that it is war business which has so accelerated the wheels of industry, and the termination of this must react on industrial activities with far-reaching results. "Factories employed exclusively in this connection will close," he said. "Kindred industries stimulated by high prices will suffer by the establishment of more ordinary conditions. Exports will decline as Europe imports less, and commodity prices will recede. Labour will become a glut on the market, aggravated by the return of soldiers in large numbers. All this appears certain to follow the establishment of peace, and the longer the war endures the more drastic will be the depression, because of the greater economic exhaustion of Europe and the effect upon her buying power. We have already seen the stock markets convulsed by a most improbable suggestion of peace."

Sir Herbert, and others, have previously pleaded for intelligent action to meet post-bellum problems. That there will be such problems nearly all admit. Many, too, have a fairly good idea of their size and type. Yet, with the exception of a few special commissions, some of which are doing good work, little is being done in Canada to prepare for the difficult period to come.

In our leading article this week, Professor R. M. MacIver, of the University of Toronto, makes a convincing statement of the case for the appointment by the federal government of a non-political board to investigate and report upon the problems of post-bellum reconstruction.

"All important belligerent countries, all important neutral countries, have already accomplished much in this direction. Great Britain, the nation which has by far the biggest war job, will, by its foresight now, probably prove to be the best prepare for post-bellum conditions, readjustment and reconstruction. Lloyd George said last week: 'The resources of the nation employed in every direction clear a path to the barbed wire entanglements for our gallant fellows to march through,' he said. 'A loan helps you, insures victory. A loan will help shorten the war; it will help save lives; it will help save the British Empire; it will help save Europe; it will help save civilization.'"

Sir Edmund Walker has said that in this Great War we shall not fail, for then, difficult as enlistment may be, we shall not fail because of inability to make or to procure war supplies. "If we fail it will be because we have wasted on unnecessary things the money that would have won the war." The man or woman who works hard at making shells may take much comfort in helping to win the war, but the man or woman who, in addition, saves a part of the present high wages due to war and buys a war security, or helps a bank to do so, has helped twice, and the second kind of help is the most vital."—Monetary Times.

County and City Councils To Discuss Good Roads Scheme

All the members of the Council were present at a meeting of the Committee of the Whole last night, which was confined largely to the discussion of several matters of civic importance it was deemed inadvisable to make public at the present time.

Mayor Duffus introduced the subject of a good roads system in Peterborough County. He gave a verbal report of a meeting in the Empress Hotel last Friday night at which a number of local business men heard the views and suggestions of the Provincial Road Engineer, Holland of the Ontario Motor League. The Council decided to confer with the County Council which is in session here this week with a view to learning their disposition towards a good roads system. Mayor Duffus expressed the opinion that important as rural radials may be to the urban and country communities, good highways are likely to prove more advantageous, a view Ald. Worth endorsed.

It may be remarked that the County Council and some of the townships have evidenced a deep interest in this highway question. It has been discussed at several sessions and the Reeves are conversant with the provisions of the Highways Act. They have not been entirely inactive, but arrived at a decision to defer actual organization until the war is over. Then, they believe, the money now contributed for patriotic purposes may be diverted to building good roads. The ratepayers will have become accustomed to the increased taxes, and if the present tentative plan can be, as it were, automatically effected an extensive good roads system could be readily financed without a suggestion of new burdens added to the tax rate.

Hence if the City Council is prepared to move for a good roads system, they will likely find the County Council willing to co-operate.

AUTOS SPLASH MUD ON BRIDGE

Ald. Smith reported complaints from ladies that they had been splashed with mud cast up by automobiles speeding over the Hunter Street bridge. He suggested that signs be placed at either end of the bridge requiring automobiles to slow down to about six miles an hour.

RE A SENATORSHIP.

It was suggested that some action should be taken to remind the Federal Government of Peterborough's claims to a senatorship. Ald. Stratton added that seven new senators had been appointed at the week end. Mayor Duffus stated that Capt. Burnham, M.P., had intimated that the Government was too busily engaged with more weighty questions, Ald. Smith asked whether there was any personal reason behind Capt. Burnham's intimation, but the subject was dropped at that point.

Support This Idea.

A resolution passed by the Council of London, Ont., was endorsed as follows:

That a deputation be appointed to wait upon the Provincial Government to endeavour to have the government attend the payment of the Good Roads grant for a proportion of the cost of pavement construction for city streets in connection with suburban roads, that the Hon. Sir Adam Beck be asked to arrange for an interview and that other cities be asked to act with the city in securing amendment to the Highways Act accordingly.

Italians Ask Ban On Street Organs

ALBANY, N.Y., Jan. 23.—It looks as if "East Side, West Side, All Around the Town" was about to become the song of a dead language. The Legislature is to be petitioned to pass a bill abolishing the ancient and honourable profession of organ grinding. Frank Ruggeri, president of the Young Man's Italian Association of Albany, has drawn an amendment to the penal code declaring the hand organ a nuisance, and he and his society have determined to urge the Legislature to pass it.

Despite the fine performance of Otis Skinner in 'Mister Antonio" here the other night, Mr. Ruggeri and his friends have determined that the organ grinder can find more useful work. He is wasting his time, says the president, and his woman companion constantly is subject to insult. Hence, to uphift the standing of the Italian people in the State, one of its traditional occupations must go.

"Nobody in Italy plays the grind organ," to-day said Mr. Ruggeri. "Only lazy fellows here play the organ. It makes the women cheap to go in the saloons. That's one of the reasons why they all call us 'wops.'

"And, besides, this hand organ makes rotten music. It don't play Verdi, Mascagni, Puccini—no, only popular, airs, and even those it plays out of tune."

"AMID THE ROAR OF WORLD'S ARTILLERY FATE WILL SEAL DESTINY OF GERMAN RULER"

So Declares Prof. Fortier, of Montreal, in His Predictions For the Year—Greece, Norway and Holland Will Be Coming into the Conflict

The German Emperor will not live to see the end of the war; Villa will die before September 15, and into the frightful vortex Greece, Norway, and Holland will be drawn."

So declares Prof. L. J. Fortier of Montreal, in his prophecies for this year. "But the covenant of peace shall rise out of a sea of blood."

The following prophecies are given that we may all think wisely, act nobly in these tragic hours. "Where there is no vision the people perish." The volution of humanity to the full flower of the divine brotherhood is in process. The world is not slipping into chaos, Christianity is not crumbling, nor civilization dropping into oblivion. A golden era is unfolding, the glory of which shall fill the whole earth.

The Kings of earth and their armies are gathered together to make war, the nations are filled with the wine of wrath and nation shall rise against nation, but the end is not yet. He that leadeth into captivity, he that killeth with the sword shall be killed by the sword and God shall scatter the people that delight in war. Wisdom is better than weapons of war, by the sword thou shalt live to serve thy brother, and when thou shalt have dominion thou shalt break the yoke off his neck. Then shall thy dwelling be the fatness of the earth, with the dew of heaven, and thou shalt behold the tabernacle of God is with men and He shall dwell with them and they shall be His people and He shall be their God."

America Cannot Save Herself.

"The fires of war are melting off from humanity the fetters of tradition burning away the barriers of racial prejudice, consuming the dross of militarism and materialism, fusing a new world brotherhood. Customs, creeds, cruelty are passing. Vision, faith, service are rising full robed. This cataclysm of nations is the soul of humanity shattering its chrysalis into a diviner freedom. Amid the crash of empires a new civilization is being born. The calvary of civilization is being enacted. But the end is not yet. The flame of war is to encircle the earth. Nation is to rise against nation: The world's war is to be fulfilled. Into the frightful vortex Greece, Norway and Holland will be drawn, and Sweden rent with strife. The great shocks of war are yet to come. The tribunal of Governments has set, the vintage of nations is gathered, the blood from the wine press of this war shall cleanse the heart of the world, and shall become the everlasting covenant of peace. There was an ultimate hour when America could have saved this world tragedy, now she cannot save herself from it.

Villa to Die Soon.

The United States, by force of arms will again enter Mexico, and will establish a provisional government. Carranza and his regime will pass away. Villa will not be alive on September 15. A relative of a former ruler will rise to prominence in the new government. This new order in Mexico will open an El Dorado for American capital and enterprise beyond the Utopian dreams of the most sanguine, "the fatness of the earth and the dew of heaven." United States faces an international crisis. Startling defiance of American rights, violation of agreements, and the imperilling of American citizens will arise. Plots of violence against those high in authority will be discovered. The somnolent conscience of America will be awakened. Her sword will be drawn, not to kill nor destroy, but to give life and to serve her brother nations. She shall rise to dominion and shall break the yoke of oppression off the neck of the crushed and defenceless, she shall stay the sword that killeth and set free those in captivity. America is the vision of God, her people shall not perish, but shall restore the wasted nations and rebuild the cities of desolation.

Kaiser to be Slain.

"Again I declare that the German Emperor will not live to see the end of this war: amid the roar of the world's artillery, fate shall seal his destiny as a mighty king of battles. Deep sorrows will shadow his royal family. The Royal circles of Russia Italy, Greece and Spain suffer. The ruler of Prussia and the Ottoman Empire shall pass with the close of the war. The thrones of the far East will be shaken.

Overtures of peace have failed, they shall fail until the will of God shall rule the conscience of nations. Nations cannot make peace with war in their hearts. This war is a disillusionment of the world that might makes right, the rebuke of nations that lift the sword to kill and that lead into captivity. In the first cycle of the year United States will be profoundly aroused. She will offer her sovereign blood at the altars of universal sacrifice.

STILL NO PEACE.

No neutral nation shall mediate peace, the covenant of peace shall rise out of a sea of blood. It will not restore former systems encumbered with human injustice. This war will not divide the world, it will unite it: the out-pouring of the blood of millions is not Godless chaos, but divine cosmos. It is not to patch up an old-world but to bring the glory of nations into a new world. It is not to turn back the march of human progress but is an eternal purpose setting forward the hodege of time.

Expedient peace plans will be numerous, but they will mean revolution, a severer chastisement and deeper humiliation. Nations will lay down their arms as the leaves of another autumn fall, but lasting peace is not indexed before 1919. A peace that redeems, atones and justifies.

FURIOUS NAVAL FIGHTING.

Great naval activity among the war fleets of Europe will come in the early part of the year, decisive battles will be fought and naval warfare undergo many changes. Look for a titantic policy of aggressiveness on the part of England. The fusion of young blood into new methods. The army and navy of United States will undergo drastic changes, there will be opposition and strife in the war circles of their government. A stormy cycle is index for their President in the first four months. Cabinet changes will come. Congress will be reactionary. Labor legislation will be disappointing. Strikes and riots add to the government's burden. Those high in authority will be in peril. Great agitation will shock the nation. But over against this will be immense business enterprise, high markets, enormous transportations, and a swelling prosperity. Money will be simply poured out in all directions. Great revenues will be raised by the government.

Hard Year for States.

The year will bring acute tension in United States foreign relations. Japan will aggressively plan against America. Look for a coalition between Japan, Russia and Germany. United States will see the need of a strong agreement with England and France. Deep concern will be felt for their foreign trade and active measures will be taken by congress to conserve it. A broad protective policy against foreign invasion of their industrial market will arouse strong opposition. The first hundred days will be an index of the year. Look for a world sensation in which United States will be the central figure. The trend of the stock market will be downward. There will be tremendous activity in securities. A great year of advantage in land deals. Shipping will take on great activity. Copper, cotton, coal and general products will be high. America will bestow enormous gifts for the relief of war sufferers.

Good Year for Farmers.

New England will be greatly favored by the continued wave of prosperity. Mills and factories on full time. A fine year for farmers. Deep snows in January and February index an excellent maple sugar season. The season will be rather late. Little rain fall is indexed for the year; farmers should sow and plant along the low lands. Drouth will effect the west and south. Crops should be put in early as late summer will be hot and dry. Sudden, violent storms are indexed, with high winds. Heavy storms are shown for the last half of January, the third week in February and the first half of March. Shipping and transportation will suffer. February, April and July are the dark months of the year; intense magnetic bands encircle the earth agitations, strikes, riots crime and epidemic likely to appear. The idea of March are dark for America.

The railroads systems of United States will show enormous earnings. Transportation and traffic will overtax all facilities. Look for important changes in management. Steel and iron mills will have a year of tremendous business. Labor unrest will be absorbed by high wages. All manufacturing interest will take on new life. Prosperity that has been in heaps, will spread out into numerous channels. Commodities and merchandise will be in demand at high prices. The automobile industry will reap a harvest. Cotton and woollen mills will find a broadening market. The cotton crop will be favoured. The west will have a great yield of corn. An abundant fruit season is indexed. There will be a boom in land, farm and general real estate.

Preparedness Budget.

Congress of United States will pass a great war budget for preparedness. The declaration of war by United States is sure to come it will be received by the people with the enthusiasm of a holiday festivity. The resilient and elastic temperament of America is unprecedented in the world.

The swiftness and directness of United States preparation and action will astound the nations. Young blood and new methods will perdominate. Health and recreation resorts in United States will have a long and prosperous season. Extended period of intense heat will make mountain and seashore resorts popular. The great abundance of money will make the season gay with festivities. Yachting, polo racing and baseball will have record-breaking seasons. Sports and games everywhere will win abounding enthusiasm.

Great religious activity will abound. Churches will reorganize, will unite and cast aside old method of work. War agitation and preparation will augment religious fervor. Creed barriers will disappear, unity, harmony, co-operation will abound. Human suffering will bring forth a deeper human sympathy. Religious bodies will achieve brilliant and decisive victional institutions will be greatly favoured. A new national interest will develop in schools and colleges.

Wonderful inventions will appear, electrical science will go forward by leaps and bounds. America will finance the reconstruction of the world. The army and navy of England, the army of France and the forces of Italy will achieve brilliant and decisive victories. Destructive earthquakes are indexed in the first and third cycle of the year for Japan, Italy and America. Sea disasters will sadden Germany, England and America."

If Stomach Hurts Drink Hot Water

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE

"In dyspepsia, sufferers from gas, wind of flatulence, stomach acidity or sourness, gastric catarrh, heartburn, etc., would take a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in half a glass of hot water immediately after eating, they would soon forget they were ever afflicted with stomach trouble, and doctors would have to look elsewhere for patients." In explanation of these words a well known New York Physician stated that most forms of stomach trouble are due to stomach acidity and fermentation of the food contents of the stomach combined with an insufficient blood supply to the stomach. Hot water increases the blood supply and bisurated magnesia instantly neutralizes the excessive stomach acid and stops food fermentation, the combination of the two, therefore, being marvellously successful and decidedly preferable to the use of artificial digestants, stimulants, or medicines for indigestion.

The number of estimates put in the last $ Day Campaign was in the neighbourhood of 9,000. With this information, an estimate can be made before coming to town. Of course as many estimates can be made as the purchaser has blanks, and they will get one with every Dollar purchase they make.

VOICES

By Canadian Overseas

The voices came to him, interruptedly at odd moments, unexpectedly. In the middle of the night he would wake suddenly, thinking that some one had called him, sharply. In the midst of a conversation he would have the feeling that a door had been opened and would have confused sentences and isolated words. Out of doors the noise of traffic, the roar of trains, and even the clatter of the restaurant failed to drown these mysterious haunting sounds. He was always conscious of voices.

He had been sent home to recuperate from the ceaseless din of guns and shells, but he was gradually getting worse. In spite of all he did his trouble grew. For hours, perhaps, he would be blessedly free; then, without a moment's warning, the deadly mumble would begin, and he would have to listen, bewildered and distraught. The voices would go on for hours, and then, with their cessation, would come exhaustion and the boon of sleep. But from sleep he was certain to be roused abruptly and pitilessly by the sudden utterance of his name.

He began to feel the meaning of terror, that dread of the unknown; something which cannot be fought, or beaten off. He feared the end, the awful, lonely imprisonment with others, who were also — mad.

In one of his infrequent periods of release, when the voices were silent, he thought out a plan — a defiant plan to outwit the noises. He would answer them, give them a loud reply; shout them down; show them that he was not afraid of them.

During the day he pondered over it, and when twilight fell and darkness deepened he knew he would hear them soon. He fell asleep. But he woke with a jerk. He heard his name ringing loudly through the room, and the infernal gabble of voices began at once. He heard among them echoes of sardonic laughter. He sat upright in bed, his heart thumping. The nurse came softly, but quickly, raised the light, and put her hand on his brow, gently: "What is it?" she said gently. "The voices again? Don't listen to them, try to sleep." But he took no notice of her.

"Hullo!" he shouted. "Yes; I am here; what do you want? Tell me!" Instantly there was silence; a hush so sweet with hopes that the sudden relief almost overpowered him. He flung himself forward on the bed, listening, listening, but no sound from his brain disturbed the stillness; he heard only the comfortable little sounds of the room—the slight noises of the fire, the tranquil tone of the nurse, the soft swaying of the window curtains in the breeze, the restful patter of the rain outside.

He laid his tired head on the pillow, smiling happily, the voices were gone, and he knew as he fell asleep that he had locked a mysterious door and they would not reach him again.

Who Will Find That "G" On Gertrude's Leg?

WICHITA, Kan., Jan. 23.—The police of Wichita, as upright a body of night stick twiddlers as ever thrived in a prohibition State, nervously are seeking Gertrude Smith, wife of James of that ilk, who fled her bed and board in the Smith mansion at Augusta, Kan., several days ago.

James wants her and the two children she took with her to come back home, and he has asked the eagle eyed pavement pounders to find her. There is but little, he admits to distinguish Gertrude from other feminine Smiths, except one of her legs, on which in a moment of pride she had tattooed the initial "G." James says he is certain that if the good officers of the law will but examine a few lady Smith's legs they will run across a vagrant "G" and Gertrude.

Now, in Kansas, a great many innovations in politics, law and even police procedure are developed, but so far no policeman, not even the bachelors have volunteered to go alphabet seeking to find Gertrude and her tattooed leg.

In his plea to the police James neglected to give the exact latitude and longitude of the initial. That's the most interesting topic of discussion these quiet Wichita evenings around Police Headquarters.

The report was received and referred to the City Auditor for verification.

The chairman said, in part: "The past year has been one of much activity at the Nicholls Hospital. During the year there were treated 1,220 patients, being 227 over that of the previous year, and constituting the largest number treated in the history of the Hospital. The establishment here of the 93rd Battalion was in some measure, responsible for the increase, but there is no doubt our people are becoming more and more appreciative of the advantages of our hospital in times of illness. We were also able to do considerable for the wives and dependents of those on active service, 'in which the medical call,' and enlisted for overseas serassisted materially in the work.

Early in the year our Lady Superintendent, Miss Beamish, heard the call," and enlisted for overseas service. Our last reports are that she is well and pursuing her work in the neighbourhood of Salonika. Miss Sanderson has carried on the Superintendent's duties with much acceptance, and at a time when the demands made upon her were heavy, and of a trying nature. She has been ably assisted by Miss Howson, as Assistant Superintendent. The nursing staff throughout is efficient and capable.

The medical staff has, with commendable zeal, done much to further the efficiency of the Hospital. The lectures and instructions to the nursing staff are highly important, and are faithfully contributed without remuneration. The medical staff is doing much to make the hospital deservedly popular.

The Board should, in the near future, look into the advisability of providing more adequate quarters for the nursing staff.

Instructions have been given to install fire hose permanently to the hydrant outside the hospital, and every precaution is being taken to safeguard those entrusted to our care.

The Provincial Inspector, in a recent visit, spoke very highly of existing conditions and complimented all concerned on the general excellence of the institution.

A committee composed of Dr. McCulloch, W. Madill, R. Fair, Jno. McClelland and E. B. Fowler was appointed to strike the standing committees for the year. The committee reported as follows, the report being adopted:

Finance — Dr. McCulloch (Chairman); E. B. Fowler, Thos. Brown.

Visiting—

January and July—Messrs. E. A. Peck and R. Fair.

February and August—Messrs. G. A. Gobeen and the Mayor.

March and September—Messrs. R. Neill and W. Aldridge.

April and October — Messrs. J. Green and Thos. Brown.

May and November—Messrs. W. Madill and E. B. Fowler.

June and December—Dr. McCullough and B. F. Ackerman.

On motion of Dr. McCulloch, seconded by Mr. R. Fair, the Secretary was instructed to express to Mr. Hall, Chairman of the Board, the appreciation felt by the Board for his many years of faithful service in the interest of the hospital; their regret at his inability to be present, and their hope that he would soon recover from illness.

The Board adjourned.

Keen Contest In Manvers Tp. For Wardenship

In Manvers it is expected that Reeve Armstrong will be elected as Warden of the Counties of Durham and Northumberland. Mr. Armstrong has a good following in the County Council and from reports he makes an excellent municipal governor.

Reeve R. Doake, of Millbrook, is also spoken of as a likely aspirant; also Reeves Stephens and Stanley, of Darlington.

The County Council will meet at Cobourg on Tuesday, January 23rd inst., and from accounts here is a lively time at the election each year.

When Mr. Joseph Hickson was elected to the honourable position he received 30 votes, which was electing him by a unanimous vote of the Council. It has often taken two days to settle the matter.

RETIRED FARMERS SHOULD COME BACK

Would Solve Shortage of Farm Labour Situation, Thinks Major Campbell.

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.—"If retired farmers would go back to the land, I feel that the scarcity of help on farms would be greatly decreased," said Major G. I. Campbell, chief recruiting officer for this division.

"In Ontario we have hundreds of retired farmers, who could render greater help to the cause than by subscribing money. There are many who are fit for several years of hard work. If they could be persuaded to go back to the land the output of grain and other necessities would be increased."

That returned soldiers could be placed on the farms and receive instructions which would help them if the Government set aside land tracts for the soldiers, is the contention of another officer of the Headquarters Staff. There are many hundred returned soldiers in the division and although they might not be able to do the heavier work, their efforts would be much appreciated on the farms.

secure the real facts in regard to the way the rifle met actual service conditions.

General Haig's Report.

Then, in response to the various communications to the War Office through Sir George Perley, the report of Sir Douglas Haig, May 28, 1916, was produced. This reads:

"I have the honour to inform you that I have satisfied myself after extensive inquiries carried throughout the Canadian corps, that as a service rifle the Ross rifle is less trustworthy than the Lee-Enfield, and that the majority of the men armed with the Ross rifles have not the confidence in it that it is so essential they should possess. The inquiry on which these conclusions are based was the outcome of an urgent application from a battalion on the 3rd Canadian Division for rearmament with the short Lee-Enfield rifle, and in consequence of a high percentage of jam experienced with their Ross rifles during a hostile attack on the 1st of May, 1916.

"(2) I am accordingly of the opinion that the 2nd and 3rd Canadian Divisions should be rearmed with the short Lee-Enfield rifles. It will be remembered that the 1st Canadian Division was so rearmed on the 12th of June, 1915."

Second Report More Condemnatory.

Between the lines it is apparent that General French's condemnation of the Ross rifle was not nearly so conclusive as General Haig's. General French had attributed the troubles mainly to the ammunition, and had recommended the enlarging of the chambers with a view to obviate further jamming. This enlarging was done; then the rifles were given back to the troops. Some months later when the rifles were again called upon to stand the ordeal of battle they were found unsatisfactory, and General Haig finally took action to recall all of them. What Parliament will have to inquire into will evidently be: who was responsible for the enlarging of the chambers, and how it came about that the last condition of the rifle was much worse than the first.

Lee-Enfields Not Yet Made Here.

The correspondence further develops the fact that the War Office suggested to the Canadian Government on July 5, 1916, that it should go ahead with the manufacture of the improved Lee-Enfields as already being manufactured in the United States. Although six months have elapsed since that suggestion was made, and although the War Office notified the Canadian Government early in 1916 that there were not enough Lee-Enfields available to replace all the Ross rifles, no steps have apparently been taken yet to secure the manufacture in Canada of the new and improved arm by the established factory here.

On May 15, 1916, Sir R. L. Borden cabled to Sir Max Aitken to the effect that the Canadian Government would leave the question of the efficiency of the Ross rifle to the judgment of the Commander-in-chief. The cabled added: "It is the only arm we are equipped to produce in Canada at present, and we believe it effective if properly used. The Minister of Militia informs me that reports of recent official tests in England thoroughly demonstrate the efficiency of our rifle."

On June 5, 1916, Sir Robert Borden cabled to Sir George Perley, asking whether Great Britain had adopted a new type of rifle. If so, the cable continued, the British order for the Ross rifle might be cancelled and a new order for 100,000 of the new type might be given instead.

"Under Consideration" Six Months.

On June 24, Sir Robert again cabled to Sir George Perley asking for "definite, reliable and thorough reports on the merits of the Ross rifle." This information was needed because the Government had had under consideration "since January last" an order for 100,000 additional Ross rifles. Sir Robert Borden further noted that the Master-General of Ordnance had for several months been urging "immediate action."

Exchange Recommended.

Replying to this cable on July 5, Sir George Perley stated that the officer commanding the 2nd Army Division stated that the working of the Ross rifle during the last fight "has only confirmed his opinion that Canadians in the 3rd Division have lost confidence in their rifle, and he recommends that rifles in this division be exchanged." Sir George Perley noted also that Sir Douglas Haig had recommended that Lee-Enfields should be issued to all three divisions of the Canadian Corps. This suggestion by Sir Douglas Haig had been approved by the Army Council, which hoped to be able to use the Ross rifle thus released, as well as those in possession of Canadian troops in England, for other war purposes. Sir George Perley also forwarded Sir Douglas Haig's suggestion that the Canadian Government should go ahead with the manufacture of the improved Lee-Enfield.

A few days late Sir George Perley forwarded to Sir R. L. Borden the two reports of General French and General Haig, to which reference is made above.

Lee-Enfield Suggested to be Made.

On July 11, 1916, Sir Max Aitken cabled to Sir R. L. Borden stating that the Secretary for War wished the Canadian Government informed that a new type of Lee-Enfield rifle had been adopted, and that, with a view of securing a uniform type for all his Majesty's forces throughout the Empire, all existing facilities for the production of this rifle in the overseas Dominion "would doubtless be utilized."

4th Division Rearmed.

On August 30, 1916, the Governor-General cabled to the Colonial Secretary asking if there was any truth in the report that the 4th Canadian Division was armed with the Canadian rifle when despatched to France. The Colonial Secretary in reply declared that the 4th Division had been sent to France ramed with Ross rifles, but that the Lee-Enfields had been sent to France to be substituted for the Ross rifle.

Vice-President—Mr. J. Howland.

Interesting Address In George Street Methodist Church

A very instructive address was given last evening in George Street Methodist Church by Mrs. H. D. Robertson, wife of the Rev. H. D. Robertson of the China Mission field. Mrs. Robertson said that China at the time of her departure, in September last, was over-run with the provincial armies. A number of the provinces have declared their independence and are backing it up with their own individual armies. Some of the weaker provinces which have failed to take a similar stand, are threatened with extinction. This is responsible for a condition of internal strife that tends to hamper the work of the missionaries.

Mrs. Kemp and Miss Eastwood contributed solos while Miss Belle Elliott, convener of the Missionary Committee, presided.

"GO ON KNITTING, WORKING, WRITING"

Miss Ada L. Ward Gives This Advice to the Women of Peterborough in the Course of Her Vividly Interesting Lecture in the Collegiate Assembly Hall Last Night.

A new side of the war was brought out last night by Miss Ada Ward who spoke before a crowded house at the Collegiate Institute Hall, that of Tommy being amused. Mr. Vincent Eastwood, chairman of the evening, who introduced Miss Ward explained that he had been at many recruiting meetings when the interested centered on harrowing stories of the dark side of war, on the suffering of the Belgian Refugees, but it had fallen to the lot of the Teachers' Association to introduce a speaker who could tell a little of the lighter side of Tommy's life. Up to now it has been that directly an army went into France it was swallowed, but now the veil had been lifted and we were permitted through one who had been honoured by being chosen to penetrate the veil and help make life more bearable in order to entertain the soldiers and make Tommy forget during his rest periods to see the lighter side.

Miss Ward, whose lecture was illustrated by black-board drawing spoke of the beginning of her marvellous career in the firing line, which began by means of a very modern instrument, the telephone. One Friday afternoon she was called and asked if she could be ready to leave immediately for France as a variety turn was needed. She was told the Tommies' message was "send Ada Ward" and it was then she first realised she was famous "as" she said "directly you lose the handle to your name you are famous." She lost no time and next day filed her application for a passport. Miss Ward was highly amused over the pertinent questions contained on this—Age? Height? Fore head? Mouth, which she said puzzled her whether to say Cupid's bow, or a letter box, color of hair? Nose? a photo and a sample of hand writing. She was then called to give an exhibition before Princess Victoria.

Here Miss Ward was non-plussed—How could she come in, how go out from this audience of two—a Princess and a brilliant actress. She felt that she wore cotton gloves with a hole in every finger and elastic sided shoes. However, she didn't care. She steeled herself with the thought of going to amuse the boys. The exhibition she gave compromising the evolution of a boy—being satisfactory on Saturday, as a result she found herself crossing the channel. "I shall never forget," said Miss Ward "that first concert, I saw the boys who had left strong and well brought in helpless, shattered, limping, hopping, borne on stretchers—how was I to make these poor wrecks laugh. That was the hardest experience, but Oh how I was repaid. One poor Tommy came limping up and assured me it was the first time he had forgotten his foot was off. Oh the indominatable spirit of the boys. Another laughed as he held his poor shattered right hand up and asked what it mattered to him—Fritz had made a mistake for he was left handed anyway. How can I describe the thrill when the Tommies joined in the choruses, the charm of the nurses. She told of the army surgeon's difficult work. There are many veteran doctors but this campaign has brought but something new to combat with—the treatment for gasses of the marvellous strides surgery has made. One surgeon the radiographer from McGill showed how a photo of a shattered elbow which with the splinters of bone looked like a snow storm, "surely this was a case for amputation?" The doctor had struggled and brought it back to perfection and sent the patient to convalesence in England. "He never got there," she said. "He was aboard the Anglia, it was torpedoed. King George could not receive better treatment than the poorest private. The Y.M.C.A's wonderful work, too, cannot be over-estimated at the front.

There is one great danger out yonder in France. Monotony. Tommy wants amusement during his rest periods and Tommy must have it, and he wants the best, and he deserves it, we must give it to him. Miss Ward's work was not all fun, it was arduous. The stages are strange and wonderful places, and the work is difficult. Tommy must smoke while he is amused and she has played six night's a week almost kippered with smoke and on Sunday told illustrated Bible stories. But it paid. Tommy will wait and does wait two hours in the pouring rain for his turn to come into the theatre.

There's a great difference in the feelings towards the soldiers to-day and that of 10 years ago. Then a uniform was eyed with suspicion, "He must be able to get no other job" was the conclusion. Every difficult case was thrust into the army where the discipling would do him good. To-day it is different. "I want to pay a tribute to that human diamond Tommy Aitkins, "He is the best."

There is a difference, too, in the soldiers of the British and those of our allied armies. The Belgian and French are satisfied with a bottle of wine and a pretty girl—Tommy must have home. Mothers little know how the thoughts of the dear ones come back to them. They beg for hymns. Their new religion brought out by war is a wonderful thing

The speaker made one small appeal for equal franchise, "Surely," she said "after the way women have fallen in, good women, grand women, women in every walk of life lending their gracious influences, surely they should be able after these terrible days are past, now that she has proved herself, to put a little cross on a little square of cardboard. You who are knitting go ahead and knit, for God's sake knit, if you could see the men as I have seen them with the wool worn into their feet, limping, you'd never let them go without socks—sugar they need, too. You who have given your dearest couldn't have done less and you couldn't have done more. Those who have fallen are not dead, and for my part I should rather be with them in the fields of shell-torn France of Gallipoli, than crushed under the heel of German militarism.

On leaving France a concert was held for which a small fee was charged. After this Miss Ward was handed $1,000 to take back to Lena Ashwell to assist her in her glorious work.

"It takes big hearts," said Miss Ward in conclusion "to keep up under the strain, but go on—for God's sake go on knitting, working, writing—Oh how can I describe how much a letter is needed by poor Tommy out there—keep it up, it's worth it.

During the evening a violin solo, "Paderewski's Minuet" by Dr. Park was much enjoyed also a solo by Miss Maisie Armstrong.

MR. JOHN I. ALLEN RETURNS FROM NEW JERSEY

Local Superintendent of Prudential Insurance Co., Attended International Conference of Superintendents and Agency Organizers

Mr. John I. Allen, local superintendent of the Prudential Insurance Company, Peterborough, has just returned home from the International conference of the superintendents and agency organizers of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, which was held at the Home Office of the Company at Newark New Jersey.

The conference was one of great enthusiasm and of educational value to all who attended. The keynote of the conference was service to the policy-holders of the Prudential by their field organization and the Home Office, whose policy-holders now number fifteen million.

The superintendents and agency organizers were present from Vancouver to Halifax; from New Orleans to Bangor, Maine, and from New Orleans to Florida.

Great enthusiasm was exhibited when the announcement was made by Mr. Dryden, President of the Prudential Insurance Company, that the Prudential Insurance Company, which is purely mutual, had issued five hundred and ninety-one million dollars worth of business during 1916.

The meeting was attended by the Governor of the state of New Jersey; Insurance Commissioner of the State of New York, also of New Jersey, and by Richard V. Lindabury, General Solicitor for the Prudential Insurance Company of America.

The whole conference was one of great interest and educational features will be spread amongst the entire field force for the benefit of the policy holders.

Mr. Allen expresses himself as having had a very enjoyable time.

A CONFERENCE ON SCHOOL QUESTION

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.—With the object of securing an understanding between the French Canadian and Irish Catholic clergy looking toward a satisfactory settlement of the school question, an imposing array of clerics and laity are gathered here to-day.

The conference is taking place at the Bishop's Palace. Its object is to bring the French and Irish elements to some understanding so that they might arrive at some definite proposition to put up to the Ontario government with a view of settling the bilingual question.

Thin People Can Increase Weight

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel on what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and many thin men and women we believe can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And both of all the new flesh stays put.

Sargol does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it aims to prepare the fattening strength-giving material of what you have eaten, into rich, ripe, fat-producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepare it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. Much of this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol works to stop the waste and do it quickly and to make the fat producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive, all leading druggists in this vicinity sell it in large boxes—forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight increase or money back as found in each large box.

If you find a druggist who is unable to supply you with Sargol send $1.00 money order or registered letter to the Nationa Laboratories, 76 Ancoine St., Montreal, and a complete ten days' treatment will be sent you postpaid in plain wrapper.

THE RISE IN SILVER.

The price of silver has rocketed upward 3-8 to 3-4 of a cent every day for the past three days. One reason for the boost in silver is the readjustment of Indian financing, but the immediate super-inducing cause of the bulge at this particular time is the declaration of silver as contraband and the increase in transoceanic freight and insurance rates from 2 to 5 per cent. With silver around 75c per ounce, the increase in freight and insurance rates amounts to adding about 2 1-4c per ounce on to the price of export metal. The additions on silver quotations in the past three days have added about 1 3-4c per ounce to the price of the white metal. The rise in the price of silver is a boon to silver mining companies whose profits are based on the New York price of silver. Some of the export shippers and speculators in the metal may not rejoice, however, when they reflect on the increased freight insurance rates which have been the cause of the present increase.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

228th Seniors To Play Here Friday

Fast Northern Players Will Clash With 247th Intermediates —Battle Between the Two Soldier Clubs Should be the Season's Best Hockey Offering—T. R. and A. A. Unable to Come.

Owing to the injuries sustained by Hicks and other players in last Friday night's game with the Dentals, the T. R. and A. A. team of Toronto, which was to have played an exhibition game here to-night with the 247th team, will be unable to visit Peterborough and the game has been cancelled. However, the local soldiers have been fortunate in arranging a game for Friday night with the fast 228th Battalion Senior O. H. A. team. The Northern Fusiliers are known as the hockey battalion, as they have teams in the N. H. A. and Senior and Junior O.H.A. Their senior team, which plays here on Friday night, is well up in the running in the group race and surprised the fans recently by a clean-cut defeat of Queen's University, in Kingston. The players are all from the north and are fast and clever. It will be a great test for Peterborough's fast intermediates and the fans will get their first opportunity of judging the locals' capabilities against a real team. Keep Friday night open, as it will be the game of the season.

HOCKEY GOSSIP

The Peterborough Junior O. H. A. team will go to Bowmanville to-morrow to play the return game with Manager Williams' team. The Petes will leave on the 11.40 G.T.R. train to-morrow morning.

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—The Kingston Depot Battery, stationed at Kingston, have withdrawn their O.H.A. junior team because of the loss of a number of players who are proceeding overseas. This leaves Kingston juniors and the 235th Battalion, of Belleville, to fight it out for the group championship.

The Lindsay club has withdrawn from the O.H.A. intermediate series. This gives the group championship to the undefeated 247th Battalion team of Peterborough.

William Symons has joined the 235th Battalion and applied for an O.H.A. certificate. He was the star of the Belleville intermediates last year.

Collingwood juniors defaulted to Barrie at the last minutes without the required notice, and will have to stand the Barrie club's expenses for the game.

MILITARY NEWS

and notwithstanding the fact that Lieut.-Col. Glass was surrounded by an efficient and enthusiastic staff of officers the enlistments to date only total about 150 men.

OTTAWA, Jan. 24—In reply to inquiries made by Sir Robert Borden as to the rum issued to the troops at the front, the following statement has been received from Sir George Perley, Overseas Minister of Militia. "The War Office definitely informs me that rum is only issued to the troops at the discretion of the General Officer Commanding on the recommendation of the Medical Officer and that when an issue of rum is ordered for the troops serving with the expeditionary forces in the field, individual soldiers who have an objection to the spirits may be supplied with cocoa or chocolate in lieu.

A recent casualty list contained the name of Pte. Harold Marsh, whose next of kin was given as living in England. This is thought to have been Pte. Harold Marsh, of the 83rd Battalion, who formerly boarded at the home of Mrs. Robt. Mitchell, 336 Water street. Pte. Marsh was a member of the crack 83rd soccer team, and is reported wounded.

Lt.-Col. J. D. Clarke, formerly of Peterborough, who went overseas with the 111th Battalion, is now in France. A field post card was received from him to-day.

Pte. A. Cripps, formerly of the 39th Battalion, has gone to the convalescent Hospital at Hamilton, where he will undergo treatment. His friends will be sorry to learn that he is not in very good health. Pte. Cripps was invalided home from England in May of last year.

Mrs. D. J. McIntosh has received the following letter in regard to her husband, Pte. D. J. McIntosh, formerly of the 93rd Battalion:

Dear Mrs. McIntosh,—I met your husband in this hospital, No. 6 Stationary Hospital, B. E. F., France, some days past. He has been wounded about the face. I have made inquiries about his case and I believe he will improve and be fit again at some time. He will be changed from here soon, so he will send you word himself the next time. Once he leaves here I shall be unable to send you news of him. I visit him every day. You will be glad to hear that he does not suffer much. I said mass for his recovery the other morning. You too, should pray with confidence for the same result.

Yours truly,
Paul I. Raftar, C.F.,
Catholic Chaplain.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARGARET SCOTT.

Mrs. Margaret Scott, relict of the late Alex. Scott, died in Ottawa. The remains will arrive on the 5 a.m. train Wednesday. The funeral will take place at 8 o'clock from 186 Lansdowne to Little Lake cemetery.

DR. R. F. MORROW.

Dr. R. F. Morrow, for thirty-one years a prominent dentist of this city, passed away at a late hour yesterday afternoon at Nicholls Hospital. Taken ill a few weeks ago, his condition grew rapidly serious, and, although every medical aid was obtained, it became apparent recently that there was little hope of his recovery.

In the death of Dr. Morrow, Peterboro has lost an estimable citizen, who enjoyed the confidence and the highest regard of the entire community. He was born in the Township of Manvers in 1857, and in 1884 graduated from the Dental College, Toronto. His course was marked by honour standing in his examinations, and in his final year he was a gold medalist and honour graduate of Toronto School of Dentistry. He was also an honour graduate of Toronto University.

In 1885 he came to Peterborough, opening an office over the old Chisa Hall store, now occupied by the Dominion Bank, where he gursued an extensive and successful practice of his profession. Those intervening thirty-one years had securely established Dr. Morrow in an ever-broadening circle of friends who received the information of his serious illness with the deepest regret and to whom his death brings a feeling of personal loss.

The deceased was prominent in local and district Masonry. He was a Past Master of Peterborough Lodge No. 155, A. F. and A. M., and was one of the best informed members in lodge work. He had also held the highest offices in Peterborough Lodge, I.O.O.F., No. 111, and was a member of Mount Hebron encampment. The Ancient Order of Foresters also numbered the late Dr. Morrow alons its valued members. In religion, he was a member of George Street Methodist Church. In his character there was manifested a sincere and abiding spirit of fraternity, of which in his personality and his unfailing self-sacrifice he was always a true exemplar.

Dr. Morrow is survived by three sisters and one brother, Mrs. R. D. Preston of Midland, Mrs. D. Clarke of Hamilton, Miss Fannie Morrow of Peterborough, and Mr. George Morrow of Salt Lake City, Utah.

A funeral service will be held at his late residence, 176 Dalhousie street on Wednesday night, at eight o'clock, to be followed by the Masonic service.

The funeral will be held on Thursday morning at 7.30 o'clock to the G. T. R. station, from which the remains will be taken to Lindsay for interment, the funeral following the arrival of the Peterborough train.

WILLIAM B. STEWART.

The death occurred on Monday, Jan. 23, of William B. Stewart, aged 61, at his residence, 136 Bedford Road, Toronto. The funeral will take place on Wednesday at 3.30 to Prospect cemetery.

The late Mr. Stewart is a cousin of Mr. J. D. Collins, McDonnell street.

MARGARET CARTER.

Margaret Davidson Carter died this morning at her residence, 15 Lisburn street, Auburn. Mrs. Carter who was 80 years old, was born in Quebec, coming to Peterborough to live some years ago. She was predeceased by her husband.

Funeral arrangements will be made later.

MUST PAY ALIMONY

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—Justice Middleton has decided that R. B. Cromarty, prominent publisher here, is entitled to pay alimony to his wife, who married him after being divorced from her first husband, named Lamphini, in Chicago. Cromarty's defence was that the Chicago divorce was invalid, therefore he was not legally the husband of plaintiff. If parties cannot settle on the amount of alimony, it will be settled by court. Mrs. Cromarty was an Ingersoll girl.

Casey Pays His Respects To England In "Poem"

ROCHESTER, Jan. 23.—"Casey" is the only name one of three prisoners brought by Patrolman Pribus to the Franklin street station would give, so "Casey" is the way it is registered in Police Court, and also at the penitentiary, where "Casey" will spend the next 15 days, having been convicted by Justice Gillette of vagrancy. When Casey was removed from the cell in Franklin street station, Captain Frank E. Mehle was amused to see inscribed on a scrap of paper lying on the cot in Casey's cell, the following "gem":

Across the old Ireland, the land of my birth,
The land of the Shamrock, the greatest on earth,
For Ireland was Ireland, when England wasn't much,
And Ireland will be Ireland, when England turns Dutch.

The downfall of Ireland, as all you can see,
Is coming so quickly, we will all soon be free,
For England next summer will walk on a crutch,
Surrounded by Germans, and all talking Dutch.

Heroic Effort To Save Crew of Dredge Failed

The Sailors Repeatedly Risked Their Lives in Attempt to Save Their Comrades.

HALIFAX, N.S., Jan. 23.— From White Head with a story of loss of Government Dredge Cape Breton and her crew of eight men Shag Rock, January 17, The tug F. W. Boebling arrived in port. Captain Mood, master of the tug, in a report which was given out, tells in terse sailor language the thrilling story of the efforts made by the Robeling to rescue the men on the dredge.

The report says that after the Cape Breton had broken away from the tug and was drifting towards the rocks the crew of the dredge lowered the boats, but both of these were smashed. The tug then lowered a dory attached to a line and allowed that to drift by the dredge but the men on the dredge did not get into it. Apparently the tugs Robeling and Lisgar made every possible effort to save the crew of the Cape Breton, but the heavy gales, the short space of time to work, and the difficulty of getting a line on the dredge worked against them, and despite their efforts, the crew was lost.

An Apology Is Demanded

Peterborough Young People Display Unseemly Conduct in Lakefield Church

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 24.—On Saturday afternoon a party of young people from Peterborough visited Lakefield and while here went in to view St. John's Church. The church had been all swept and dusted for Sunday and they when they went in did not sweep their feet off and the snow was tracked all through the church, showing that they had been in the vestry, going through the church books and vestments. They also went into the Chancel and took the Brass Alms dish off the altar and placed it on one of the choir benches, placing in it a Royal Theatre ticket and a candy, which the Rector and Wardens consider a desecration of God's House. As the names of the young people are known as also the two soldiers accompanying them; unless an apology is forwarded at once to Rev. A. W. MacKenzie the Rector, action may be taken against them, as there is a special clause in the Criminal Code, dealing with the desecration of churches, which the Wardens would be very sorry to have to put in effect.

President Wilson's Speech Was Cabled To German Emperor

Special to The Examiner.

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—President Wilson's Senate speech was telegraphed to the Kaiser and Field Marshal Von Hindenburg at the front to-day.

Ambassador Gerard conferred for forty minutes with Foreign Secretary Zimmerman last night, and later cabled the State Department at Washington a confidential outline of the German Foreign Office impression of the statement.

Meanwhile the President's sentiments are fully echoed publicly and officially in Germany. They are viewed with interest and favour.

BEFORE THE SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—President Wilson's historic address to the world is before the Senate to-day.

It seemed certain early to-day that consideration would be confined, for the present, to the question of whether on Monday there shall or shall not be full and unlimited debate on the proposals made by the President.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"DESTINY"

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

But the shudder of disgust would return despite her efforts at its banishment and shake her like a chill. In her case it was not vaudeville—and it was only lying to herself to call it so. No manager was considering the payment of a salary to her for anything she could legitimately do. It was what Smitherton had described as capitalizing the publicity of a misfortune so sweeping as to pass a morbid public interest. In whatever generosity of terms her contract was drawn its essential meaning was that in ten and a hundred-fold it would come back to the management, for that one reason. It would so come because people would flock in vulgar curiosity to see the woman who had reigned in exclusive sets of society from which they were themselves barred; whose brother had forged a magnificent dictator of dollars. They would come because they had heard of this beauty, and had glutted themselves with column upon column of yellow and sensational news recording untold opulence, and afterwards of tragedy building, and decked to this climax, herself standing there on exhibition in the pillory of their gaze.

Seats would be filled and applicants turned away from the box office because a large part of the American public differs in no wise from that of Rome when it gathered in the circus to see a Christian princess thrown to the beasts—or claimed as a captor's slave. Her value could be based only on pandering to the mob spirit of gloating over the fall of the great. They would warm over and republish all the sensational details which time would cool. The story she had refused to write, others would not refuse to write—neither would they refuse to "color" certain scenes into drama.

The girl, lying in her bed, pressed her forearms against her eyes and struggled to shut out the pictures that rose as horrors in her mind—but they passed and repassed with fiendish pertinacity. Nightmare shapes leered at her from gargoyle features.

To any human being a situation is what it seems to be.

Had she actually, like the Lady Godiva, been called upon to ride the length of Broadway, clad only in her beautiful hair, and placarded "Burton's Sister and Edwardes' Fiancee," it could have meant to her delicacy of feeling no greater trial, no more truly the denuding of herself to the public gaze.

Had all this realization not been so keen and so poignant Mary Burton would not have fought so long against the idea which seemed to open the only way.

Were there just herself she would. Before considering such desecration of every sacred memory, have preferred to stuff with paper the crannies of that wind rattled window and to turn on the gas. In comparison this would have been easy.

Easy! Suddenly the idea became a soul-clutching temptation. It offered escape from the horror of decision and action escape, too, from the haunting of memory. The woman sat up in bed and her eyes gazed feverishly ahead through the dark. She trembled violently and the plan invitingly unfolded. Some unseen devil's advocate was urging her for the instant half-persuading her, insinuating and luring. Often as a very little girl she had slept in a room as bare as this and listened contentedly to the rattle of storm shaken shutters. She had cuddled a warm, soft shape, under the blankets, and sunk sweetly, and dreamily into unconsciousness, and happy dreams. It was so easy! There in a drawer where she had thrust it with abhorrence for the emblem of a contemptible weakness, was Paul's hypodermic needle. This very night she could again drift, unresisting into sleep, and while she slept the gas jet could flow freely.

The room was cold. Sitting upright in her bed she shivered. Then as she realized how seriously she had yielded for a panic-ridden moment to the temptation of turning her back on life's need of courage, the shiver grew from a shudder of the flesh to a shudder of the soul. She lay down again and hid her face in the pillow.

From the next room she heard the heavy snore of her father and the gentler sleeping breath of her mother. Personal preferences and prejudices belonged to the past.

Very well—she still had the flaming Burton courage. She would do this hateful thing, and when she gazed on the eyes that glutted their curiosity with staring she would meet them serenely and give them no sign that she was being tortured.

And—this thing Mary Burton did—did with that calm dignity which is vouchsafed to those whose souls are of heroic quality.

It was only when the day's work of rehearsal ended and she was locked again in her own room that she sat dry-eyed and wretched, remembering a dozen things which made her shudder. But as she walked along the streets she kept her eyes to the front because she could not tell from what wall one of those blazing "three sheets" might confront her. They were advertising her as Mary Hamilton Burton—that the value of those two names might doubly pique the curiosity of the morbid.

Also, she avoided as a pestilence the newspapers, and what they might contain.

Abey Lewis did not at all understand her, though he had handled a variety of people during his long career as a purveyor of "refined vaudeville" to the public. He confessed as much to Mr. Smitherton, with whom, as Miss Burton's business manager, he came into constant association.

"I don't get her at all, Mr. Smitherton," he querulously complained. "I've known most of the big-time artists that have come along in vodeville, and she ain't like none of them I ever seen. I've made a lot of headliners, but this girl acts like it gives her a pain to talk to me. She don't seem to take no interest in her act."

The business manager, chewed irritably on his cigar. They were sitting in the darkened theatre while Mary Burton was being rehearsed in the short and dramatic sketch which Smitherton had secured for her.

"Has it occurred to you, Lewis," he suggested, with a certain coolness of manner, "that you wouldn't be paying Miss Burton the salary you are if she was like anybody else you've known? Haven't you considered the fact that this lady is going to pack your place to capacity because of her difference?"

"Maybe so. Maybe she's a big headliner, and I ain't kicking," asserted the other. "But it does seem to me she ought to be more grateful for the chance she's getting. She's a knock-out all right! Them eyes ought to get the folks going—I wish she'd use 'em more."

The two sat silent for a while with the empty chairs around them, then Mr. Abey Lewis raised the megaphone with which he was directing and spoke to the stage.

"Daughter," he instructed, "you ain't quite got the psychology of the part yet." Mary Burton came down toward the front of the stage, with her fore-arm raised across her face to shut off the glare of the "foots," as she listened. Mr. Lewis rose and walked thoughtfully down the aisle toward her. It was Mr. Lewis' intent to handle very delicately this new headliner whom he failed to comprehend, and of whom he stood in secret awe.

"Now you see, daughter," he went on, "this act gives you a great chance for emotion, and I know, when you get the right angle on it you'll eat it up. You've just got to use them, when I bother me to the fact that your husband's a criminal. You didn't never suspected he was a crook before. Now that calls for emotion. Put more colour into it. Found it a little harder. When George ends his long speech and pauses, that brings you across. It cues your reception of the news. It throws a bomb under you. In times like them women get more hysterical. They don't quiet in grief, like men. They just cut loose a little more. Give us a nice little scream."

For once Mary Burton almost smiled as she hearkened to this wise dissertation on emotion, but she only bowed her head in assent, as the director added: "Take the scene up again at George's entrance."

When he sat down beside Smitherton, Abey Lewis shook his head. "I ain't sure we didn't make a mistake in giving her the straight dramatic sketch," he said dubiously. "She ain't got the emotions. She don't emote pep. Now if she had an act where she changed of costume a few times that would give her a better, it might go bigger."

Smitherton growled.

"Yes and then you wouldn't have had at all," he retorted. "Get it through your head that this whole thing is distasteful to Miss Burton. It's bad enough as it is, without asking her to do a diving Venus."

"She won't ever be an actor," commented Mr. Lewis, sagely, "but what the hell's the difference? It's the name that's going to carry this act—and it's going to be a knock-out."

STEALING ELEPHANTS.

It Would Seem Difficult, Yet It Is a Regular Trade In Siam.

It would seem that an elephant would be about the last thing in the world a man would be able to steal. Yet in Siam one must keep a careful watch on such elephants as he may own, no matter what their size, lest they be stolen from him.

Elephant stealing in Siam has always been more or less prevalent and for some time past has been a source of much anxiety to the officials. Regulations were drawn up about fifteen years ago by the British and Siamese authorities with a view to the suppression of this offense. Later these were supplemented by additional regulations, embodying definite rules for the purchase and sale of elephants and imposing penalties on all persons in possession of elephants who are not provided with sale papers properly executed before the local authorities.

Notwithstanding all these precautions elephant stealing continues in Siam, and in one year alone fifty elephants were stolen from British foresters, representing a loss of some $45,000.

The Karen tribesmen are the chief offenders; but, though their somewhat inaccessible villages are well known to the bear kwen, or district official, in no single instance has the assistance rendered by the Siamese officials led to the discovery of the elephant stolen or of the thief. In short, recovery, when effected, has been due to the activity and energy of the British foresters and the searching parties sent out by the British companies who employ the foresters.

Queer Ads.

An English paper advertises for "a young person who can cook and dress children" and refers in its "lost and found" column to "a doll belonging to a little girl stuffed with rags."

This is the paper that contains the following:

"A gentleman has a school for sale containing two schoolrooms which will accommodate 200 pupils one above another." Also this: "A lady offers for sale a baboon, three tabby cats and a parrot. She states that, being now married, she has no use for them, as their amiable qualities are all combined in her husband."

Immune.

"Blacksmiths seem to have a reputation for honesty."

"Undeservedly so, but due partly perhaps to the nature of the business. Nobody encumbers a blacksmith with trust funds. There is nothing to adulterate in his line. Compared with some of us, a blacksmith has few temptations to resist."

CONSTRUCTION CORPS FULL.

Lieut.-Colonel Ripley's Battalion is Ready to Go Overseas.

No. 1 Construction Battalion, which started recruiting in Toronto on May 12, has already filled its ranks to the number of 1,050 men, and is now in camp at Valcartier for a short period of training before going overseas. In the ranks are a number of graduate civil engineers who are qualified as Lieutenants, but have resigned their rank in order to go overseas with the battalion. In this category are Lieutenants Jupp, Mitchell, Lindsay, and Nicholl, all of whom have completed courses at the School of Practical Science here, and a number of graduates in engineering from McGill University. There are also a number of men who have filled important positions as construction men for the Canadian Pacific, Canadian Northern, Grand Trunk, and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways, and on the new Welland Canal. Mr. E. P. Muntz, who had charge of a section of the Welland Canal, for instance, was taken on the strength the other day as a supernumerary lieutenant.

An analysis of the first 600 men recruited shows the wide range of callings represented in the battalion. They were classified as follows: Blacksmiths (general) 14, bricklayers 21, carpenters 72, concrete workers 33, cooks 17, construction foremen 17, civil engineers 7, draughtsmen and surveyors 4, drivers and teamsters 24, dynamite men 2, farmers and drovers 19, firemen 15, iron workers 26, laborers (railway construction) 92, locomotive engineers 9, machinists 23, miners 11, plumbers and steamfitters 19, stationary engineers 11, stationary engineers (cranemen, drillers, etc.) 23, sailors 3, shoe workers 3, timbermen 8, tradesmen 72, tailors 3, trackmen and section men 12.

Some 57 men were taken on the strength of the battalion in a single week at St. John, N.B., where the officer in charge of recruiting is Lt. Frederick G. Cross, who has been engaged in construction work for the Canadian Pacific Railway in Western Canada for the past seven or eight years. During the same period 59 men were secured at Montreal, and others have been enlisted at Fort William, Sudbury, Parry Sound, Pembroke, Windsor, London, St. Thomas, and other places.

Lieut.-Colonel Ripley, the officer commanding No. 1 Construction Battalion, has had much experience as a railway construction engineer. He has had charge of railway building in every province of Canada, and has done work in the United States. The unit is not yet known as a railway construction battalion, but, with the experience of the commanding officer and the railway engineers among the officers and the class of men being enrolled, it will be able to carry on high-class railway work, including tunnelling and bridge building in France.

Sold Valuable Islands.

Away back in 1469 the King of Norway was in need of cash and pawned the Orkney and Shetland Islands to the then King of Scotland for 60,000 florins. Kaiser Wilhelm wants the islands for a naval base, and is bargaining with Norway for the equity of redemption. Maybe if he buys them he will settle down there after the war. Anyway, if compound interest is to be paid on the 60,000 florins that Norway raised, the price will run to about £20,000,000,000.

CROUP HAS NO TERRORS FOR THE MOTHER WHO ALWAYS HAS READY AT HAND A BOTTLE OF Chamberlain's COUGH REMEDY

WHEN THE TANKS MADE THEIR DEBUT

GERMAN GUNS HAD NO MORE EFFECT THAN BREAD PELLETS.

Our "Tanks" have made their debut, and a startling debut it was.

Heavens, what a warm day's work! I can speak of it, for I was there. There were only a few privileged people "in the know"—the mechanics, first of all, and the machine gunners like myself—because it was very necessary to experiment with the "tanks" before sending them into battle, and to teach each one of us the part he would be called upon to play. It would be a great mistake to suppose that this apprenticeship was a soft job. It is exceedingly uncomfortable in a "tank;" and as my friend Charlie said to me (he is a blue jacket, a regular sea-dog, and has been transferred from the navy for this special work), "it is as bad there as in a battleship turret."

But these were only minor troubles which were exaggerated during our training, and for which we were amply repaid in the hour of battle, and particularly in the hour of triumph.

A COSMOPOLITAN CROWD.

We were in the front line with our "tanks" in little groups of "crews," each under the command of an officer. The resemblance to a battleship had seemed to us so striking that we had named our "tanks" of our own accord. There was the crew of the "Creme de Menthe," of the "Diplodocus," and of one ironically styled "The Boches' Victory." Indeed the name of some prehistoric animal was very appropriate to this kind of machine. The enormous silhouette of ours amid the ruins of Posierres—where it had been quartered waiting to be brought up to the line of fire—called up in the moonlight the idea of some fantastic monster of prehistoric times. It looked like a tortoise with a hump. There were Tommies from London, and Northumberland, Scotsmen, Canadians and New Zealanders—who were presently to march into the firing line with us—staring at my machine with curiosity and respect.

But the hour is approaching. Dawn will soon be here. I smoke my last, because once inside the tank farewell to any other chance of smoking. My good old pipe, though it may be really and truly my last one! I gaze at the enormous machine, whose engines are already beginning to groan terribly; it seems like a gigantic tomb. How will it behave if a large shell should fall on top of it? I fear that it would be the end of everything—both of us and of the steel beast itself. After all it is war; we must wait till we see what happens. Here comes our officer. There is a quick rally and a short address. He reminds us of our respective roles, and of what Sir Douglas Haig expects both of us and of the "tanks," and compliments us on our courage, our coolheadedness. A manhole is opened in the side of the "tank" and one by one we enter the interior like cats going through a hole in the door.

ALL ABOARD THE "TANK."

The whole crew climbs on board this fortress on wheels. I instal myself in the narrow space, by the side of my machine gun, whose muzzle is pointing outside the steel-plate sides of the tank, and fix my eyes to the loop-hole. "How hot it is!" said my neighbor. "It will be worse in an hour!" Through my loophole I can see just a strip of sky, which looks light to me, although the day has not yet fully dawned. In front of me I see undulating fields which have been ploughed up by guns of every calibre. Further on is the Fourreaux Wood, where we are to operate.

There is a crater to the left of the wood which according to the reports of our airmen, the Germans have converted into a fortress. This is the objective of the "tank" on our left. At the right of the wood there is a redoubt described to us as extraordinarily powerful; walls, interminable barbed-wire chevaux de frise, a formidable entanglement of all sorts of vile contrivances. A real "nest" of vile beasts! This is to be our job. By Jove, how stifling it is! Suddenly the glare of a rocket lights up the sky, followed by ten, twenty, thirty others. A sharp whistle sounds strangely in our prison. The hour has really come we are to start.

My heart is beating violently—I do not know why. One needs to have "sea-legs" to avoid knocking oneself against the sides of this carcase of steel, which is now waddling along ungracefully over the ruts and uneven places. I take hold of the metallic handle of a case of machine gun ammunition. The motor system of our "tank" is gripping the soil, sticking to it, gliding and dragging itself along like a centipede. We move on while the enthusiastic cheers of our infantry reach our ears in spite of the fearful din. As we advance the earth everywhere around our track is ploughed up and thrown aside. But, Heavens, how stifling it is, and how infernally far away the Fourreaux Wood seems to be!

SHOTS LIKE HAILSTONES.

One "tank" rolls down the slope of an exploded mine, breaking through a house en route. All goes well.

Now we arrive at the bottom. Without apparent trouble we climb up the other side. Once more the strip of sky shows itself and the jagged trunks of the trees of the Fourreaux Wood are appreciably nearer. Bang! A shell has hit us "head on," and the noise of the impact and the bursting of the shell makes the whole carcase vibrate but otherwise no damage is done, and we go calmly on our way.

A heavy thud then a flash over my head. Our "tank" is trembling from top to bottom. We have just fired. This perpetual rumbling over my head has a disturbing effect; the machine resounds, the air vibrates. They are getting it, these Boches. Tock, tock, tock! Thousands of "Tock-tock" re-echo on the steel sides of our "tank." It sounds like a myriad of hailstones beating against the window panes of a moving train. The German guns have opened fire on us. But in faith they are wasted shots. They have as much effect on our machine as pellets of bread against a wall.

At last we are near the "nest" we are to destroy. I can distinguish the sandbags heaped up and the walls pierced with holes. Little white flakes are coming from these holes, as though they were safety valves for the escape of steam. These were the guns of the enemy.

WENT THROUGH A WALL.

"Our "tank" advanced steadily and inexorably. A ditch—we clear it; an incline—we scale it; a heap of rubbish from a demolished house—we pass over it. And then we come to the first barbed wire entanglements. Our "tank" does not even make an effort; everything breaks, everything is crushed, everything is torn up. Splinters of wood jump up from all sides of us, the chevaux de frise are beaten down. I have the sensation of being in the interior of a gigantic iron wedge which is cutting through something like butter.

As for us we fire without ceasing, hand on gun and eye glued to the loophole pierced in the steel, with the sweat pouring down our foreheads.

A thud, a powerful panting, a last and almost imperceptible stop! The nose of our tank scatters sand and cement bags and throws them right and left as if it were ploughing up a field. Another violent shock, a heavy blow and a crashing. We are going straight through a wall. We are pulverising machine guns. Grenades burst upon our armour. We are in the midst of our "nest." All at once ugly German heads with terror on their faces appear on both sides of us! To work! Now it is my turn and that of my comrades! Our machine guns crackle. Our bullets whistle in the German trenches, taken thus by enfilade, and in the underground passages leading from the "nest" to the rear.

The Germans are now in the greatest disorder. They throw themselves flat on their stomachs, they raise their arms to heaven, some of them try to run away. A whistle sounds in the "tank" and it stops. Then wild cheers come faintly to my ears, and I soon see the dear old uniform of our boys who are taking possession of the "nest" and gathering up everything living which remains.

NOSE CLOGGED FROM A COLD OR CATARRH

Apply Cream in Nostrils To Open Up Air Passages.

Ah! What relief! Your clogged nostrils open right up, the air passages of your head are clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, mucous discharge, headache, dryness—no struggling for breath at night, your cold or catarrh is gone.

Don't stay stuffed up! Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Ely's Cream Balm is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer has been seeking. It's just splendid.

Tragic.

She flung herself into the arms of her mother-in-law in an abandonment of grief.

"What in the world's the matter, Arabella?" asked the elderly lady, anxiously. "Has anything happened to Edwin?"

"Oh, it's dreadful!" sobbed the bride of a few months. "He's staying out late at nights. I wait for him to come home hour after hour. Every foot step I hear on the pavement I think must be his. I rush to the door—but no Edwin!"

"Dear me! Dear me!" This is dreadful, Arabella. I must talk to Edwin," she added, with a real mother-in-law's look in her eyes. "How late does he stay out?"

"Well," sobbed Arabella, "he leaves the office at five every evening. A few nights ago he didn't get home till six o'clock, and yesterday he wasn't home till—till (another burst of sobs) half-past six!"

Promises Made To Look After Soldiers Are Being Broken

Municipal Bodies and Citizens Are Forgetting Obligations—Good Position is Open—Why not make some Hero Sheriff of Elgin, says Lawyer

ST. THOMAS, Jan. 23.—In a patriotic address at Knox Church, Colin S. Clair Leitch, a prominent lawyer, severely reprimanded municipal bodies and inidividuals for failing to keep their promises in looking after returned soldiers.

"The men were promised everything upon leaving for the front," he said, "and we find many of the returned heroes without even a position."

The speaker mentioned the office of sheriff for the county of Elgin, a position which would be most suitable for a returned soldier. "There are," he said, "men who have returned who would not be capable of holding the position, but there are others who are capable of holding even higher positions. If a man has lost the use of an arm or a leg he can still occupy this position. In fact," remarked Mr. Leitch, "he could successfully manage the position of sheriff of Elgin County if he had no legs at all.

"Filling this position with a returned soldier," he said, "would constitute the first reformation in the work that has been overlooked by the authorities."

The position of sheriff has been vacant for about two years, the Government having failed to appoint a successor to the late Sheriff Dougal McColl.

$ DOLLAR DAY $

THE EXAMINER
DOLLAR DAY

The Day when the Dollar Bill talks louder in Peterboro Stores than any other day in the year. This Year it will be held on THURSDAY, JAN. 25

About 50 of the principal stores in the City are participating, and are busy preparing the best list of bargains they can possibly find in their splendid stocks, and shoppers will certainly appreciate the extremely varied offerings such a large array of stores will assure. As usual the big list of Cash Bonuses is a liberal one, as the Merchants are giving away

CASH $175 PRIZES

This money will be Given Away in this way:—With every Dollar Purchase on that day, an Estimating Blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question.

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be filled in and dropped into the Ballot Box at "The Examiner Office" by 10:15 p.m. on Dollar Day.

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the 1st Prize of $25; 2nd $20; 3rd $15 and so on.

For your guidance in estimating, we might say that The Examiner is printing and distributing to the Merchants, for use on Dollar Day, 30,000 blanks, and it is only necessary to estimate what number each purchaser thinks will be used on the great day. Should any store run short of blanks, The Examiner will print more, so that the number printed might reach as high as 50,000. The number of estimates put in the last $ Day Campaign was in the neighbourhood of 9,000. With this information, an estimate can be made before coming to town. Of course as many estimates can be made as the purchaser has blanks, and they will get one with every Dollar purchase they make.

Make up your mind what and where you want to buy and come to Peterborough on Thursday, January 25th, expecting the greatest economy shopping event of your lives.

DOLLAR DAY.

The public will note with interest and pleasure that Thursday next, January 25th, that is to-morrow, is The Examiner's Dollar Day—with Peterborough merchants. Dollar Day is in sympathy with the genius and call of the time—to thrift and saving. Dollar Day is the harvest of the shrewd buyer, for it affords a chance to reap, not so many big bargains, big in character if not in bulk. If Dollar Day is systematically used it can be turned to splendid account by the public. In The Examiner from day to day, and particularly to-day, appear the advertisements of our merchants. If each reader marks what appeals to her in these advertisements, and goes after them early on Thursday morning, she can shop with a purpose and make reasonably sure of getting what she wants. Our merchants are honourably living up to the spirit of the Dollar Days of the past, and the public can be assured that even in these days of high prices, a dollar can find a chance to express something like its old time purchasing power.

UNEQUAL ZEAL.

We are told that a special preventive officer operating at Brockville, made the residents of that place disgorge over $3,000 in customs duties they had evaded—on goods brought into the country without paying duty. There is no fault to be found with this action. The law should be applied equally to all. But this zeal in going back for two years to get people to pay their dues, is in striking contrast to the government tenderheartedness it recalls. It is a matter of recent history that John Wesley Allison, a war profiter, and said by his enemies to be something unduly acquisitive, was permitted to bring in dutiable goods by the shipload, at the port of Montreal, without paying one cent of duty. This evasion of the customs dues probably mounted into the thousands, while a few women in Brockville, whose shortcomings could be counted in cents, were made to pay to the uttermost farthing. Of course Allison was a good Conservative and favoured of the government; and in the matter of graft, if it is going, it simplifies bookkeeping a good deal to get at the spoil in the very beginning—making money by refraining from paying just dues.

A CONTRAST.

If Canada's way to secure national cooperation in national service is lacking is "punch" it has one redeeming feature. It still leaves us a free people, a saving quality that should make us all the more anxious to give effective and united service, because the appeal is made in the interests of preserving the liberty to serve or not serve, to give or not give, that we value so highly. If we had the German conditions, which we ought to sacrifice everything we have to avoid, we should not have such a thing as choice; force and compulsion would be the word from the start. Germany does not ask or request; she orders and compels. In Canada, if we fail to meet the call of duty, all we have to reckon with is our conscience and, if things go wrong through our failure, with our remorse. But if we were in Germany, if we were brought under the German autocracy and brutal reign of force, we should have, in failure to obey orders, to reckon with jail or the butt end of a musket, if not with its bullet through our head. We don't like the German way but it has its advantages when it comes to having things done. It is, however, what we are fighting against; and some of us will have to do more, if we will win in the fight and keep the liberty to do as we like—the liberty to shirk our duty or do it.

DORCHESTER.

We can't predict with any certainty what the result of the polling will be in Dorchester, Quebec, where Mr. Sevigny, the Nationalist, is seeking re-election, necessary on account of his having accepted a portfolio in the Borden Government. A Liberal is running in opposition to him as a protest against the outrage of a member of a faction whose creed is that Canada has no duty to help in the war of liberty, being made a minister in a British Cabinet, whose sole duty at this time is to lead Canada in doing her best. If a straight, honest, loyal Quebec Conservative had been appointed a Minister and had sought re-election, the Liberals would not have opposed him.

It is difficult to forecast what the result will be. The Borden Government has permitted and encouraged the poison of Nationalism—shooting-the-flag, etc.—to so infect the popular mind in Quebec, that it has killed recruiting in that province, and helped make the rank and file indifferent not only to imperial but to national duty. The Nationalists own the Borden government, because they have bought it with a price—the price of Nationalist parliamentary support, including the gift of fat portfolios to a faction that has "no use for England and the English," that "shot holes through the flag," and is utterly opposed to Canada doing any part of the life and death duty she is is called upon to do now. Such conditions have poisoned the popular mind in Quebec to an extent that makes it difficult to predict what the electors will do on polling day in Dorchester.

Besides, Dorchester is an uncertain riding; it changes its political allegiance frequently. Its record since Confederation is as follows: 1867, Conservative by acclamation; 1872, Conservative, by 321; 1874, Conservative by 21; 1875, Conservative by 466; 1878, Conservative by 1186; 1882, Conservative by acclamation; 1887, Liberal by 476; 1888, Liberal by acclamation; 1891, Independent-Liberal by acclamation; 1896, Conservative by 330; 1900, Conservative by 369; 1904, Conservative by 344; 1908, Liberal by 163; 1911, Nationalist (Mr. Sevigny) by 332.

ECONOMY AND WASTE.

If municipalities wanted a precedent to justify the experiment of government by commission, they have it in the Dominion government. This government has brought it to pass that we no longer have representative, but government by commission. The people delegate their authority as a self-governing population to the members of parliament they elect; a committee or commission of Parliament, called a government or cabinet, acts for parliament; and, in a great many instances outside of mere routine, and when anything of real moment is to be done its work is turned over by the government to a commission. It is not necessary to note the number of commissioners, always very costly, to which the government has turned over its responsibilities. With sixteen ministerial departments, each presided over by a minister and an office staff of twenty-five to thirty, under salaries totalling from $50,000 to $75,000 each, the work of the government has to be delegated to commissions.

It seems that we are desperately over-governed and at an expense quite out of measure with the results. The government, through Sir Thomas White, Finance Minister, is calling upon us for the strictest economy, so that we can lend to the government; yet, at the same time the government and its departments, and their swarming officials are responsible for setting at defiance the Finance Minister's call for economy. And all the extravagant expenditure is not incurred upon a national plan. The government spends freely the money of the people not in a way to conduce to the most effective national service, but largely with reference to party interests. This policy is bad at any time but monstrous at war time, when every dollar should be counted and every dollar spent to insure return value without reference to whether it is spent among the friends and partisans of the government. We don't know all the details of the partisanship that attends the expenditure of public money, but we get some idea of its immense importance when a high party official, like Government whip Stanfield, resigns his position because a Minister of the Crown "butts in" and interferes with the whip's prerogative of spending the public money in his party's interests in his riding. A pretty quarrel about party patronage rights at a time when Sir Thomas White is asking even our school children to forego lollipops that they may have money to contribute to war loans. One does not have to be a Socialist to regard with regret the immense sums that are squandered in waste and unnecessary expenditures in connection with the burdensome over-government of the people of Canada.

BOSTON CREEK— A WORD WITH YOU

Boston Creek remains the leading feature of the Toronto mining share market, both in activity and price advances.

I recommend its purchase by investors—by semi-investors for the long pull and large market profits—by investors for extraordinary indicated earnings and dividends.

BOSTON CREEK IS UNDOUBTEDLY THE SENSATION OF THE NEW YEAR FROM THE NORTH COUNTRY. NOT SINCE THE DISCOVERY AND DEVELOPMENT OF PORCUPINE, WHICH REQUIRED THE BUILDING OF A RAILROAD INTO THE CAMP, HAS THERE BEEN A MINE AND CAMP OF THE NORTH BROUGHT TO PUBLIC ATTENTION WHICH INVITES INVESTMENT AND SPECULATION TO AN EXTENT EQUAL TO BOSTON CREEK, with a RAILROAD AND STATION ON THE PROPERTIES.

I believe present buyers of Boston Creek have but to stay with the development of 1917, as already announced through the management, to see this company push very far on the road to permanent earnings and extraordinary dividend payments. I believe those who buy now and stay with this proposition will count their profits in figures of from 100% to 500%. And I believe those who buy and await the dividend-paying period, which should not be long in following the inauguration of bonanza ore shipments this month or next, will have reason to regard their holdings highly for the exceptionally high net yields which they will make on the basis of stock purchased anywhere from $1.25 to $5 a share.

Boston Creek is to-day the sensation of the Toronto Standard Stock Exchange and the New York Curb Market. Its recent volume of transactions recalls the days when Porcupine gold issues were active and were advancing in price. On the New York and Toronto markets the transaction as shown on the sheet in Boston Creek recall the heavy and sensational trading the latter part of October in Magma and at an earlier date in United Verde Extension.

Buy Boston Creek now. The company has a management with abundant financial and technical means to carry it to success. It represents an expenditure to date of a quarter of a million dollars. The management plans to expend as much more in providing accommodations to increase the working forces from 50 to 200 men and in the building of a mill to treat ore on the ground. A large tonnage of the highest grade ore in the north has been developed underground and placed on the dump, and shipments are now about to start which will startle the country with the remarkable sustained showings of values—thousands of dollars to the ton—which will appear in the settlement sheets from the reduction company. The company has developed ore of such fabulous value that it is now estimated that $1,500,000 already is available. The mine grows richer with depth and has been pronounced by the best experts to have the earmarks of a WHALE OF A PERMANENT BONANZA PROPERTY. There are two big parallel vein systems and the formation has been passed upon favorably by geologists, who are of the opinion that the ore will "go to the deep," just like the mines of Porcupine—like the great deep-vein copper mines of the United States.

I URGE IMMEDIATE ACTION IN PURCHASING THIS STOCK BY WAY OF ANTICIPATING HIGHER PRICES. BUY BOSTON CREEK FOR INDICATED REMARKABLE DIVIDEND RETURNS WHEN THE COMPANY ENTERS THAT STAGE AND FOR IMMENSE MARKET PROFITS.

Both Parties At Ottawa Growing Scared of Country

SESSION WILL ADJOURN

OTTAWA, Ont., January 23.—After all the talk about tension being apparent between the parties, one finds evidence only of depression and a most curious species of fear. Nothing like it has been seen by the oldest Parliamentarian. The debate on the address has opened and not a real note of partisan conflict has entered into nearly five hours' discussion. The sting has been taken out of the assumed controversy about an extension of Parliament by Sir Wilfrid's most politic offer to clear the way for Sir Robert's attendance at the Imperial Conferences with the War Cabinet so that there may be a renewed session with something worth while to occupy the attenton of men who may want to win the war more than they will hunger for an ignoble election.

POLITICIANS AT SEA.

But there was more than Sir Wilfrid's conciliatory tone behind the curious temper of the House. Men who came here last year ready for party fraying—Liberals, eager for exposure of Allisonian scandals, Conservatives, hot to repel charges of incompetence and worse—frankly say they can't read the political sky. One who is much bigger than a partisan told me this evenng that the fellows on both sides have seen a gathering cloud as they have traversed their constituencies. They begin to realize that the people are getting sick of partisanship, when the smell of blood is in the air. They have a more or less defined apprehension that there is a great, big policeman outside with a grasp strong enough to take them by the scuff of the neck and put the disunionists where they belong.

The parties then, are getting scared of the country. "National Government" is being muttered and uttered wherever incipient electioneerers go, and they dread disturbance of the old landmarks.

SHIFTING IS IN PROGRESS.

You must not suppose that there is a mephitic police court air about the White Chamber. The old stamping grounds are being shifted at last and parliamentary intelligence is beginning to glimpse the truth that the war which is blowing half a continent to pieces will really make a difference in these too traditional corridors. That is partly due to the cruelty of the war which has invaded the House itself as it had not broken into it a year ago. One member and the sons of several more have been killed since prorogation. Mr. Hazen's son died as last session was dying. Three Liberals have been bereaved. Both Mr. Loggie's sons have been wounded. Three of Dr. Clark's boys are in khaki, one of them wonderfully preserved since he first saw battle with the Princess Pat's.

This sort of thing helps the breaking away from partizanship in which the country is ahead of the Commons and subdues the ardor of the most vehement foeman of yesterday.

NO FEVERISH EXCITEMENT.

No more curious evidence of the changing spirit has been given than the quietude with which Sir Wilfrid's criticisms of the Government were received by his own henchmen. From the time he left praising the Duke of Connaught and the new Duke till he sat down, fifty-five minutes later, he was treated to more silence than a similar speech of his has ever received. That was not because of dissent from his friends, but because of the strange pall that has descended on the more crowded Government side there was a similar though not as complete a reticense.

There was an old time reminiscence in the cheers when Sir Robert to quoqueing Sir Wilfrid on his charge of lack of harmony in the Cabinet reminded him of Tarte's declaration that in the Laurier Government they fought like blazes. But, on the question of extending the life of Parliament when Sir Robert declared, with as much vigor as he put into anything he said, that the reasons he gave a year ago for extension are quite as congent now, not a semblance of a sound broke the calm of his followers.

IN LEASH, PERHAPS NOT CHAINED.

Of course the temper of these leashed parties may break down or break up, any hour. You never can tell what the Maritime men may throw nto a simmering pot, and the scandal of Dorchester is an uncertain quantity. But the two leaders are statesmen, after all, and Sir Robert's virtual acceptance of the offer to vote supply, cry off contention, and go home while he goes to London is proof enough to go on with that the logic of events is penetrating the Museum. If everything had to be held up for Sir Wilfrid's attendance at the Imperial Conference in 1911, how much more reason is there to silence the dogs of domestic war while weightier matters are on trial. An election soon followed Sir Wilfrid's return, and history may repeat itself in an unrepeatable war. If it does, the country will at least have had time to find itself and the incurable partisans opportunity to forget themselves.

And on the questions of prosecuting the war, the scope of peace which alone can honour our dead, and the spirit in which the after-war problems must be approached, both sides gave sufficient sign of being essentially agreed. To fight now about extending the life of a Parliament which is insured for nearly eight months—well, even children are sometimes wise.

SIR SAM HUGHES' POSITION.

Sir Sam Hughes is a first-class chastener; on the Government side he is the enfant incalculable. Now that it has come to the impossibility of cheering both him and Sir Robert Borden, the embarrassment of their friends evokes the sympathy of the humane. With pitiless logic Sir Wilfrid had exposed the seriousness of Sir Sam's charges against Sir Robert revealed in the fatal correspondence. The alleged holding up of the second contingent for four months while the patronage leeches fought for unnecessary commissions on the purchase of supplies is a sample of the indictments against the Borden way of not doing things at home, and the wanton scrapping of good equipment is a specimen of the subordination of Canadian common sense to English crassness, which Sir Sam says distinguished the abdication of Canadian control over Canadian affairs that in effect has caused us to fight more like a flunkey than like a nation. Sir Sam says that in 1914 Lord Kitchener told them the acting High Commissioner had conveyed the wish of the Canadian Government that in England the Canadian troops would be treated like British regulars—absolutely under War Office direction. Against this Sir Sam never ceased to protest.

RETORTS OF LEADERS.

"Is that parliamentary government?" asked Sir Wilfrid, without pronouncing as between the two knights. Sir Sam sat at the end of the front ministerial line, on a back bencher's chair, a handsome, rather pathetic figure, with some of the former dominant lines smoothed out of his face. He was a bull terrier trying to look at ease while a fire smouldered in his vitals.

Sir Robert made the best show he has ever made of turning water off a duck's back, as he referred to assertions that he is a confirmed vacillator. He was quite gay and bantering and played with great gusto a swell-looking card. He compared the Laurier change of front about troops for South Africa with his own committal of Canada to this war, "while my colleagues were not at Ottawa."

Sir Wilfrid's obvious retort was that Sir Robert's big troubles always come because he can't make up his mind when his colleagues are at Ottawa, but he didn't make it.

Anyway Sir Robert skated away from the real issue that Sir Sam's letters have projected into the final politics of the war. The conflict as to fact which was renewed in the House by Sir Sam's challenge to Sir Robert to recall his protest against the Kitchener attitude in 1914, and the objection raised in England against the second divison command, lifted the veil only a little, but enough to promise a real lively time if ever Sir Sam lets himself go. Sir Robert handled a difficult situation exceedingly well.

Borden Offers Sevigny Ontario Seat If He Loses

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.—It is stated here on good authority that Sir Robert Borden has intimated to Hon Albert Sevingy, Minister of Inland Revenue that if he is defeated in Dorchester by Lucien Cannon, several Conservative constituencies in Ontario will be placed at his disposal, from which he may choose a seat. The report appears in the French Conservative organ, La Patrie, and is not denied here. Several members in Ontario are said to be ready to step out in favour of the new Nationalist Minister.

Meanwhile the fight in Dorchester goes merrily on, with opinion fairly well divided as to the result, Mr. Cannon continues to attack the record of his opponent and the methods and extravagance of the Government. Mr Sevigny has undertaken to give $1,000 to charity, if Mr. Cannon can establish to the electorate that his candidature following his St. Prosper speech, is endorsed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Mr. Cannon declines to take up the bet.

New Ruling Made In A. R. Standard

Buttons to Be Divided Into Two Classes According to Numbers

A marked change in the issuing of A. R. buttons came into effect at the Central Recruiting Depot yesterday, as a result of which buttons will be issued in future only to applicants who have been found unfit for overseas service with the unit recruiting under the lowest physical standard—in other words, to applicants who have been found physically unfit for the 257th Railway Construction Battalion, No. 1 Skilled Railway Employes' Section, or for the Forestry unit now recruiting a section in Northern Ontario. As was pointed out the practice up to date has been to issue the A. R. button to men who applied and were found unfit for one of the harder branches of the service, such as the artillery or the cavalry, quite regardless of the fact that they might be acceptable to the Railway Construction or Forestry units.

Buttons are Graded.

In announcing this change in the system, the officers in charge of the depot recognize that it will be a much harder matter for a man to secure an A. R. button to-day than it was two days ago, and that all those who received buttons in the past may still be fit for service overseas with the railway units. For that reason they are drawing a distinct line of cleavage between the two classes of A. R. men in order that the public may know just where each man stands, the line being placed at button No. 7,732, which was the last to be issued under the old conditions. The result of this is that all men in the city holding buttons numbered anywhere from 1 to 7,732 may still be fit for one of the lighter branches of the service, and the holders will have an opportunity of establishing their claim to one of the higher numbered buttons by going back to the depot and offering their services to one of the units to which the recent lowering of the physical standard applies. If they are found unfit for service on any of these units, their old buttons will be taken in and new ones will be issued bearing numbers which will indicate that they have been found unfit for military duty in any capacity.

Number is important.

The result of the change, as the military men see it, is that the number on a man's button is now of far more significance than the button itself, and the only way to determine that a man has offered himself for service in any capacity is to learn that the number of his button is higher than 7732. While 7732 represents the number of buttons issued under the old conditions, the authorities recognize that there must be hundreds of those who are unfit for service in any form whatever, and who will want to prove the same, just as there must be hundreds of others who are fit for several units now that the standard has been lowered, and for that reason they are anticipating a fresh run on the depot for buttons.

BORDEN HEDGING ON THE SOLDIERS' VOTE

Now Takes Directly the Opposite View to That of Two Years Ago

OTTAWA, Jan. 23—Sir Robert Borden's new and somewhat novel argument in favour of extension, namely, that it would be impossible to take the soldiers' vote, has created some amusement in political circles at Ottawa. This, it will be recalled, was the very argument used by the Opposition two seasons ago, when the Government was pushing the soldiers' voting bill through Parliament, but the argument held no weight with the Prime Minister, the Minister of Justice, and the rank and file of the party. The bill was passed, the ballots were prepared, crated, and sent to England, and they are even now stacked in the High Commissioner's Office at London. At that time, it may be noted, the Government was more favourable to an election than it is to-day.

As a matter of fact, it is stated that the Government has been making inquiries as to the possibility of distributing campaign literature among the troops at the front. Judging by Sir Robert's statement to the House, the result of these inquiries has not been very satisfactory. As a consequence, the publication of a paper for distribution among the soldiers is in contemplation. Without doubt, it will be carefully edited.

It is clear that a new cry will be raised in the event of an election being held, namely, that Liberals forced the contest, with the knowledge that the troops could not vote.

Failing Sight Traced To Kidney Plaster

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The Optical Journal received from Dr. Frank lin D. Seward, president of the New York State Optical Society, a report of an unusual case which came to his attention in which belladonna, used in a plaster over the kidneys, caused almost total blindness and so poisoned the entire system that the saliva was dried up and all food tasted like sawdust.

Dr. Seward, who has an office at No. 47 West Thirty-fourth street, had the case brought to his attention when Bert Green, a member of the brokerage firm of Hooley & Co., of No. 15 Broad street, and living at Rutherford, N.J., came to him for treatment, reporting that he feared he was becoming blind as he could not read even the large headlines of newspapers.

Upon examination Dr. Seward found that the optic disc was in good condition and the refractive muscles were paralysed. He diagnosed the case as poisoning from atropine or belladonna, but Mr. Green replied that he had taken no medicine. Upon further examination Dr. Seward found his patient for three days had been wearing an application which contained belladonna. After this was taken off the sight returned, other symptoms disappeared and Mr. Green is now in perfect health.

NATIONWIDE FIGHT ON HEART DISEASE UNDER WAY IN U.S.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.— Heart disease has caused more deaths in this country and city in the last few years than tuberculosis, according to physicians in the New York Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital, Second avenue and Twentieth street. The hospital is conducting a vigorous campaign against heart disease and is educating sufferers from it in a manner similar to the way other organizations are trying to curtail consumption. Little has been organized in the Post-Graduate a special heart clinic, and one hundred persons, half of them children, are being treated there.

The fact that at least twenty thousand of New York city's eight hundred thousand school children are suffering from various forms of heart disease is a danger signal that must arrest the attention of the community to the menace of this ailment," one of the hospital physicians said. "Unless the condition of these children is greatly relieved many of them will become dependents thus adding an increasing burden to the taxpayers for their maintenance.

Knowledge of Disease Lacking.

"The widespread publicity given to tuberculosis has been highly effective in reducing the death rate from that disease. On the other hand a comparative lack of knowledge concerning the proper care of heart sufferers has contributed to a large extent to the great increase in the mortality from that disease."

The hospital officials say that in 913 9,674 persons died of heart disease, whereas 8,604 succumbed to tuberculosis. Organic heart disease deaths in 1914 were 10,058 as compared with 8,-18 from consumption and in 1915 10,-83 deaths occurred from cardiac causes as against 8,825 from the "white plague."

In 1915 the United States government received reports showing that in the registration area 105,200 persons died of heart disease, while tuberculosis in all forms caused only 98,194. In the United States registration area in 1915 there were 67,306,992 persons. As the total population of continental United States for that year was estimated at 100,399,318, deaths occurring among the 67.1 per cent. of the population registered were reported to the government officials. Therefore the physicians interested said the figures show that heart disease is the greatest menace to health in this country, and it is expected by those specializing in its treatment that co-ordinated efforts by city, county, State and national agencies soon will be launched to to combat the disease.

Due to Mouth Infection.

In speaking of the causes of the disease physicians said that it is conceded by the foremost medical authorities that a large proportion of organic disease is a direct result of infection originating in the mouth, chiefly in the tonsils and as a result of decayed teeth. When the tonsils are diseased they serve as dangerous incubators it was said, the physician adding that in examination in the New York public schools had revealed that thousands of children have unhealthy tonsils.

It was explained that the poisons excreted in the tonsils are carried by the blood stream to the heart, where the streptococci act selectively on certain tissues of that organ and in varying degrees impair its efficiency. The same dangerous bacteria are said to inhabit in great numbers the tissues surrounding the roots of diseased teeth.

Many striking instances of how proper mouth and throat hygiene relieves heart sufferers were given by the physicians discussing the work of the Post-Graduate heart class.

The case of Susie, eight years old, treated in the heart clinic, illustrates what the general carrying out of preventive measures would mean in the fight against heart disease. Her heart was so weakened she was unable to stand the strain of daily school sessions.

The first step, as the clinic physician put it, was to "clean up her mouth." That meant that her teeth were treated until there was no more infection from decay, and her disease tonsils, which had been culture medium for bacteria, were removed. She then was sent to an open air convalescent home on Staten Island, where in four weeks she gained three pounds. She had to return to the hospital for several weeks for treatment for another disease of childhood, from which she quickly recovered.

The child then was placed in convalescent home at Sea Cliff, L.I. In six week she added nine more pounds to her weight. She now is attending school, her weakened heart is much stronger, and by careful living, members of the clinic staff assert, her life will be prolonged many years.

SUNDAY READING FOR A THOUGHTFUL HOUR

Prepared for the Examiner by a Local Church Worker

MOVE TO THE FORE.

Men whom God hath made fit for the fray,
Not yours to shrink, as the feeble ones may;
Not yours to parley and quibble and shirk;
Fit for the world if ye do not God's work.
Move to the fore!
Move to the fore!

Say not another is fitter than thou—
Shame to the manhood that sits on thy brow!
Own thyself equal to all that man may;
Cease thine evading; God needs thee to-day.
Move to the fore!
Move to the fore!

God, Himself, waits and must wait till thou come,
Men are God's prophets though ages be dumb;
Hail's the Christ-kingdom with conquest so near?
Thou art the cause, then, thou man at the rear.
Move to the fore!

A Christian Future.

One of the greatest needs of the hour is the need for a firmer and more assured faith on the part of every one of us in the possibility of a Christian future for the world. Looking at it to-day from the outside it looks like an utterly pagan affair, does it not And, superficially, the future doesn't seem much brighter than the present. Preparedness campaigns and threats of bitter trade wars do not presage the immediate dawning of the day of universal brotherhood. Sometimes it looks like the devil's world, does it not? But it isn't. In fact it never was as far from being his as it is today. And one of the things you and I need very much is a strong, clear vision and faith that will enable us to see in the turmoil and strife of our day the struggle of great divine principles that points to a day of triumph for righteousness and brotherly-kindness in the earth. The great Father of us all is in this struggle, and He will bring out of it, as we will let Him, a good to the race that will be past our reckoning. That should be our faith and hope.

Is this a time to halt when all around
Wide horizons meet, new destinies confront?
Stern duties wait our nation, never wont
To play the laggard, when God's will was found.
No; rather strengthen stakes and lengthen cords,
Enlarge thy bands and gates, O thou elect;
And to thy kingdom come for such a time.
The earth, with all its fulness, is the Lord's;
Whose love imperial is, whose power sublime.

Willing To Pay $170,000 To Woman Rather Than Marry Her

Twelve Pittsburgh jurors, unable to agree otherwise on the amount of damages Miss Nettie M. Richardson should receive from Henry Deniston, aged Swissvalle recluse, for his failure to marry her, added the amounts each believed she should have, divided the total by twelve, and awarded her a verdict for the result—$17,000. That is the largest verdict ever given in the courts for a failure to keep a promise to marry.

This application of arithmetic to the troubles of Mr. Dennison and the young woman was satisfactory to her and even she intimated he was willing to let the matter drop there, but his attorneys said the case would be appealed to a higher court, where perhaps the application of higher mathematics would give a different result.

Miss Richardson is forty years old. She formerly was a hotel clerk. Mr. Denniston is seventy-eight and credited with possessing $3,000,000. They are third cousins, if such a relationship may be figured. The cashier of the Braddock National Bank testified that Mr. Denniston had $400,000 in cash on deposit there, and that seemed to be sufficient evidence for the jury concerning his ability to pay a large sum.

Mr. Denniston never made love to Miss Richardson, she testified. He did not caress her, nor kiss her. It was a purely business understanding with him. On two of her calls at his home she testified he had proposed that they be married and that she take care of him in his declining years, for which service he proposed to make a liberal allowance, realized that he had gotten along fairly well through his long life, without spending much money, so why begin at his advanced age? Therefore, he informed Miss Richardson he would not marry her.

"I thank God that there were twelve honest men on the jury to give an honest verdict to a working girl," said Miss Richardson after the jury reported. "I had expected not less than $100,000, and believed I might get as much as $200,000. I had asked for $500,000. Therefore, I am not surprised by the verdict."

"I do not think the case will go any further," said Mr. Denniston. He indicated he was tired of the entire matter and wished to drop it.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which isp ure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

A Famous Romance

Interesting records from the pedigree of a famous family of fighting Scots were read to the Baronetage Committee of the Privy Council on the consideration of the petition of Mr. Alexander Bethune to be placed on the official roll of baronets in respect of the baronetcy of Sharp of Scotscraig. The Committee was composed of the Earl of Desart, Lord Sandhurst, Lord Dunedin, Lord Strathclyde and Lord Scott-Dickson.

The story of the baronetage as put forward in the claim was a truly romantic one. It was originally conferred by Charles II. in 1683 upon Sir William Sharp of Scotscraig, the son of Archbishop Sharp, of St. Andrews, who was murdered in 1677. A subsequent holder of the title was Sir William Sharp, who was born in 1729, along with an uncle, he took part in the rising of 1745. Taken prisoner, he pleaded guilty to a charge of treason, but, on account of his youth, obtained a reprieve. After his release he went abroad and served in the French army till 1761, when, in the hope of securing a full pardon, he left the French service and returned to England. In the meantime France and Spain declared war against Portugal, which was in alliance with Great Britain and Sir William entered the Portuguese army and rose to high rank, becoming brigadier-general and governor of the fortified town of Olivenca.

Returning to England in 1768 he presented a memorial to the Crown praying for a formal pardon in order that he might be entitled to enjoy his baronetcy. The prayer of the memorial was granted by George III., in the following year. He then returned to Scotland and married Bethune, eldest daughter of John Bethune of Blebo. The Bethunes of Blebo were a family of ancient lineage and high standing in Fife. Of this marriage a son was born. The entry in the register of the episcopal church of St. Andrews was as follows: "A Blebo, Aug. 20, 1771, Alexander, son of Sir William Sharp, was baptized, and Mr Bethune, of Blebo, the mother's father; the Rev. Jas. Hutchison, and my Lady Sharp, the father's mother, were sponsors."

Sir William Sharp died in London in February, 1780, and was buried in St. Marylebone Churchyard. As to the marriage of Sir William Sharp and Margaret Bethune, no certificate was known to be in existence, and no entry of the proclamation of the banns or the celebration of the marriage could be found; but the explanation was that no register of banns or marriages for the parish of Kemback existed for the whole period 1703-1787. In the ordinary case therefore, showing the unambiguous recognition by both families would amply establish the fact of the marriage and the legitimacy of the child.

It was, however, stated by Sir William's mother, after his death, that he had a lawful widow and a natural daughter in Portugal. The son Alexander never served heir to his father, or assumed the title, while Margaret Bethune ultimately resumed his maiden name.

Alexander meanwhile obtained a commission in the army, and was for a number of years a prisoner of war in France. At one time he was at Verdun-sur-Meuse. In 1795 he was authorized to take the name and arms of Bethune of Blebo, and ultimately became General Bethune of Blebo.

Accounts in the name of Alexander Sharp, dated 1788, contained such items as "Cock-fighting, 6d." "To a fiddler's wedding, 2d.," "Coals for the school, 8 1-2d.," and "Chaise hire from Cupar, 10d."

Alexander (General Bethune of Blebo), died in 1847, and was succeeded by his eldest son, Alexander, who married Margaret Maxwell, and died in 1900. The claimant —Mr Alexander Bethune—is their son.

By the law of Scotland, said the defendant, where a marriage was null because of some pre-existing impediment the legitimacy of the children might be saved if even one of the parents was in honest ignorance of the impediment.

It was urged that the marriage of Sir William and Margaret and the paternity of the child were recognized most solemnly by both families and by the clergymen.

The committee announced that his Majesty would be advised of their decision later.

HAD AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

For 5 or 6 Years

Diseases and disorders of the heart and nervous system have become frightfully prevalent of late years.

One can scarcely pick up a paper but he will find recorded instances of sudden deaths through heart failure, or of prominent men and women unable to prosecute their ordinary business or profession on account of a breaking down of the nervous system.

We do not desire to unnecessarily alarm anyone, but to sound a word of warning.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, has shooting pains through it, it is time to stop and think.

To all sufferers from heart and nerve troubles Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. Frank Arseneau, Newcastle, N. B., writes: "I had awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At the present time my sister is using them for nervousness and finds great comfort by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c of three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Wife's Love Valued At $5,000 By Jury

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. — The acquaintance which Mrs. Margaret Stewart, sitting in pew No. 13 of the Episcopal Church of the Transfiguration, formed with Frederick W. Rourke, a contractor, of Albany, who was formerly known in Brooklyn political circles, cost Mr. Rourke $5,000. A jury before Justice Kelly in the Supreme Court, in Brooklyn, which heard the testimony in action begun by Hamilton Stewart, an engineer, who sought to recover $10,000 for the loss of Mrs. Stewart's affections, decided that the plaintiff was entitled to half the amount at which he valued the lost love.

The decision of the jury came after Mrs. Stewart's declaration on the witness stand that when she met Mr. Rourke she had no love for her husband, having realized her "mistake" immediately after her marriage, in 1887, but that she decided to "put up with it" and that she had never gone out with her husband from the day of her marriage or received as much as a stick of peppermint candy from him.

Counsel for Mr. Rourke moved to set aside the verdict. Decision was reserved and Justice Kelly gave each side one week in which to submit briefs.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Balky Lover

By ELINOR MARSH

Mr. and Mrs. Harkaway's daughter, Maria, was the one being on earth who absorbed their interest. All went well till Maria's affections became centered on a young man, and the young man was so slow in proposing that Mrs. Harkaway feared some other girl would steal him away from her daughter. The mother kept her fears to herself as long as possible, then revealed them to her husband.

"I do think," said Mrs. Harkaway, "that young fellow who is coming to see Maria should either propose to her or be told not to come to see her any more."

"How do you know that he hasn't proposed to her?" asked her husband.

"Because when I went into the parlor last evening after he had gone I asked her, and she said he hadn't."

"Does she want him to propose?"

"Of course she does. Do you suppose she would let him come and sit with her twice a week—sometimes three times—unless she expected that he would ask her to marry him?"

"Maria is a good girl. Do you know whether he is a good man?"

"Maria says he is as steady as a clock and has money laid up."

"What do you suppose he's waiting for?"

"What do you mean?"

"Why, don't you remember when we were engaged how I was waiting to get a certain sum laid up to be married on, and your little brother one day flatly asked me why I didn't marry you or take myself off? I know very well that he had taken the words from your father's mouth, and it brought me to the scratch. We must lay some such plan for this young lover."

"That's easier said than done."

One evening when the usual sparkling was going on in the parlor there was a ring at the front door bell. Maria went to the door and reported that an Italian was there with a parrot he said the gentleman had asked him to bring to him. The man was admitted to the living room, and Mr. Harkaway said to him:

"You think you have found a bird that will talk, eh?"

'You betta I have."

'What is he worth?'

'Fifty dolla'."

"Well, let's hear what he can do."

The Italian took the parrot from his arm and by talking to him elicited many wonderful sayings. When he had done so Mrs. Harkaway said to him:

"I wish you would let my daughter hear him talk. Come this way."

She led him out into the parlor, where Maria's young man was sitting beside her.

"Maria," said the lady, "I wish you to hear this wonderful parrot. He says such queer things."

"Yes'm," said Maria, and her young man rose and stood in presence of the mother. The Italian held the parrot on his forefinger and said a number of things to him, which the bird doubtless understood, for he began to chatter. Then, suddenly fixing his attention on the lovers, he said:

"Maria, give me a kiss."

Maria colored, and her young man started.

Then followed some rambling talk, during which the parrot seemed to have forgotten the lovers. They were recovering from his pertinent remark when he broke forth anew:

"Maria, will you marry me?"

By this time Mr. Harkaway had come through the hall and stood in the parlor door, evidently desirous of satisfying himself that the parrot was worth the price asked for him. He was in time to hear the last words.

"Of course I'll marry you," were the parrot's last words.

Harkaway, pretending that he supposed the proposition and acceptance to come from the lovers, marched up to Maria and congratulated her. Then, turning to her young man, he said:

"You've got a mighty good girl, and she'll make you a mighty good wife."

The young man, instead of looking disgruntled, seemed pleased. He was not much of a talker, and a smile was his only response to the congratulations. It is quite likely he felt grateful to the bird for relieving him of making a proposal.

Mrs. Harkaway hung back for a time, not pretending that she had mistaken the parrot's voice for that of the lovers; but, seeing that the young man was disposed to avail himself of the bird's proposal, she went to Maria and offered her congratulations.

The Italian was sent away with his parrot and a five dollar bill to pay for his exhibition of ventriloquism, for he had been hired and coached by Harkaway to bring about what had occurred.

"What an absurd scene!" remarked Mrs. Harkaway to her husband. "I almost gave it all away by laughing."

"But it was effective."

"Nothing would have made it effective but your unmitigated assurance."

After that Maria's young man came to make preparations for the wedding, Maria being furnished with a trousseau by her mother. The nuptials were celebrated quietly, though Mr. and Mrs. Harkaway were present to hear giving away the bride.

"The next girl we have with a lover," said Harkaway, "I'll do the business with a phonograph."

HOT WATER THE BEST LIVER AND BOWEL MEDICINE

Says Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast Washes Poisons From System.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results, both in regard to health and appearance.

VEGETABLE WISDOM

Did you know:

That the best way to peel tomatoes is to put them in a wire frying basket and immerse them for a minute in a stewpan of boiling water?

That cooked cucumbers are delicious? They can be boiled and creamed with a little onion or parsley for flavor or baked in the oven like stuffed peppers.

That the shells of fresh green peas make a delicious basis for soup? They should be very tender and very young, and should be simmered gently for an hour.

That in preparing beets for cooking you should be careful not to break or cut the skin? If you do the juice escapes in cooking and the beets thereby lose some of their food value.

That if string beans are somewhat wilted when they come from the garden or the market they should be made crisp by soaking in cold water for an hour before preparing them for cooking? After they have been freed from strings and cut they should be soaked in cold water again for at least twelve hours for cooking.

That green peas should always be cooked slowly and with the cover partly off from the saucepan? That they should never be cooked more than thirty minutes? That when green peas are a little overgrown and hard they should be cooked with a few ounces of pork?

That lettuce that is too old or tough to eat green makes a delicious dish when cooked as a green? It should be cooked for ten or fifteen minutes, drained, chopped and reheated either with butter, pepper and salt or a flavored white sauce. The addition of a well beaten egg yolk adds to its flavor and nutritive value.

That cabbages, finely shredded, may be plunged into boiling water and perfectly cooked in five minutes?

Repairing Old Pans

It is easy to repair holes in pots and pans without the aid of a tinsmith, according to the Stockton Independent. Make the hole round by inserting the point of a knife and twisting it. Place the pot or pan upon any firm, flat piece of metal, such as an anvil, a bar of iron or an inverted flatiron, so that the hole is immediately over and touching the iron. In the middle of the hole place a shot about the size of the hole. Any piece of lead will serve if shot is not handy. A few sharp blows with a hammer will flatten the lead and spread it out, filling the hole tightly and overlapping enough to hold it in place. A few strokes with a file and a rub with sandpaper completes the operation. The repair is permanent.

Apply a few drops of paraffin to a cut and it will give instant relief and assist in the healing.

Best Nerve Specialist In England Was Consulted

But Nervous System Failed to Respond to Treatment Prescribed

Nervous disorders frequently result from injury to the nerves in accidents or because of the shock to the system.

The writer of this letter was injured in a mix-up with some colts, remained unconscious for three weeks, and in spite of continued treatment in hospital could not obtain restoration of the internal nerves which control the action of the digestive and other vital organs. He travelled to Europe and consulted England's greatest nerve specialist. Relief was only temporary, in spite of many treatments used.

His letter gives the facts briefly and tells how he was finally cured by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Can you imagine any more severe test of this great nerve restorative?

Mr. Henry F. Venn, Cefu Ranch Malakwa, B. C., writes: "Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has restored my nervous system and given me new health. Having met with a severe accident seven years ago, from which I was unconscious and which left my nerves in a very sore plight. I was treated by doctors galore and consulted one of the greatest nerve specialists in England, but nothing seemed to do me much good. Hypophosphites and, in fact, all and every kind of nerve mixture in almost every form was used, but never with more than temporary benefit.

"But Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has acted very differently, for it has built up my nervous system until I feel like my old self again. If this medicine will do for others what it has done for me, I shall not regret having written this letter. I have recommended the Nerve Food personally to many, and shall always esteem its great restorative value."

CHILD'S BEST FROCK

The hat is of white net trimmed with a white ostrich feather band.

GENERAL AS SAMSON

White of Ladysmith Had Remarkable Powers—Kaiser's Visit

In Sir Mortimer Durand's biography of Sir George White, Captain Harry Brooke, in a note contributed to the volume, says that the defender of Ladysmith was a man of remarkable physical strength. "Sir George," he says, "was left-handed and very powerful. I have seen him take two Schneider rifles by the muzzles and hold them both out at arms' length; and when we travelled together in the west of Ireland we used to have great fun 'putting' the shot and lifting weights against the strong men of the Irish Constabulary. Sir George used to humbug them by first 'putting' with his right arm, and then if they beat him he would take them on with the left, and easily beat them all. He was also very fond of racquets, and a very good player, serving terrifically hard with his left arm."

Not the least interesting of the letters from Sir George White quoted in Sir Mortimer Durand's book are those written when he was Governor of Gibraltar, describing a visit of the Kaiser to the Rock in 1904. The German Emperor climbed to the top of the Rock, and was struck with the magnificent view which he obtained of the Mediterranean and the Bay and Straits of Gibraltar. He said it was representative, on a small scale, of the insularity and inaccessibility of England.

"In the Pink"—A Hero

An Englishman writes: I have just heard of a man who has lost his left arm, had his right collar-bone broken, and his jaw smashed "to little bits." He is being removed to another hospital to have a false jaw fixed up, and has written to his employer to say that he has "arrived safely at Leeds," and that he, too, is "feeling in the pink at present." It is a strange world into which we have all drifted!

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural colour and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

DEPORTATION OF BELGIAN MEN LEAVES WOMEN AND CHILDREN MORE HELPLESS THAN EVER - - - -

Neutral protests do not prevent the Germans from continuing the deportation and enslavement of the able-bodied men who were left in unhappy Belgium—and we are powerless to stop it until we have won the war.

Meanwhile the Neutral Commission for Relief in Belgium, administered without pay by great-hearted Americans, is saving the women and children from starvation. Here we CAN help promptly and effectively, by giving generously to the Belgian Relief Fund.

More contributions than ever are needed, because the higher prices of foodstuffs, particularly wheat, have seriously increased the cost of feeding these millions of dependent Belgians. How much can you spare the victims of one of the blackest, most cold-blooded crimes?

BLEACHING LACE

If the lace on any garment is in need of bleaching, it should be ripped off the blouse or gown, if possible, and bleached separately, as a different process is needed to that used with white goods. The lace should be washed and ironed then stitched on cotton with basting thread and soaked for twenty minutes in olive oil. Afterward it should be boiled for twenty minutes in suds of castile soap and rinsed in warm water. This will make it beautifully white. If the lace is only slightly yellowed it may be washed in strong soapsuds, rinsed and afterward immersed in fresh suds, and then exposed to the sun. The sun's rays will often do much toward bleaching lace or other white goods.

If a thin summer gown has become so faded that it looks shabby, then it can either be dyed at home to a pretty color or it can be bleached white. If the latter is desired, the gown should be boiled in soapsuds, to which a good amount of bran has been added, and then hung up in the sun to dry. A more efficacious way of bleaching the silk and one which is sure to meet with success is to expose the gown to the fumes of sulphur.

Dandelion Salad

When dandelions are plentiful, cover a number of the young plants with a pot, flat stones or flat pieces of wood, or simply draw over them an inch of sand and leave for a week, then uncover and cut out by the roots. The leaves should then be strongly blanched by this procedure. Where this is not possible, simply select the tiny heart leaves from the quantity you have.

After thorough washing let stand in cold water for an hour; then, if not needed at once, wrap them in a wet cloth and stand on the ice or in the refrigerator. It is cold, preventing evaporation by wrapping it in a piece of brown paper. When making the salad, put the leaves dry on a soft cloth and mix with a French dressing or a thin mayonnaise, as may be preferred.

The dressing calls for four tablespoonfuls of olive oil mixed with half a teaspoonful of salt and one-quarter of a teaspoonful of black pepper. Drop slowly into this one tablespoonful of vinegar, stirring vigorously until thoroughly mixed then put in one of the oil and vinegar will separate. Add shredded hard boiled eggs.

If you have light-colored blankets which are too worn to use on your beds, you can make lovely comforts by placing between sateen or pretty silkoline and tacking them together with worsted.

BAD COLD IN THE CHEST.

"I am happy to tell you that I used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and was promptly cured of a very bad cold in the chest," writes Mrs. Josephine, Gaultier, Dover South, Ont. You can depend on Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine to relieve and cure all inflammations and irritations of the throat and bronchial tubes.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S LONG KIMONO.

By Anabel Worthington.

6588

Looking at this picture, one is easily convinced that Fashion extends her favor to the kimono as well as to the garment worn in public. Life is never so dull for the Parisian designer that she cannot put excitement into the cosy garment, and to the kimono illustrated is sure to attract attention.

The collar of contrasting goods and color has a "long and pointed" pedigree. It dips to the waistline at front and back and has a frill of edging to give the softness of outline that such intimate garment needs; the loose sleeves are cuffed to correspond. Silk fringe, wool fringe or ruchings of silk, according to the material employed in making the kimono, may be used instead of lace, or the collar may be without embellishment.

A fascinating ribbon sash arranged at normal waistline has its useful purpose in adjusting the fulness and in fastening the garment—its decorative worth is notable.

Silk, albatross, challis, serpentine crepe or soft warm flannel may be chosen to make this cosy garment. To see it is to want it and it may easily be yours at small cost with the help of the illustrated instructions on the pattern tissue showing HOW to put the pieces together.

The pattern of kimono No. 6588 cuts in sizes 36, 40 and 44. To make in size 36 requires 5¼ yards 36 inch material, ¾ yard contrasting goods, 5 yards wide edging.

To obtain the pattern send [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Two Pretty Girls Aid Hold-up Band

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—His face swathed in bandages as the result of a beating in a dark hallway to which he had been led on Thursday night by two pretty young women, John H. Carson, forty-four, of No. 375 Henry Street, Brooklyn, appeared in the Gates Avenue Court to press a charge of robbery against Miss Margaret Clark, twenty-one, who gave her address as No. 441 West Forty-ninth Street, Manhattan. Carson charged that Miss Clark was one of the girls who lured him into the hallway of a house at No. 610 Park Avenue, where he was beaten and robbed by three men.

Carson told Magistrate Naumer that he was waiting for a car at Nostrand Avenue and Fulton Street at midnight Thursday when two girls accosted him with a request that he take them home. He said they told him it was too late for them to go home unescorted. The three had a few drinks before boarding a Nostrand Avenue car.

Carson said the girls led him to No. 610 Park Avenue, where they walked through a dark hallway to the first floor. Suddenly three men jumped upon him and knocked him unconscious. When he recovered a moment later the girls and men were running into the street. His watch and $35 were missing.

Miss Clark pleaded not guilty in court and was held for a hearing in $1,000 bail.

Farmer Slain By Wife In Quarrel

He Accused Her of Being Friendly with Other Men, She Says—Goes to Jail with Baby.

YORK, Pa., Jan. 23.—Harry Dellinger, twenty-eight years old, a farmer, living in York county, was shot and killed by his wife, Mrs. Annie Dellinger, twenty-five years old.

Mrs. Dellinger, who was arrested and committed to jail with her two-year-old baby, made this statement to the police:

"We had been drinking and quarrelled. The quarrel started at the home of a neighbour, J. W. Allen, about ten o'clock, and continued when we got home. He accused me of being friendly with other men in the community and I told him he lied.

"He was sitting on a chair with our three-year-old son, Clarence, on his knee, and I went to an adjoining room and got a shotgun. I aimed the gun at him and told him if he moved I would kill him. I thought he made a motion as if he was getting off the chair and it was then that I fired.

When I saw what I had done I threw the gun out of the door, but later became frightened and hid it under my bed, where it was found by the detectives. The empty shell I put in the stove. I sat beside the body until the following morning, and I then summoned neighbours, telling them that my husband had been killed by some unknown man."

FROM SIX TO TEN GERMAN DESTROYERS ARE REPORTED SUNK BY THE BRITISH

Berlin Report Refers to One of the Engagements in the North Sea---One British Destroyer Lost--Gravity of the Submarine Situation--Losses Have Nearly Trebled---Austria's Extraordinary Attempt to Stave Off Bankruptcy.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, January 24.—Persistent repeated reports from Holland today were that from six to ten German destroyers had been sunk in Monday night's engagement between the British and German sea forces.

BERLIN, January 24.—One British destroyer was sunk in the naval action off the Dutch coast yesterday, and one of the German torpedo boats reached a Dutch harbour. The rest of the German vessels returned with slight losses.

This refers to the action reported by the British Admiralty as having occurred in the North Sea.

THE SUBMARINE SITUATION.

LONDON, January 24.—The Daily News to-day gives prominence to an article by its naval correspondent, who calls attention to the gravity of German submarine activity. The writer says he fears the real seriousness of the German campaign against merchant shipping is not realised by a majority of the British people.

The correspondent recalls that when the German submarine blockade began the British Admiralty issued weekly statements of losses, but this was discontinued.

The weekly average loss was formerly five vessels, but during the past three months the rate of losses has been nearly trebled.

"We are confronted with the most serious menace that ever threatened us," the correspondent says. He contends that it is imperative for the people to cut down their consumption of tobacco and other imported luxuries. He adds that the question will be raised in the Commons when Parliament meets.

STAVING OFF BANKRUPTCY.

PARIS, January 24.—Austria has decided on an extraordinary measure to stave off "imminent bankruptcy," actording to the Petit Journal's Geneva correspondent.

A fourth part of the real and personal property of all the subjects is to become the property of the State, in exchange for a kind of mortgage bond redeemable when national finances permit.

BULGARIAN BATTALION WIPED OUT.

PETROGRAD, January 24.—A severe blow struck upon a Bulgarian battalion which had crossed the Georgief River branch of the Danube was announced to-day.

The Russian forces surprised the Bulgarians and practically annihilated the regiment taking 337 as prisoners and capturing four machine guns.

In the Riga sector between the Livel Swamp and the River Aa, the statement said, "the Germans pushed us back a mile and a half northwards."

STOCKHOLM, January 26.—Swedish newspapers of both parties interpret President Wilson's speech as that of a "Germanophile" antagonistic to the Entente nations.

BOMBARDED GERMAN WORKS.

PARIS, January 24.—Sixteen British aeroplanes bombarded the German blast furnaces in the Saare Valley January 22nd, doing much damage to factories and works.

ATHENS, January 24.—There are all the signs of a general agreement among the Greek shippers to the British Government chartering Greek cargo boats. Several ship owners have already made contracts, one vessel at Piraeus having already passed into our hands. The answer of most of the important companies is expected to-day.

HALIFAX, N.S., January 24.—Among 250 N.C.O.'s and men of the Canadian expeditionary force who arrived here yesterday from England were 25 from the Maritime Provinces, many of whom are wounded, while others are returned on sick leave, or permanently unfit. Included in the party also were about 30 aviators, most of them Canadians, and most of whom have seen considerable service at the front, who have come to Canada in connection with an aviation school at Toronto.

The train bearing the returned soldiers, other than those of the Maritime Provinces, was to have left last night at seven o'clock for Montreal, but an engine ahead of the train went off the track and there was some delay in the train's departure.

A GRAPHIC ACCOUNT OF NAVAL ENGAGEMENT

German Destroyer Driven to Dutch Port Badly Mauled—Another Reported to be Limping in Severely Damaged

TEUTON LOSSES MAY BE 7

The British official account of the battle in the North Sea does not claim the sinking of more than one German destroyer, darkness making it impossible to ascertain the full extent of the punishment inflicted upon the foe. One British destroyer was sunk. Unofficial Dutch reports say that three to seven foe destroyers went down.

London, Jan. 24.—The Chronicle's correspondent sends the following from Ymuiden, Holland, dated Tuesday:

I have heard the fullest possible account of the naval engagement which took place on this bitter winter morning not many miles from the Dutch coast at a point between the Hague and Ymuiden. That the fight was sharp, sudden and very furious while it lasted there can be little doubt, for the one German torpedo boat which reached Ymuiden with the help of Dutch tugs shows ample evidence that, as a naval expert remarked to me, "she had just about as much as she could carry into port" (where she will be interned).

FEARED BEING FROZEN IN

As I write, I learn another lame German duck is slowly making for Ymuiden. From all available reports at Ymuiden, and from the few words dropped by the wounded or crew before silence was sternly and officially impressed upon them, I am able to send you a fairly full and accurate account of what took place. It appears that the harbor of Zeebrugge was becoming frozen over, so the German flotilla or torpedo boats was in danger of becoming fixed in the ice, and would therefore have been in great danger of destruction from the fire of British monitors or other vessels. The German command, therefore, decided to send the entire flotilla out of port at midnight, with orders to steal through the darkness as near and as safe to the Dutch coast as possible, and make for a German harbor. The number of ships in the German flotilla is given as fourteen, though some say only twelve. All went well until at a point somewhere between The Hague and Ymuiden.

Young's Point Boy Wins Military Medal For Conspicuous Bravery

Corp. O. R. Brooks Who Left Peterboro' as a Member of the 57th Regiment's Quota to the 2nd Battalion C.E.F. is Decorated—Recruits For the 256th Railway Construction—To-day's Orders and General Military News.

In the list of Canadians honoured at the front, announced yesterday, appears the name of a well known Peterborough County boy in the person of Corp. O. R. Brooks, of the 2nd Battalion, who has geen awarded the Military Medal for bravery. The news will be gladly received by Corp. Brooks' many friends. The young soldier is a son of Mr. Wm. Brooks, of Young's Point, proprietor of the South Beach summer resort and was born in that village. When the war broke out Corp. Brooks enlisted with the 57th Regiment's quota to the first contingent, leaving Peterborough in August, 1914, for Valcartier. He went overseas as a member of the 2nd Battalion, "The Iron Second," and has been with the Eastern Ontario 1st Division unit during all the hard fighting.

G. F. Johnston, 389 Waterford street.

Sidney Spooner, 296 Lake street.

Fred Coles, Peterborough.

Chas. E. Sturgeon, 264 Wolfe street

Mrs. Henry Smith, 217 Woodbine Avenue has received the following letter from Pte. F. Scallan, formerly of the 93rd Battalion and now at the front with the 8th C.M.R.

"Just a few lines to let you know I am still on the land of the living. I received your letter yesterday. I am sorry for your trouble. You ask me about your husband Henry. I was along with him when he was wounded. He was hit in the chest. He died the next day. I stayed with him till his wound was dressed. Poor man, he never spoke. He and I were in the same tent from the day we left Peterborough. I hope he is better off. He was hit when we were coming out of the trenches.

All those who have been attested for the 256th Construction Battalion are asked to meet in the Armouries to-morrow afternoon and receive their uniforms.

Five new recruits joined the 247th Battalion yesterday and this morning. Only one of these was from Peterborough, William A. Primeau, well-known in the city as a restaurant keeper. The list follows:

Henry Chas. Lord—Millbrook.

John Martin—Ormsby.

Patrick J. L. Gould—Havelock.

Chas. A. Richards—Millbrook.

William A. Primeau—212 1-2 Charlotte street, Peterborough.

A Senator For Peterboro'; Why Not?

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Is this district to be ignored again? Of the ninety odd Senators needed to represent the Dominion of Canada not one is from Peterborough, nor has one ever been appointed from this centre.

Toronto has three, if not four; Belleville, two; Lindsay, one; Peterborough, ever growing in population and importance, is not and, apparently, never has been deemed worthy of a member in the Senate.

Has the time not yet arrived?

There are, or were, fourteen vacancies. Never a better opportunity can present itself, but Mr. Burnham says this is not the time. Neither was it his time to call on the Government to get permission to recruit a regiment here, and if it had depended on his initiative to locate the 93rd in Peterborough, that noble, fine body of men, the pride of the city, would have been scattered amongst fifteen or twenty other regiments by this time; nor has it ever been his time or pleasure to get, or even try to get, any one attraction for this constituency. Lindsay, Trenton, Toronto and other cities have obtained Government aid and status, but never Peterborough.

"This is not the time," and "That was not the time," When is the appointed hour?

The people may demand Regiments and Canal completion, but one can hardly expect the Ministers to voluntarily appoint a Senator whilst representatives of other places are moving every force and effort for their respective constituences. They are only too grateful to Mr. Burnham to be let alone.

The people understand that neither Mr. Kendry, Mr. Bradburn, nor Mr. Hatton are satisfactory to his mightiness. They are of the old line of Conservatives and their fathers before them. That line is extinct—perhaps.

From what the writer knows of these men; and if Burnham will submit a name acceptable to the people of this city and county, I think they will waive any claim, that is, if they think they have any to this representation — only give Peterborough a Senator.

Get busy, Mr. Burnham. Surely there must be some one in either county or city capable of bearing up under the responsibilities of Senatorship.

Progressive Peterborough.

Racing More Profitable Than Liquor Traffic

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—In backing up the curtailment of the Racing Bill, fathered in the Commons by Oliver Wilcox, M.P., South Essex, the Social Service Council, with headquarters here, has issued a rather startling report of the investigations made by their agents. The report describes the business of race track gambling as the most profitable in Canada, more profitable than munition making, or the liquor traffic in its best days.

RECRUITS WANTED FOR BRITISH NAVY

PTE. O. R. BROOKS, a Young's Point boy, who left Peterborough as a member of the 57th Regiment quota to the 2nd Battalion, and who has won the Military Medal for bravery at the front. He is a son of Mr. Wm. Brooks, proprietor of the well known South Beach summer resort Interesting Sidelights on the Strong Right Arm of the British Empire—Two "Handy Men" of Long Experience Present at the Meeting.

RATE OF PAY

While admitting that the audience lacked necessary material for naval recruits, Mr. Aemilius Jarvis, at a meeting held last evening in the Collegiate Institute, expressed the hope that those present would go out and do a little missionary work on behalf of the British navy. Incidentally the speaker put in a plea for the British Sailors Relief Fund, whose object is to supplement the assistance given to the wives and dependents of sailors of the navy as well as the mercantile marine. Peterborough City and County has been asked to contribute ten thousand dollars to this fund to be added to the half million dollars that has already been raised throughout the Dominion of Canada. A disappointing feature of last night's meeting was the failure of the motion picture machine, by which it was hoped to illustrate in a small way the work that is being accomplished by the navy. After some considerable delay a couple of Petty Officers who accompanied Mr. Jarvis to Peterborough were able to effect such repairs to the machine as to enable the speaker to show a few slides, among them being an excellent picture of the Admiralty, which Mr. Jarvis characterised as the nerve centre of the British navy; also a number of pictures of the Union Jack in its various stages of formation. The real Union Jack is represented by the three crosses of St. George, St. Patrick, and St. Andrew. In a great number of cases both in Peterborough and elsewhere the flag of the mercantile marine is flown instead of the Union Jack. How people are aware of the distinction.

AROUSE PUBLIC INTEREST.

In his address on the navy, Mr. Jarvis said that Canada has lived so long in security that the people here are inclined to feel indifferent to the navy. The present war has done much to arouse public interest in this very efficient and indispensible branch of Imperial defence and the opportunity is now open to the young men of Canada to ally themselves with the guardians of the seven seas. At the outbreak of the war Canada had a debit of three hundred and sixty million dollars. In two and a half years this was changed to a credit of over four hundred million dollars due in a large measure to the activity of the navy in sweeping the enemy from the high seas and thereby keeping the steamer lanes open. Canada's increase in prosperity is greater per capita than that of the United States. This has been brought about by the fact that the ocean trade has been protected by the silent navy.

In addition to this Canada has sent overseas the largest army that ever crossed the ocean without losing a single man. The men were sent over in British ships, under the supervision of the British navy. Another phase of the situation is the regularity with which the mails arrive in Canada bringing news of loved ones overseas. This is solely due to the efficient work of the navy.

RATE OF PAY

Since the outbreak of war Great Britain has added a million tons to the navy thereby increasing the need for more men. At the request of the Associated Kin of Canadian Forces To Organize Here

Outline of Their Activity as Presented by Mr. Aemilius Jarvis Yesterday

Following the suggestion of Mr. Aemilius Jarvis at a conference with local citizens and members of the city and County Councils at the City Hall yesterday afternoon preliminary steps were taken to organize what is known as the Associated kin of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces. The resolution that an associated kin society be organized in Peterborough was moved by Mr. Dunsford and seconded by Mr. Logie. "ALADDIN AND HIS WONDERFUL LAMP"

An attraction unique in the annals of the Canadian stage, will be F. Stuart Whyte's production of the famous pantomime, "Aladdin—and His Wonderful Lamp," which comes to The Grand for one night only, Monday, January 29th.

Mr. Whyte is the first English theatrical manager to realize the wonderful possibilities of such an offering in Canada, and it was not until he had spent five years in catering to the amusement tasted of Canadian theatre-goers, that he considered the time ripe for the outlay of such an enormous expense as the staging of a pantomime would entail.

The success of his revival of "Florodora" last year evidenced beyond a doubt the fact that Canadians appreciate the better class of English shows, and supplied the necessary incentive to go ahead with his plans for "Aladdin."

As most everyone knows, an English pantomime is closely allied with the American musical revue, or extravaganza; in fact such productions as are staged at the New York Winter Garden and similar places of amusement, are based entirely upon the old-time pantomimes.

Mr. Whyte has built a production and assembled a cast for his "Aladdin" that would be hard to excell, even in the "Old Country."

All of the leading artists have had previous experience in this line of entertainment, and the scenic investiture was designed and painted by Mr. Edgar MacKie, formerly master artist of the Drury Lane Theatre, London, which as every one knows, is the home of the pantomime. The costumes are by Madame Celestine, the book and lyrics of F. Stuart Whyte and the songs and musical score is the collaboration of Pierre Bayard, Clive Hamilton and Sydney Blythe, the three composers responsible for more English musical successes than any other trio of song writers in the world

EDNA WALTON—As "Judy" and the orphan children in the John Grier Home, as shown in the play "Daddy Long-Legs," the seat sale of which opens to-morrow at 10 o'clock.

The seats for "Daddy Long-Legs" will be put on sale at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning at the Grand Opera House Box Office. All mail orders received by Manager Turner since the first announcement of the sale will be filled in the order of their receipt at the theatre. Popular interest in the famous success which Henry Miller is sending to this city to be interpreted by one of the most brilliant casts, of headed by Edna Walton and including Albert Roscoe, Julia Varney, Marie Taylor, Viola Cain, Sue Van Duser, Perdita Hudspeth, Alfred Helton and Frank J. Kirk, has been almost unprecedented. Apparently every theatre-goer in Peterborough knows all about "Daddy Long-Legs" and the wonderful hit it has made, and mail orders have come from people who visit the theatre only on rare occasions. It is safe to predict that "Daddy Long-Legs" will play to a packed house.

THE OFFICIAL STORY.

London, Jan. 23.—The text of the official announcement regarding the naval fight says:

"Last night while our light forces were patrolling the North Sea not far from the Dutch coast, they met a division of enemy torpedo-boat destroyers. A short engagement took place, during which one of the enemy torpedo-boat destroyers was sunk and the rest scattered, having suffered considerable punishment. Darkness prevented the full results of the action from being observed.

"During last night there was also a short, sharp engagement between enemy torpedo-boat destroyers and our own destroyers in the vicinity of Schouwen Bank. During this engagement one of our torpedo-boat destroyers was struck by a torpedo, the explosion killing three officers and forty-four of the crew. She was sunk subsequently by our own ships. Relatives of the victims have been informed. Our ships suffered no other casualties."

SEVEN FOR VESSELS LOST.

Others reports by Reuters say that the V-69 was the flagship of the German squadron.

The crew of V-69 numbered about sixty. It would appear from the statements of the men that seven other German vessels were sunk. The V-69 belonged to the Home Fleet.

Canada's Fighting Forces Series Number 2

Seven Reels of Official Canadian Government War Pictures Coming to the Grand

Those who saw the excellent pictures of Canada's Fighting Forces that were presented by Sergt. Wells last year being series No. 1 of the Official Canadian Government films will be pleased to hear that Series No. 2 is to be shown here shortly.

When "Canada's Fighting Forces" Series Two, the war film which Lieut. D. J. Dwyer is presenting at the Grand Theatre for six performances, beginning Thursday February 1st, was shown in Windsor Castle at a command performance before their Majesties, the King and Queen, on September 21, King George instructed Mr. Dwyer to tell the people that he and the Queen had seen the films and were well pleased with them. At one or two private views given in Ottawa and Montreal since the photographer's return to Canada a few weeks ago, expressions of unbounded delight have been heard at the magnificent display of military life under war conditions.

Several excellent war films have been shown in Canada in the past year or two, but with the exception of the first series taken by the same operator, these are the only ones dealing exclusively with the activities of Canadian soldiers. Canadians in the air service, Canadians in the navy, Canadians in the medical service, Canadians in action and wounded Canadians in hospitals, all are shown and in many cases at such close range that it is quite possible for the audience to pick out friends and acquaintances on the screen. Indeed, many of the aviation groups in connection with the college where the men learn their work are actually intimate portrait studies.

British authorities a recruiting campaign has been inaugurated in Canada and at the present time about one hundred and fifty men are being passed out of about three hundred applications that are recorded each month. Men from eighteen years of age to thirty are signed on as seamen, and from thirty to thirty-eight as stokers at the same rate of pay as the Canadian land forces with the exception of stokers who get an additional ten cents a day.

Petty Officer Hill with upwards of thirty years service in the British navy and Petty Officer Linton with over nineteen years service to his credit followed Mr. Jarvis. Petty Officer Linton served for six months on the Canadian cruiser Niobe. He described a trip in which the Niobe chased the Prince Eitel Frederick into Newport news, Tht Niobe was four hours behind her prey and the fact that she halted to assist a number of ships in distress off the coast of Labrador possibly deprived the Niobe of a big prize.

A vote of thanks was moved by Rev. J. R. Webb and seconded by Mr. F. D. Kerr. Solos were contributed by Mrs. J. H. Renwick and Mr. Douglas Carlyle. His Worship Mayor Duffus presided.

Laurier's Proposal May Be Accepted

OTTAWA, Jan. 24.—While no official announcement has been made, it is believed that the Conservative supporters, after a long caucus this morning, agreed that it would be advisable to accept Sir Wilfrid Laurier's proposition to vote interim supply and allow Sir Robert Borden to go to the Imperial Conference. This would leave the contentious matter of the extension of the life of the Parliament until later.

The Liberals also held a caucus this morning, but no hint of the result of the deliberations has been given.

CHERNIAVSKY TRIO 12th FEBRUARY

Mr. John Allan has great pleasure in announcing that the above world-famous Russian Trio, will give one of their splendid recitals in the Conservatory Hall on Monday evening, 12th February.

Each member of this wonderful Trio plays with all the brilliance, power and technique of the virtuoso, combined with the passion, abandon and warmth typical of the music of the Slav race. Russia, of all the nations engaged in the present awful warfare, will at its conclusion, surprise the world in regard to its music and literature.

It is to forge ahead, and "come into its own" along these lines, and musically will lead the world.

All the real lovers of music who heard this wonderful musical combination on their former visit to our city, will need no reminder to keep the 12th of February free, but to those who did not, and especially would we advise all students of music, whether vocal or instrumental, to avail themselves of hearing this Trio and profiting thereby, for the educational effect of such a recital is great, apart altogether from the pure enjoyment it affords the hearers.

The Majority Favours Coalition Government

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—The Toronto Star recently broadcasted indiscriminately to Mayors and Reeves, Presidents of Boards of Trades and Canadian Clubs throughout Canada, letters asking opinions as to the advisability of following the example of other countries engaged in war, and establishing a national coalition government. To date, two hundred and twenty-eight answers have come to hand. Of these one hundred and fifty-two express themselves emphatically in favour of the proposal, sixty six opposed, while ten are indecisive.

Piano Recital Was Enjoyed

The primary members of Miss Ida Turner's music class gave a piano recital at her home on Gilmour street on Saturday afternoon last.

Master Charlie Cowling won the prize for obtaining the most marks in the last terms of music, and Master Gerald Routly came second on the list.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

BATTLE WITH 228th WILL BE REAL TEST FOR LOCAL SOLDIERS

The 247th Battalion Intermediates will get their first real test of the season on Friday night, when they will meet the 228th Senior O. H. A. team in an exhibition game at Brock Street Rink. The Lindsay and Cobourg teams were not strong enough to extend the Peterborough soldiers in any way, but Friday night's game will be a different proposition, as the fast Seniors from Toronto will keep Capt. Halpin and his men busy all evening. The 228th Battalion was recruited in Northern Ontario, the home of good hockey players, and they have the cream of the amateurs from Haileybury, North Bay, New Liskeard, and other points on their Senior O.H.A. seven. If the 247th can take a fall out of their comrades-in-arms on Friday night the other intermediate teams around the circuit will have to look to their laurels. At all events it will be a battle royal.

Peterborough Curlers Won The District Cup From Lindsay

The District Cup went up to Lindsay on the morning train and returned in the evening to decorate the Peterborough Curling Club's quarters for another winter. And nobody knows a tale, and a satisfactory tale at that. The two Peterborough rinks skipped by W. D. Campbell and Alex. Kay nosed out Lindsay by 36 to 34 points, won the local district honours and qualified for the next round in the District Cup series, which will be played in Toronto. The particularly satisfactory feature of yesterday's victory arises out of the fact that only a week ago Peterborough defeated Lindsay here in the Tankard group. Piling Pelion on Ossa is it not? At any rate it brought the local curlers a full measure of gratification that they were able to grab the Tankard and District Cup honours from Lindsay in one season. For it is admitted around the rink that a win from the Flavelle curlers calls for extra feed for the rooters [illegible] went the [illegible] ends. The figures indicate that the final score was close, but beginning the sixteenth end Peterborough had a lead of fourteen points. Campbell had rolled up a score of 16 to 13 on Billy Carley and increased it to 18 on the second last end. But Carley came back with a six end and took the game by a single point.

A similar finale was being staged in the other game. Kay's rink had the safe and snug lead of 18 to 7, with two ends to go, and in those last frames George Beale counted 8, closing up the score to 18-15, leaving Peterborough with two points to the good. But such is curling. Twice Campbell had a nine point lead, but twelve shots in the last five ends gave Carley the necessary total to win.

The following scores indicate the play:

BOWLING NEWS

A surprise in Bowling came last night at the Water Street Alleys to all who happened to watch the game between the Printers and the Canadian General Electric. The Printers were badly handicapped for men as two of their strong men, Mr. Cairns and Mr. Smith were on the sick list, and could not play. They were obliged to play two new men. Mr. Baker and Mr. Moore, who made a great score in all three games, going over the 200 mark. Mr. Henderson for the Printers ran wild on the alleys last night and rolled the second hightest game yet in the league with a grand total of 624 with a single game of 236 pins which goes to show that when the weight had to be carried he was there to do it. Mr. Baker also pulled off two very hard spares. Mr. Nicolls was high man for the C. G. E. The C. G. E. played in hard luck the pins refusing to do as they wanted them too, though they tried hard till the last pin was down in the last game. This puts the Printers three games over the Business Men. These two teams should make a great fight in the finish. The Grocers and De Laval will play their game to-night instead of Thursday.

There will be a game at Brock Street Rink to-night from 6 to 7 p.m. between Trinity and Peterborough Business College hockey team. Both teams are evenly matched and this promises an interesting game.

SHAM FIGHT.

The Boy Scouts and the Girl Guards will drill at the Salvation Army Temple on Thursday night, and conflicting armies of the Boy Scouts will put on a sham fight. A house, built for the purpose, will be charged and fired. Trenches will be built and the enemy will be thrust out. The Red Cross nurses will be on hand to look after the wounded and bind up their wounds; then the stretcher Bearers will be on hand to carry the wounded to the base. It will be a real thing and worth any one seeing. Everybody will be welcome.

COUNTY COUNCIL CONTRIBUTE $36,000 TO PATRIOTIC FUND

Grant Almost Double That of Last Year—Will be Paid at the Rate of $3,000 a Month

The County Council decided this afternoon to contribute $3,000 a month to the Canadian Patriotic Fund, thereby providing a total grant of $36,000 for the present year. With $60,000 from the city, this makes a total of $96,060 from the entire county, including the city. Peterborough was requested by Sir Herbert Ames, president of the Canadian Patriotic Fund, to try to provide $100,000, representing the county's share in the maintenance of the fund this year. Thus the city and county have united in responding to that call with the splendid aggregate of $96,000.

This afternoon in Finance Committee, with Reeve Squire, of Norwood, presiding, Reeve Matheson moved, seconded by Deputy-Reeve Eason, that a monthly grant of $3,000 be paid the Patriotic Fund during 1917. At the December session the old Council decided to give $3,000 for January, with the new Council to decide the contribution for the entire year of 1917.

Doubled Grant.

Last year the County Council provided practically $30,000 to the Fund, and by their action this afternoon they all but doubled their grant by raising it to $36,000 for 1917.

City Deputation.

After the Finance Committee, comprising the entire Council, had reached their decision they were visited by a city deputation, representing the local Patriotic Fund Committee, including the following gentlemen: Mayor Duffus, Judge Huycke, Aldermen Weir, Taylor, McIntyre, Worth, Dobbin, Messrs. Vincent Eastwood, B. F. Ackerman, W. H. Dunsford, R. R. Hall, R. Harstone, F. D. Kerr, C. H. Pennefather, ex-Mayor Buller, Adjutant McElhiney and others. This delegation also represented the Peterborough branch of the British Sailors' Relief Fund.

Mayor Duffus, R. R. Hall, Adjutant McElhiney, Mr. Buller and Ald. Dobbin spoke for the Patriotic Fund, asking that the county grant $40,000 this year to the fund.

Speaking for the Sailors' Relief Fund, Mr. Kerr asked the county to grant $4,000. The city would be asked to give $6,000, making a total of 10,000 from the combined city and county.

Lloyd George's Growing Staff Overflows Into the Back Yard of Official Residence—Major Astor a Secretary—Room For Him in the House, However—Impressive Silence About Navy—Britain's Count of Her Enemies.

(By Charles Grasty.)

LONDON, Jan. 26.—In the appointment of his parliamentary secretaries, Mr. Lloyd George once again illustrates the happy faculty possessed by the Prime Minister of laying hold upon the entire citizenship for public service. His hunt for available material is not limited by faction, party, or social caste. Of lively interest to America is the drafting of Major Waldorf Astor as one of the Secretaries.

Major Astor is the Conservative M.P. for Plymouth, and the eldest son and heir of Lord (William Waldorf) Astor. He is a conservative in politics, and by wealth and position is associated with the upper class, but the Prime Minister's wide search for Government servants, who can serve penetrated to the Astors in a different sphere. To-day Major Astor was already at work superintending the erection of huts in the garden, or what we would call the backyard of No. 10 Downing Street, which are to house the Prime Minister's staff. For Major Astor himself, Mrs. Lloyd George has given up two rooms that belonged to the residential part of the Premier's headquarters, so great is the press for accommodations for the enlarged official staff made necessary by the strenuous war programme.

When I saw Major Astor I could appreciate the reasons for Lloyd George's choice. He has the ease and kindness which makes friends instantly. If I had not known who he was I should have been in doubt from his manner and speech as to whether he was American or English.

As is well-known, Major and Mrs. Astor, formerly Miss Langhorne of Virginia, are warmly American in sympathy and take a lively interest in all that goes on across the Atlantic. At Cliveden, their place on the Thames, they have made room for the famous Canadian Hospital, with its 1,000 beds, where everything from toothbrush to cot is made in Canada. Mrs. Astor devotes herself to this hospital, and it is not too much to say that no other woman has given herself more completely to the work of caring for the wounded and helping the permanently incapacitated.

THROWS POLITICS ASIDE.

Major Astor has treated the war as an opportunity for intensive effort. His political affiliations as a Tory have interfered in no wise with his willingness to accept service, however offered, and it happened that circumstances some time ago brought him with the orbit of the present Prime Minister. It speaks well for the breadth of both that the found the association congenial from the first, and now the Prime Minister has called the young politician to his side in delicate and important work.

At the risk of violating the modesty of Major Astor I am going to gratify the interest of America by saying a word about his personality. There are few young men in either the political or social life of the country more popular or more trusted. If fate had cast his lot in the United States it would have been no different. His talents and engaging qualities lie deep than conventionality. If he were in New York he would make a live man to run for Mayor and a good official after he was elected, and perhaps he would be more popular on the east side than on Fifth Avenue.

RENDERING REAL SERVICE.

Major Astor, among other activities, has belonged to the coterie that backed and edited The Round Table, a publication a good deal like our own New Republic. The chief editor of The Round Table, Philip Ker, is to be another Secretary to Mr. Lloyd George. The Round Table circle is composed of live-wire Conservatives, men of high social position who set no store by that, but who would like to put themselves above caste by rendering real service.

Mr. Ker, unlike Major Astor, is not a member of Parliament, and never held a political position. His appointment is hailed with delight by men of young heart, who want to see a bonfire of red tape in this old town.

These new positions in the Government—a third one of which, by the way, is to be filled by David Dadies, one of several of the same name in the Government employ, as if to preserve a good Welsh flavour—are made necessary by the new scheme of the Cabinet. The new Secretaris will be go-betweens, so as to keep the departments on the one side and the Prime Minister and the War Committee on the other, closely joined up. It is obvious that these Secretaries must have ability and tact of a high order.

For the past few days interest in the actual fighting has died down. Especially has the English Navy dropped out of sight. It is surprising that with Sir Edward Carson at the Admiralty, and Sid David Beatty in command of the fleet, the navy should be making so little splash. Of course, it should never be forgotten that the navy is always doing the silent work of prevention and protection. As some one said before of the navy: "It is a little like God; we never see Him, but we know He is there, because if He were not there we should not be here."

HOW A HERO DIED

(By Lord Northcliffe, Written for the United Press.) Copyrighted, 1917, by the United Press. Copyrighted in Great Britain.)

HEADQUARTERS OF THE CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, January 26.—Embedded in the heart of the great Canadian army in France is a body of American citizens in khaki, who have already succeeded in effecting another of several revolutions produced in warfare by the United States.

The first and most important was the aeroplane, invented by the Wrights; the second is the machine gun, originally designed by Hudson Maxim, with the newer Lewis light machine gun, easily carried, or for use on aeroplanes. The third revolution is one I would hardly believe had I not ocular demonstration. It is the conversion of the British Tommy to faith in pork and beans instead of the beef on which he has fought since the time of the Norman conquest of England.

These Americans in the British army, with whom I have just spent a day, are a part of the topsy-turvydom in which we are living, and when I saw them marching back from the trenches to such tunes as "My Country 'Tis of Thee," and "The Star Spangled Banner," with less classical and more modern ragtime music, I wondered what the small American boys would have thought of this factor in the war that is not sufficiently known in the United States. I propose telling what the American soldiers in the British and French armies are doing, where they come from; how they live, and why the Germans are particularly bitter towards them, and say these splendid Americans were hired by the allies.

NOT A PRINCELY WAGE.

From the German point of view the pay of Americans who are fighting against Prussianism is doubtless princely. It amounts to exactly a dollar and a quarter a day. I leave people in the United States to judge whether that would be the sort of remuneration calculated to draw American university graduates, clerks, lumbermen, engineers, across the Atlantic. The falsehood is one of the bits of German boomerang propaganda with which neutrals are becoming acquainted.

The Americans in the British and French armies enlisted in divers ways. In the first few months of the war many came to England direct and entered the British army. Those who were resident in Europe at the outbreak of the war formed a union with British residents in France and joined the French. Others came over later and entered the flying service, where they have done splendid work.

Early in the war, during the battle of the Marne, I was billeted with a number of our despatch riders and was much surprised to find the particular company with which I was spending the night were almost entirely from the United States.

It is almost impossible to estimate the number of Americans in these two armies, but, including those engaged in the noble work of the American Ambulance Corps in Paris and its numerous automobiles and convoys, it has been estimated at quite a sufficient number to have made the American language, American music, and Boston-baked beans familiar.

ARE FINE RAIDERS.

A great feature of the war on the western front at the moment are the day and night raids. This dash and desperate form of individual fighting is encouraged by the British leader, Sir Douglas Haig, and it is in this that the Canadians and British, who have considerable forces of Americans with them are adepts.

Each one of these raids is a miniature battle, and it was in studying this form of warfare that I had the pleasure of seeing Americans who are serving with a Canadian regiment reviewed by a general on their return from the firing line for rest and a festal dinner.

By a curious coincidence the setting of the scene was that of a thousand such in American and Canadian lumber camps—even down to the log houses. We were just out of shell range of the German guns, though the British artillery were talking all time. As the men came down the hillside through tall pine trees, it did not take long for one who had visited most of the States of the Union to detect, despite the mud and fatigue, from which of the world's continents they came. They were in high spirits. Released from the cramped tension af always-shelled and water-logged trenches, they came tumbling over each other like schoolboys. All are in pleasant and happy relation with their Canadian and British officers—which makes for good fighting and does not detract from strict discipline.

MEN ARE LIMBERED UP.

They were paraded for a moment or two for inspection, and as company after company formed into line I could not but admire the quickness —encumbered as they were with all sorts of equipment and an extra suit

Kaiser Plans To Make Another Peace Move

Will Continue to Exchange Views With the United States Government

WILSON'S SPEECH

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Jan. 26.— That Kaiser Wilhelm plans to make his fifty-eighth birthday to-morrow, the occasion for another peace move— with more acceptable terms to the Entente —was reported to-day from several different sources.

The nearest thing to an official hint of this plan was read in his speech yesterday to the Hungarian parliament by Count Stephen Tisza, the Hungarian Premier, who said:

'We are inclined to continue a further exchange of views regarding peace with the United States government!

The second rumor came via Switzerland and Paris. It is purported to be based on private information from Germany and stated that the German Emperor would propose that all parties meet forthwith to discuss the first and principal article of the war's termination—the reorganization of future peace.

Reports from Holland indicate that some sort of a reply to President Wilson's Senate speech is being considered by the officials in Berlin.

OUR SERIAL STORY

By CHARLES REVELLE BUCK

"For God's sake, Smitherton, what are you pulling all this tragedy stuff about? Ain't you her manager? Did you want the whole act queered? Was not the old woman nutty and the old man a bum, and weren't they dead-weight for her to carry? Didn't they have to die sometime—and could they ever have picked a luckier time to do it? I ask you now, could they?"

"Great God," exclaimed the reporter. But the manager went on.

"I call it a miracle of luck. God's good to some folks! Here that girl gets all of her troubles settled at a single stroke—and to-morrow she's the biggest head liner on Broadway..... and you, the feller that ought to be out hustling her business interests, stand there gaping like as you was sore because she didn't fliver. I don't get you."

Mr. Lewis's voice was freighted with disgust, then seeing that the climax had been reached on the stage he turned away and signalled to ring down. "Take all the curtains you can get out of it," he instructed the stage manager—as he once more rubbed his hands.

Smitherton stood silent, seeing the curtain fall, then rise and fall time after time to a thunder of applause. He saw Mary Burton, with all her distaste masked behind the regal tranquility of her splendid eyes and her cruelly wasted courage, bowing not like an actress, but like an empress. Then she passed them, and closed the door of her dressing room.

Smitherton heard Lewis's voice once more, accompanied by something like a sigh. "Now comes the tough part," said the manager. "I've got to go and break it to her. Of course just at first she ain't likely to see the lucky side of it."

The reporter stopped him.

"To the devil with you!" he cried out fiercely. "I'll tell her myself—and if you interrupt me or say a word to her—I'm going to hurt you!"

He went slowly to the door, but the manager had interrupted him with some excitement and with no realisation that his voice was loud, as he prompted.

"Put it to her tactful. Remind her that she is made on Broadway, and now that the old man and the old woman are both dead, she is free."

The dressing room door suddenly opened and they saw the girl standing there unsteadily, but as they approached she took a backward step, and leaned against the wall.

Her eyes had slowly widened, as they had widened before under the sickening and staggering blows of tragedy. Her lips moved to speak but for a while could shape no words. From her shaken bosom came a long and pitiful moan, which was not loud and then her voice returned, and she said, "I heard you. They are—gone!"

Smitherton knew that words could hardly help. He closed the door again and turned aside. Even Lewis moved away and stood silent.

But a few minutes later the dressing room door once more swung outward and they saw her at the threshold. She had thrown a cloak around her. The deadly pallor of her cheeks was grotesquely heightened by the remnants of rouge which her shaking fingers had failed to completely remove. Her eyes were wide and staring, gazing into the future or the past.... into eternity it might have been.

Mr. Abey Lewis laid a hand on her arm.

"Miss Burton," he suggested, "you ain't quite got the paint off yet. It needs a little more cold cream, still." But Mary did not hear him. She heard nothing; saw nothing of these surroundings which stood for the pitifully wasted crucifixion of all her instincts of delicacy.

"This evening at eight," the manager reminded her. "Don't forget—and maybe you will feel better then."

For a moment she halted. She had reached the stage door, other performers were leaving the theatre. She gazed back into the face of Mr. Abey Lewis, and said blankly, "This evening—what is this evening?"

They sought to stop her, but there was something in those wide eyes that petrified them all. For the time Mr Lewis remained as one who was hypnotised. The door man was gazing at her with an expression of awe and wonderment.

Mary stood there with the cloak falling open so that the convulsive throbbing of her throat was laid bare. The two marvellous and mismated eyes looked at them all and did not see them. The sister of Hamilton Burton, the woman whom two continents had toasted, was seeing other things. "Let me pass," she commanded, and they stood aside and saw her go out into the gathering night, and the blizzard.

Smitherton rushed after her.

"Let me at least put you in a taxi," he pleaded, but she only shook her head.

"You can only do one thing now," she said; "for God's sake, leave me alone."

Though he knew she was in no condition to be left to herself, the spell of those eyes was upon him, too. It was impossible to disobey. He stood there and saw her turn the corner, buffeted by the wind, and disappear.

Then he became conscious of a newsboy's shrieking: "Last 'dition——All 'bout the Burton trad-edgy!"

PART III.

THE MOUNTAIN TOP.

THE STORY THAT WAS.

CHAPTER XXXV.

It was a June day with the sparkle and lilt of summer's brightest and tunefulest mood in the sky and a softness and warmth in the air. The most distant peaks of the mountains slept in a quiet and purple glory and their nearer slopes still held a forest-freshness undulled by heat and sunburn.

Deep in the woods of the White Mountains the wild flowers were springing joyously and the birds were pouring out the fulness of life and joy and love from trilling throats.

The waters of Lake Forsaken were like a mirror holding in their still bosom all the vivid colors which summer paints into its first and sweetest days while an after note of spring's youth still lingers. The blue of the sky was broken only by white cloud-sails that rode high and buoyant in the upper air currents, like galleons of dreams, and all these things were given back in reflection from depths where the bass leaped and the sun shimmered. On the lake's farther margin a red-brown shape came down with careful feet gingerly lifted and set down, to raise its antlered head. But the gentle eyes were not charged with fear for this was a season of security and truce with mankind.

If the world held trouble anywhere, no shadow of its passing rifled or marred the landscape here. And yet in this smile and song of nature, there must be a certain disregard for human affairs, because the movement which held the deer's gaze, as he stood there at the water's edge, looking across the width of Lake Forsaken, was the movement of human beings trailing along the road in a funeral cortege.

The road along which it traveled was no longer a deeply scarred trail, rutted through its clay surface by the hauling of lumber. It was metalled and smooth. There were many changes in the character of things hereabouts—all changes which attested that the curse of decay and hopeless sterility had been lifted. Up through a rift in the hills loomed the white concrete abutment of an aqueduct—and through the valley wound a railroad. A man might have walked many miles and come upon few deserted habitations, preyed upon by the twin vandals Time and Decay, and staring blankly out through unglazed windows. What had once been a land of abandoned farms, a battle-ground where poverty had fought and defeated humanity, was now a land redeemed. Honest thrift and substantial comfort had crowned it with restoration.

The church to which the hearse was making its way had also changed in aspect. The tumbledown building had become a mere worthy house of worship, unelaborate, but renewed. Its belfry stood upright and on the Sabbath spoke out in the music, not its crimes. Graves where once the headstones had scattered in neglect lay now in rows of ordered care, and those who slept in them no longer slept among the briars of overgrown thickets.

About the building, waiting for the coming of a new tenant in the acre of the dead, were gathered a score or more of neighbours, because the body which was to be laid to rest to-day had been, in life, the member of a family which they delighted to honour and respect.

"Going up on High?"

Better try the low gear first. The human engine must have the right kind of fuel-food. Power to do things comes from food that is rich in muscle-building material, that is easily digested. Shredded Wheat is a high-power food, the kind that fits a man or woman for the day's work—just enough muscle-making material, just enough heat-making material to keep the body in top-notch condition. Shredded Wheat is ready-cooked, ready-to-eat. Two Biscuits with milk make a nourishing meal at a cost of a few cents. Made in Canada.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favourite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or grey. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents.

Don't stay grey! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

QUAINT OLD TODMORDEN.

A Bit of Old England Set in the Suburbs of Toronto.

Past sweeping fields of yellowing wheat, orchards that glistened with the swelling fruitage, fields of dimpling cabbage and divers garden stuff—with houses every little way—the traveler's buggy hums along the Old Mill road through the village to the hotel—verandah in front and driving shed to one side, grass-plotted, gay with carefully tended beds of flowers. Fading the picturesque tavern comes the top of the steep-winding road that slants down to the old brick mill and its bridge near the dam, where the boys have their swimming hole. Fields, houses, gardens, orchards—they stretch along the road for a mile, pleasantly alternated.

The above is not a description of some hamlet in rural Ontario where busses still tie the inhabitants to civilisation once or twice daily. It is Todmorden, the quaint district over the Don, east from the new Government House, and the brick yards. "Mill Road", was the old name for Broadview avenue.

Probably only one in every thousand citizens has ever been there, although one has only to keep on up Broadview avenue from Danforth, or arrive at the same intersection by following the road which ascends the eastern hill from Winchester street bridge. Todmorden is entirely isolated from the city otherwise, except by a roundabout access from Yonge street at Deer Park, crossing Moore Park bridge and turning down Bayview avenue to where it meets the C.P.R. tracks; a winding hillside road can be descended thence which brings the wayfarer to the bridge at Todmorden's mill.

The village is a little bit of Old England set down in York County; it was founded principally by folk from Yorkshire and Devon. Todmorden's inaccessibility is probably responsible for the fact that—unlike every other adjacent suburb—none of the farms have yet tempted the real estate man to exploit their linky lots.

Increased Business With Russia

Canada's neighbors as well as other neutral countries are watching very carefully the trend of their exports, and they are giving particular attention to making a permanent line of articles now being handled for war purposes. For instance, Russia is taking from the United States a large quantity of steel rails for military purposes, but which it is anticipated will still be in request for expansion which is looked for in that country following the peace settlement. Canada is participating in the increased export business to Russia, but not to so great an extent as the United States. The latter's exports for the fiscal year ended June 30 last are estimated as being ten times greater than for the year ending June 30, 1914, whereas Canada's are less than four times greater within the same period.

Maples Around Graves.

Canadian maples are to be planted around the graves of Canadian soldiers in France. Seed of the red and silver maple, ripened at Ottawa, has been sent to London by Dominion Horticulturist W. T. Macoun, and planted in Kew Gardens. After the war the little trees from these seeds are to be transplanted in France. Seeds of the large-leaved maple of British Columbia are to be sent to London for the same purpose, as occasion...

WOMEN'S AILMENTS

Come From the Heart and Nerves

Young girls budding into womanhood, who suffer with pains and headaches and whose face is pale and their blood watery, will find Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills build them up. Women between the ages of 40 and 50, who are nervous, subject to hot flushes, feeling of pins and needles, smothering feeling, shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, etc., are tided over this trying time of life by the use of this remedy.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have a wonderful effect on a woman's system, making pains and aches vanish, bringing color to the pale cheeks, and sparkle to the eye.

The old, worn out, tired out, languid feelings give place to strength and vitality, and life again seems like living.

Mrs. Alfred Winter, Castor, Alta., writes: "I would like every woman who is suffering from nerves or heart trouble to know how much Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have helped me. For two years I kept a hired girl and was doctoring all the time. After having taken four boxes of your pills I am able to do all my own work. I would especially recommend them to women between 40 and 50, as at that time they are more liable to be far from well. One of my neighbors knows how they helped me, and she is now using them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c., or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or sent direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Elevator Boy

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

As the first boy in the world who ran the first elevator ever made and to make a record of holding a position for twenty-eight years without the loss of a day, I feel that I have a right to talk plainly to the boys who have just entered upon the noble work of elevating elevators.

If you have been selected to conduct a wire cage up and down, no matter whether in a skyscraper or an apartment house, the first thing to be done is to ask yourself these questions:

"Am I a modest, unassuming boy?"

"Is my position going to make me a conceited young jackass?"

"Will I keep my mouth shut and let others do the talking?"

"Have I the proper respect for old age?"

Having answered these questions satisfactorily to yourself, you can begin your duties. If you have any doubts of yourself take up some other profession, for you will be a failure in this. I have watched the career of scores of elevator boys and lamented the failure of a good share of them. There was Johnny Beers. He was a red headed boy with a turned up nose and ears that started out to be palm leaf fans, but stopped halfway. His mother wanted him to be a lawyer and his father wanted him to be a doctor, but he thought that elevating an elevator was the only thing for him.

Within three months he fell in love six or seven times, and it was his proposal of matrimony to a widow forty years old that finally sent him out of the building with the agent's boot behind him.

And when Mike Salters was offered a place to conduct a gilded cage in a twelve story palace of an apartment house he came to me to get pointers. It was a grand opening. The house was occupied by aristocrats. Success would be his if he only struck the right road. I warned him of the pitfalls, and with tears in his eyes he solemnly promised to avoid them. Maybe it was his mother's fault that he failed to do so, for she was a romantic lady, and the first thing she did was to have him change his name to Claude La Salle. He was told to address every man as monsieur and every woman as madame and to lift his cap and smile a smile as he addressed them. He was told that in case he carried a lone lady up or down he should ask after her health, refer to the weather and be as entertaining as he could.

The tenants were amused for awhile and then began to make complaints, and one day after he had advised a broker to quit that trade and open a sawmill somewhere he vanished from the building and never came back.

My heart saddens as I think of the case of Jim Clark. He came to me as others had done, and, though he had once licked me when I had a sore finger and could not use my right hand, I sat down and had a fatherly talk with him. He agreed to do as I told him, and if he had kept to his promise he might now have been the owner of the zoological gardens in the Bronx, to say nothing of being the husband of a widow worth $10,000,000.

Jimmy restrained himself for a couple of weeks and then broke out. He felt that his passengers expected to be surprised, and he went at it to surprise them. He jounced and bounced that elevator until women screamed and men swore, and one day when he got stuck between the nineteenth and twentieth floors and every passenger was half scared to death Jimmy held up his hands and shouted:

"All of you shut up! What's all this row about, anyhow? Let me explain to you that this cage got tired and is only restin'. There is no danger whatever. It will start up agin when it feels like it. I am here to save you."

When the elevator at last reached the first floor Jimmy was the first one out. He went out as if kicked from behind, and he kept on down the corridor and out of the front door and out on the sidewalk. Jimmy is now the driver of a motor truck, and, though he runs over three or four people a day on the street, he has no future before him. To be a success as an elevator boy is as easy as to be a failure. One need not be slavish, but he must be modest and respectful. He may be cheerful, but not enthusiastic. He may be dignified but not surly. If a traveling drummer takes his cage for the twelfth floor and slaps him on the back and calls him "old man" he may smile in reply to show that he appreciates humor, but he should not go further than that.

The car starter in a skyscraper is always a young man of great dignity when on duty. The elevator boy must respect that dignity. He is expected to divide his tips with the starter, and if caught holding out on him there is sure to be a row.

The engineer of a skyscraper expects the elevator boy to keep him in cigarettes. This sometimes comes hard upon the boy's purse, but it is only a milepost on the road to success. If the cigarettes come promptly and without a kick the boy can take his revenge in later years. He can save up his tips and salary until he can buy that skyscraper, and then he can send downstairs for that engineer and say to him:

"John, I don't need your services any longer. Get your duds together and get out of here." And the boy's revenge will be complete.

SELECT MEDICINE CAREFULLY

Purgatives are dangerous. They gripe, cause burning pains and make the constipated condition worse. Physicians say the most ideal laxative is Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Buchu Nut; they are exceedingly mild composed only of health-giving vegetable extracts. Dr. Hamilton's Pills restore activity to the bowels, strengthen the stomach and purify the blood. For constipation, sick headache, biliousness, and disordered digestion, no medicine on earth makes such remarkable cures as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Try a 25c box yourself.

CAN'T COMPETE WITH ENGLISH SHELL MAKERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Secretary Daniels has announced that he has awarded contracts to the ordnance manufacturing firm of Hadfield's, Limited, of Sheffield, England for the delivery of 7,500 large armor piercing projectiles for the United States navy. The total value of the contract is $3,141,000, and the shells are to be completed in 16 and 19 months.

The lowest American bid for the construction of these shells, that of the Washington Steel and Ordnance company was $4,500,000. The figures at which the contracts were awarded represent a saving of $1,359,000. The bid of the Crucible Steel Company was $4,751,000, and of the Midvale Company $5,175,000. The Bethlehem Company bid only on the 16-inch projectiles, and at its figure of $775 each it would have cost $2,325,000 for 3,000 16-inch shells. The Hadfield's bid for the 3,000 16-inch projectiles calls for a total payment of 1,539,000.

The contracts awarded to Hadfield's are for 4,500 14-inch armor-piercing shells at $356 f.o.b. on board at the works at Sheffield, delivery to be complete in 19 months, and for 3,000 16-inch armor-piercing shells at $513 each, free on board, Sheffield, with delivery to be complete in 16 months.

Before the contracts were awarded assurances were given that the British government had consented to the British company accepting this contract.

Secretary Daniels explained that the navy department had made every effort to persuade the American bidders to reduce their price so as to enable the government to award the contracts to American firms, but that he had been informed the American bidders would not be able to compete with the British firm. The question of delivery was an important factor. The Hadfield company agreed to deliver both classes of shells in approximately half the time the American firms required.

There is a suggestion that the skirts will be a bit narrower.

Marine blue serge will make the little girl an ideal school dress.

The tailored coat and skirt is a certain revival for early spring.

ENGLAND CAN BEAT PRICES IN CHICAGO

Shipments Have Come, As Bills of Lading Show—Germany, Take Notice!

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—High prices paid for potatoes on the Chicago market have attracted shipments from England to compete with the American grown product, according to a statement by Sol Westerfeld, former president of the National Retail Grocers' Association.

"It seems almost impossible that England at this time can send potatoes to Chicago to compete with the product grown in Illinois, Wisconsin and other western states, but I have seen the bills of lading," he said. Potatoes on the Chicago market today are selling at $2.25 a bushel.

RESIGNS AS EDITOR

MONTREAL, Jan. 25.—Mr. B. A. MacNab has withdrawn from the editorship of the Daily Mail and Evening News.

In a signed statement he recalls the January 4th suspension through the refusal of himself and Messrs. Nichols and Dorsey to sell the property to undisclosed purchasers, at the request of another shareholder who had withdrawn financial support. Last Monday he was told by Messrs. Nichols and Dorsey that the papers would suspend publication on Monday night, without the publication of what he considered an adequate statement, such as was given on January 3.

Mr. MacNab then tendered the money to get out the Mail on Tuesday morning, along with an editorial protesting against any policy of partial silence on the second proposed suspension of the paper.

The money was not accepted. The editorial was refused insertion by the directors, whereupon Mr. MacNab withdrew from the editorship.

Mr. M. E. Nichols, president of the company, which publishes the Daily Mail and the Evening News, declined to-night to make any comment on Mr. MacNab's statement to the press, and said he had nothing to give out with reference to the Mail or News.

Mr. MacNab is vice-president of the company, and he and Mr. Nichols have been associated as editors and managers of the two papers.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Says inside-bathing makes anyone look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing. Men and women who are accustomed to wake up with a dull, aching head or have furred tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, sallow complexion, others who have bilious attacks, acid stomach or constipation are assured of pronounced improvement in both health and appearance shortly.

RAGGED ARMY HUNTED FOE IN SOUTH AFRICA

Clothing of Boer-British Force Torn to Shreds in Jungle Fighting—Very Fit Soldiers

A correspondent wrote from Cape Town during the East African campaign, as follows: Because of the diversity of its units—Britons from the homeland, South African British, Boers, East Indians, and South African natives—General Smuts' expedition in German East Africa is known popularly as the ragtime army. The ragged army would be an even more appropriate designation, for mostly it was made up of men whose clothing is in tatters. This is not due to the wear and tear incidental to a rapid trek of upward of a thousand miles, fighting a good part of the way, which many of the regiments have to their credit, so much as to the fact that to get at the enemy the men frequently have to break by main force through jungles of thick thornbush, which tear their clothing to shreds and scratch their bodies from head to foot, so that on emerging they generally present the appearance of being horribly wounded when not a bullet has touched them.

Little things like that, with marches lasting from 2 o'clock in the morning, at which time the columns when practicable set out, until 6 o'clock in the evening, without a drink of water on the way, and often to go into action against machine gun fire before resting, in no wise affect the spirit of the troops. There is splendid rivalry among the white and colored regiments, in endurance as well as in fighting. A man feels keenly disgraced if his strength fails him and he is compelled to fall out, so if he is stricken with fever he keeps right on with his comrades and tries to joke and sweat it out of his system. The result is that the ragged army is made up of men who literally are as hard as nails—lean, agile, powerful fellows, clear of eye and all skin and muscle.

Armored Cars Effective

The joy of the army is the armored cars. The value of these machines manned by naval crews cannot be estimated. They have saved hundreds of men from being killed and thousands from being wounded. They can locate the enemy's machine guns without loss when ordinary methods would be as futile as they would be costly in a country which offers such extraordinary facilities for concealment. An illustration in point is furnished in accounts of the operations of one of General Van Deventer's columns engaged in driving the Germans out of the territory north of the Central Railway into the region of the Mahenge swamps, where they were kraaled.

The pursuit took the column into a mountain pass most admirably adapted for the purposes of a trap. As was surmised, the Germans had not failed to take advantage of the opportunity to make a stand. The road led through a gap up into a narrow neck in a horseshoe of high wooded hills from which every inch of the inclosed space was commanded. The armored cars, one at a time, went on toward the nek while the infantry deployed to right and left of the hills and began the ascent. Nothing happened for awhile. Not a sign of the enemy was in evidence and the cars came to a halt in open ground. Immediately they were showered with machine gun bullets from all directions.

Machine Guns in Jungle

They had accomplished their purpose of drawing the enemy's fire, but while the lead pattered on the cars it was impossible to discover whence it came. Finally the leading car went on and turned into an abandoned native camp, still followed by the deadly stream of lead. The sharp-eyed observer at last noticed a peculiar movement of leaves on a ridge. The guns were turned on the spot, and in a jiffy an enemy machine gun company was put out of business. The combined guns of the car then peppered the ridges systematically, and by nightfall the infantry was in possession of the northern slopes. During the night the enemy retreated southward, and, when this was discovered, the cars and mounted scouts went after them. The scouts happened unexpectedly upon a party of mounted Germans in a clearing, rode into them at full speed and pulled them off their horses. It would have been easy for them to shoot the Germans from cover, but they disdained to do it.

In addition to the armored cars, most of the columns are outfitted with airplanes and a cyclist corps, which also have rendered invaluable service. The Indian mountain batteries, which are worked with incredible speed and accuracy by their crews, are the admiration of the army.

HUGE WAR CONTRACT

Miles of Ribbon For Medals—Russia's Big Totals

Russia is never niggardly in the way of Government orders. During her war with Japan, she gave one Chicago firm a contract for six million pounds of beef. On another occasion, when there was a coal strike in England, and Russia could not get her accustomed supplies of steam coal for her navy, she cabled to a firm in the United States an order for three million tons. This was the largest export order ever received.

Compared with such mammoth demands as these, the Australian order of 1,213 for three hundred and seven miles of cloth for military uniforms seems a small matter. Yet, considering the comparative populations of the two countries, it was not so bad.

After the South African War the British Government contracted for forty miles of ribbon for South African war medals. These were issued to about 300,000 men, each getting a nine-inch strip. One wonders how many hundred miles will be required for the Empire troops at the end of the present appalling struggle.

Wife Finds Husband Lying Dead in Snow

STRATHROY, Jan. 25.—Andrew Borman, aged 50, proprietor of the Strathroy Cartage and Coal Company, fell over dead from an attack of heart-failure while sweeping away the snow in front of his residence on East Front Street. He went out after supper, and when he did not return, his wife became anxious, and went to look for him, and found him lying dead in the snow. Mr. Borman had complained to one of the employees about not feeling well, but would not go to see a doctor for fear that he would alarm his wife. He came here last May from Sebringville, and took over the business of R. M. Pincombe. Besides his wife he is survived by three little children, Margaret, John and Carman.

ECZEMA ON FACE
WAS SO BAD HAD TO STAY IN HOUSE

All skin diseases such as eczema or salt rheum, itching or burning rashes, eruptions, ulcers, boils, pimples, etc., are all caused by bad blood, and while not usually attended with any fatal results, may sooner or later develop into some serious blood trouble and the entire system become affected.

Burdock Blood Bitters, that old and well-known remedy, will cleanse the blood of all its impurities, and by this means cure all skin diseases and other blood troubles.

Mrs. Ernest Andrews, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "My face was covered with eczema and was so terribly bad I had to stay in the house. I had ten different doctors but got so tired of their treatment that I went and bought a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and it helped me, so I kept on taking it. Now I am cured, and have a lovely skin.

"People who used to see me when I was so bad and see me now will not believe it, but I always tell them that nothing cured me but Burdock Blood Bitters."

ROBBERS TRICK FAILED

LONDON, Jan. 25.—An attempt at robbery which reads like a chapter from "Bill Bias" is reported from Petrograd.

The millionaire, M. Zhivatovski, a prominent business man, has a large and luxurious flat in Kirochnaya street, in the chief residential quarter of Petrograd. At eight o'clock in the morning two motor cars drew up at the door of the house, and from them stepped out nine men, dressed in the uniform of a Government department. They presented themselves as the millionaire's flat, with the announcement that the tenant was suspected of having been in treasonable commerce through his dealings with Sweden, and that they had orders to search the premises.

The spokesman of the party called himself Count Palen. At his orders M. Zhivatovski, his family, and fourteen servants, were locked up in one of the rooms while the search went on. As it failed to reveal its main object, the safe, threats, enforced by the application of handcuffs, were tried upon the millionaire. It then appeared that there had been one very obvious miscalculation in the robbers' plans. Their intended victim had no safe at his residence, and had been sufficiently prudent to leave all his valuable papers in a strong room at his office.

Having made this discovery, the robbers, who had disdained minor booty, made off. It was only then that M. Zhivatovski's suspicions were aroused, and that by use of the telephone, which meanwhile had been under guard, he discovered the true character of his visitors.

LADY DRUMMOND'S WORK.

Her Efforts for the Soldiers Have Aroused Wide Admiration.

In a recent letter to The Toronto Globe from London the following tribute was paid to Lady Drummond's work, which brings to all who come in contact with her the marvellous never-failing inspiration that life means service and the spending of self.

Lady Drummond's method of fulfilling tasks undertaken attracts not cold admiration, but warm, devoted love. Canada should know that from her has come one who, amongst the women gathered here from diverse countries for the work of the war, is recognized as a leader of large-minded sympathies. No, soldier in the field, no sister at the outposts, has given himself or herself more wholly at the call of country than has Lady Drummond.

When many organizations in London are approached, a secretary or under-secretary must satisfy the applicant, and only matters of importance will secure a personal interview with the head. Not so with Lady Drummond. Whoever waits has her sympathy, interest, and help. The door is open wide, and he is received with a smile of genuine welcome. From early morning till gathering dusk Lady Drummond is ready to give her whole mind to him who asks for it, and he leaves her presence strong in the knowledge that here is an interest which will not fail, and that her belief in his powers must be justified.

To leave London—to rest a while in the reawakening English country—for this Lady Drummond finds no spare time. Nevertheless, I found a lad of nineteen from a humble home in Toronto, who had been lying in a corner bed of a ward in a military hospital, paralyzed since last May, happy and proud because of a personal visit from her. The boy's mother, his only living relative, was in Toronto, and Lady Drummond desired to bring mother and son together. He had given the strength of his youth in exchange for a bed in a hospital, three thousand miles from home, and so Lady Drummond took time in her leisureless life to go to the lad and show him her gracious appreciation.

"Her ways are ways of pleasantness." Who knows how far down the years her work will extend?

Denmark's Sovereigns.

Denmark has had a most curious array of sovereigns, the Blue Tooth, Forked Beard, Simple, Hungry, Hare-foot, Lamb, Pious and Cruel being among them.

This latter, who was Christian II., belied his real name by gaining the additional title of the Nero of the North. There was probably little happiness in Denmark when he sat upon the throne.—London Mail.

AMERICAN SOLDIERS FIGHTING WITH THE ALLIES

of caked mud—with which they came to attention and "eyes right." If I had any doubt as to the home of these stalwart fighters for dreedom, it would have been settled by the steady movement of their jaws, betokening a habit which is rapidly spreading among the English and French, and which is said by the doctors to be quite a useful relaxation when under the fire of trench mortars and minenwerfers.

I had brought with me newspaper clippings from a German source, in which it was said that the Americans complained of their treatment. I had only to read it to the first group to have it absolutely denied.

"We are having a perfectly corking time, despite the mud," voiced a Californian, with a total figure and a voice as resonant as Roosevelt's "You'll not find a grouch in the whole outfit, except that we had not expected to have to learn mud-swimming and that we don't see enough home newspapers."

"As for that," replied another, "I don't want to see mine. The folks sent it along at first, but I stopped it, for it gave only Fritzy's side of the case."

BOYS WANT NEWSPAPERS.

I find lack of home newspapers to be a general complaint, and any American who sympathizes with these fine boys fighting out here might do worse than mail a newspaper every week—preferably one not giving the German side. Such newspapers should be addressed: American soldiers, care commanding officer, Royal Canadian Regiment, British Expeditionary Force, in France."

I should say that chewing gum, magazines, woollen comforts, tobacco, cigarettes, and any portable and preservable little luxuries would be welcomed, though there is no lack of anything except, as I have said, of home papers.

These American boys are proud, and rightly proud, of the deeds of their own American men and officers. In the midst of this vast army—the British army in France has now been publicly stated to exceed 2,000,000 men—they occupy an anomalous, if a proud, position.

HOW A HERO DIED.

Among the heroic dead there is no greater story than that of a gallant officer, for twelve years in the American cavalry, who joined in the great Canadian attack on the Regina trench—named after the Canadian town of Regina. Though not engaged in that particular operation, he could not resist the temptation to dash over the parapet with the cry of "Come on, boys." Terribly wounded, he endeavoured to struggle forward against the Germans, but was carried back and then killed by shell fire. He was one of many Americans whose dare-deviltry has endeared them to their Canadian and British associates.

While most newspaper despatches from Washington, which reach the French and English newspapers, are full of the word "peace," these husky young American citizens will not hear of it.

"To h—— with peace talk," said a bright-eyed boy from Kansas City, "while these slant heads across the line there are enslaving French and Belgian women and children. There would be none of this peace business at home if the people there knew the facts."

SUITABLE REPLY WAS MADE.

On New Year's Day Boche soldiers put out boards saying: "Why not have a peace talk?" The reply of the whole allied line was an artillery bombardment, which clinched the question.

A blue-eyed American from Wisconsin, with, I should think, Swedish blood in his veins, said "our people at home do not seem to realize that talking peace terms with the Germans still in France means a German victory. The home folks do not know what we know. In the matter of a fight the Prussians, brave as they are, are down and out."

"The German Government is crying for peace," added a hatchet eyed Yankee, who had gone out West as a boy and made good, later throwing up all for the war, "because the German army and German people know we have got them where we want them."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

MISS' AND SMALL WOMAN'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

Recent developments in the fashion world are well expressed in this model—one especially designed for misses and small women.

Rarely, if ever before, has there been such a variety of collars for the adornment of the one piece frock, and in this instance it is apparent that the collar is bound to be the leading feature. The plain waist can well afford to be on simple lines with such an attractive neck finish, and the cuffs in matching material are worthy of attention.

The skirt is a three-gore model, gathered where the waist joins, and right here it is noticeable that the season is partial to girdles of self or separate material, that go twice around, drape at front, tie in a knot and then take a downward path. The pleasing pocket novelty is a tasseled affair that adds to the charm of the frock.

Broadcloth, velveteen, satin or serviceable serge or like fabric, with bengaline, satin or broadcloth to trim, will give an admirable dress. You could not buy such a combination of style features in a dress—making it is easy and economical.

The dress pattern No. 8,137 cuts in sizes 14-20 years. To make in size 16 requires 4¼ yards of 36 inch goods; ⅝ of a yard of 36 inch contrasting. To obtain the pattern send [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

OLD SHIP CARVERS

FIGUREHEADS OUT OF DATE.

While there is a revival of wooden shipbuilding in Maine, giving employment to the carpenter, rigger and sailmaker, there is not on the whole length of the coast any job for the carver—the sculptor in wood who used to make the figureheads. That is an occupation now entirely gone, for the figurehead is out of date and its carving a lost art.

One of the most famous of the ship carvers was the late William L. Seavey of Bangor, who fashioned figureheads for the best square riggers that ever left Maine. He learned his trade in a Bangor shipyard when the banks of the Penobscot bristled with new vessel frames, plied his cleaver, chisel and gouge through all the years of America's greatest maritime glory, witnessed the decline of our ocean commerce and lived to see his occupation entirely gone.

For forty years or more did Seavey carve angels and cherubs, kings and queens, mermaids and dolphins, statesmen and warriors, not to mention an occasional lion and numerous eagles, for the adornment of "down east" vessels, for every craft of any considerable size carried a figurehead, some sort of ornament under the bowsprit being regarded as necessary to complete her outfit. But now all that is gone. Owners can see no sense in spending money on such gewgaws as a blue eyed and white robed queen wearing a yellow crown. When they build a vessel now—square riggers are no longer thought of—they whittle her off forward to a billet head and let her go at that. Maybe a gilt scrollwork tops her stem, but nothing more.

Thus it is that Bangor knows the wood sculptor no more, the sole reminder of Seavey's art being a broken and faded specimen of his work, once carried by a big ship, but for many years mounted as a sign over his shop door in Exchange street. In the days of her youth this statuesque lady, whittled and chiseled from a pine log, had golden trimmings on her Grecian robes and in one dainty hand held aloft a golden goblet. Now she is weather worn and grimy, and the goblet hand is gone, but she is the most striking memorial of Seavey, all his other painted beauties being scattered to the seven seas under foreign flags or gone to the port of dead ships.

One of the finest figureheads in its day was that of the clipper ship Western Belle. It was the full sized figure of a woman, with her left arm outstretched, carrying a few spears of wheat. Her right hand gathered the folds of her skirt, the drapery of which, considering that the material was wood, was admirably executed.

From the general outline no less than from the careless curl lying along the breast it is suspected that the carver had worked in marble or was a natural genius. His name was Sampson. He neglected to cut his first name on his masterpieces. He lived and toiled in Bath, the home of American shipbuilding, where the Western Belle was built in 1876.

His handiwork was carried by Bath built ships to the most remote parts of the world, and it is related that a south sea island chief was so impressed with the Yankee carver's skill that he sent him a commission by a friendly skipper to make a set of idols to meet the theological needs of the chief's heathen subjects.

The Western Belle is spending the evening of her days as a coal barge, but the lady who graced her prow was retired from the sea and now occupies a place in a garden. One of her peculiarities was a detachable arm, the one in which she held the wheat. During voyages it was unscrewed so that the seas might not break it, being replaced when the ship was about to make a port. This was not known in the more elaborate of the old wooden figureheads, especially of men-of-war, where danger of shattering was greatest.

Some figureheads were illustrative of the vessel's name, others were whims of the owners or the captains and still others symbolic of events occurring at the time the vessels were built. The schooner War Eagle, for instance, was built in wartime, and she had for her figurehead a fierce looking eagle, perched on a heap of cannon balls and with arrows clasped in its talons. The War Eagle was destroyed some years ago at Boston by an explosion of naphtha in her cargo. The schooner American Eagle was decorated with a gorgeous bird of freedom, and the brig American Union was liberally ornamented, stern and bow, with symbols of this nation.

The old steamer Expounder had a figure of John Marshall holding the constitution outspread, and the steamer Daniel Webster carried on either paddle box a medallion head of the great orator, while in her saloon was hung a life sized portrait of him, presented by the citizens of Boston.

SOME BASEBALL RECORDS.

In the early days of baseball whitewashing a team was one of the most sensational episodes of the game. The ball was so lively, with plenty of rubber between the covers, the pitcher's delivery so restricted and the fielding, owing to the inevitable tremendous batting, so loose that to prevent a team from scoring was considered almost a miracle. Big scores were the rule, sometimes going into 100 runs. When the Mutuals in 1870 shut out the Chicagos, the score being 9 to 0, it created an excitement all over the country, the memory of which lasted for more than a score of years. Occasionally even now we bear of a team being "Chicagoed."

Because of the radical changes in the rules of the game it would be rather misleading to measure present standards with the models set up in "ancient" days. "Modern" baseball history begins in 1890.

In the major leagues (National league and American association) big shutout scores had been registered in the ancient days—29-0 in 1883, 24-0 in 1885 and 1887 and 23-0 in 1883. But the record in modern history is 19-0 in the National league and 21-0 in the American.

Three times in the National league a score of 19-0 was turned in. The first was made on July 15, 1893, in a game in Pittsburgh, the Pirates shutting out the Washingtons by these figures. Three years later, nearly to the day (July 8, 1896), the feat was repeated, the Pirates again shutting out the Washingtons, 19-0.

The third 19-0 game was played at New York on June 7, 1906, Chicago defeating the Giants.

In the American league Detroit shut out Cleveland, 21-0, on Sept. 15, 1901, and on Aug. 31, 1907, New York shut out Washington, 20-0.

CAPTURED THE AUDIENCE.

Ned Harrigan's Plea at the Critical Point in a Play.

Edward Harrigan once said that the most trying moment in his theatrical career occurred in New Orleans soon after the war between the states. He had gone south with his company and, yielding somewhat to popular request, put on "The Blue and the Gray."

The play had been a success up north, but down south, with the air still full of the bitterness of the war, it was a dangerous experiment. Tony Hart was to represent the Confederate gray, so he hunted up a uniform of the Louisiana Tigers, and when he came marching on, young, stalwart, handsome, the typical soldier boy in the beloved uniform, the house, men and women, cheered and shouted and cried for all their heroes embodied in this boy.

Harrigan, standing in the wings in his northern blue, waiting to go on, had just one thought—"They'll kill me!" Then he stepped out, the embodiment of the enemy, and a cold, dead silence fell upon the house. Not a hand moved for him. The audience was tense with emotion, and there was only an instant to act if the play was to be saved.

Harrigan, big, kindly, good looking, came swiftly down to the front and stepped over the footlight gutter, leaning down to them. "For the love of heaven, won't you give the Yankee a hand?" he exclaimed.

At once the house was caught and all the pentup feeling turned the right way. There was a yell of applause and the audience was won.

Opening the Stubborn Knife.

Does your penknife blade refuse to open? Here is a certain and easy method of bringing it to terms.

Place one corner of your handkerchief over the back of the stubborn blade and wind the rest of it tightly around the knife. Hold the opposite corner between the first and second fingers of your right hand (if you are right handed) and throw the knife from you with some speed. Go over and pick it up and you will find the blade opened. I have yet to find a knife so rusty that it will not yield to this treatment, and—it does save the thumb nails. —Outing.

BORDEN ALLIES HAND RECRUITING ANOTHER CRACK

OTTAWA, Jan. 25.—It has developed here that strange use is being made in Dorchester County of the highly patriotic speeches delivered in the House by the Hon. Frank Oliver on Tuesday. Mr. Oliver, who has lost a son at the front, criticized the National Service campaign because it provided for conscription of industry for industrial purposes but made no provision for military service. He declared that the first and pressing need was for men for the fighting lines, and declared that no scheme under present conditions could be classed as "national service" which did not put the latter consideration first. It might have been expected that Mr. Oliver's speech would have been utilized by speakers in Dorchester to inspire French-Canadians to greater efforts, but unfortunately it is being used for a far different purpose.

BLONDIN'S PAPER TWISTS SPEECH.

Yesterday morning the Nationalist paper Le Evenment, owned and controlled by Hon. P. E. Blondin, Post-Master-General in the Borden Administration, and co-worker with Hon. Albert Sevigny in the Dorchester bye-election, came out with screaming headlines announcing that if Laurier was ever returned to power his first act would be to put conscription into force. If presented that Hon. Frank Oliver was one of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's first lieutenants and that he spoke with Sir Wilfrid's authority "advocating conscription."

Thousands of copies of the paper have been circulated by Mr. Sevigny's constituency of Dorchester with the purpose of course, of prejudicing the candidature of Lucien Cannon.

SEVIGNY SAYS "STAY AT HOME"

Meanwhile Mr. Sevigny has been representing to his constituents, as Mr. Oliver himself pointed out, that the National Service proposals do not contemplate removing them from their farms. Their work, he says, is the work of peace, and no man has been, or ever will be, forced either to fight or make munitions. He, however, advises them to fill in their cards, though for what purpose under these circumstances it is hard to ascertain.

BLOW AT RECRUITING.

And still the question is raised in the Commons as to why recruiting has not been what it should have been in Quebec. While the militia authorities in Ontario are considering the question of putting the Militia Act into force and of calling out the younger classes, Mr. Sevigny is telling the people of Dorchester that their work is the work of peace, and Mr. Blondin's paper is denouncing Laurier as a man who would put conscription into force five minutes after he was elected.

Meanwhile the early appearance in khaki of Mr. Sevigny, who took a short course at Kingston, and who is only 34 years of age, is awaited with interest.

HIS ARM A MONEY GETTER.

For the Third Time, Papermaker Collects Damages for Injuries to the Same Limb.

KENT, N.Y., Jan. 25.—Jerome Armstrong settled for $1,250 an action begun in the Supreme Court for injuries to his right arm, which, for collecting damages, is a winner. Three times he has received damages for injuries to the same arm.

Eleven years ago, when he was a papermaker, the arms was burned on a hot plate, and an accident insurance company allowed him $560 in settlement. In 1911 a ladder was knocked from under him in a paper plant at Stockport and he suffered a fractured arm and a jury awarded him $3,700. The action just settled, with the court's approval, was begun two years ago. An automobile owned by Reginald F. Ewing of Poland, had struck Armstrong and broke the same arm again.

COUNTY REGARDS THEIR INSURANCE AGREEMENT AS NO SCRAP OF PAPER

The adjustment of the insurance on the Court House is still hanging fire. Yesterday the Property Committee, of which Reeve Anderson of Otonabee, is the chairman, recommended that the County Council stand by the agreement entered into on December 20th, by the chairman of 1916. Mr. McKee, and Mr. Charles D. Cory, representing the insurance companies. A brief review of the negotiations up to the present were sketched yesterday and the County Council decided that as far as they are concerned, the agreement shall be no scrap of paper. Mr. Cory demanded a binding, written agreement that both parties accept the estimates of Messrs. Finnie and Graham, builders, and on the following day Mr. Cory announced that he desired to appoint Mr. Wm. Langford, Sr., whom he claimed had been "dumped." The County representatives, it was stated, had no intention of appointing Mr. Langford, whose estimate of the loss to Mr. Cory was $6,000 below that of Messrs. Finnie and Graham. The Council simply took the position yesterday that Mr. Cory had demanded a written agreement to accept the finding of Messrs. Finnie and Graham, which they regarded as binding when it was signed by Reeve McKee and Mr. Cory, and which they now regard just as binding as it was at that time.

WOMAN CONVICTED OF "SELLING CHILD"

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Mrs. Helen Brooks, sixty-two years old, was found guilty by Recorder Miles in North Bergen, N.J., of "selling a child," but sentence was suspended because the Recorder said he believed she did not intend to violate the law.

Miss Julia Reinecker, a reporter, and Detective Joseph Clark, of Hoboken, testified that they went to the Brooks home on Saturday "to purhase a baby" and that Mrs. Brooks said the parents of a boy named Herman, two years old, owed her $96 board, and if they paid the bill they could have Herman.

Mrs. Brooks admitted accepting $90 and permitting Clark and Miss Reinecker to take the child.

When Mrs. Brooks was arrested, on Saturday afternoon the police seized five babies being cared for by her and sent them to two institutions, and one died yesterday.

SAYS STRANGULATION CAUSED BOY'S DEATH

Second Autopsy Following Fight at City Home for Feeble Minded Results in Arrest.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.— Following an autopsy on the body of John Kranskowski, sixteen years old, who died on January 15 at the Home for the Feeble Minded, on Randall's Island, Dr. Otto H. Schultze, medical assistant to the District Attorney, reported that death was due to strangulation and not to natural causes, as was reported by Dr. John McAllister, acting for Dr. Albert T. Weston, Coroner's physician.

The autopsy followed the disinterment of the boy's body from Calvary Cemetery, for which John R. Fitzpatrick, Deputy Assistant District Attorney, had obtained an order in Supreme Court. George H. Harvey, twenty-eight years old, another inmate of the home, is in the Tombs charged with homicide.

According to Mr. Fitzpatrick, Kranskowski was found dead in a corner of a bathroom. The superintendent of the Home notified the police, Coroner and District Attorney's office. Harvey Mr. Fitzpatrick said, admitted that he had a quarrel with the Kranskowski boy over the possession of a mop, and declared that the latter after an interchange of blows, fell to the floor, striking his head against a radiator.

Upon receipt of the report of Dr. McAllister stating the cause of death as congestion of the lungs acute nephritis and heart disease, the District Attorney directed Dr. Schultze to perform a second autopsy. The latter reported that he found the lungs congested but no trace of chronic nephritis or heart disease.

HARD FIGHTING AROUND HILL 304

Russian Forces Compelled To Withdraw For a Mile On Aa River

Petrograd Statement Admits Reverse in Riga Sector---East Coast of England Shelled By a German War Vessel But Most of the Shells Failed To Reach the Shore---No Casualties Sustained ---Germans Attack Around Hill 304.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, January 26.—Russian forces were compelled to withdraw for a mile on the eastern bank of the River Aa in the Riga sector, toward Kalnceo following an obstinate battle with the German forces to-day's official statement said.

No events of importance were reported from Roumania.

BERLIN, via Wireless, January 26.—The suggestion that a stoppage of munitions shipments to the Allies would be a logical development of President Wilson's plans of peace was made in an interview published in the Berliner-Tageblatt to-day, with the Bulgarian Minister in Berlin, Dr. Risov.

LONDON, Eng., January 26.—A small German vessel bombarded the east coast of England, the Admiralty announced to-day.

Only a portion of shells fired by the enemy warship reached shore and there were no casualties, the Admiralty statement said.

Small damage was done.

The Suffolk coast was shelled.

PARIS, January 26.—Lieut. Guynemer has bagged his twenty-eighth German aeroplane, his third in 72 hours, the official War Office statement announced to-day.

BERLIN, via Sayville, January 26.—French trenches on Height 304 were stormed by the German forces on a width of 1,416 yards (1,600 metres) and we captured 500 prisoners, to-day's official statement declared.

PARIS (French Official Communique), January 26.—German attacks on four points along the front from Avocourt Wood and Dead Man's Hill were reported by the War Office to-day. All were repulsed with heavy losses, it was stated.

Near Hill 304 it was stated, however, small enemy detachments penetrated the advanced French trenches.

Along the Somme two enemy attacks were stopped by artillery fire.

LONDON, January 26.—Frederick Harrison, founder of the Positivist Society, declares in an interview to-day that the language of President Wilson's last peace speech before the United States Senate closely resembles that of an address sent by Emperor Pedro of Brazil to President Abe Lincoln during the Civil War. Lincoln on receipt of this communication dubbed Pedro a hypocritical swaggerer.

Strap Had Cut Deeply Into Dog's Neck

Some person's cruel neglect was revealed this morning when P. C. Blade shot a dog on Chamberlen street that must have been suffering for a long time. Apparently in its puppy days some one tied a strap around its neck, and as it grew to be a big dog the strap cut into its neck, even to the cords. The Police Department had been aware of its wanderings in the south end, but were unable to locate it until this morning, when Chief Thompson was notified that the dog was on Chamberlen street. P. C. Blade killed it with the first discharge of a shot gun. He found that the strap had worn a raw groove, cutting deeply into the flesh, showing the cords.

Was Killed By Train

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—Anson McKim, head of the well known advertising firm, was struck and killed by a train at Coteau Junction when he got off another train to change for Ottawa. Coroner's jury here returned a verdict of accidental death.

For the past fifteen years he had resided in Toronto, where he was engaged as a marine engineer. He leaves a widow and six children. Deceased was the only brother of Mr. Will Grady of Clonady.

The funeral takes place on Saturday morning at 8 o'clock from the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Grady, Lock street, to the Sacred Heart Church and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

WINNIPEG HAS FIRE CRISIS

Brigade Formed a Union and City May Prohibit it.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 26.—Winnipeg fire-fighting force may be crippled at any moment as a result of an order issued by civic officials which may result in a strike among the firemen. Chief Buchanan was notified not to recognise the new union among the men, which is affiliated with the Trades Congress. The men state they will strike if the Chief takes action. Insurance companies threaten to raise the rates if the union is recognized.

1917 DOLLAR DAY A GRATIFYING SUCCESS

Dollar Day yesterday was a most gratifying success from all points of view. A number of merchants report that their sales exceeded all other Dollar Days, while the total of estimates deposited in the box was well in advance of the last event of this kind. Shoppers were present from all parts of the district, and all lines of business seemed to share in the success of the day. The prize winners of the different estimating contests are given elsewhere. It is a coincidence that the winner in both big estimating contests, and The Examiner's own contest, should have named the exact total in each case.

Pte. Elmer Brown Ex-93rd Battalion Member Is Wounded

Well Known Local Boy Who Went Overseas as a Sergeant Was Hit on Jan. 18th---Pte. Geo. James is Ill--256th Railway Construction Battalion Has Secured Nine Recruits Here---Three For 247th Yesterday---To-day's General Military News.

Another well known former member of the 93rd Battalion has been hit, in the person of Pte. Elmer G. Brown, whose father, Mr. A. P. Brown, hardware merchant, Simcoe street, received official word this morning that Pte. Brown had been admitted to No. 22 General Hospital on January 18th with gunshot wounds in the hand and back. Pte. Brown was one of the first to join the Peterborough battalion, becoming a member of the unit in August, 1915, when the big campaign in the Speakers' Patriotic League was organized. Pte. Brown, who was born in Canada, proved an efficient soldier and before the battalion left Peterborough he was carrying sergeants stripes, while he had also qualified in the special course of bayonet fighting and physical training. On reaching England he was one of the first non-coms. of the battalion to throw up his stripes, becoming a member of the 93rd machine gun section. Two other brothers are in the general expeditionary force, one of them also going with the 93rd.

OTTAWA, Jan. 26.—The Pension Commissioners for Canada issued the following statement to-night:

"The Dominion Government have appointed a Board of Pension Commissioners for Canada with offices in Ottawa. As this Board wish to cause as little delay as possible in dealing with communications with regard to pensions, they wish the public to correspond directly with the Board of Pension Commissioners, Ottawa."

"In addition, in order to facilitate the granting of pensions, the Board is opening branch pension offices in Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Winnipeg, London, Hamilton, Toronto, Barrie, Kingston, Ottawa, Montreal, Quebec, St. John and Halifax. All information with regard to pensions may be obtained from these offices."

Mrs. Chas. James, Sherbrooke street, received official word from Ottawa that Pte. Geo. James, a Peterborough boy, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, and was transferred to another Canadian battalion at the front, has been admitted to No. 26 General Hospital, Etaples, France, on Dec. 22nd, suffering from laryngitis and pneumonia.

Lieut. Iles, who has been recruiting for the 256th Railway Construction Battalion in Peterborough, has gone to Toronto for a short time, and Sergt. Stanley is in charge of the recruiting for the battalion. So far nine Peterborough men have joined the battalion, the number including Pte. Chas. Sturgeon, who was a member of the 8th C.M.R., and returned from England last spring, and Pte. Jas. Foster, formerly of the 93rd Battalion. The men are receiving their uniforms here and will probably remain in Peterborough until the battalion is mobilized in March. The lowering of the physical standard for this unit is expected to bring a rush of recruits to the battalion, and as the local detachment will remain here for a number of weeks, Peterborough should be well represented. Sergt. Stanley may be found at the Armouries or at the recruiting office.

Wm. C. Brown.

Chas. S. Quackenbush, Havelock.

Wm. Gordon Harrison, Omemee.

TO-DAY'S ORDERS.

Daily orders by Lieutenant-Colonel C. H. Ackerman, commanding 247th Battalion, C. E. F.:

Orders for Friday, Jan. 26, 1917.

Duties:

Next for duty, Saturday, January 27, 1917, Lieut. J. F. Strickland.

A. E. Brittain,
Lieut., Adjutant,
247th Overseas Battalion, C. E. F.

TWO SUITS FOR A SOLDIER.

On joining the Canadian Expeditionary Force a soldier is given just one suit of uniform, and this he wears on all parades, including church parades. If he belongs to the artillery, he is compelled to clean horses and do stable fatigues, and in the same clothes attend church parades, go out in the evenings and make frequent calls, frequent his home and the homes of his friends. This has been a great barrier to men of the better class getting into uniform. In order to remove this objection it has been recommended to Ottawa that every man enlisting in the C.E.F. be given two suits of clothing, and it is expected that headquarters will approve of this very necessary equipment.

London, Ont. Jan. 26—Major E. N. Lewis of Goderich, and member of Parliament for West Huron, has been appointed a brigadier, with the rank of Lt.-Colonel, to supervise the recruiting and organization of four batteries of artillery, two of which are the 63rd and 64th of this district. He will have his headquarters in London. Lt.-Col. Lewis went overseas with the 55th Batt., and returned recently to Canada.

Capt. J. H. Burnham speaks in the Armouries at Sudbury on Sunday evening next in aid of recruiting.

In future, all men who apply for enlistment and fail to pass the medical examinations, are to be turned over to Lt.-Col. Wilson, D.A.A., Q.M.G. It has been decided that the services of such men can be used in some other way, if they are not fit for overseas.

GRANTS NOT REQUIRED.

Municipalities in future will not be required to make grants to infantry battalions. Hon. A. E. Kemp, Minister of Militia, has decided that each battalion will be allowed $5,000 by the government for recruiting purposes.

Port Hope, Jan. 26.—Major Dunlop, the popular senior major of the 235th battalion, had a narrow escape from death at Cobourg on Monday morning. While coming down the steps at the armouries he slipped and fell, his head coming in forcible con-

War Council Of Empire Is Outlined

PTE. GEO. JAMES.

Formerly of the 93rd Battalion, who is reported seriously ill.

Marks the Beginning of a New Epoch in the History of the Empire Says Lloyd George—Conference Will Meet as Soon As Possible.

IMPORTANT PROBLEMS

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George gave an important interview to-day on the subject of the forthcoming Imperial War Council to the London correspondent of the Australian United Cable Service. The Prime Minister said:

"I do not wish to interfere in any way with the affairs of a great self-governing dominion, but we took the step of urgently inviting the dominions Premiers to London, despite the fact that it might cause much inconvenience locally, because we desired their advice and assistance in coming to decisions about the conduct of the war and the negotiation of peace.

"Australia knows that I am no jingo. My record contains no journeyings into flamboyant imperialism, yet I regard this council as marking the beginning of a new epoch in the history of the Empire. The war has changed us. Heaven knows, it has taught us more than we yet understand; it has opened a new age for us, and we want to go into that age together with our fellows overseas just as we have come through the darkness together and shed our blood and treasure together."

FIRST DUTY OF COUNCIL

It was obvious, to the correspondent that in Mr. Lloyd George's mind the first duty of the council would be to consider the immediate task of winning the war.

"The Empire War Council," continued the Premier, "will deal with all general questions affecting the war. The Prime Ministers or their representatives will be temporary members of the War Cabinet, and we propose to arrange that all matters of first-rate importance should be considered at a series of special meetings. Nothing affecting the dominions, the conduct of the war or negotiations for peace will be excluded from its purview. There will, of course, be domestic questions which each part of the empire must settle for itself—questions such as recruiting in the United Kingdom, or home legislation. Such domestic matters will be our only reservation, but we propose that everything else should be, so to speak, on the table."

"Will the discussions include such matters as the fate of the German colonies?" was asked.

Mr. Lloyd George replied: "That is one obvious question; but there are many questions of equal moment. All the difficult problems connected with making peace, as was stated in the Government's invitation, will be threshed out; the war policy of the Empire will be clearly defined, and of great importance for peace. That will involve not only demobilisation, but such after-the-war questions as the migration of our people to other parts of the Empire, the settlement of soldiers on the land, commerce and industry."

DEPARTING FROM PRECEDENT

"You have not hesitated to depart from precedent?"

"We certainly have not," answered the Premier; "but in these days we cannot hesitate, because we are breaking precedents. The Empire has thrown itself heart and soul into the

GOOD ROADS MEETING AT THE COURT HOUSE TO-NIGHT 8 O'CLOCK

Mr. Geo. Hogarth, Chief Engineer of the Ontario Dept. of Public Highways Will Discuss Good Roads Scheme

THE PUBLIC INVITED

Every citizen interested in good roads for the county and city is urged to attend a public meeting in the County Council Chamber at the Court House to-night at 8 o'clock. Mr. George Hogarth, Chief Engineer of the Provincial Department of Public Highways, will give an address on the Highways Act, and will outline in detail its provisions, and the steps necessary for the preliminary organization of a good roads policy for Peterborough.

Mr. Hogarth has naturally a complete knowledge of the good roads scheme which he will present in detail. It is generally hoped that the County Council will take the initiative in preparing to inaugurate a good roads policy immediately upon the termination of the war, and that everything will be ready to proceed with the work. It is also desired that the municipalities and other bodies will unite their efforts and influence to the end that the Government take over the Gravel Road as an artery in the provincial highways system.

The importance of this question of good roads is obscured by the increasing demand of the war. However, it is not proposed that any money should be expended on the system during the progress of the war. But the sentiment of the entire county supports the movement of preparedness for the adoption of the good roads scheme immediately upon the conclusion of the war. It is to be one of the big problems for peace times and the present agitation is for preparatory measures that the good roads schemes may be action is for preparatory measures that of time after the return of peace.

Hence the present conference deserves the attention of every person who is interested in the future welfare of the city and county. It is expected, therefore, that there will be a large attendance to-night at the Court House. Entrance is by the south door.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

FRIDAY, JAN. 26, 1917

GOOD COUNTY COUNCILLORS.

The members of the County Council are to be congratulated upon their public spirit in permitting their constituents to contribute liberally to the Patriotic Fund, and another imperially patriotic fund. At this session they voted $3,000 per month to the Patriotic Fund, and $4,000 to the British Sailors' Relief Fund. The chief credit to the councillors is due for their proper and prompt interpretation of the liberal and patriotic spirit of their constituents, which is no doubt represented in the splendid gift of $40,000, which with the $60,000 donated by the city of Peterborough, makes the total contribution of the county and city a round $100,000. "It is meet and right and our bounden duty"—for us who cannot otherwise fight—to stand by the brave Canadian lads who are fighting our battles, and to see that their dependents should not suffer—beyond the loss of husband or son—for the loss the removal of the bread winner will be, without our generous help.

EDUCATIONAL FAILURE.

There appears to be "something rotten in the state" of education in Peterborough County; not in the equipment and machinery of education, in the form of school buildings, teachers, etc., but in the popular failure to appreciate by use the privileges offered. The two county inspectors, Mr. Lees and Mr. Broderick, presented their annual reports to the County Council. That of Mr. Lees gives information regarding the falling off of in attendance of pupils in his bailiwick—East Peterborough. The enrollment has in ten years decreased 600; and of this falling off, 300 had been in the past five years. That is, the enrollment of school pupils had decreased at the rate of 30 per year in ten years, and the last five years at the rate of 60 per year.

There must be some reason, at least cause, for this deplorable falling off. Is it in due to a failure of the farmers to exercise the response they make to appeal for crop production, to population production, then the blame, falls upon them; but if it is due to the indifference of parents, or the neglect of school authorities to apply the law provided, then the trouble is not without remedy. That this falling off is not so much due to decrease or apparent lack of increase of children of school age, as to indifferent application of the law, seems to be borne out by the report of Mr. Broderick for West Peterborough. He reports a very regrettable irregularity of attendance; and it is possible that what is irregularity of attendance in the West, becomes absolute inattendance in the East. In any event, the remedy of the evil, if it arises from the indifference of parents, is in the hands of th school authorities. With the law providing compulsory attendance it should not be difficult to overcome the evil reported by the inspectors of both parts of the county. The substitution for the truant officer required to be appointed by township councils, of a general truant officer, with the same territorial jurisdiction as inspectors, would overcome the reluctance of a local officer to enforce the law in respect of neighbours. It will be a sorry reflection upon the intelligence and public spirit of the people of the county if conditions are permitted that tend to the production of wide-spread illiteracy in Peterborough County.

NOT SATISFACTORY PROOF.

The tendency of people to take certain paths does not form a precedent for some persons. The member for West Peterborough is noted more for "butting in" on the speeches of members in Parliament, than he is for "butting in" to get things for West Peterborough. When McDonald of Pictou, was dealing yesterday with the question of the alleged inefficiency of the Canadian medical service in hospitals in England, where Canadian soldiers were treated, Burnham, of Peterborough, interrupted to set the matter right with a word—

I can assure him, from meeting with hundreds and hundreds of officers and men, that there never was a complaint—nothing but the greatest possible gratitude.

This may be proof to Captain Burnham that absence of complaint means efficiency of service, but it is no proof to those who know of the stringency of military ethics. They know that it is contrary to the spirit and text of the King's regulations for soldiers to discuss the internal economy of military matters, with outsiders, or with unofficial authorities; and no true soldier would think of telling tales out of school to comrades, whether officers or otherwise, whom they might casually meet. No Canadian soldier, no matter what his experience or treatment in hospital or elsewhere would, if he knew his place and his duty, keep his mouth shut or open it only to the proper authority. If there were anything wrong, it would, or should, be regularly reported to the proper authority. The fact that soldiers did not gossip about their hospital treatment, good or bad, is no proof as to whether it was good or bad. It may be proof to Mr. Burnham, who does not seem to recognise what "bad form" it would be for one soldier or one officer to write, or cause to be written, letters to the papers, to discredit a brother soldier or officer.

A LIVE BOARD OF TRADE.

A copy of the Lethbridge Herald to hand is interesting in that four full pages of the issue is devoted to the annual report of the Lethbridge Board of Trade. The report itself is not of great local interest, except from the fact it emphasizes that a western town half the size of Peterborough, has a Board of Trade which requires four full pages of a newspaper the size of the Examiner, to record its activities for a single year. By way of contrast, the doings of the Peterborough Board of Trade—or its remains—could be printed on a postage stamp—especially its doing for 1916, during which it is stated there has not been a meeting of the Board. Is this condition due to the fact or feeling that a live Board of Trade in a live city is not necessary? The report of the Lethbridge Board shows that such a body is a necessary adjunct to the equipment of a progressive city. It shows that its activities deal with every aspect of welfare of the city and district; and, providing for co-operation and coordination of effort, must have an important influence upon the promotion of the interests it represents and takes care of.

It is a matter of regret that the business men of Peterborough do not see the importance of maintaining an active and efficient Board of Trade. In neglecting this matter they are obviously ignoring conditions that conduce to their own interests. The city can't advance a step or retrograde a step in the matter of any interest, without a beneficial or adverse influence being exercised upon every commercial enterprise. A Board of Trade is the recognized medium through which negotiations for the establishment of new industries are made to a city. A Board of Trade is not doing its work when that work is left solely to its president, through his inability to secure a quorum for a legal meeting. Much of the correspondence that comes to the Board of trade, needs the consideration of the Board as a body, and much of it is of a character that does not admit of one official answering it as best he may, and necessarily many times in, even to himself, an undecisive and unsatisfactory way. It may be felt that there are so many things demanding the attention of our business and public men at present that there is no time to keep a Board of Trade in active operation. In many of the things, however, requiring attention on account of war conditions, the Board of Trade could be of organised and effective service, to the relief of individual business men and the public generally. The very fact of the conditions in which we at present find our selves, seems to furnish a strong reason for the services of a Board of Trade. Our work of course is the winning of this war, but we must not lose sight of the necessity for providing for conditions that will follow the war. While our soldiers are fighting for peace, it is obvious that we who are fighting at home to preserve what they are fighting to keep for us, must keep our ranks closed, our equipment in good order.

THE ANCIENT CEDARS OF LEBANON

The great Cedars of Lebanon are among the most interesting living records of the past. The grove which is standing to-day is the remnant of the same forest from which the cedars were cut and hewn for the building of the Temple at Jerusalem by Solomon. There are many references to the Cedars of Lebanon in the Old Testament, the most notable in First Kings, where it is stated that through the cooperation of Hiram, the King of Tyne, Solomon brought great rafts of cedar from Lebanon to Joppa and carried them up the steep mountainsides to Jerusalem for the Great Temple. In the building of the second Temple, under Ezra and Nehemiah, the timbers were produced from the same cedar forests on the slopes of Mount Lebanon. At an earlier period the Psalmist refers to the Cedars as the ornament of Lebanon and one of the great glories of God's creative power and wisdom. Pliny, the Greek naturalist, named the species Cedrus magna, meaning "great."

The impressive thing about this ancient grove of cedars is the knowledge that the oldest and largest of them were undoubtedly living at the time when the timbers of their immediate predecessors supported the Temple. They are upwards of 2,000 years old, not so old as the great Sequoias of our Pacific Coast, but still very ancient. At present there are only about 400 trees left, all very large and old. The best preserved are about 100 feet high and one has a circumference of 47 feet. The grove is now protected by a well-built, high stone wall; but all the balance of the great cedar forest of Lebanon has succumbed to the greed of man, and the grove stands like an oasis in the desert.

In considering the otherwise absolute destruction of the forest over the entire mountain-side one cannot help but wonder why this group has been preserved. A probable explanation is found in the name of the stream at the foot of the mountain—the Kadisha—which rises in the moraine left by the great glacier which swept down from the summit of Lebanon and on which the Cedars of Lebanon thrive during early Biblical times. This word is the Hebrew for "holy" and the grove has undoubtedly been preserved because of its sacred character. The natives to-day will tell you that the grove is sacred because it "was planted by Jesus Christ"—a belief which finds the semblance of justification from a poetical passage in the 104th Psalm referring to "the Cedars of Lebanon which the Lord has planted."

As the traveller stands on the summit of Lebanon, nearly 10,000 feet high, and looks down upon this ancient grove, the remnant of a mighty forest, and upon the still more ancient glacial moraine upon which it grows, and sees upon the flank of Hebron the ruins of ancient temples and the vast expanse of the Mediterranean beyond, and to the east the distant ruins of Syrian Baalbek, he may recall the force of the words of Holy Writ, "all flesh is grass and as the flower of the field it perisheth." Over this expanse witnessed by these trees and their immediate predecessors, have come and gone all the great nations of antiquity. Here are the relics of the Assyrian, the Babylonian, the Egyptian, the Phoenician the Greek, the Roman, the Moslem, but yesterday, as it seems, the Crusader, and now the warring Turk and Slav. And each has done, and perhaps today is doing, his part to destroy the mountains' noble covering of forest and to add to the desolation wrought by his predecessor. Could the process but be reversed, and the greed of man restrained and protection be given to the reforesting of the region, the Cedars of Lebanon might again become, as in the days of the Psalmist, the glory of the mountains. —American Forestry.

A PRAYER FOR TO-DAY.

God knows, we need men now! We need men whose trust is not in words, in rhetoric,—in fine phrases, or in noble expressions of sentiment, but men, genuine, sincere, devoted; men who do not so much talk about their love of country or their passion for liberty or humanity as men that do love their country and do love their liberty so much that they are willing to give liberty to others as well as claim it for themselves; men who think not merely of what they can get out of their country, but what they can give to their country; men who, upon the basis of plain, practical, and sensible hard work in the ordinary affairs of life, carry ever noble idealism and a sincere capacity for self-devotion.

These are words for the time. When Elihu Root uttered them on Monday night it was a need of the time that extorted them from him. Three years ago such an utterance would have passed for a generalization, or would not have been made at all because it would have been thought unnecessary, in the general American complacency. Today it is a prayer for the need of the times.

The war has disturbed the American complacency in many ways. One has been in the impairment of our egotism, the creation of a spirit of questioning concerning our perfection—the spirit that exists already in most other nations, but was late in dawning with us. We have been taught by the war that there had gone unnoticed under our flowerage of fine words and self-contentment many evil growths. The patter of liberty and patriotism had satisfied us so that we had not inquired about the reality under it. We have been made to face the fact that there are among us those who "think merely about what they can get out of their country, not what they can give to their country." We have had to learn that much of our talk about liberty meant only pleasure in our own liberty, not a concern for the liberty of others.

These are not faults confined to us but they are faults from which, as a nation, we had believed ourselves free. It is something of a shock to find that they not only exist but are powerful, so powerful that they can make themselves an influence in public sentiment and even in the National Legislature, so powerful as to exert an influence upon our legislative acts, so noticeable as to create among those not fond of us the belief that they are rooted factors in the national character. That they are not, and must not become. If these words grow unchecked, what will become of the garden? "We need men now!"—New York Times

SIR GILBERT PARKER SEES WAR NEAR END

Confident Germany's Collapse Will Come Next Autumn, and Perhaps Before.

BRITAIN TO STAY ARMED

Has Done with Taking Chances, the Novelist Says—Believes in Universal Military Training.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Sir Gilbert Parker, who recently arrived from England talked to interviewers about the cause of the Allies, particularly the part that England is playing. Sir Gilbert, who is at the Hotel Vanderbilt, said that it was his belief that the war would end next Autumn, perhaps a short time before that, and that the end would follow the complete collapse of Germany from within and the smashing of the German lines by the Anglo-French armies in the west. Sir Gilbert said that he favored a league to enforce peace, but added that the problem of organizing such a league was a tremendous one, the solution of which would require much time.

Concerning the war Sir Gilbert said:

"The British people are slow to rouse and very slow to drive into a fight, but when once they are in it and their convictions are aroused they are even slower to let go. Make no mistake about this. They are in this war because of two things, first, the faith of friends, and secondly, the honour of treaties. By the faith of friends I mean the entente with France. By the honour of treaties I mean that compact which secured Belgium in the midst of an overwhelming Europe. What would the world have thought of England, the friend of France, had she permitted Germany to crush France once more as she did in 1870? It is not hard to imagine.

"Remember that the people of England are like the people of the United States, a peace-loving people, who, with all their naval prowess, have never abused the right of the strong arm. In the days when countries like Germany were yet unformed as empires we loathed war, and it must be remembered that in this war England had nothing to gain either in indemnity or in territory, or in increased security, as an island she was free from those land invasions which make the position of countries on the continent of Europe so perilous.

"Does any one say that mercantile envy would drive England, into war? What the war is costing England, that is nearly $30,000,000 each day, would seem to give the answer to a question like that."

"Do you think that England will be ready to reduce her navy in line with any general disarmament programme that may follow the war?" Sir Gilbert was asked.

"England," he answered, "has done with taking chances. If she had not taken chances there would have been no war. If she had trained her young men as Lord Roberts, over years begged her to do, Germany and Austria would have realised that she meant business. And Germany and Austria would not have entered upon this war if they had believed that England would have fought, and in fighting would have been able to do what she has done."

"Do you believe in universal military training?" was another question put to Sir Gilbert.

"On that subject," he replied, "I do not wish to speak for any country but my own. I can only say that had England only applied the most elementary forms of military training this present war would not have happened."

"How long can England stand the financial drain of the war?"

"Just longer than any other nation fighting in it. In spite of the smallness of our population we have a reservoir of imperial strength which is greater than that of the new created German Empire. And do not forget that in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa we have four confederations with unlimited resources ready to mortgage the last men and the last dollar of their possibilities. And you must not forget that what before the war was believed to be the weakness of England, namely loosely organized empire, has proved to be monumental strength."

"How about the end of the war when do you expect that to be?"

"I think that the war will end this coming Autumn or perhaps a little before. I believe the end will come with the smashing of the German front in the West, combined with the economic pressure to which Germany is being subjected. But there will be no end of this war without victory. And I want to say that if anybody thinks that England wants to destroy Germany as a nation or as a people they are wrong. That is all utter nonsense."

"How about the League to enforce peace, advocated by Mr. Taft and now by the President?"

Sir Gilbert answered that he believed such a league to be possible.

REEVE FRED J. BULLIED.

The "member" from Chandos has always enjoyed the full confidence of the County Council. Last year he was chairman of the House of Refuge Committee of Management, and this year is presiding over the sessions of the Committee on Roads and Bridges. Reeve Bullied never overlooks an opportunity to present the claims of his own Township and the north country generally, and at the same time takes a broad view of the county's welfare.

ZAM-BUK GIVES QUICK RELIEF

He Knew Her Alright.—"But I don't know you madam," the bank cashier said to the woman who had presented a cheque. The woman, however, instead of saying haughtily, "I did not wish your acquaintance, sir," merely replied, with an engaging smile—"Oh, yes, you do, I think, I'm the 'red headed old virago' next door to you, whose scoundrelly little boys are always reaching the fence and picking your flowers. When you started for town this morning your wife said—'Now, Henry, if you want a dinner fit to eat this evening you'll have to leave me a little money. I can't keep this house of plain water and sixpence a day.'"

Uncensored Report of the Belgian Deportations Written By One Who Narrowly Escaped Hun Enslavers

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The folloing document, which is believed to be the first uncensored eye witness account of the Belgian deportations which has ever reached the United States was released exclusively to the Philadelphia Public Ledger by John M. McFadden, the cotton merchant and art connoisseur. The original in Mr. McFadden's possession was lent to him by a New York friend, who received it from a prominent Belgian official now exiled in London. To accompany the "eyewitness" account the latter sent the following note of explanation dated London, December 15:

"I am sure that you will read with sympathy and interest the inclosed description of the way in which the deportations are conducted in Belgium. This description was written by a very intimate friend of mine who was in it, and who notwithstanding the fact that he was fifty years old and of high social standing, very narrowly escaped deportation. He succeeded by a rare chance, and also at a very heavy cost of money, in getting this narrative smuggled through to me via Holland, in the hope that I might use it in some way, perhaps, to help save some of his companions in misery.

"The situation is growing every day worse and worse. More than 125,000 men have been deported. Some have already returned to Ghent wounded by French shrapnel, having been forced to work in the trenches in front of Soissons.

"We have the most serious reasons for believing that these deportations have not, as a main object, to provide Germany with slave labour, but to make display of frightfulness in connection with the present move for peace in order to show Belgium and the Allies what the Germans have still in store if they do not accept their terms. They are greatly mistaken, for never has the spirit of independence and liberty been more intense in Belgium that at the present moment and nobody there thinks of crying for mercy, but only for demanding justice, and they turn their eyes to the great and noble American nation feeling sure that there they will find help and protection."

ABOUT 10,000 MEN.

The district of Z (Brabant) consists of twenty-two communes—there are 2,800 communes in Belgium. The order which summoned at Z the entire male population between the ages of seventeen and fifty-six of twenty-two villages of the district of that name—about 10,000 men—was posted in November 14 and read:

NOTICE

All men between the ages of seventeen and fifty-six, inclusive, of the commune of——are requested to present themselves on November 15, 1916 at 8 o'clock a.m. (German time) at Z market-place. The burgomaster should be present. The men concerned should be carrying their identity cards, and in case of need their meldekarts (card of control). Small hand baggage will not be allowed. Those who fail to appear will be immediately transported without delay and by force to the places where they are to work. Besides, they are liable to very heavy fines and long imprisonment. Priests, doctors, lawyers, schoolmasters and professors need not present themselves.

Ottignies, November 3, 1916.
The Imperial Kreischef of Niveller
GRAF VON SCHWERIN.

So it is for to-morrow. And the notice was not posted until 7 o'clock in the morning, an hour when all men who are not out of work are already in the factories or in the yards. They were expecting, they were fearing this order. But, without doubt, they had had a forlorn hope that it would be delayed. Undoubtedly they had not believed it. They did not believe it until, when the notice was posted, suddenly among the women and children came the panic-stricken desolation of complete surprise. The workers, who did not know of it, had to be warned; they had to be warned so that they might have time to prepare, so that this day they might spend with their dear ones—the last, perhaps—and together to take precautions, poor, unavailable, such as were possible. The weeping women went to fetch their men, to take them back to their homes; and there were heart-breaking scenes, poignant but admirable in the feelings of the simple, stoical devotion, which they reveal. The greater part of these homes are poor; two years of war, of dear living, of rations, have brought about destitution; there is nothing in the house but the portion of food strictly measured for each one; and to-morrow, if the father, im the eldest son is sent away, there will be no more resources. That matters nothing; there is no thought except for the beloved being who is threatened in the bundle they are preparing they put the last warm garment, the last blanket, all the bread they have left, everything—to-morrow, indeed, when he is gone, who will want to eat!

A MELANCHOLY PROCESSION

They must be at Z——at 8 o'clock says the order. And for the greater part of the men summoned the way to the chief town of the canton is long; one hour, two hours. There are no more farm waggons in the country; there are no more trains. They must walk, carrying their bags. So they must leave early. Before 6 o'clock the procession, the melancholy and interminable procession, begins on the roads, in the biting cold, the dark November morning, the freezing wind, for the weather is cruel, nature menacing and dark, accentuating the anguish in their hearts. But they must be strong. The impression of despair must not be given. Most of the men have forbidden their families to accompany them; the anguish of the separation might make them show weakness. This must not be, so nearly all of them are going alone. One sees, marching to the Calvary, only groups of men, marching in silence and heavily, heavily, as if their poor, meagre bundles were very heavy. Only a few women who have not been able to control themselves, follow, weeping. Here is Z——.

The little village lies grim and gray on this sad morning. It is besmmed in by troops, who, at all openings, bar the way. Men are engulfed in the narrow streets leading to the market place, the huge square with its low houses, with shaky facades, sorrowful remains of the savage invasion. It has been completely evacuated and all the roads which lead to it are empty. Only one can see, at the end of these roads, behind the warring troops, the crowd from which come cries, names, words of encouragement, or even words of farewell, to the poor people rounded up, village by village, who are waiting, dejectedly, pitiful in their impotence and their humiliation. A few among them remember, with a little sorrowful smile, that yesterday in the same place there had been a big market.

CHOOSING THE SLAVES.

The work of choosing begins. By groups of a thousand, the men are conducted to a school building, where the agent of the German authorities keeps office. To get to this school building the road runs by the banks of the Dyle. It is the picturesque spot of Z——. In normal times there is an atmosphere of peaceful gayety, of cheerfulness. This morning, at the windows of the houses, the anguished faces of women, of children, of old people in tears. There are people on the roofs. They all gaze ghastly at the passing lines. They want to see once more, perhaps for the last time, a husband, a son, a brother, perhaps a fiance.

After a wait of four hours the crowd is finally conducted to the school. I watched the men. I knew a number of them. I saw a lot of their faces grow suddenly very pale. They walked in very firmly. But they are ghastly pale. One feels the anxiety which freezes them, arrests the blood in their veins. These are the married men, the men who have just left wife and children, and who ask themselves, Are they going to see them again very soon? If not, not for a long period, one never knows, perhaps never. The others, the young men, go with a proud step. There is defiance in their eyes. As they approach the schoolhouse all the heads are raised, listening. A rumour, a sound which grows—it is—yes, it is singing. Almost one would say it was the "Brabaconne"; yes, and that was the "Marseillaise" coming from the courtyard of the school. And, in fact, at the end of that courtyard are the men who have already been taken. It is they who are singing the Belgian and French anthems. When they see us they all cry out: "Don't sign! don't sign!" They are splendid.

There is no anguish here. There are no complaints. When one among the men see a friend released he asks him to tell his family that he has been sent away; and then he starts to sing again, passionately; singing his song of defiance.

THE IRON HAND.

We go in by a first room. A doctor is there, who examines those men who are armed with a medical certificate. He seems indulgent, quite generous; he liberates some of them. A second room. Here the fate of each man will be decided, brusquely; mechanically, in a few seconds, and without appeal. One peremptory word—and it is slavery—or freedom. Here are many uniforms—Kreischef, civil commissary officers, and all have that military rigidity which permits of no discussion. The three delegates of the commune—generally the burgomaster, an alderman and the communal secretary — authorized to assist in the examination of their own villagers, can quite evidently do nothing. Two officers, who divide the duty between them, make the decisions. One on each side of the room, they examine the men rapidly, beginning with the young men of seventeen to twenty-five years of age. They look at the identity card, which gives the trade and social position of the soldier. They throw a glance over the man, as if to weigh his strength, his value as an animal.

One question at the tip of his tongue, for the sake of formality, "Are you unemployed?" and immediately, whether the reply is negative or affirmative, the decree, inexorable. If the card gives a trade which would be useful labour," the officer cries. "Left turn." Left turn! This is the road to Germany. To go out of the room they must go through a door divided by a barrier into two narrow corridors and guarded by two soldiers. The left-hand corridor gives access to another room, where are gathered those who are to go.

If the officer cries, "Right turn!" it is liberty. The man passes before an under-officer, who puts a stamp on his identity card. The right-hand corridor leads to an open window, before which is a table. They must climb that table on to another table placed outside the window and jump into the street. It looks like an escape. It is, indeed, an impression of flight. There is no impression of relief or comfort, for the heart is still torn thinking of the others, the poor others. And then the nightmare is not yet at an end. One must still contemplate the abominable, torturing sorrow. One must still gather unforgettable remembrances of pity and paralysed indignation.

WEEPING WOMEN.

At the end of the little side street here is the crowd. It has grown. From all the villages the women had come—the mothers, the wives, the fiancees, weeping. They catch hold of those who have returned, demanding news, sobbing. Is he taken, he for whom they are wailing, their beloved, the chief, the prop of the house, the man whose departure ends everything? They don't know; they cannot reply; they come out into the midst of the imploring women, into the midst of the poor, sobbing people, for they are all sobbing, even those who can again clasp to their hearts their man who has been given to them.

During this time what goes on to the left, to the left in that room where are those who must go? There each man as he arrives is asked if he will sign an agreement; that is, consent to work for the Germans, earning meanwhile a large salary. If he consents, he gives his name and address and he is authorized to return to his home, so that he may make his preparations and depart at the end of a few days. If he refuses—and that is the case with an immense majority—he is menaced, threatened with all calamities, and goes to join the tumultuous group of those who did as he did, dignified and unbending, and he is greeted with cheers, as for a victory—the victory of a man who submits, but whose spirit has no submission. We are still waiting. They are waiting for the number to be sufficiently large. When it is, it is surrounded by soldiers with fixed bayonets and encircled by cavalry. Then it is "en route for the station!"

OFFICERS WITH HORSEWHIPS.

Two officers march a little in advance, their horsewhips — yes, their horsewhips—in their hands. The side streets are followed. From time to time a weeping woman, an old man, having come thus far by the most tremendous effort, manages to slip between the ranks, for one last farewell, for the supreme embrace, but the soldiers push them back at once, often before that longed-for embrace. On the main street, which is reached, at the windows of the houses the poor people still watch with their dry fevered eyes, reddened with tears, and almost mechanically wave their handkerchiefs. But those whom they thus salute do not wish to break down. Nearly all of them march with head high. They wave their hats and they sing, they sing unceasingly, as they sang in the courtyard of the school. But there were voices that are husky and full of tears.

They march. At each corner of a street there is a short struggle. Always one or another of the prisoners tries to escape, but always a horseman pursues him and brings him back to the ranks, unless, by a stinging blow from his whip, one of the officers has not already sent him back. And, then, the man, pale, his fists clinched, is quiet for a few minutes. What passes in his thoughts? What passes in the hearts of those others who, marching by their homes, throw themselves into the arms of their wives, kiss their children and are torn from them by a soldier? They are quiet, too. But pretty soon, once again, they are singing, with a louder voice. They are not going to break down.

Finally, the procession comes to a level crossing. They are collected on the rails, between two embankments. The station is quite close, and a train of cattle trucks is in waiting. One can see nothing more. One hears only shouts, songs, the "Brabanconne" and the "Marseillaise" again. This lasts a long time, a very long time—hours. Night has fallen.

About 6 o'clock suddenly the singing voices are drowned by trumpet calls. Music. Yes, they have sent into a station a regimental band, and it is this band that celebrates, with the accented music of a military march, the departure of that train, unlighted, lugubrious; that train, whose passing over the level crossing causes such despairing sorrow and emotion that old men and the women fall fainting, to the ironic sound of that military march, quick, exasperating.

They have gone. But where? No one knows. What to do? No one knows. Will they ever come back? No one knows.

What we do know is that from now on we shall live with that heart-rending memory, anguish. And even if they come back, never again can they live in security, that security of the old days when it was thought that such things were no longer possible.

Dear Mary:—

I'm so glad you've determined to fix up your living room. Don't let me hurt your feelings, but it needed it.

Since I've fixed up mine with furniture, curtains and a reading lamp, Frank asks his friends to come to visit him and I know he enjoys our home more. Your husband will be just as proud of a newly furnished living room as Frank is. And, then, Mary, you know we owe it to our children to bring them up in the midst of beautiful surroundings. Lovingly HELEN

P. S. Again, Mary, let me repeat, anyone can afford new furniture on the easy payment plan of—

To produce the lean, mild-cured side known as "Wiltshire" we require a long, deep, smooth pig, possessing a light head and shoulder, an even back, not too wide, but well covered with flesh, yet not fat. The sides from back to shoulder to ham must be deep and long, the rib short and sprung out boldly and dropping almost at right angles, but underline straight and flow from the shoulder to the ham smooth and tapering with the maximum amount of flesh on the outside.

RESULTS OF THE EXAMINER'S CONTEST---DOLLAR DAY

A Bigger Success than Ever—The Winner Estimates the Exact Number of Beans

We announce as follows the prize winners in the contest conducted by ourselves yesterday, (Dollar Day). The contest consisted of estimating the number of beans in a glass container, which was on exhibition in the Peterborough Book Store window for the past week.

The estimates were so close to the actual number of beans in the jar that it is evident many of the participants either counted over similar quantities of beans or figured the answer out mathematically.

The winner of the first prize, Mr. Chas. Gould, 125 James street, ordered the Examiner for three months, paid a dollar, and gets six dollars in prize money. He made only one estimate. The second and third prizes are divided, Mr. Thos. Dawson of Bailieboro and St. Andrew's Patriotic Society, each with an estimate of 2,905, or just one from the correct answer.

The following is a list of the winners, and if they call at The Examiner Office they can obtain their prize money:

2906—Chas. Gould, 125 James Street, $6.00.
2906—Thomas Dawson, Bailieboro, $4.50.
2906—St. Andrew's Patriotic Society, $4.50.
2903—Eleanor Garden, 650 George street, $3.00.
2910—J. A. Middleton, R. R. No. 2, $1.50.
2910—A. Brown, 319 Park street, $1.50.
2911—T. Young, 569 Park street, $1.00.
2900—Mrs. Fred McIntyre, R. R. No 8, $1.00.
2900—Mrs. M. E. Robson, 170 Dublin street, $1.00.

RAVISHED BY GERMANS SHE MAY KILL CHILD

PARIS, January 26.—It is not a crime for a mother to kill a child born as a result of the mother's being violated by Germans.

A Paris jury so decided yesterday.

The case in which this decision was reached was that of Josephine Barthelmy, twenty years old. She is a domestic at Gennevilliers. She is the eldest of five children. Her father is a widower, and one of her brothers has been killed while serving in the trenches in defence of France.

Josephine's child was born on the 15th of August last, and she killed it immediately.

The case came to trial yesterday in the Paris courts. Only after the greatest difficulty was the woman persuaded to speak. Then she said:

"I killed my child because the father was a German."

She said she was a servant at the military hospital at Chambley—which is in the invaded regions. All the orderlies there were German soldiers. In December, 1915, eight of these orderlies attacked her in the chapel of the hospital. Last January she was repatriated, and got a place as a servant at Gennevilliers, where her sister lived.

"I killed my child because I did not want to be the mother of a child whose father was a German."

In closing his plea, Josephine's lawyer in an impassioned speech, appealed to the jurors as Frenchmen to say if they would condemn her for not letting live the child of men who were killing their sons.

The problem of disposing of the children born of German outrages has been one of the most pitiful with which France has had to deal since the war. The Government long since took the most humane measures that seem possible—it provided for the rearing of such children, and offered means by which the mothers could turn them over to the State without revealing their own names.

Killed In Dispute Over His Wife

LINDSAY, Jan. 26.—Particulars of the shooting of Frank Davis, a former Orillian, which occurred a couple of weeks ago in Montana has been received. Mr. and Mrs. Davis resided in the Canadian West. Owing to some domestic trouble Mrs. Davis left home and went to Montana. There she met a man with whom she went to live. Next she wrote to her husband and requested him to forward her clothes, and advised him to get a divorce. On learning of her whereabouts, Mr. Davis decided to go and see her and bring her back. He met her, had a conversation and made an appointment to meet again in the evening, at the house of the man with whom Mrs. Davis was living. Frank kept the appointment, but the other man was present. A quarrel ensued, and the other man drew a revolver and shot Frank, who died in a few minutes. The man and Mrs. Davis are now under arrest on a charge of murder.

MANY COUNTY BRIDGES TO BE INSPECTED OR BUILT THIS YEAR

Warden Brown Puts in a Plea for Asphodel and Monaghan's Requirements Were Emphasized By Reeve Rye.

Reeve F. J. Bullied, Chairman of the Committee on Roads and Bridges, presented the following report to the County Council last night:

That such Commissioners be empowered to make such repairs from time to time as they shall deem necessary upon bridges or approaches of the County in their respective municipalities, and that the Treasurer pay therefor upon the certificate of such Commissioners, but where such repairs are likely to exceed $100.00 the Commissioner shall first obtain the approval of the Reeve of an adjoining municipality.

That the usual grants of $100.00 each be given to Burleigh and Anstruther, Chandos, Galway and Cavendish, Harvey and Belmont and Methuen.

That the County contribute 40 per cent. of the total cost of a bridge at the end of the street railway adjoining Otonabee, providing the balance is provided from other sources, and that the County assume the maintenance of such bridge, and that Messrs. Warden, Eason, Anderson, Fitzgerald, Rye and Bell act as a committee to have the matter carried into effect.

That Peter's bridge be rebuilt this year, and that the Chairman, Warden Squire be authorized to carry the same into effect.

That Messrs. McKee and Young be appointed to look after necessary repairs to Pigeon Creek Bridge and Chemong Bridge.

TIRED WORKINGMEN

A Local Druggist Suggests a Remedy For Overworked, Run-down Men

The following letter from Mr. Walker of Toronto, Ont., recounts the experience and condition of many overworked men. Read this letter and our offer which follows:

Toronto, Ont. "I am a dispenser at a soda fountain, and got into a run-down, debilitated condition, so I was continually taking cold, and could not eat or sleep, and had no ambition to work. I tried Cod Liver Oil and doctors' prescriptions without benefit. Finally the druggist I was continually going to asked me to try Vinol, and after I had used one bottle I began to feel better, and it soon built me up." O. Walker, College St., Toronto, Ont.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains the oldest and most famous tonics, viz.: beef and cod liver peptones, iron, manganese peptonates, and glycerophosphates.

We ask every run-down, overworked man in Peterborough to try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that their money will be returned if it fails to help them as it did Mr. Walker.

LOAN COULD BE ARRANGED

Capt. Burnham Pointed Out That there Should be no Financial Hesitation Over Canal Completion.

In introducing the Peterborough deputation at Ottawa, yesterday, Cap. Burnham, M.P., said that the Midland District had felt that in the past sufficient attention had not been paid to it by Governments, and it was only after the most strenuous efforts on the part of Peterborough that Hydro was introduced into Eastern Ontario. With regard to the immediate completion of the Canal it was necessary to remember that an after-the-war reconstruction policy must be developed now, and it was in accordance with this policy that Peterborough and the Trent Valley District generally asked for the immediate completion of the canal. Once the threads of industry were destroyed or permitted to fall, it would be almost impossible to pick them up again after the war. There was a limit, therefore, to the economy which the Government should practice in preparing for war. If the Government wished to plead that it was difficult to finance any contracts at the present time owing to the fact that Canada was spending $1,000,000 a day in military matters, Capt. Burnham said that he was prepared to say that he could arrange a loan to the Government to enable them to put the contract through and that no hesitation of a financial character should, therefore, be felt by the Government in regard to these necessary contracts.

KING ALFONSO IS EXTREMELY MODEST

GRAND CROSS DECORATION OFFERED, GOES TO REGIMENT.

PARIS, January 26.—King Alfonso of Spain, received a delegation representing all the municipalities of Spain which came to ask him to accept the Grand Cross of Charity in recognition of his efforts on behalf of prisoners of war, says a Havas despatch from Madrid. The King in refusing the Cross for himself, said he would place it on the standard of the regiment which bore his name.

Had To Hew Hun Corpses From Deck of Destroyer

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Special despatches from Holland give stories of the battles between German and British destroyers in the North Sea, but the details, which on some points are conflicting, are mostly and avowedly derived from hearsay and not substantiated. It seems, however, certain that the main engagement began about 2 o'clock in the morning and lasted until about seven. It was fought in intense darkness, while the severity of the cold can be judged from the fact that eight corpses on the V-69, the German flagship, were so frozen to the deck when the boat arrived at Ymuiden that they had to be hewn free with axes.

Practically all the details of actual damage to the ships refer to the V-69 which, it is stated, was rammed by a British ship after being seriously battered. The correspondents report gossip that seven to ten German vessels were sunk, but there is nothing comfirmatory in regard to this. According to one version the Germans stated from Helgoland with the intention of raiding the British coast but driven back toward Flanders, where some took refuge in Zeebrugge.

It is confirmed that Commander Boehm, on the V-69, is alive, and according to one report uninjured. It is stated that he superintended the removal of the crew of the destroyer as an examination of the ship proved the impossibility of repairing her within twenty-four hours. This, of course, implies an intention to intern, but nothing official is obtainable in regard thereto. A number of survivors of the sunken British vessel have arrived on the east coast.

MEAT FOR THE JAIL JUMPS FROM 9 TO 12 CENTS A POUND

Mr. Harry Wheeler, a butcher in Ashburnham, has been supplying the meat to the jail at 9 cents a pound. He has informed the County Council that he could not continue the contract at less than 12 cents a pound.

Reeve Squire moved, seconded by Deputy Eason, that Mr. Wheeler receive a new contract at 12 cents a pound.

Mr. Henderson Nesbitt told the Council that Mr. Wheeler had always given the best satisfaction.

WOOD FOR THE JAIL.

Previous to the fire at the jail, Mr. Nesbitt had more than enough wood for the limited requirements of the building, but since box stoves have been used to heat parts of the building the demand for hardwood has considerably increased. About fifteen cords have already been bought, and yesterday in the Property Committee, Reeve Darling moved, seconded by Reeve Bullied, that five more cords be purchased.

PURCHASE OF SMALL ARTICLES

Mr. Nesbitt lost a number of small utensils and necessary articles in the fire, and the Council, on motion of Reeve Bullied, seconded by Reeve Squire, authorized the purchase of such articles to be made through the chairman, Reeve Anderson, and Mr. Nesbitt.

W. H. Casement and James Calder were re-appointed auditors.

British Company Cannot Supply the United States

LONDON, Jan. 26. — The British Government has refused permission to the Hadfields Limited to proceed with work on the contract for shells for the American navy "so long as the exigencies of war continue."

Hadfields were awarded contracts amounting to over $8,000,000 by the United States Secretary of the Navy for 14 and 16-inch projectiles. The Bethlehem Steel Company, which lost the contract, published advertisements explaining its high bid as follows: Two years ago it contracted to make the United States 4,300 14-inch shells at $1,915,000, with heavy penalties for delayed delivery. It has spent $533,891 without having a single shell accepted and without receiving a single dollar on account. Penalties for delayed delivery would, if enforced, amount to $976,016. The Bethlehem people declare that "department tests are now so severe that neither we, nor, so far as we know, any other manufacturers, have been able to produce, in quantity, 14-inch shells which will meet them."

To be capacious the dairy cow must be long from shoulder to hip bones, have well-sprung and deep ribs, giving sufficient space for the storage of much food. In addition the body should be covered with hide that is soft and pliable, which in turn is covered with hair that is soft and silky. This mixture indicates power of digestion, and coupled with size of barrel, insures great capacity.

OBSERVATION TESTS FOR Y.M.C.A. BOYS

The Canadian Standard Efficiency tests programme, which was held at the Y.M.C.A., proved very interesting.

The first observation test interested the boys very much. The test consisted of 25 articles placed on a table covered with a cloth; the boys stood around the table, the cloth was removed for one minute while the boys observed the articles; the articles were then covered and the boys required to write from memory what they had observed on the table. A number of the boys were successful in naming 24 out of the 25 articles in this test.

The second test required the boys to go into a room for half a minute, and when they came out to make a list of the furniture and the articles which they had noticed.

Next Wednesday the boys will have the pleasure of hearing Major O'Flynn of the 247th Batt., give a practical talk on the methods of trench warfare and the fighting in general on the western front.

war, and we would be failing in our duties if we did not take every possible step to see that its leaders get together from time to time. You do not suppose that we think that the overseas nations can raise and place in the field armies containing an enormous proportion of their best manhood and not want to have a say, and a real say, in determining the use to which they are to be put. That seems to us as impossible and undemocratic proposition. That is why one of the first acts of the new Government was to ask the overseas Premiers to come over, not to a formal Imperial conference, but to sit in executive Cabinet of the Empire. That is why we have arranged for a representative of India, which has rendered invaluable service to our common cause, to be present also."

"This implies," suggested the correspondent, "that the conference should meet as soon as possible."

"Certainly," replied Mr. Lloyd George. "The war is not won yet and we want to concert our efforts so that we may exert our maximum strength at the critical moment. Further, we are most anxious that during the last and most trying phase of the war, the British Empire may present to the world an absolutely united front. Up to the present the British Government has shouldered responsibility for the policy of the war practically alone. It now wishes to know that in its measures for prosecuting the war to a finish and in its negotiations for peace it will be carrying out a policy agreed upon by representatives of the whole Empire, sitting in plenary council together."

AFTER THE WAR.

"What about after the war" was asked.

"If you mean by that constitutional reconstruction," replied Mr. Lloyd George, "I can only say it is too soon to talk about 'after the war' but I can say this: "Things can never be the same after the war as before it. Five democracies, all parts of one empire, cannot shed their blood and treasure, with a heroism and disregard of cost which has been beyond all praise, without leaving memories of comradeship and great accomplishment which will never die. Of this I am certain. The peoples of the Empire will have found a unity in war such as never existed before—a unity not only in history, but of purpose. What practical change in Imperial organization that will mean I do not venture to predict. That it will involve some change is certain. I believe that all the statesmen of the Old Country and the dominions who have spoken about it are unanimous on that point. The forthcoming war council, however, cannot deal with these fundamental post-war problems, but it may afford some insight into the form they may take."

"Then you are sanguine about the future of the Empire?"

"If we see the war through I certainly am," the Premier answered. "You do not suppose that the great combination of peoples who make up the Empire can have stood steadfastly together with their allies, in order to discredit and overthrow the most brutal and inhuman machine for the destruction of human liberties that the world has ever seen, and not have discovered a new ground of friendship."

PEACE TERMS A BEGINNING

"We stand at this moment on the verge of the greatest liberation that the world has ever seen since the French revolution. Do you tell me that peoples who have stood together and staked literally everything in order to bring that liberation about are not going to find some way of perpetuating that unity afterwards on an equal basis? I am certain that they will. There will be much for them to do. Peace terms will be only a beginning. After they are satisfactorily arranged we shall have to set to work to build up that ordered freedom and fraternity which is the only security for human peace and progress and which militarism has destroyed; and is it not certain that the nations which have borne the heat and burden of the day in the overthrowing of that militarism will take a leading share in building that new earth which they have made possible by their sacrifices? No; if we endure to the end I have small fears for the future, and not the least important of the foundations for the work we shall have to do together in that future will be this war council of the British peoples."

The Best Film Yet Made That Will Interest Canadians

Official Canadian Government Film Series No. 2 at the Grand Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Feb. 1st, 2nd and 3rd

Taking photographs from an aeroplane, engaging in such little gymnastics as nose dives and vertical banks is an experiment which few people would care to indulge in and which fewer still could accomplish successfully. The young Canadian officer who photographed the notal war film "Canada's Fighting Forces, Series Two," which is being shown at the Grand Theatre, Feb. 1st, 2nd, and 3rd, did these very things, however, as the angle of the ground and other aeroplanes indicates in his wonderful screen representation of the life of the Canadian aviators overseas.

A Canadian operator in a Curtis bi-plane built at Toronto was piloted through the air by a Canadian aviator to take some of the most thrilling aviation pictures for this film ever screened. The exhibition of "stunt" flying by Canadian aviators is thrilling to a degree which would bring a world's fair crowd to its feet with mad excitement, but looping the loop and tail gliding are feats which Canadian aviators expect to do in war every day of their lives. One section of the film shows a well-known Canadian boy repeating the loop five times in succession.

The photographic treatment of the Zeppelin raids over England and of the fate of the "L-21" brought down by Lieut. Robinson, V.C., is another remarkable achievement of this film which everybody should witness. A moving diagram showing the progress of the famous Battle of Jutland is also projected on the screen and gives the clearest idea of the details of that battle ever shown in this continent.

The film was shown before H. M. King George and Queen Mary, who instructed the photographer to tell the people of Canada that their Majesties were greatly pleased with the pictures.

Peterborough County Team Won Third Place

Live Stock Judging Contest at Ottawa Was Participated in By Teams From Twelve Counties—Local Boys Did Well

The team of three young men, Messrs. Wm. Barrie, Theodore Douglas and Percy Moore, who represented Peterborough County in the stock judging competition at Ottawa Winter Fair last week, succeeded in winning third place. Teams were entered from twelve counties and the contest was a keen one. Dundas county team of young men took first honours and the silver cup by 2,046 points out of a possible 3,000. Lanark county boys came second with 1,996 points, and Peterborough county third with a total of 1,950 points. The classes were dairy and beef cattle, horses, sheep and swine, with regard to the breeding and market quantities of each. Fifty points were given for placing and fifty more points for reasons. The local team exceeded the other eleven teams in placing the most correctly but fell behind in giving their reasons, which was perhaps due to nervousness. Our boys, however, demonstrated the fact that they know a good thing when they see it, and are to be congratulated on securing third position.

Individual prizes were also given in various classes. Peterborough county, true to its pre-eminence in dairying furnished the first prize winner in dairy cattle, Wm. Barrie carrying off the honours and incidentally a $10 bill, against a field of 35 competitors. Besides this the local boys also won prizes in the other classes but the full results have not been as yet received.

How Railway Saves On Waste Material

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—The Grand Trunk Railway System is paying careful attention to the work of salvaging the many tons of discarded material produced on a railway operating many thousands of miles of line. Central scrap yards have been established, where the sorting of this material is carried out. Forty thousand tons of scrap are examined each year and this work is done under expert supervision, so that full value is obtained for the metal and other commodities sold, while a large amount of material is reclaimed and returned for use.

The Grand Trunk buys each year approximately one million dollars' worth of brass. This great mass of metal shrinks in value by usage, but every pound that can be possibly salvaged is returned to the foundry and has a high cash value. Rails with battered ends are re-sawed, used bolts are re-threaded and the couplings of air-brake, signal and steam-heat hose are repaired. The Grand Trunk has in actual use each day about 85,000 pieces of air and steam hose, representing, with the necessary fittings, an investment of $350,000. The perishable part of the hose must be replaced at frequent intervals, but under the system of reclamation the various couplings are used over and over again. It has been demonstrated that the value of the scrap amounts to about two dollars per ton, while proper sorting and classifying increases the net selling value of the scrap by another two dollars per ton, the saving thus made amounting to a large sum of money when tens of thousands of tons of material are handled.

THREE RUNAWAYS KICKED UP LITTLE MORE THAN LOOSE SNOW

One Was a Team of Horses Racing Cityward on McDonnel Street —Another Was the Telephone Linemen's Steed—Aggregate of Minor Damages.

Three runaways yesterday afternoon in different parts of the city produced little excitement and less damage. Out on McDonnel street about 2:30 o'clock a team of colts hitched to a farmer's sleigh were galloping cityward in full flight. Motorman James Collins of the Jackson Park car, which was going east at the time, jumped from the car and brandishing a broom brought the team to a standstill. He was assisted in the demonstration by Conductor Fred Pearson and Constable Deannard, truly a formidable trio.

Down at the corner of Park and Townsend street three telephone linemen were experiencing a diversion that began when the livery horse they left standing near a pole at which they were working lay down in the shafts. It appeared to desire a roll and stretch, and finally became so involved in the harness that it freed itself of all, but the check line which had got into the animal's mouth. Apparently the telephone men didn't know exactly what to do, and just then the Street Railway sweeper blew along to relieve them of their difficulty. The horse pranced at the swirl of snow and bolted away, turning up Rubidge street with a fine show of heels.

About the same time, Dr. Harvey was driving on Rubidge street. His horse backed onto the shaft of the cutter snapping it, but that was the extent of the damage.

County Councillors To Get Their Names On Autograph Quilt

LINDSAY, Jan. 26.—The day of the autograph quilt has not yet disappeared and yesterday members of the County Council were appealed to by representatives of the Saturday Sewers to take stock, so to speak, in one of those relics of ancient days. They subscribed to the tune of a dollar each, and consequently will have their name inscribed (or crocheted) on the said quilt.

WILSON IS IGNORANT.

Knows Nothing of Europe, Says Pro-German Swiss Paper.

BERNE, Jan. 25.—Great reserve was maintained in official circles in regard to President Wilson's speech, which came as a complete surprise following his first note, to which the Federal Council gave its support. The Germanophile newspaper, the Zurich Post, welcomes Wilson's views on the freedom of the seas, but rejects his conception of the question of nationalities and territorial settlement. The Zurich Nachrichten, also Germanophile, scores the President for what it terms meddling in affairs in which he has no concern, "the more so as he is totally ignorant of the principles and basis of European states, their history and their development."

Veteran Sunday School Heads Have Resigned

After twenty-five years of faithful and untiring service, Dr. M. A. Morrison and Mr. R. J. Kidd resigned from their posts as superintendent and assistant superintendent of Trinity Methodist Sunday school at the annual meeting held last night at Trinity Methodist church. Whilst regretting exceedingly to lose two whose valuable services cannot be overestimated in the work they have done in building up the Sunday school to its present state, the teachers and assistants were pleased to welcome Mr. Hone of the Collegiate Institute staff and Mr. W. J. Greene.

It was decided to reorganize the Sunday school and grade it throughout, thus making it into an up-to-date school.

The attendance of the Sunday school has grown beyond the capacity of the present accommodation and new quarters will be sought.

Rev. Mr. Wilson addressed the meeting last night, making some valuable suggestions and expressing his regret on losing Dr. Morrison and Mr. Kidd, also complimenting the teachers and assistants on their splendid work.

TOWN TOPICS.

The dullness in the market is likely to give way to a great deal of bullish activity at any moment. Professional bearishness means that there is a big buying power among the professionals themselves which will develop just as soon as they find out that stocks are headed the other way. The Bethlem melon is amply justified by earnings which were up to expectations and made a truly remarkable showing. Melon opportunities there are a-plenty in the market. Alcohol and Airbrake are two of them. Sears Roebuck of course, will issue new stock. Steel trade prospects are so exceedingly bright and pending earnings statements will show such good results that it is in this quarter we expect the best general moves will be. Steel common should begin to pick up to-day and toward the end of the week should some lively advances. Republic is certainly cheap. The Pressed Car meeting scheduled for to-day should provide bullish ammunition. Insiders insist this stock is worth well over par. Other equipment stocks are splendid things for the long pull in view of the necessity of railroads to work up their equipment capacity. We would buy Pittsburg Coal, Mexican Petroleum, California Petroleum, Corn Products, Enameling, Beet Sugar, Cuban Cane, on weak places, also the Marines. Buy any sharp dips in Cotton. Wheat is likely to work lower.

ALLEGED ELOPERS.

Brought Back form Simcoe to St. Thomas for Trial.

ST. THOMAS, Jan. 25. — John Schram and Mrs. Oliver Peasy were arrested at Simcoe and brought back here for trial. Mrs. Peasy is the wife of a local soldier now in France, and she and Schram are alleged to have eloped the other day and had settled down in Simcoe. Schram however is wanted here also for stealing a pair of shoes from a room mate, Eddie Dimbelby. Mrs. Peasy is only 19 years of age.

ACCEPTS SUGGESTION OF LIBERAL LEADER

A LOAN OF $75,000,000

Minister of Finance Introduces a General Borrowing Bill—Marcil Resumes Debate.

OTTAWA, Jan. 25.—At the opening of the House of Commons this afternoon Sir Robert Borden announced that he had decided to adopt the suggestion for adjournment by Sir Wilfrid Laurier to enable the Premier to attend the Imperial conference in Great Britain. This suggestion he considered to be the best which could be made under the circumstances. He would ask that a supply bill covering the period up to Jan. 30 should be passed together with the whole war appropriation so as to insure the carrying on of the war.

The Minister of Finance would also have a general borrowing bill for $75,000,000 to introduce.

The only other suggestion was that the House give second reading to the railway consolidation bill so that it could be referred to a joint committee of both Houses who could, if they desired, devote some attention to it during the adjournment. As to the date of the adjournment he would be able to state that more definitely after he had had further correspondence with the overseas Ministers.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier acquiesced in the arrangement. The extent of the supply bill 25 per cent., was a little more than usual, but as it was war-time there would be no objection.

Hon. Charles Marcel in resuming his speech referred to the arrangement just concluded as a further indication of Sir Wilfrid's stand taken since the war commenced. From the very beginning he had done all in his power to facilitate the passing of war legislation and war monies.

Referring again to Mr. Cockshutt's speech Mr. Marcel declared that the man who contended that it was only those of British stock who could claim rich loyalty to the British flag, showed a deplorable ignorance of the fact. When in 1774 rebellion broke out in Canada it was not the French-speaking citizens, but the English-speaking, who were responsible for it (cries of hear, hear) and it was the French-Canadians who saved the country.

MONTREAL'S RANGERS MAY TRAIN IN ERIN

DUBLIN, Jan. 25.—All Ireland, North and South, Unionist or Nationalist, is preparing to give Canada's Irish Rangers one of the heartiest welcomes on record when they arrive here Friday. Sir Edward Carson, John Redmond and leaders of all sects, are making elaborate preparations to greet the Irish soldiers from overseas, who are to visit the land of their fathers. Colonel V. J. O'Donoghue, formerly major of another Montreal battalion, will be in command and will also, contrary to previous reports that the Rangers would be used as drafts, take them to France as a unit when the time comes.

On Friday the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland will review the Canadians in Phoenix Park, after which there will be a march through the streets with the bands of the garrison playing them along. On Saturday Dublin's Lord Mayor will, it is expected, entertain the officers and men at the Mansion House and they will also attend a special gala performance at Wellington barracks, where the men will stay while in Dublin.

Following the visit here the Rangers will be entertained at Cork, Wexford, Limerick, Armagh, Belfast and probably Londonderry. Major Stuart Campbell, who has made arrangements for the reception here, tells your correspondent that the battalion has been overwhelmed with invitations many of which time will prevent acceptance.

An interesting report to-day is that the Rangers may be asked to train at Curragh Camp with the reserves of the Irish division, but it is impossible to get any confirmation on this.

If hay is kept in front of idle horses all the time they will keep on eating it, to their own detriment, and at the waste of a lot of good feed.—Canadian Countryman.

PUBLIC RECEPTION TO BE GIVEN COL. McMILLAN

A great public reception will be given to Colonel McMillan on Saturday night, both at the train and at the S. A. Temple, Simcoe street on Saturday evening. Colonel McMillan worked for twenty years in Australia, and has recently been transferred as second in command of Canada east, extending from Fort William on the west to Cape Breton in the east. This is his first visit to Peterborough, and Aldermai Duncan, chairman of the Reception committee of the City Council, will preside and welcome Colonel McMillan on behalf of the citizens of Peterborough in general.

All the Reception committee of the City Council have been invited and will no doubt attend this special occasion. The reception of visiting officers will also be a feature of the evening, of which the following are some: Brigadier Betteridge, in charge of the young people's work in Canada east; Brigadier Morris, field secretary for Canada east; Mrs. Adjutant Richie of Belleville; Mrs. Adjutant Smith, of Kingston; Captain Parsons, Captain Johnstone, Captain Hargrave, Captain Leader, Captain Keith, Captain Laurie, Lieut. Kingston, Captain Beer, Captain Spooner, Scout Leader for Canada east, and Captain Mopp, Guard Leader for Canada east, together with Ensign Richards of Montreal and Major Jennings of Toronto, who will conduct the senior meetings at the Temple for Sunday.

The other officers will assist Commissioner Richards at the Forester's Hall in the Young People's Day meetings.

Delegates from Belleville, Port Hope, Campbellford, Tweed, Trenton, Cobourg and Kingston will also be welcomed, so this will be one of the biggest nights Peterborough Salvations have ever had from the standpoint of visitors at any rate, and all are cordially invited to attend.

Peterborough, Jan. 25, 1917.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—By the size of the crowds in town yesterday, Dollar Day has been as successful as usual, both to the merchants and the general public. May I now remind the ladies of my request in last Saturday's paper, to put out all the milk bottles they have on Saturday morning.

Quart bottles retail now at 85c. per dozen, and pint bottles at 65c., so a few dozen milk bottles returned would be most acceptable to the owners.

And ladies, before you are quite sure you have none, just take a look along the schlves of preserves for fear some might have got mixed up with the gems during the preserving season.

Milkman.

MRS. F. J. SANDY WON THE LAMP

The contest conducted by the J. C. Turnbull Company, in connection with Dollar Day, was won by Mrs. F. Sandy of Lindsay, whose estimate of the number of sales made in the store during the day was the closest. The prize was a very handsome lamp.

Thin Folks Who Would Be Fat

Increase in Weight Ten Pounds or More.

"I'd certainly give most anything to be able to fat up a few pounds and stay that way," declares every excessively thin man or woman. Such a result is not impossible, despite past failures. Most thin people are victims of mal-nutrition, a condition which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are, when the powers of assimilation are normal. Instead of getting into the blood, much of the fat and flesh producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy normal amount of fat, the nutritive processes must be artificially supplied with the power which nature has denied them. This can probably best be accomplished by eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is a careful combination of six splendid assimilative agents. Taken with meals they mix with the food to turn the fat-forming elements (giving potential of what you have eaten) into rich, ripe nourishment for the blood and flesh and its rapid effects have been in many cases reported remarkable. Reported gains of from ten to twenty-five pounds in a single month are by no means infrequent. Its action is perfectly natural and absolutely harmless. Sargol is sold by all leading druggists everywhere and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

If you find a druggist who is unable to supply you with Sargol send $1.00 money order or registered letter to the Sargol Laboratories, 20 St. Antoine St., Montreal, and a complete ten days' treatment will be sent you postpaid in plain wrapper.

Y. M. C. A. Physical Department is Active

In spite of the great weather for skating and outdoor activities and hockey, the gymnasium classes for boys are exceptionally well attended and great interest is being shown in the work and in the league. Last night in the first league game, the Tigers won from the Senators. The Tiger players had no trouble at all in finding the basket and had a fair share of the luck. In the last game, McLeod's Indians won from the Athletics and succeeded in pulling up to within six points of the latter in the league standing. In the Junior Collegiate race, the Braves continue to lead, a big factor in their success being the fact that their players turn out faithfully and as attendance counts, this adds points every day.

In the high jump this week, Harry Tudhope won in the Employed Boys' class with a jump of 4 ft. 8 ins., F. Green second, 4 ft. 7 ins., F. Rutherford and J. Thirnbeck led the Junior Collegiate class/ both jumping 4 ft. 6 ins.

To-morrow morning the Dodgers meet the Cubs in baseball and the Giants and Braves play basketball.

Monday night's games, Tigers-Athletics; Senators-Indians.

COUNTY INCREASES CHILDREN'S AID GRANT

The County Council's grant to the Children's Aid Society was increased from $300 to $400. It was felt that the increased cost of maintenance, and the now organization, demanded additional assistance.

This Ointment Possesses Power To Heal The Skin

Two Cases Which Prove the Extraordinary Healing Power of Dr. Chase's Ointment

The use of Dr. Chase's Ointment is wonderfully satisfactory because you can actually see the results accomplished. It is surprising what change can be brought about in a single night by this great healing ointment.

Mr. George Beavis, 119 James street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "As a healing ointment, I consider Dr. Chase's the best obtainable. I had a large running sore on my leg, and although I had tried all the prescriptions of two doctors I was unable to get any relief from the pain or to get the sore healed. One day my druggist handed me a sample box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I used it with such good results that I decided to give the ointment a fair trial. Altogether I used four boxes, and am glad to be able to say that the sore on my leg is entirely healed up. Since this experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment I have recommended it to many people."

Mrs. W. W. Oliver, Port George, Annapolis Co., N. S., writes: "I am going to tell you my experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment. There was a spot came on my face something like a mole, but it kept getting worse, and several doctors whom I consulted said it was skin cancer, and that it would have to be cut or burned out. I intended having this done, but changed my mind when my brother recommended Dr. Chase's Ointment. Before I had finished one box, of the ointment this skin trouble had gone, and has not bothered me since. I cannot praise Dr. Chase's Ointment too much, and you are at liberty to publish this letter."

If you have never used Dr. Chase's Ointment send a two-cent stamp for a sample box, and mention this paper. Price sixty cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

TWO OVERTIME GAMES IN CHURCH LEAGUE

George St. and St. Andrew's Two Winners of Last Week Repeated Their Victories Last Night Although Both Had to Play an Extra Ten Minutes to Turn the Trick

LAST NIGHT'S GAMES.

George Street 7, Mark Street 6.
Trinity-St. Andrew's 7, Knox 5.

THE LEAGUE STANDING.

	Won	Lost
George Street	2	0
Trinity-St. Andrew's	2	0
Mark Street	0	2
Knox	0	2

The Church League weekly bill-of-fare at Brock Street Rink, last night, provided two over-time games, and resulted in two winners of last week, George Street and the Trinity-St. Andrew's team repeating their victories after the hardest kind of a battle in each case.

The opening game brought together the two Methodist teams, Mark Street and George Street, and it took ten minutes' overtime for the latter to turn the trick by 7 goals to 6. It was a fine battle all the way and with all justice to the George Street team, the Blue Shirts from across the river should have won. In their two games they have showed by far the best team work displayed in the League, but they lost both by one goal, through poor work around the nets. In last night's game they were inside often enough to earn the victory, but lacked the punch at close quarters and were finally beaten out by the George Street team, who played steady, consistent hockey throughout. The East City youngsters led at the end of the first period by 3 to 2, but slumped in the second session when George Street ran in three goals, the boys from the big Church finishing the period in front by 5 goals to 3. Mark Street came back strong in the last period, and scoring three goals to one, tied up the game at 6 to 6. With any luck they should have won the decision in this period. George Street got the winning goal in the over-time period.

For George Street, Rutherford in goal, did some excellent work, handling the East City attack in good style. H. Graham was good all the way. Hagerman and Williams were the Mark Street Stars. The teams lined up as follows:

Referee, George Evans.

TRINITY-ST. ANDREW'S WON.

The second game was ragged and listless for the first two periods, with Trinity-St. Andrew's well in front, and looking winners all over. They led by 3 to 1 at the end of the first period, and 5 to 2 at the close of the second, and had all the best of the going. The excitement came in the third period, when the Knox team threw everybody up on the attack, and went out to cut down the lead. They battled unsuccessfully for half the period until finally a long shot from Clarke beat Pigeon. From then on it was a merry battle, with Knox buzzing around the Trinity-St. Andrew's nets like bees. After missing several golden opportunities they made it 5 to 4 with a minute to go. Two well-deserved penalties did not help Trinity any at this stage and caused the game to go overtime, as Knox scored the tieing goal with only fifteen seconds to play. The first five minutes of over-time saw no score, but in the second period Trinity found the nets twice.

The line-up:

TO-NIGHT'S BIG GAME WILL GET UNDER WAY AT 8.45 O'CLOCK

To-night's game between the Senior T. R. and A. A. team of Toronto and the 247th Battalion Intermediates will be called at Brock Street Rink at 8.45 o'clock. The band of the 247th Battalion will be in attendance and will commence a popular programme at 8.30 o'clock, so that there will be plenty doing. The T. R. and A. A. team will be reinforced by several other players including, it is expected, Gunner Bill Adams, the St. Pats' star and incidentally a brother of Pte. Jack Adams, the popular right wing of the 247th. It will be the first real test the local fans have had of seeing the team perform on hard ice. The game should attract the biggest crowd of the season. The 247th team will line up as follows:

Goal—Legros.
R. Defence—Thornton.
L. Defence—Halpin.
Rover—Evans.
Centre—Armstrong.

SMOKER AT ARMOURIES WAS FINE SUCCESS

The smoker conducted by Sergt. Wm. Lane of the 247th Battalion in the armouries last night proved a very enjoyable event. There was a large attendance and the varied programme was followed with a great deal of interest. Boxing bouts between Ptes. Peer and Deline and Corp. Jones and Pte. Carroll were well contested and interesting, while a go between a pair of youngsters introduced by Major O'Flynn as "Swedish flyweights," was an amusing feature. Pte. Bristow and Dunnette met in a hard fought wrestling bout in which neither of them could get a fall. Major O'Flynn refereed the boxing bouts and Sergt. Lane the wrestling match. Songs by Ptes. Lewis and Wells added variety. The band of the 247th provided an enjoyable programme, playing in their usual effective style, the overture to "The Bohemian Girl," a "National Fantasia" and "Les Chanteurs Hongrois," a dainty polka.

Sergt. Lane, who to vaudeville patrons is known as Ajax, provided the feature event of the evening in his exhibition of posing and weight lifting. The ease with which he handled 100 and 200 pounds weights, and his feat of lifting five heavy men on a bar bell and other similar stunts won the admiration of the crowd and he was heartily applauded. Altogether the programme was most interesting.

SOUTH END CLUB SLEIGH DRIVE

The South End Club held a very successful sleigh drive on Wednesday evening. After enjoying a very pleasant drive of about three hours, they proceeded to the home of the Misses Sullivan's, where a very sumptuous repast was partaken off and thoroughly enjoyed by all. Games and music were indulged in until the wee sma' hours of the morning, when they all disbanded, after having spent a most pleasant evening.

Hockey Only At Certain Hours On Public Rinks

Some complaints have been received by Alderman Dobbin that boys playing hockey on the public skating rinks have seriously interfered with the pleasure of the other children, and some adults. Hence, it has been decided, and signs to that effect will be posted at the rinks, that hockey will be allowed from 7 until 8 o'clock every Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings, and all Saturday morning. Boys must abide by these regulations if they wish to be admitted to the rinks. At the same time boys without skates will be discouraged from appearing on the ice.

Mr. Harry Evans, road commissioner, is supervising the rinks management in addition to attending to his other duties, and has provided good ice for the children. But it is desired that good order should prevail at the rinks, for that reason the first "verbatim" is announced.

Alien Clubs Were Raided in Winnipeg

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 26.—Five German and Austrian clubs in the north part of Winnipeg were raided by the military authorities last night. Among the booty taken by the officers were quantities of Austrian and German flags, coats of arms and hundreds of small badges used for pinning on the coat lapel. These badges bore the German and Austrian colours.

Sir Sam Hughes May Delay The Adjournment

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, Jan. 26.—While February ninth is stated in some quarters as the probable date of the Commons adjournment, there has been no definite announcement.

Indications are that the debate on the address may close any time, but the appearance on the floor of Sir Sam Hughes next Tuesday will, according to some members, upset the calculations of both party leaders. The General is expected to put some finger into things, in defence of his position taken when he resigned as Minister of Militia.

It may take some days, say certain members, to clear up issues raised by Sir Sam Hughes.

Best Tie at Oak Hall For Person Who First Tells Clock Stopped

tact with the edge of one of the steps.

When picked up he was unconscious and it was realized that he had suffered from a serious concussion.

The accident occurred about eight o'clock in the morning, and it was not until three o'clock in the afternoon that he regained consciousness. He is still in a critical condition but it is believed that he has a good chance to recover.

Mrs. Dunlop, who is herself in a frail condition of health, was sent for from her home at St. Catharines, and she arrived in the afternoon.

Major Dunlop is a native of Belleville, and spent his early years in that city. He is one of the best qualified soldiers in the division and is most enthusiastic in the discharge of his duties.

If he is incapacitated for further work it will be a serious blow not only to his own unit but to the entire local service.

DUBLIN, Jan. 25.—The Duchess of Connaught's Own Irish-Canadian Rangers, 700 men and 28 officers, arrived in Dublin this afternoon and marched through the principal streets to Wellington Barracks. Crowds of workers watched them march along the quays. When the battalion turned into Westmoreland street the music of the bands brought large numbers of people from shops and warehouses. The fine appearance of the men created a favourable impression. Also at College Green and Great George street crowds collected. From here until Wellington Barracks were reached the men were heartily cheered. In the morning the battalion will march through the principal streets to Phoenix Park.

PTE. LASHBROOK WOUNDED

Word has been received that Pte. Chas. Lashbrook, who enlisted in Peterborough in the summer of 1915, with the 59th Battalion, has been wounded in both legs. Pte. Lashbrook was employed by the Fuel and Cartage Co., before he enlisted and lived at 129 Stewart Street. He went overseas with the 59 Battalion, was transferred to the 39th in England, and went to France with a draft to the 2nd Battalion. A brother is with the 93rd Battalion.

Portugal Explains Her Entry Into War

PARIS, Jan. 25.—An official White Book has been issued by the Portuguese Government, according to a Havas despatch from Lisbon, detailing the causes leading to Portugal's entry into the war. It says:

"While on the one hand Portugal was the ally of England for six centuries and offered England her aid on the outbreak of the war, on the other hand Germany made war on Portugal in Africa without previously making a declaration of war, and German submarines sank Portuguese steamships in the Atlantic without notice. Portugal, then being in serious difficulties about food supplies, decided, after full consultation with Parliament and all competent legal authorities, to requisition seventy-two German vessels which had taken refuge in Portuguese ports."

The White Book adds this was permitted by Portugal's treaty of commerce with Germany, even in time of peace. Germany thereupon declared war on Portugal. The White Book concludes:

"The Portuguese Government never proclaimed its neutrality because in its character of the ally of England and the friend of France it considered itself bound to those States, which were defending civilization by obligations of a moral and historic nature."

REQUESTED TO REMAIN O.C.

LINDSAY, Jan. 25.—Lieut.-Col. J. J. Glass states that he only expended $270 on recruiting since assuming command of the 252nd, instead of receiving that amount and that the churches and clergymen throughout the counties of Victoria and Haliburton must get credit for giving the O. C. and his officers every assistance they could during the fall and winter. He is not finding fault with the citizens of Lindsay and county, many of whom gave hearty support. It is the lack of enthusiasm on the part of eligibles to sign up and other difficulties which causes the incongruity.

When Col. Glass assumed office the 252nd Battalion, as well as other battalions received a grant of $1,000 for running expenses, and recruiting, and of this amount the local battalion has expended $270. The O. C. and officers appreciate very much the splendid assistance of the citizens, especially the clergymen.

At a conference with Brigadier-General Hemming to-day, Lieut.-Col. Glass was prevailed upon to retain the command of the 252nd Battalion until such time as the military authorities are in a position to make a change. This he has consented to do and the citizens will be furnished with a full statement concerning battalion matters at an early date.

Major R. E. Porter Will Succeed Lieut.-Col. Glass

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

KINGSTON, Jan. 26.—Lieut.-Col. J. J. Glass has resigned as commanding officer of the 252nd Battalion, Lindsay and Haliburton, and will be succeeded by Major R. E. Porter, engaged in staff work here. Major Porter comes from Lindsay.

COLD WAVE IN FRANCE.

Wolves and Bears Ravage Loire Valley.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—France is in the grip of the severest cold weather for many years. The thermometer in Paris registered 17 degrees fahrenheit to-day and even in southern cities like Marseilles and Bordeaux there were several degrees of frost. The number of deaths from cold and the sufferings of the Parisians have been aggravated by the coal shortage.

Edouard Herriot, Minister of National Subsistence, has taken energetic charge of the situation, cooperating with the city authorities. M. Herriot has decided to sell a large part of the reserve stock of fuel to the public, and has lent military auto-waggons to cary coal to the small dealers who have no conveyances. The cold has brought packs of wolves into the department and bears are ravaging the fields in the Loire Valley.

COUNTY MAGISTRATE ASKED FOR INCREASE

County Magistrate Langley asked the County Council this afternoon to consider an increase in his salary, now $600 a year. Victoria County pays $1,100 to its County Magistrate, and Mr. Langley felt that the Peterborough position should provide at least $100 a month. His law practice, he added, had been interfered with by his magisterial duties and the times have seriously advanced the cost of living. Magistrate Langley discussed with the Council the work of the County Constables and stated that he would be materially assisted if he had the help of a bright young man of initative, who could also intelligently read the statutes, fairly interpret them and act with some initiative of his own.

"Quite a sensation was caused at Scott, Sask., recently. The editor of the local paper threatened to publish the name of a certain married man, who was seen hugging and kissing a girl, unless his subscription was paid within a week. Fifty-nine married men called the next day and paid up, while several of them paid a couple of years in advance."

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

ALTERED APPEARANCE

Some people dread the idea of wearing glasses for the first time, fearing that it will alter their appearance. Dr. Fowler's extremely clear "Peblo" lenses, mounted in his light, neat gold mounts, and properly fitted to the face, are so inconspicuous that they seem to belong there at once and are really more of an ornament than a disfigurement. Call and have him demonstrate this to your satisfaction.

County Councillors Bonne "Ententers" On The Ottawa Trip

The County Council with representatives of the ciey were received by the Hon. Mr. Cochrane at 10:30 yesterday and wer assured by the Minister that the work would be proceeded with as rapidly as the Minister could get the Government to agree to the expenditure under existing conditions caused by the war.

Later a number of the members listened to addresses on the speech from the Throne by Mr. Marcil, Mr. W. F. McLean and Hon. Mr. Lemieux, and part of the delegation went on a Bonne Entente mission to P. Q. and did much to promote good fellowship for a few hours in a portion of the Lower Province near Ottawa.

Prominent in this good missionary work were the Warden, Chairman Roads and Bridges, Finance, the Reeves of Havelock, Ennismore and Belmont, the latter representing the educational and transportation interests of the county.

KITCHENER LEAGUE.

A special meeting of the Canadian Kitchener League is called for Tuesday afternoon, January 30th, in the Oriental Tea Room, at 3 o'clock. It is important that every member be present.

The Packing Committee of the Canadian Kitchener League will meet at the Oriental on Tuesday afternoon, January 30th, for the purpose of preparing another shipment for the Peterborough boys in the trenches. Will those who are knitting kindly send in all finished articles before this date, as the League is anxious to have a real large shipment. If we could but realize what a warm, comfortable pair of socks must mean to our boys in the trenches these cold, stormy days, there would be a shipment every day instead of every two weeks.

SARNIA ENGINEER CAUGHT IN FLYWHEEL

Feared that Back may be Broken, as He is Partially Paralyzed.

SARNIA, Jan. 25.—Richard Bell, chief engineer at the Sarnia waterworks, is in a critical condition at the general hospital as a result of being caught in the flywheel and whirled around several times before the machinery could be brought to a standstill and his body extricated. Shortly after his arrival at the plant and before he had removed his overcoat, he went among the machinery, and while leaning over investigating the overheating of the eccentrics, his coat became entangled on a fast-moving wheel, and he completed three or four revolutions before the machinery could be stopped.

Robt. Lawrence and Hedley Major, other employees of the waterworks, assisted in extricating him, and they stated that he had retained his consciousness until the last moment and that he fully realized what had happened. He was removed to the general hospital and reports received from there at the time of this writing state that he was very badly injured with a slight chance for recovery.

Dr. J. A. Bell and Inspector Grosbie assisted in his removal to the hospital, and the examination there was conducted by Dr. Hayes, Dr. Logie and Dr. Bell. It is thought that his back may have been broken as well as other minor injuries, and it is probable that an X-ray will be used to determine the exact extent of his injuries.

He resides at 354 George street, with his family. He is about 35 years of age and has been employed at the waterworks for a great number of years.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Suggestion Is Acceptable To The Government

House May Adjourn on February the Ninth to Let Premier Borden Away in Time For the Imperial Conference—Some Temporary Estimates Will Be Hurried Through

CABLES URGE SPEEDY JOURNEY

Parliament is expected to adjourn on Friday, February 9, a fortnight from to-day, to enable the Prime Minister to attend the Imperial War conference in London. Sir Robert Borden received last night a cable urgently requesting his arrival in London "at the earliest possible date."

CAN'T LEAVE JUST NOW.

It is impossible for him to leave Ottawa until the war appropriation has been voted and arrangements made for the ordinary expenditure of the Government during his absence. But as these matters cannot be taken up until the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne has been concluded, it is anticipated that the Opposition will join with the Government in bringing it to a close as early as possible next week. Sir Sam Hughes, however, will speak on Tuesday, so that it will probably be Thursday before the conclusion of the debate. The continuance of the debate means so much time taken from the period assigned for the deliberations of the War Conference.

WHAT IS PROPOSED.

In the House of Commons Sir Robert announced that the suggestion made by Sir Wilfrid Laurier to adjourn Parliament to permit of his attendance at the Imperial War Conference was acceptable to the Government. He proposed that the civil estimates be voted for three months, or until the end of June, and that the war vote be passed in its entirety. A borrowing bill will also be introduced which will give authority to the Finance Minister to secure money for the general purchases of the Dominion. Sir Robert also suggested that the Railway Act, the revision of which was undertaken by a joint committee of the two Houses in 1914, should be introduced, given its second reading and referred to similar committee. To all of these Sir Wilfrid agreed.

THE OLD ARGUMENTS.

Apart from this there was very little interest in the proceedings. There was no speaker on the Government side. Hon. Charles Marcil and Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux trundled out their old anti-Nationalist arguments, and Mr. W. F. Maclean made an appeal for unity. So possessed was he of the necessity of national combined endeavor that he forgot to mention nickel. So everybody is taking it for granted that the independent member for South York has at last realized that the Imperial and Canadian Governments have made adequate arrangements to prevent Canadian nickel falling into the hands of the enemy.

COMES TO NATIONALISTS.

The debate on the address was continued by Hon. Charles Marcil, who was speaking when the House rose on Wednesday. He said the example of non-partisanship given by the Liberal party at the outbreak of war had been maintained as far as possible ever since.

Mr. Marcil then resumed his history of the Nationalist party. J. A. Descarries, who seconded the reply to the address had at Lachine in 1910 presided at the birth of the Natinalist party. Hon. E. L. Patenaude was present at the same meeting. Quebec was tired and sick of Tory rule both at Ottawa and Quebec. The Nationalist platform contained a clause condemning the Borden platform.

Sir Robert Borden had given to the Hon. F. D. Monk, the naming of the Cabinet Ministers from Quebec. Mr. Monk had asked Mr. Lavergne, the man who has since refused to go to the front, to enter the Cabinet. Mr. Lavergne, had refused, but he was just as good as the three who were now in the Cabinet. Mr. Lavergne would have run in Dorchester against Mr. Sevigny if the Liberals would have supported him. The reason that Lucien Cannon was opposing Hon. Albert Sevigny was because the Liberals in Dorchester insisted upon having a straight Liberal as their candidate.

Mr. Marcil was amazed that men like John Ross Robertson and Sir John Willison published so much rubbish about Quebec as they did. "Our people in Quebec are law-abiding citizens," said Mr. Marcil. "They never see the Toronto Telegram or Toronto News. If you want to find true political liberty you must turn to the history of the Province of Quebec."

Mr. Marcil devoted some time to a consideration of recruiting and National Service as these problems related to the Province of Quebec. He complained thot the National Service cards were so indefinite and vague that it was quite impossible for many people to give satisfactory answers.

Mr. Middlebro asked Mr. Marcil if the Government would get 200 recruits if they were asked for in any particular district.

"I am glad to say," replied Mr. Marcil "that 800 men have enlisted from my county."

THE THIRD PARTY.

Mr. W. F. Maclean, South York, said the two Leaders had arranged for joint action in the conduct of the business of the House. If they could join together for the conduct of the business of the House they could join togteher for the successful conduct of the war. The speeches in the House and the Dorchester election showed that there was diversity of opinion in Canada.

"There is not on this side," interpolated Mr. Bennett.

"You people do not represent the whole country," retorted Hon. William Pugsley.

Mr. Maclean declared that the war was more serious than ever. If Canada was to do her part they had to find a way of uniting the country. People wanted to see National Unity. He did not care whether they called it coalition, National Government or a new party. They might have to enforce the Militia Act, they might have to come to conscription. If the liberties of the world were in danger he favoured conscription, but to get conscription they must have a united Government and a united people. They should have a war Cabinet with a union of both parties. He suggested that Sir Robert Borden approach the Opposition Leader for a union of the two parties. The sentiment of the people of Ontario and the people of the west were for a union of the both parties.

Mr. Maclean said that there was a new political force in the west. There was a great democratic forces led by men of progressive ideas on economic questions. This new element should have a representation in the national party. There also should be a representative of Labour in the Cabinet.

NEED A REVOLUTION.

Hon. Rodolph Lemieux said that while he could not agree with all that Mr. Maclean had said, he was to be commended for his remarks. To give effect to such views, however, would be difficult. Nothing short of a revolution would induce the Government to adopt Mr. Maclean's suggestions. Any move for a National Government should have been made at the beginning of the war.

Mr. Lemieux predicted that the present administration would not change its attitude, and that it would be defeated at the general election, which will come in the course of a few months. Then the present Leader of the Opposition would form, not a Nationalist, but a National Government.

Mr. Lemieux charged Sir Thomas White with preaching but not practicing economy. Last session he authorized an expenditure of six million dollars to purchase the Quebec and Saguenay Railway at a time when two of the big railway systems of the country were on the verge of bankruptcy and when a Commission had been appointed to report on the Canadian railway situation generally.

Mr. J. H. Sinclair, of Guysboro, N.S., who followed, said the debate would be more interesting if the members on the Government side of the House would participate in it. A few of the lesser lights on the back benches had spoken, but none of the big guns had been heard from. The Ministers, he said, should reply to some of the criticisms made by Opposition Members, because they were of importance. "One does not like to be caught pounding a dead dog," he added.

Mr. Sinclair said he was inclined to agree with Mr. D. D. Mackenzie, who had stated that the Government was doing its best, but that its best was not good enough for the country.

Suffered With Heart For Ten Years

Would Nearly Smother

There is nothing that brings with it such fear of impending death as to wake up in the night with that awful sense of smothering. The uncertain and irregular heart action causes the greatest distress of both mind and body.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the only remedy that can give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity.

They strengthen and invigorate the heart, so that it beats strong and regular, and tone up the nervous system so that the cause of so much anxiety becomes a thing of the past.

Mrs. M. O. McCready, Wapella, Sask., writes: "I am not much of a believer in medicines, but I feel that it is only right for me to let you know what your wonderful remedy has done for me, and in a very short time, too. I had suffered terribly with my heart for nearly ten years, could scarcely do any work, and would nearly smother at times. I had many remedies, some only relieving me for a time. I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and felt so much better that I kept on using them, and can truthfully say I feel like a new woman.

"I would advise anyone with heart trouble to use them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

KINMOUNT THE COLDEST PLACE IN THE DISTRICT

While Peterborough is situated in a section that lies in the path of many of the cold waves that come from the north and northwest, it is somewhat south of a line that receives the full effects of the vigors of Jack Frost. This city is 725 feet above sea level. Lindsay is over 150 feet higher, while Kinmount is at an altitude of 920 feet. Just now by way of digression it may be stated that Kinmount has the unenviable honour of being one of the coldest places in this immediate section of the Province. Thirty-five to 40 below zero are registered almost every winter in this little village at the extreme northwest corner of Peterborough County. Haliburton village over 1,000 feet up, and considerably north of Kinmount, has a good record for cold dips, but takes second place to Kinmount. Apsley, Bancroft, and Coe Hill, are all along this height of land that separates the waters flowing south from those finding their way down towards the Ottawa, and north to the Muskoka Lakes, and are noted for the ozone-laden qualities of their atmosphere, crisp, sharp and tingling in the weather season at least.

Lindsay and Peterborough are practically alike as to temperature, but the former place usually has more rain in summer and snow in winter than this city. As is well known, Port Hope, Cobourg and Belleville rarely have the low temperature we have in winter, owing to their proximity to Lake Ontario. The air, however, is more damp and perhaps, the cold is felt as badly if not worse, than here at Peterborough, owing to the higher and much drier atmosphere we have.

All west of a line down north and south through about Claremont on the C.P.R. and Uxbridge on the Midland Division of the G.T.R. has a considerably milder average temperature, but the snowfall is frequently heavier. To the east, the winter conditions are less unbroken, and lengthened both at the beginning and ending, than here.—W.P.

CATTLE MARKETS.

The feature of this week's market has been the short supplies of cattle The snow-blocked condition of many of the country roads has been given as the chief reason for the meagre supplies. While the present state of the roads may in part account for the holding back of cattle and other stock, there are those among this trade who say that we are beginning to feel the pinch of an actual shortage of stock in the country. In any case, the cattle have not been coming forward in the past week, and with an active demand for butcher's cattle, particularly those with any 'finish' to them, prices have held strong with an upward tendency all through the week. Butcher cattle of fair to good quality were at the end of the week a good 25c average above last week, while choice heavy cattle averaged a little better than that. Other grades, stockers, feeders, fat cows, bulls, and canners have all been high in proportion.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 Per Cent. In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A FREE PRESCRIPTION YOU CAN HAVE FILLED AND USED AT HOME.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eyestrain or other eye weaknesses? If so you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through to principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind and could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seemed clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and the expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes from two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and the inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time. Note: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists, and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen the eyesight 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in Peterboro by Warne Drug Co.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"DESTINY"

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

Along the stone wall which skirted the road, and under the wild apple trees, were hitched the wagons and buggies that had brought them for many miles around, across the hills. Some of them came from houses far back where the roads narrowed, and grew precipitous.

Yet even among those who stood waiting in the churchyard near the reminder of an open grave, the lyric tunefulness of this June morning refused to surrender unconditionally to sadness. Off between the fence and the rising slope of the nearest hill a ripple ran across a yellow field of buckwheat and from a fence post a golden breasted lark sang merrily.

Those who had arrived earliest gossiped of such commonplace matters as make the round of life where small things take the place of large excitement and their faces were not gloomy faces. Young men and girls among them were strolling apart and the smiles in their eyes told that to them death was an incident but June and love a nearer fact—a thing closer to their youth.

Then around the turn came the procession which they awaited—a hearse followed by several buckboards and buggies.

At the open gate it halted, and the pall bearers lifted down the casket from the hearse and bore it to the spot which had been prepared for its reception. There were no formal designs from the shop of any florist but from every neighborhood garden had come contributions out of that wealth which this golden month was squandering in blossom. Roses and peonies and a brave display of the varied flowers that go in rows about old fashioned gardens had been gathered and brought by sympathetic hands.

But it was chiefly upon the woman who came here to bury the last of her dead that the bared heads turned eyes of reverent interest. At her side there walked a young farmer whose tanned face and curling hair and straight-gaming gray eyes, proclaimed a robust and simple manhood.

The girl herself was well worth looking at, even had she not claimed interest by reason of her bereavement. She walked straight and lithe, and upright with the free grace of some wild thing, as though she shared with the deer which had looked across the lake the untrammeled strength of the hills. She was slender, but the fine lines of her figure were rounded to the fulness of perfect health, and the color of her cheeks, though now paler than their wont, was like that of delicate rose leaves and her lips were the curved petals of a deeper blossom. Her hair, under a black mourning hat, tangled in the meshes of its heavy coils the glint of sunlight on amber and brightened now and then into a hint of burnished copper, but the features which must have challenged the gaze of any observer not dead to a sense of color and beauty, were the marvellous and mismated eyes. One was a rich brown like illuminated agate with a fleck or two of jet across the iris, while its twin was of a colorful violet and deeply vivid. Now, of course, the heavy lashes were wet with tears, but the gorgeous beauty of the eyes was not dimmed.

She stood there by the open grave, and the masses of simple flowers, with summer and June and green hills and blue skies at her back; and, on all their loveliness, she might have been a living impersonation.

The preacher whose duty it was to give a rendering of the burial rites had grown old in his pastorate, and to him all these people were his children. He had been with many of them at baptism, he had married them and buried their dead; they were his flock, and they listened to his words as to one ripe in wisdom and sainted in his life.

He looked about the little burial ground and his eyes took on an earnest light and his voice a deep thrill as he spoke.

"If," said he, "there is anywhere a spot which is hallowed ground it is this spot where we are now laying to her eternal rest what yesterday was mortal of Elizabeth Burton. She is, save her daughter, the last of the name to be taken; and in that greater life to which she goes, she will be reunited with those who loved her and went before.

"She will share with them" the preacher paused for a moment then went on—"the glory of reward which, I think, God loves best to bestow upon those who, with steadfast unselfishness, have lived simple lives, and left their fellows better for having lived.

"I do not know how God measures the deeds of men or with what degree of reward he fixes their place in Paradise; but I feel that I stand on holy ground as my eyes wander here and fall upon these graves where the Burtons sleep. I know that once this was a land of want and misery; a country of abandoned farms. To-day I look about me, and, under skies that seem to sing, I see a land redeemed. It was not redeemed by great wealth from without but by resolution, and dauntless effort from within. I have spoken of the headstones that mark these graves, but the Burtons have a nobler monument. The roads and schools and the aqueduct — all the things that transformed the land are memorials to the man who lies just there beyond his grave where to-day we place his mortal. On that slab we find only the dates of birth and death and the name of Hamilton Burton; but when I look at it, I seem to read a nobler epitaph in letters of bronze which no weather can dim or tarnish. I seem to read—'Here lies one who put aside a blazing dream to cast his lot into a life of humbler duty.' If he who makes two blades of grass grow where one has grown before has done a noble thing, then surely he who has turned a land of want into a land of independence and made crops grow where none grew before he has won his place near the throne."

Again the aged pastor paused and his eyes grew misty. With bared heads bent and a stillness broken only by the rustle of the breeze through the trees, and the song of a bird, his listeners stood attentive, and he resumed.

"I need not tell you, for you know, what the energy and loyal steadfastness of Hamilton Burton have done for these hills. What they were when he came to manhood and what they are now is the answer to that—an answer which needs no further eulogium. But there is a thing which you may not know, for I think once his hard decision was made—he never spoke of that again. Yet now I wish to speak of it. It is a thing which should put the name of Hamilton Burton among those of the great—the humble great. In his boyhood heart blazed a mighty vision. In his brain burned a hunger for conquest. The man who dwelt so simply here amongst us, working a regeneration, and who died among us still young, was gifted with a power which he might have put to more selfish uses. Standing in the loneliness of a mountain snow storm his eyes could see visions of mighty things and his soul could dream unmeasured dreams. His heart beat responsively to an inward voice which assured him that he might equal and surpass the greatness of Destiny's greatest sons. He fretted for a larger world, knowing that in it he could conquer. In Hamilton Burton dwelt the soul of a Napoleon or a Cæsar.... He might have built an empire."

The voice had grown fervent as it rose with its words, then the speaker let it fall again to quieter tones.

"And these roads and schools and this aqueduct and these redeemed acres are the monument to the sacrifice which turned its back on such a dream as that. Hamilton Burton wrestled with his soul's hunger and conquered it. He elected to remain here, fighting at the head of his own community for his own land, and finding contentment in the realization that he had done his duty. At one time to his forefulness was great—he had persuaded his family to countenance his great adventure — and then he dreamed. It seemed to him that he had looked ahead and the whole great panorama of the life which lay before him, should he take that turning in the road, passed in review. He remained here. His work was the work of the sons of Martha.

"As in the thronged and the light ened ways, so in the dark and the desert they stand,
Weary and watchful all their days, that their brethren's days may be long in the land.'

"If Hamilton Burton put aside such ambitions as most of us never knew in our dreams, and chose the humbler combat of a simple life, close to God's immortal granite, you have all been sharers in the benefit of his decision.

"And there was Paul. You all knew lesser way it was with those others who sleep here close beside him.

"'Perhaps in this neglected spot is laid
Some heart once pregnant with celestial fire;
Hands that the rod of empire might have swayed,
Or waked to ecstasy the living lyre.
Some village Hampden, that with dauntless breast,
The little tyrant of his fields withstood,
Some mute inglorious Milton here may rest,
Some Cromwell guiltless of his country's blood.'"

In the pause that followed a low breath of reverent surprise ran all through the crowd that stood about the speaker. They had lived day by day with Hamilton Burton until his death, and some of them had in the shoulder-touch of life ever suspected those deeper things of which now for the first time they heard. They were hearing it all from lips which were to them as the lips of a prophet. But the preacher was not through.

"And ther was Paul. You all knew him and loved him. A nature was given him at birth almost too delicate for a world of hard affairs, but fragrant with a tenderness of love for his fellow men. He was attuned to harmony and his heart was that of a troubadour.

"Here in this little place of our worship, his fingers on the keys have often led us nearer to God's presence than could the poor and broken messages I tried to preach to you. For the other world was always close to Paul Burton and there was a magic in his minstrelsy, which was a gift from God. I sometimes wonder if in a less simple world he could have been so unmarred, away from the songs of birds and the lilt of mountain breezes. But among us he, too, lived and died—because Hamilton Burton turned his back on the lure of the mirage his dreaming eyes had seen. Even now when Paul has gone, those chimes which you put there above our church in memory of him seem to sing of the things for which he stood. When their notes peal out on the Sabbath and go softly across the valley, I like to imagine that, through the nobler music which immortal ears may hear, he still catches their echo.

"There, close together, stand two more headstones, and beneath them sleep the father and the aunt of these men. Thomas Burton, too, lived out a life of stalwart worth. To all men, his fearless character and unshakable integrity were precepts. He went his way and looked into every eye that met his own. In the activities that have wrought these changes, he was always the first and the last to work with tireless zeal. When the railroad came it was through his untiring effort. He held the determination with fighting Burton courage that adversity should not drive him from the land his forefathers had conquered.

"In wondering what things would have befallen all these people had a lad's ambition led them into a different life, I find myself treading paths of doubt. Perhaps noble achievements might have resulted—but I know that in remaining here they have made our land to blossom, and to me it seems enough. I can, for some reason, no more think of Thomas Burton transplanted without hurt than I can think of some great patriarch of the forest, which has buffeted storms and hail for decades, being uprooted and planted anew in a trim garden and a different clime. Then he died, too—

Facts Concerning Epilepsy.

After years of research into the causes of epilepsy, research conducted in the laboratory, in addition to the actual treating of patients, certain facts became very clear. These facts prove that the causes usually credited with producing epilepsy are not the real, the correct causes. Any treatment based upon false premises is not only open to criticism but also doomed to failure. And such has been indeed the sad result of all forms of antiepileptic treatment in the past. First, it was found that when those abnormal conditions, which are the reputed cause of epilepsy in mankind, were experimentally engrafted upon animals, these animals, in every case, failed to react with epileptic convulsions. And again we met many persons who were afflicted with one or more of the conditions said to cause epilepsy, nevertheless these persons were free from the disease. Certain foods, when partaken of by epileptics, have been found to increase either the severity or frequency of their attacks.

This observation caused many doctors to formulate a restricted diet including the regulation of the amount of salt to be consumed by epileptics. The gist of such dietary is the recognition that something in the epileptics economy possesses the power to extract from certain substances in the system, various poisons which in turn are carried by the blood to every cell of the body. The brain of the patient thus being bathed in poisonous fluids, registers this condition by the release of epileptic intoxication, dizziness, stupor, unconsciousness and convulsions. The same kind of food and the same abuse of diet will not cause epileptic symptoms in other persons, that is in such not afflicted with an epileptic metabolism. Instead of eliminating waste products and ridding the system of impurities, as is the case in the normal, nonepileptic individual, the epileptic's blood has a unique affinity for such poisons, absorbs and stores the same and finally produces epileptic symptoms. In the light of such and similar findings we feel justified to disregard the generally accredited causes of epilepsy as causative factors and direct our attention to other and newer fields.

There are two well-defined sources whence epilepsy producing poisons are obtained by the system. The external and internal source. Poisons derived from foods, waste products and from sources of infections present or suddenly thrown upon the system, are the external sources. Such would be represented by meat, which furnishes putric material, foods which are improperly prepared or otherwise indigestible or contra-indicated for a given patient or by the presence of pus or devitalized tissue in any part of the body, as in the nose, ears, gums or diseased tonsils.

The internal source is the more important and interesting feature. Here we are concerned with the glands and their products. Throughout the system these glands are located and in and by them is manufactured a substance which is highly specific and essential for the proper maintenance of health and life. The harmonious function of the various organs of the body is in a great measure influenced and controlled by these glands. Without normal glandular activity functions are perverted, growth thwarted, proportions lost, insanity and other grave disease caused. Glands produce secretions, which term for purposes of this article may suffice, although we distinguish between secretion and excretion, internal and external, some glands having both functions. The subject of secretions is so important in connection with epilepsy that it is necessary to dwell a little longer on this phase, which will render subsequent parts easier of understanding.

To illustrate, the breasts contain glands, the product of which is excreted as milk. Every gland has a function characteristic of itself and not shared in exactly the same degree by any other gland in the body. The thyroid gland in the neck, secretes a peculiar substance of its own. As long as this secretion progresses normally all is well, but when it is interfered with to the extent of over or under production in respect to quality of quantity, serious consequences ensue. Goitre, stunted growth and idiocy are some of the results. This change is due to the disturbed function of the thyroid gland which has ceased to pour into the system that peculiar material in just the required proportions, which formerly maintained the normal equilibrium.

To Reduce Your Weight Easily and Quickly

If you are over-stout the cause of your over-stoutness is lack of oxygen-carrying power in the blood and faulty assimilation of food. Too little is being made into the harder tissue of muscle and too much into little globules of fat. Therefore you should correct the mal-assimilation, and increase the oxygen-carrying power of the blood. To do this, go to any good druggist and get oil of orlene, only sold in original packages and in capsule form, and take one capsule after each meal and one at bedtime till your weight is reduced to what it should be on all parts of the body. The effect of oil of orlene in capsule form is remarkable as a weight reducer and it is perfectly safe.—B.J.T.

Any druggist can supply you or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00, by money order or registered letter. Goods will be sent in plain wrapper. Address D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1240, Montreal, Canada.

Latest Fashion Novelties Gleaned Here and There

Items of Interest in New Collars and Skirts

FADS OF LINGERIE

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Each day unfolds something new in the world of fashion, for many interesting novelties catch the eye of those who observe the women of fashion, from whose apparel may be gleaned every little detail and item of interest which create the atmosphere of good style.

Some of the new collars are large affairs rolled high at the back and low in front. These have been given the demure name of monk collar, and one is illustrated in the sketch. Sometimes they are fastened with little buttons and loops at the front, or the closing is made invisible. They are usually made of satin or the new figured silks to contrast with the dress material.

The loose side panels on skirts, with large pockets on each side are also recognized as one of the newest style notes in skirts. The panels being loose flap about in the wind, often disclosing a bright lining of contrasting material on the reverse side. From the front, these side panels seem at first to be nothing but the familiar tunic which appears quite often in the new dresses showing the narrower underskirts.

With New Monk Collar and Loose Panels

Another treatment of side panels appears is some skirts where the panel extends to the lower edge of the skirt, is attached there, and falls softly over the edge in puffed or draped effect. Puffed all around is imitation of the Turkish trouser effect, are some of the skirts of evening dresses. In the supple taffetas and silver tissue cloths, dresses in this style are extremely graceful the skirts devoid of any trimming whatever and the bodices fitting rather snugly in contrast. The bodices are in reality hardly more than deep bands suspended by straps of ribbon over the shoulders. Sleeves there are none unless the bands across the upper part of the arms are so called. In other styles of evening dresses, however, sleeves begin to be more favoured than they have been for some time. The flowing sleeves which form a kind of drapery reaching almost to the edge of the skirt is a style with great charm.

The Latest Fads in Underwear.

Speaking of Georgette—this sheer fabric is put to all sorts of uses, and does not stop at dresses but appears to be quite a favourite for underwear. The most appealing shades of pale blue, lavender and flesh colour, fashion undergarments of every description. Though they are hardly practical, there are many who find it impossible to resist these dainty undergarments. Underwear seems to be getting more and more elaborate, and the very latest fad is the combination of silver lace with Georgette. Beadwork, too, has invaded underwear, and it has been seen on the new pajamas and nightgowns of Georgette crepe. These are, however, some exceedingly dainty pieces of lingeries which are quite practical after all. Among these are the silk and wash satin undergarments which are very practical as long as they are carefully laundered. The delicate shades must be washed with care to preserve their colours, and there is no denying that it is well worth the trouble for the satisfaction that one feels from possessing dainty lingerie.

Mock Mince Pie.

Mix together, in order given, four soda crackers, rolled; one and one-half cups sugar, one cup molasses, one-third cup lemon juice or vinegar, one cup raisins, seeded and chopped; one-half cup butter and two eggs well beaten; add spices to taste.

TO A SILENT SONGSTER.

Sweet bird, in your cage, by the window so warm,
You feel not the breath of the cold winter storm,
Though the short gloomy days may be lonely and dread,
The bright sparkling fire affords comfort and cheer.
All your wants are attended, with tenderest care,
And the choicest of dainties contribute thy fare.

Yet I listen in vain for the old pleasant song
That gladdened my heart all the bright summer long,
Does your small cozy home, but a dull prison seem
Or perchance of the green fields and freedom you dream,
If for loved companions, long vanished you pine,
Then your heart beats in sadness responsive to mine.

For dear ones, with summer, and sunshine are flown,
And chill winter's captives, we languish alone,
Yet droop not go sadly, but jubilant sing,
For soon snow wreaths will fade in the warm smile of spring,
Glad summer return, decked with verdure and flowers,
And thy warbling mater, wake the echoing bowers.

Then sing little bird, your blithe carrol again,
And joyously warble this happy refrain,
Dark clouds will roll by, and the sunshine will glow,
Soft zephyrs will follow, the frost winds and snow,
Why thus should the present, with gloom be overcast
By idle regret for the joys that are past.

How To Cure Stomach Trouble

The Common Cause is Lack of Blood—Therefore You Must Build Up the Blood

There is the most intimate relation between the condition of the blood and the activity of the stomach. The blood depends upon the stomach for a large part of its nourishment; while every act of digestion, from the time the food enters the stomach and is assimilated by the blood needs plenty of pure well-oxidized blood. The muscles, glands and nerves of the stomach work only according to the quality of the blood.

The most common cause of indigestion is lack of rich, red blood. Not only does impure blood weaken the muscles of the stomach but it lessens the product of the glands of the intestines and stomach, which furnish the digestive fluids. Nothing will more promptly cure indigestion than plenty of pure blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the safest and most certain blood-builder. A thorough trial of these pills gives a hearty appetite, perfect digestion, strength and health. Here is proof of the value of these pills in cases of indigestion. Mr. Daniel Dexter, Liverpool, N.S., says: "For several years I was a great sufferer from indigestion. I was greatly troubled with gas on the stomach which caused disagreeable sensations. I was also frequently troubled with nausea and vomiting, which were distressing. As a result of my trouble my appetite almost completely failed, and what I did eat caused me constant pain. I was continually doctoring but did not get any benefit, and had about made up my mind that I would suffer for life. One day a friend asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and while I had not much hope of a cure I decided to do so. I had only taken a few boxes, however, when I found they were helping me. Very gladly then I continued the use of the pills, and in less than three months I was as well as ever I had been, able to eat a hearty meal, and to feel that life was again worth living. I had also been troubled from time to time with attacks of rheumatism, and the use of the pills cured this as well as the indigestion. It is now over a year since I took the pills, and in that time I have had no return of the trouble."

Dr. Williams Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

Fashion surely plays fair with the junior in giving a design like this in a dress. The separate bolero is the feature that counts—perhaps there is none more successful than this style among the models offered for growing girls.

The waist is very simple, cut with a rather high, round neck and with fastening at the back; over it the separate bolero is worn. A ribbon girdle is draped negligently at front, after covering the joining of the waist to a one piece gathered skirt. The sleeves are set in with a slight fulness and reach to the wrist, where deep, round cuffs of material finish them. Velvet, satin or other fabric, in a shade that will blend with the general note of the dress, may be used if one wants to add to the effectiveness of the model.

For the edges of the bolero, neck and sleeve cuffs braid in the chosen trimming—it looks well and is very stylish. It will depend upon the service the frock is to give whether it will be developed in serge, wool poplin, wool plaid or gabardine—or velveteen, duvetyn or similar fabric. If you are one not posted as to the saving and satisfaction that a pattern makes possible, begin with this simple design and be convinced.

The dress pattern, No. 8,119, cuts in sizes 6-12 years. To make in size 8 requires 3¼ yards 36 inch material, 3⅝ yards braid and 2 yards ribbon. To obtain the pattern send [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Canada must 'Carry On'

If Belgium's Children Are To Be Saved - -

To punish the violation of Belgium and free its land from the Huns has been one of the strongest rallying cries of British and Canadians throughout this war. For it our men have fought hard and long, and, stronger and more determined now than ever, they are "Carrying on" to the finish.

When the soldiers first went out to fight the despoilers of Belgium, we who could not go undertook to help feed the starving women and children who were victims of German savagery. Are WE carrying on as the soldiers are doing? Or has our enthusiasm cooled—our sympathy died out—our help lessened or ceased?

Certainly the Belgians' need of help has not lessened, but rather increased! Three million women, children and old men are depending for food—for life itself—on the Belgian Relief Commission. The Commission in turn depends on us Canadians for a substantial share of the necessary food, or the money with which to buy it. If we fall short in our contributions, thousands of Belgian kiddies must go painfully, if not fatally, short in their food supply. Already an alarming number of them, weakened by scanty rations, are falling victims to tuberculosis.

There would be little merit in restoring Belgium to a nation whose motherhood and youth we had allowed to be decimated and weakened by hunger and resulting disease. Let us at home carry on the relief work as unselfishly, as steadfastly and as successfully as our soldier boys are carrying on the fighting! If YOU have not been helping, now is the time to give a hand and do your bit.

Sunday Sermon For Those Who Do Not Go To Church

(By JAMES SUTHERLAND)

"THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST."

This subject has been the theme of all ages since the earliest period of mankind. Prophets, patriarchs, poet, and philosophers and bards have foretold the second advent, and away back in the first age, Enoch, the second from Adam, prophesied: "Behold the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints to execute judgment upon all and to convince all that are ungodly among them of all their ungodly deeds which sinners have spoken against them." Epistle of St. Jude, 1st Chap., 14th and 15th verses. Then in the 16th chap. of St. Mark, 19th verse: "So then after the Lord had spoken unto them he was received up into Heaven, and sat on the right hand of God. St. Luke, 24th chap., 50th and 51st verses. And he led them out as far as Bethany, and he lifted up his hands and blessed them; and it came to pass while he blessed them he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven. Acts 1 Chap., 9, 10, 11 verses. And when he had spoken these things while they beheld, he was taken up, and a cloud received him out of their sight; and while they looked steadfastly toward heaven as he went up, behold two men stood by them in white apparel, which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven, this same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven shall so come in like manner as we have seen him go into heaven.

In erecting a building, we see first that it has a solid foundation, so I have chosen the above passages of Scripture for my foundation to build my subject upon—"The Second Coming of Christ."

There are many other references all through the word of God telling of his second coming for his bride, the Church, the saved ones. There are many religious denominations holding various opinions on this, the most important subject, the return of our Lord. I will try in my own simple way to point out a few facts as recorded in the word of God, because I see a great necessity to bring this subject earnestly, faithfully and often before the people, just as we talk about our dear and loved ones that we have been parted from for years, but the time draws near when we are earnestly, lovingly and anxiously expecting to see them again with joy, and clasp them to our throbbing hearts. Such should be our soul's most earnest desire to meet our Saviour again. For we have his own personal promise in the upper room in Jerusalem, I will come again and receive you to myself, that where I am there ye may be also. In all Christ's addresses and in his teachings he presented his doctrine in tender and loving entreaty, drawing many of his illustrations from nature—the fig tree, the grass of the field, the lilies compared to King Solomon in all of his glory, the fowls of the air, the birds and even the sparrow, and the present subject he presented as a bridegroom coming for his bride. I have never heard this subject presented in this way, so it has been impressed on my heart to try and unfold the doctrine of Christ's second coming, relying only on Divine help.

The first reference refers to St. Jude (there is only one chapter in the book) 14th and 15th verses contain a statement of the coming of the Lord with ten thousand of his saints. There is no mention of this prophecy of Enoch in any other part or place of Scripture, yet one plain text of Scripture is proof enough of any point that we are required to believe. In the time of Enoch the coming of Christ to judge was then a received and an acknowledged fact.

An old saint says, What a glorious time that will be when the Lord cometh with his holy myriads of angels and spirits of just men made perfect. Lawrence, the eminent scholar, has translated from the "Ethiopic," the Book of Enoch, which was brought from Abyssinia by Bruce, and considers it to have been written by some Jew a short time before the Christian era. It does not appear to have been received into the sacred canon, and the quotation of a single passage will not prove the approbation of the whole book. The passage quoted by St. Jude forms what is called the 2nd chapter of the Book of Enoch, and is translated as follows:

"Behold he comes with ten thousand of his saints to execute judgment upon them, to destroy the wicked, and to reprove all the carnal for everything which the sinful and ungodly have done and committed against him."

St. Jude's comment on Enoch's prophesy is found nowhere else in the Bible, and it stirred me up for a long time to find out where St. Jude got this prophecy. In reading an old book, about 90 years old, I came upon this note which I have now given to you.

I now come to Thessalonians 4th chap., 14th, 15th and 16th verses. The Apostle Paul is comforting those who have fallen asleep in Christ, and says, Death is their undisturbed rest; they rest from all their labours, and they sleep in Jesus. Being still in union with him they are under his protection and care. Their souls are in his presence; they shall be raised up from the dead for God will bring them with him.

The doctrine of the Resurrection and the second coming of Christ is a great antidote against the fear of death—Christ being risen from the dead is become the first fruits of them that slept, therefore they who are fallen asleep in him are not perished or lost. 1st Cor. 15th, 18th and 20th. His resurrection is a full confirmation of all that is said in the Gospel, or by the word of the Lord, which has brought life and immortality to light. Their state and condition shall be glorious and happy at the second coming of Christ. Of this the apostle informs the Thessalonians by Divine revelation from the Lord Jesus. By this word of the Lord we know that the Lord Jesus will come down from heaven in all the pomp and power of the upper world. Verse 16. The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout. He will descend from heaven into this our air, verse 17. The appearance will be pomp and power, with the shout of a king and the pomp and authority of a mighty king and conqueror with the voice of the archangel. An innumerable company of angels will attend him, and the glorious appearance of this great Redeemer and Judge shall be proclaimed and ushered in by the trump of God. For the trumpet shall sound and that will wake them that sleep in the dust of the earth. The dead in Christ shall rise first, verse 16.

The first care of the Redeemer will be about his dead saints; he will rise raise them before the great change passes on those that shall be found alive; so that those who did not sleep in death will have no greater privilege or joy at that day than those who fell asleep in Jesus. Those found alive will then be changed. They shall be caught up in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air. Verse 17. Believers then alive will undergo a change so mysterious that we cannot comprehend it. 1 Cor. 15th chap., 51st vs. But this mortal must put on immortality, and these bodies shall be made fit to inherit the kingdom of God, of which flesh and blood in its present state is not capable. This change will be in a moment in the twinkling of an eye.

Yours sincerely,
James Sutherland,
352 1-2 Water Street, Peterborough.

SNOW AIDS CONVICT PURSUED BY DOGS

Fred Miller, Fleeing from Great Meadow Prison, Hides in Mountains Near Glens Falls.

Miller escaped just before four o'clock. He was missed about an hour later and the whistle at the prison was blown to summon all guards to make a search. The prison bloodhounds trailed the fugitive to this city during the day and then to French Mountain. One of the dogs became exhausted Saturday after covering thirty miles.

Among those who have been conducting the search for Miller is a young man serving a life sentence for murder, but it is expected that he will be released in about two and a half years. He is said to be a model prisoner and is pointed out as an example of what the Homer system accomplishes.

Miller was convited of grand larceny in Kings county and was sentenced March 2, 1915, to a term of six years and six months.

The Shell Shock Victim Never Has Exterior Wound

LONDON, Jan. 25. — It has been found that cases of shell-shock are far more common in the British armies than among the French or Germans, while in the Balkan and Turkish armies it is comparatively rare. This is probably due to the fact that British armies contain a larger proportion of men whose manner of living or whose occupations have made larger inroads on their store of nervous energy. Soldiers from cities or factory districts, for example are far more likely to become victims of shell-shock than men from the farms or the country.

Men suffering from shell shock are always unwounded. "No case of shell-shock is ever found to occur in a soldier who has a wound no matter how trivial," says a British medical report. "It appears that the rending of the flesh by a bullet or fragment of shrapnel acts as a sort of safety valve against nell-shock, localizing in the injury the destructive force that otherwise is spent on the nervous system.

"Here is a description of the typical case: A shell exploded in the vicinity of a soldier. He is unwounded, but violently shaken perhaps knocked over or buried. He loses his senses for a varying period, and his nervous system, having suffered a violent shaking, is no longer what it was. He starts at the least sound, he cannot sleep, he has pains in the head, and his hands are slightly tremulous.

"Some men, on recovering from unconsciousness are found to have lost the use of the special senses, sight, hearing or speech. This is a purely functional loss, and recoveries may occur at any time, weeks or months later, in a way suggesting that the age of miracles is not yet past. But the fact remains that a great many never recover, while others only improve under the most painstaking treatment.

"Hypnotism is occasionally successful, and rather good results are being obtained in other cases by simply placing the patient under chloroform. A man who had been deaf and dumb for three months was placed under light anaesthetic. During the struggling stage various incoherent sounds proceeded from his lips, and finally crystallized into words and the patient continued able to use his voice when he came out of his anaesthetic sleep.

"Quite a number of cases have been similarly treated with chloroform, the theory being that some great nervous shock is needed to cure a condition that has been originally caused by a shock, and that has been kept in being by the man's feeling of helplessness."

In addition there are many men who have never been subjected to sudden, violent contact with the explosion of a shell or mine, but who have broken down under the steady day-by-day strain of the trenches and the booming of the guns.

"In a mainly urbanized population like the British," says the report, "many are on the verge of neurasthenia—that is possess a nervous system whose energy is soon exhausted, and war acts as the immediate, pumping, exciting cause to tumble them over."

DOCTORS ADVISE IRON FOR THE BLOOD

Anaemia, pale faces, nervousness, stomach troubles, watery blood, etc., are evidence of thin blood. Dr. Malmprins says he can take any of these cases and cure any one of them in one dose by giving Iron for the blood, and Phosphorus for the nerves, called Bonised Phosphorus with Iron. I have found that 95 per cent. of all stomach, liver, kidney, bowel, nerve, etc., troubles are traced right back to the blood. Just as soon as Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is given it is absorbed immediately absorbed by the system the blood carries the Iron white the nerves are nourished by the phosphorus, therefore you eat better, feel better, look better, rest better, and finally you will be made 100 per cent. stronger. Do not try the ordinary all sorts of patent medicines and laxatives which only ruin your system; go to the root of the trouble and start taking Iron and strengthen your blood, restore your nerves, and your digestion and will recharge your whole system with new life. Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. G. Weber dispenses it for Peterboro.

HOGS STILL RISING AND SPRING PROSPECTS POOR

Scarcity of suitable feed has produced an unprecedented shortage of both live and dressed hogs, and prices are smashing records every day.

Many of the farmers in the community of Peterborough killed off their stock of hogs in the fall, because grain was so scarce and so high in price that it seemed impossible to use it for feed. In some instances pigs were killed when only half the usual size for market purposes. This necessitated killing twice as many as usual to meet the demand and hastened the situation which buyers now face.

The fact that brood sows were killed has dimmed the prospects of conditions improving in the spring. Government bulletins say that the price will reach $16 a hundredweight unless every possible effort is made to conserve the supply.

Hogs are quoted at $13.25 a cwt.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Mother's Emerald

A Love Story.

By AGNES G. BROGAN

When father first spoke of bringing the student to board I was glad. Any new companionship seemed promising. But when I considered that the student, being musical, might also be the possessor of an uncertain temperament my troubles appeared to be increasing. One like father was bad enough in any family, flying off on the slightest provocation into a fit of temper or, in his better moods, listening apparently with an appreciative smile as one related some personal incident, only to find at its conclusion that his mind had been engaged with some beloved "score." Nora, the cook, was my only comfort, and Nora had not what one might call an "understanding" mind.

Father told me his plan one evening with his customary tardiness. The student was to arrive at 8 o'clock and the south room to be prepared for his disposal. He was coming "free" upon condition of exchanging secretary work for lessons. This alone was a recommendation to the student's musical ability. Father would receive no pupil without promise of skill. Explicitly he named the young man as "his discovery." Eric Knowlson's future, he said, was assured. So I went to mother's picture about it. I have a way of going to mother's picture in all my joys and perplexities to receive advice from its soft eyes. You see mother left this world as I entered slipping out very silently before ever my baby arms could reach her.

"Mother," I sighed, "if we must have another man in this house, oh, let us hope that he may be a sane one!" My experience with men ended with father, and I fancied them all like him. Nora encouraged me in this belief. "They're all the very old devil," she said. And with her remark in my ears I ran into the music room and incidentally also into the student. The sudden encounter surprised him as much as it did me. He had been removing his violin from its case, whistling softly. His whistle stopped abruptly. Then after we had stared at each other awhile he bowed.

"Eric Knowlson," he explained.

"Mercy!" I exclaimed rudely. "I should never have guessed it. Not the violinist?"

"The same," he replied, "long hair and soulful eyes missing perhaps." He smiled. "Bound to be a failure, then. None of the essentials."

"I am Professor Ludlow's daughter," I stiffly reproved him, "and will show you to your room."

"It is my turn to say 'Mercy!' I never should have guessed it," the young man remarked pleasantly. "Your father has always spoken of you as 'my daughter, the housekeeper.' Naturally I imagined a staid, sensible appearing sort of person. Again, none of the essentials."

Suddenly my smile answered his. "You shall see," I challenged. So, with free and merry chatter, we found ourselves in the short space before dinner upon astonishingly friendly terms. It was father's forbidding presence which cast formality over the meal. Afterward, upon the top step of the stairs, I listened to their music, father at the piano, the student with his violin. And the sweet strains of the instrument at his charmed touch caused even me, surfeited with music, to linger. Into the "Spring Song" came a dominant, personal note, that was suddenly a clear, compelling call. Slowly I moved in answer down the stairs, then paused perplexedly in the doorway. The student smiled.

"I called you," he said daringly, "and I knew that you would come."

So our love began, abruptly, inexplicably.

One day Eric told me the story of his life. Uneventful it had been, yet one of sacrifice. His father, a violinist, had deserted Eric and his mother just as the lad was beginning to realize his inherited musical gift. After that he had quietly laid his ambition aside with his violin and turned to care for his mother. And now she was dead, now only had he dared to indulge his dreams, and father in a measure had made this possible. For himself money had not mattered, he said. There had been but one thing he coveted—a white marble stone for his mother's grave. This he must have. "And now there's you, Nance!" he cried. "I must have you!" Then he caught up my hand to look at my rings—mother's emerald and its tiny guard.

"Dear," he said, "at first I feared this costly ring might be significant."

"Oh, no!" I told him. "It has been the betrothal ring of our family, handed down for generations. Father's mother placed it upon my own dear mother's finger, and now that she is gone father trusts it to my keeping."

"It is of great value," Eric said, his eyes suddenly aglow as he bent over the wondrous stone; then with his first sign of impatience my lover turned from me.

"What is it?" I asked him, troubled.

"The jarring thought, perhaps, of our different stations," he replied—"your mother's costly emerald, my mother's unmarked grave."

The new sweater coats are embroidered.

SLANG OF THE BORDER

We hear and read quite a bit about the odd slang that originates in the trenches, and floats over to England, and from thence across seas to Canada but perhaps not more unique is it than the army slang brought to the "home folks" by guardsmen returning from duty on the Mexican-American border.

In a recent issue of the Providence Journal, a writer tells interestingly of the picturesque vocabulary in vogue on the border:

"Bring on the chow, only don't give me any slum," a guardsman told his mother on the night of his return from the Mexican border. His mother naturally demanded a translation.

"Why chow is the army term for anything good to eat," the guardsman explained. "Slum means soup. I might say: 'Bring on the eats, only don't give me any soup.' That would be perfectly plain."

Many of the guardsmen have come home from the border with an enriched and picturesque vocabulary. Part of it is regular army slang; part of it is mongrel Spanish; it has sometimes shocked and sometimes amused the home folks. Most of the army slang relates to chow. That is almost the most important subject of conversation in the army, anyway. But the faltering Spanish phrases are an embellishment.

"Please pass me the blood," a returned guardsman is apt to say, pointing to the catsup. 'Gracias,' he will say, when his wish has been fulfilled. Hardly anyone on the border says "Thank you." It is 'gracias' and 'gracias' it will be with the guardsman for a long time to come.

CORNED WILLIE.

Nearly everyone, even those not connected with the army knows that "corned Willie" is canned corned beef. The returned guardsman hope they may never see it again. Some people are going to be surprised, however, when they hear guardsmen referring to "Ole Bill." This is not a departed comrade, merely "corned Willie" under another alias.

Returned guardsmen say they have sworn off drinking "blackjeg." "Black leg" is strong drink, not alcoholic, however, simply the powerful black coffee served in the army to wash down the "Willie."

Beans are apt to be called "bullets" or "berries" in the army, according to their condition. Hot cereals may be called "bran" or "oats." Potatoes, are course, are "spuds" or "Murphies." All other vegetables are "greens."

There is a little song which the men sing to the notes of the mess call, a complaint more often made in fun than in earnest. It goes:

Soupy, soupy, soupy,
Without e'er a bean;
Porky, porky, porky,
Without any lean;
Coffee, coffee, coffee,
The worst you ever seen.

The ungrammatical conclusion of the verse is conscientious. Grammar isn't popular in the ranks of the army and some of the Rhode Island men will have to practice to regain their old-time correctness of speech.

Already men have borrowed from the circus in calling their mess halls the "big top." Mess kits are called "china," and that is a real touch of humor. The mess sergeant is sometimes called "the mess," and that, perhaps, is an unfair and deceptive abbreviation.

Finally, of all the slang pertaining to chow, there is the "galloping goulash," otherwise known as the "cooks mounted," or the "kitchen chariot." The worst thing about the "galloping goulash" is that its chief production is "slops," thin soup not considered worthy to be called "skush."

ON THE PICKET LINE.

Some of the strangest language in the army is heard on the picket line. Horses are frequently called "goats" or "sheep." Occasionally there is a "camel," "giraffe" or a "juggernaut." The term "outlaw" for a wild horse is not unusual although the name "corralbe," common in Butter A. is.

Automobile and horse terms have become crossed in some mysterious manner. The auto driver speaks of putting a 'shoe' on his machine. In the army the horseshoer puts "tires" on the mules. Long before the Rhode Island militiaman went to the border, a captain was the 'old man' or the "skipper." They have picked up other names for the officers on the border.

A lieutenant just out of West Point is a "shave-tail," because he has just changed his long cadet coat for the service uniform. A general is a "big chief." A colonel is an "eagle," because of his insignia. Other officers get any names that come handy.

Even the non-coms. have special names. The first sergeant is always the "top." Any sergeant is a "sarge" and any corporal "corp." Signal men are known as "boys with flags."

THE DOUGH BOYS.

Infantrymen are always "dough boys," and this term has never been sufficiently explained. One theory is that the infantrymen wrap their feet in fresh bread dough when they get swelled from long marching.

A man who has served on the border will probably not say cavalry soon again. In the ranks of the army, cavalry is always "calvary." It is bad form to call it anything else in enlisted men's circles.

One term which the Rhode Island guardsmen picked up on the border is the Spanish "aberrotes" for groceries. On the trip home whenever a stop was made, a general store was always hailed with a shout "aberrotes."

"Ciudad," the Spanish for city, is another word adopted by many of the men. Likewise there is "toros" for bull and sometimes for beef. "Adois" is the word used by most of the guardsmen in saying good-bye to anyone.

As long as the border service is remembered, mud of any kind will be "dobe" to the militiamen. Adobe mud is really peculiar to the border country and Mexico, but nevertheless all mud is "dobe."

Probably the strangest habit of speech formed by the Rhode Island guardsman on the border was calling camp "home." That, however, is a habit already forgotten.—From the Providence Journal.

RUTHENIANS BACK EMPIRE

Manitoba Member Replies to Dixon and Rigg.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 25.—A rebuke to F. C. Dixon and R. A. Rigg, members of the Legislature, who recently made anti-war and anti-registration speeches, was administered in the Legislature, yesterday, by T. D. Ferley, member for Gimli, who is of Ruthernian birth and the representative of the Legislature of a Ruthenian population.

Ferley declared that while some of the things said by the two members might be well enough in times of peace, they should not be uttered now. He declared the winning of the war was the paramount issue. The Ruthenian population in Canada came largely from Austria, a power with which Canada was now at war, but the Ruthenians were loyal to their adopted country. They had left Austria because they had been denied liberty, and coming here they had found the liberty they desired. Many of the young men were fighting beside the Canadians for the preservation of that liberty. Ruthenian lawyers were aiding the patriotic movements and rumours that they were hostile and prepared for an uprising were absolutely false and malicious.

Jacques Parent, French member for Morris, could not understand the attitude of Messrs. Dixon and Rigg, in view of the fact that each have relatives in the army. He believed that if they gave the matter careful consideration, within fifteen days they would be in khaki.

HERO'S WIDOW RECEIVES REWARD.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 25.—The widow of James A. Fraser, Paris, Ont., was awarded a silver medal, $50 a month until further notice, and $5 a month additional for each of three children until they reach the age of sixteen by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission in recognition of her husband's courageous attempt to save the life of Gloria M. Stein-Adamson, Canada G. Dunkater and Marion Thomson from drowning in 1916, in the Grand River, when he himself perished.

"Can anybody here tell me about Good Friday?" he asked of the class of slum children.

"Sure," replied the boy in the corner. "He was the guy that done the chores for Robinson Crusoe."

Child Was Nervous, Irritable, Tired Out

She Had No Appetite and Her Complexion Was Pale and Sallow

How many parents realize the strain which going to school means to the child who is naturally nervous and of delicate health?

You see them come from the schools daily with pale faces, many wearing glasses, and looking tired and worn. At home they are irritable, do not sleep well at nights, and are upset by a little extra excitement.

If they are to grow to healthy manhood and womanhood their systems must have attention now. Such treatment was Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does wonders for children in this condition. We are constantly receiving letters from grateful parents telling what the Nerve Food has done for their children. This one is a fair sample:

Mrs. Stephen Hartman, Italy Cross, Lunenburg Co., N.S., writes: "My little sister at eleven years of age became nervous, irritable and seemed all tired out. She had no appetite, was noticeable and it was wonderful pierion grew pale and sallow. Finally she had to keep her bed and have somebody with her all the time. She was afraid of everything, would get excited and tremble till the bed would shake. As she seemed to be getting worse under the doctor's treatment, mother decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. After she had used about four boxes, improvement was lifeless and drowsy and her color to see how much brighter and stronger she grew week by week. She used ten boxes altogether and they cured her. She got fat and rosy and went to school every day with an ambition that she never seemed to have before. I do not hesitate to recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to anyone, for it was indeed wonderful what it did for her."

Completion of the Trent Valley Canal Will Be a Boon to Peterboro and The Surrounding Country

The Waterway will Provide an All-Water Route from the Georgian Bay to the Atlantic Seaboard. Will Open Up a Country Rich in Natural Resouces and Serves a Population larger than some of the Provinces of the Dominion. Canal when Complete will be about 200 Miles in Length.

The Ottawa Deputation Waited Upon the Government

ON THURSDAY of this week a deputation, comprising members of the City and County Councils, and also the Parliamentary representatives for Peterborough and constituencies bordering on the Trent Valley Canal, waited upon the Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, at Ottawa, with a view of advocating the speedy completion of the Trent Waterway. It was not an epoch-making event, as in years past deputations have visited Ottawa on a similar mission, and with probably as satisfactory results. The deputation that visited the capital this week received a very attentive hearing, and was informed that the work of completing the Canal would be proceeded with if present financial conditions would warrant the necessary expenditure; if not, the work would be taken up as soon after the war as possible. That the Government is impressed with the necessity of completing the work goes without saying, as time and again, representatives of the Government have expressed their approval of the Waterway and urged its completion.

Canal Possesses Superior Advantages to Erie Canal

The Trent Canal possesses far superior advantages as compared with the Erie Canal through New York State, and which has been of such great service in the development of the country through which it passes, also as a regulator of freight rates. The Erie Canal is a barge canal, and the locks measure only 110 feet by 18 feet, while the locks on the Trent Waterway are 134 feet by 33 feet. The depth of water on the sills of some of the locks of the Trent Canal is 8 feet 4 inches, but in some of the older locks the depth is 6 feet. With a draught of 6 feet, barges on the Trent Waterway will be capable of carrying 18,000 bushels, while the capacity of the barges on the Erie Canal are 8,000 bushels. Further, the distance from Sault Ste Marie to New York by the Erie Canal is 1,094 miles, while the distance from the same point to Montreal by the Trent Waterway is 687 miles, or a saving of over four hundred miles by the Trent route. With this advantage of a shorter distance and the further advantage of greater speed, a double trip could easily be made on the Trent Waterway in less time than a single trip by the Erie route.

Waterway Will Open Up Country Rich in Resources

Properly speaking, the Trent Waterway is not a canal, for it is made up of a series of navigable rivers and lakes connected by locks and short canals, so that a steam barge towing four consorts could travel at full speed almost the entire distance from the Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario. While the entire length of the Canal is approximately two hundred miles, there is a shore line of about one thousand miles, due to the number of connecting navigable rivers and lakes through which the canal passes. In this district the waterway will serve a population larger than some of the provinces of the Dominion. Within ten miles of the shore lines there are six million acres of forest, mineral and agricultural land. The completion of the Trent Waterway will make available these vast quantities of minerals, which are now unproductive. The district is particularly rich in iron ore, but owing to the cost of transportation, valuable deposits are lying idle. The same applies to the timber wealth of the district, and the lowering of transportation rates on agricultural products would increase the value of every acre of farm land.

Royal Commissions Have Approved of the Work

Two Royal Commissions have recommended the completion of the waterway. The administration of Sir John A. Macdonald appointed a commission for the special purpose of enquiring into the practicability and usefulness of the Trent route. This commission was composed of His Honour the late Judge Weller of Peterborough, Mr. John Kennedy, civil engineer of Montreal, and Mr. Walter Shanley. The Royal Commission on Transportation, appointed by the Government, also considered this route, and recommended that the work be completed as soon as possible. While the completion of the waterway would be of advantage in the conveyance of freight from the West to the East, it would also be of great advantage to manufacturers and other shippers in the transportation of heavy freight from the East to the West. The boat that conveyed the wheat and other products from Georgian Bay to Montreal would call for return freight and provide a cheap means of transportation to Western points. The completion of the waterway is asked for in the interests of the country and the populous district through which it passes. Its completion will benefit every individual in the community, and will provide cheaper transportation for manufacturers.

A Through Water Route

The waterway is practically completed from Lake Simcoe to Lake Ontario. The only important thing remaining to be done is the raising of the Grand Trunk Railway bridge at Campbellford. This is a matter that rests with the Railway Company, and the work will be completed at an early date. At the north end of the waterway, about fourteen miles remain to be completed. Two sections of this length is under contract, and the third remains to be let. When complete, the waterway will provide a through water route from the Georgian Bay to the Atlantic, via the River St. Lawrence. Peterborough is one of the chief centres on the route.

In Bordeaux, an Important French Seaport - A Torpedoed Submarine Transport

Women acting as longshoremen in Bordeaux. They are seen unloading a steamer from New York. (To the left.)

Another view of women in Bordeaux. The City Council has authorised the company to take on women to man their cars. (Picture to the right.)

The picture beneath shows an armoured trench, also bomb proof. It was constructed on the Italian front.

The submarine transport "Kangaroo," which was torpedoed on a trip to South Africa. These vessels render great service to disabled submarines, and repairs may be carried out with comparative ease. (Picture above, to right.)

Another view of the submarine transport "Kangaroo," showing the interior and method of transporting submarines. (To the left.)

Shells in the Making -- The Interior of a British Submarine

Inspecting and weighing a shell after it has been painted and dried. Each shell must weigh no more than one-fifth of an ounce over or above its specified weight.

Steel body forgings which form the body of the shell. These forgings for six-inch high explosive shells have as yet received no treatment by lathes or other finishing machinery. The nose pieces are shown to the right.

The nose pieces for six-inch shells, as they are received at the ammunition plant. These points or nose pieces can be unscrewed from the body for loading at the front.

The result of successful shooting by the British artillery. A section of German railway on the Ancre torn up by high explosives. The picture gives an idea of the extremely muddy condition that the battlefields are in, and which makes transportation such a serious problem. Speaking in Parliament, Captain Shaw, M.P., said that "the outstanding feature in the Somme is simply mud."

A scene of activity on the Delaware River, near Baltimore. It is said that this river's merchant shipping is approaching to that of Glasgow, which is now the foremost shipbuilding centre of the world.

The interior of a British submarine, showing the commander with his eye at the periscope. He is the eye, the brain and the hand of the craft, and directs and controls all operation connected with an attack.

Britain's director of National Service, Mr. Neville Chamberlain. He will proceed to organise a great new system of enrolment for industrial purposes. Mr. Chamberlain is the second son of the late Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, and is forty-seven years of age.

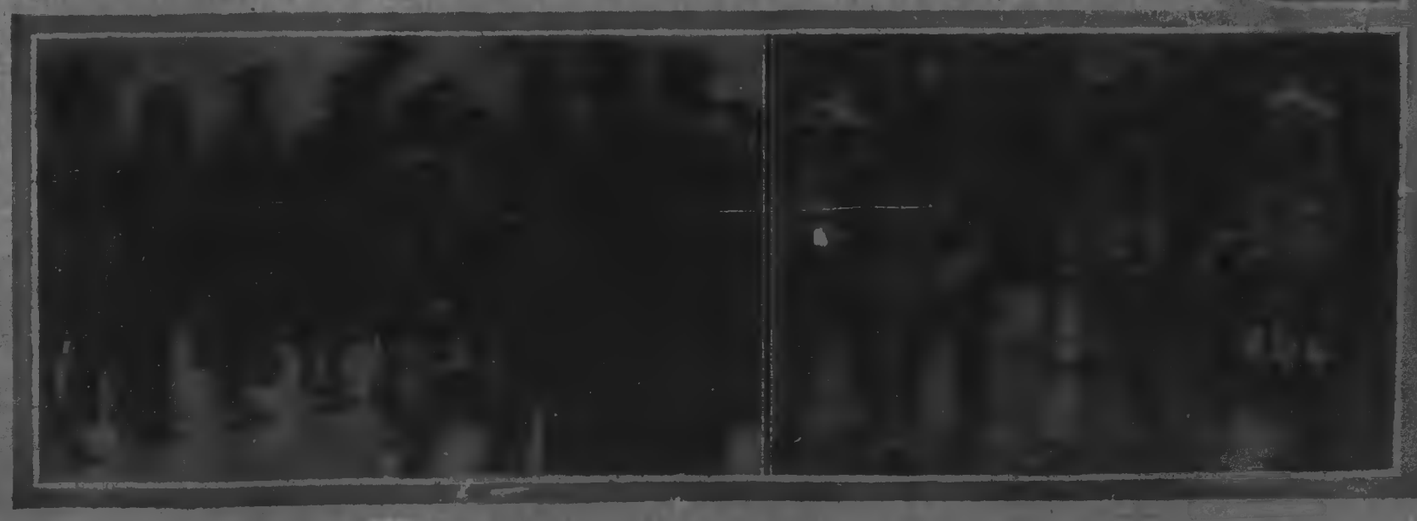
American Submarines Visit Cuban Capital — Red Indians in Glasgow

Officials of the city of Havana leaving submarine L2 after a ceremonious visit to Group L of the United States submarine division on its recent visit to the Cuban capital, said to have been the first time American submarines have visited that city.

The horse-supply of our yeomanry. Arabs and "Walers," as the big-boned, fifteen to sixteen hands weight-carrying Australian horses are generally called (from their principal place of origin, New South Wales) are employed for mounting our cavalry regiments almost everywhere outside Europe. In hot countries, such as India and Egypt, Arabs and "Walers" stand the climate well.

British troops crossing a stream among the hills behind Salonika. The long column of men is seen winding its way through the scrub-covered hills and across a shallow stream. The British position has recently been out on the right flank of the Allied position.

The arrival of the mails—Parcels from home. The Christmas mail for the front has been larger than ever this year, and the Post Office has been despatching parcels to the soldiers at the rate of a quarter of a million a day. The picture shows a few of them arriving at their destination at the front. (To the right.)



A number of Canadian Indians have enrolled in certain Canadian battalions. Some have been, and are, at the front, where they have done useful work; others are on the way there. The famous "Six Nations," of which the historic Mohawks are the leading tribe, sent 150 recruits last year from the Indian Reserves in Ontario. They have trained in Scotland, and are shortly to start for the front. A few days ago they were invited to visit Glasgow and meet the Lord Provost at the City Chambers. The upper illustration show the contingent marching through the streets, all in khaki except four chiefs who—for the occasion—headed the party in Indian full dress. The lower illustration shows Sir Thomas Dunlop speaking to the Chief "Clear Sky."

A French lorry comes to grief on the road to Monastir. Such a scene evokes no commotion. The crew just leave it—if they can—and make their way headquarterswards. Perhaps some one may come back some day and resurrect it.

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH DENOUNCED BY GARDNER

Special to The Examiner.

WASHINGTON, January 27. — An international court and league to enforce peace, as proposed by President Wilson in his recent address before the United States Senate, might draw the United States into a European or an Asiatic war, Representative Augustus P. Gardner, Massachusetts, declared before the National Security League here to-day. Gardner denounced the President's speech, derided the idea of a "peace without victory," and denied the practicability of a "concert of nations" to enforce "a lasting peace."

"President Wilson," Gardner said, "is gambling for a place in history with our national security as his stake."

Miss Law was in splendid health and spirits.

MAYOR THANKED THE COUNTY FOR JOINING CANAL DEPUTATION

Opinion Prevails That Hon. Frank Cochrane was Impressed by the Case Presented for Early Completion of the Canal

BUSY SESSION FOR COUNCIL

At last night's special meeting of the County Council, Mayor Duffus conveyed the city's thanks to the Warden and members for their ready and generous response to the request that the county strengthen the local deputation which urged the early completion of the Trent Canal in an intreview with the Hon. Frank Cochrane.

When the city's invitation was received on Wednesday morning the County Council as a whole was not fully conversant with Peterborough's immediate necessity of unqualified assurance that the canal will be built as soon as possible. The deputation asked the Minister that it be completed within four years. The county fathers at first proposed to send six or eight of its members, but as the discussion proceeded it was felt that the city deputation, composed of members of the Council and prominent business men, should be strongly reinforced by a county representation.

It is generally known that the completion of the canal is regarded as of paramount importance to the Quaker Oats Company, and will be a decided advantage when, as it is expected, the factory will be rebuilt here. Arguing from that point, Reeve Griffith, of Belmont, illustrated the importance of the canal's completion to Havelock. He was followed by Reeve Matheson, of Havelock; Reeve Squire, of Norwood; Reeve Fitzgerald, of Lakefield, and Reeve Anderson, of Otonabee, who agreed that the whole matter was of vital interest to the city, and in scarcely a less degree to the county. It was therefore decided that as many of the members as possible should accompany the deputation. Special night sessions were held in order to complete the business, and the Council returned Friday morning and resumed activity.

Hence, the session that closed to-day proved an unusually strenuous one, and, moreover, the county and city were brought closer together on two important present questions of local concern, the completion of the canal at an early date and the adoption of the county good roads scheme.

The opinion of city and county delegates to Ottawa was that the city had presented a strong case, and impressed the Minister. Capt. Burnham actively interested himself in the preparatory work, lined up the representatives of constituencies along the canal and introduced the deputation.

Flooded Lands On Trent Canal

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.—This morning Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., and Mr. Plaiston for the Government of Canada, appeared before Judge Audette of the Exchequer Court on the return of a summons to fix the date of trial of Hopwood versus the King. An order was granted to set down the trial for February 26th at 11 o'clock. This is a test Trent Canal case of flooding lands above Buckhorn Dam which it is claimed was raised when the dam was rebuilt. These claims have been pending for years and will all come in under this case.

MOCK PARLIAMENT

Premier Introduces Long Awaited Military Service Bill

The Mock Parliament at Victoria Hall held its first session last night, when the Premier introduced his long awaited Military Service Bill. The Opposition is greatly handicapped by the unavoidable absence of its leader. After a short criticism of the bill by the acting leader of the Opposition, the Premier gave a very convincing speech, outlining the objects of the bill, which brought down a further criticism by the Opposition, but it was effectively met by other members of the Government.

After the first and second readings, the House went into committee of the whole, and passed the first two clauses.

At 10 o'clock the Premier moved the adjournment until Feb. 9th.

Two Peterboro' Boys Die For The Empire

PTE. FRANK BIRDGENAW, 281 Perry Street, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, killed in action on Jan. 17th.

PTE. FRED WICKER, 317 Mark street, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, killed in action on Jan. 17th.

Two More Peterboro' Soldiers Have Made The Supreme Sacrifice

Ptes. Frank Birdgenaw and Fred Wicker Formerly of the 93rd Battalion Were Killed in Action on Jan. 17th --Church Parade For the 247th Battalion To-morrow ---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Two more members of the 93rd Battalion have made the supreme sacrifice at the front.

This morning Mr. John Birdgenaw, 281 Perry Street, received official word from Ottawa that his son, Pte. Frank Birdgenaw, Canadian Infantry, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, was killed in action on Jan. 17th. Pte Birdgenaw was one of the first Peterborough boys to join the 93rd Battalion, enlisting in the first week of August, 1915. His brother, Pte. Dan Birdgenaw, also enlisted in the same unit and the two went overseas as members of A Company of the 93rd, afterwards being transferred to other Canadian battalions at the front. Pte. Birdgenaw was born in Canada, the family coming to Peterborough a number of years ago from Lindsay. Pte. Birdgenaw was a quiet, likeable boy, who was popular with his comrades.

PTE. WICKER KILLED.

Mr. Ed. Wicker, 317 Mark Street, received an official message from Ottawa this morning, informing him of the sad news that his son, Pte. Fred. Wicker, Canadian Infantry, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, is officially reported killed in action on Jan. 17th. Pte. Wicker, who was born in Canada, was employed by J. T. Braund before enlisting. Before the war he was a member of the 57th Regiment. Pte. Wicker joined the 93rd Battalion soon after it had been authorized, and was a member of A Company, among the members of which he was held in high esteem. Pte. Wicker was a member of the Orange Order. Another brother, Pte. Edward Wicker, is with the 204th Battalion (Beavers) Toronto.

Mrs. A. Stanley of the Soldiers' Wives and Mother's Club has received the following letter from Pte. P. D. Ryan, formerly of the 93rd Battalion:

Dec. 24th, 1916.

Dear Mrs. Stanley,— Received your card about a week ago and yesterday, Saturday, 23rd, your most welcome parcel of socks came. You cannot imagine how pleased the boys were to get them. In fact they were a veritable God-send as the weather is playing us some dirty tricks these days. I cannot for the life of me imagine why this country managed to get the name of Sunny France, for it has rained ever since we came here. We are not having too bad a time over here considering, but still you know we have to grumble, for if we didn't do that we would not be men. Well, I have not much news at present and have to write home, for if I don't, well, (you know what mothers are,) I shall get some calling down. Well, I guess I will have to give my pen a rest, so good-bye. Please thank all the members of the Club for the socks I remain,

Yours truly,
PAT D. RYAN

Two Havelock boys, Frank Stanley and J. H. Bernard have become members of the 247th Battalion.

TO-DAY'S ORDERS.

Daily orders by Lieutenant-Colonel C. H. Ackerman, commanding 247th Bn., C.E.F.:

Orders for Saturday, January 27th, 1917:

A. E. BRITTAIN,
Lieut., Adjutant,
247th Overseas Bn., C. E. F.

Mrs. J. Knox of the Canadian Kitchener League, has received the following letters:

Officers Hospital,
Auntie Grange,
Surrey, Eng.

Dear Mrs. Knox,—Many thanks for your kind letter and invitation to the Kitchener dance. Although not able to be present, I appreciate the invitation just the same.

I also wish to thank you, Mrs. Knox, for sending me the box of soldiers' comforts. Although I am not in France, now having been invalided to England for a while, I left orders that any parcels coming for me should be given to the boys of my platoon. They need them worse than I do and will be very glad of them. With regards to the needs of men I may say that what they need most is socks, especially in the winter when the trenches are in such bad condition. Of course they can always get the Army issue socks, but these do not compare with the warm, home-knit ones.

When I return to France I will let you know and I would then be very glad of socks for my boys.

Wishing you, Mrs. Knox, and the Kitchener Club every success in the very noble work you are doing. I am,

Yours sincerely
L. J. Stuart,
1st Canadians.

France, Jan. 4, 1917.

Mrs. Jas. Knox,

Dear Friend,—Received your letter of Nov. 20th some time ago regarding a box of soldiers' comforts, and it got to us on New Year's Day, a very appropriate day to arrive and we were out for a six days' rest as well. I did the best I could to distribute everything as well as I could amongst the old 93rd fellows, and we sure did appreciate each and all of the many articles contained therein. Unfortunately there were some who could not be at the feast, but they will be somewhere else perhaps, feasting. The weather is very nice over here, only damp, but does not seem to get cold. Most of the boys who came to this battalion are well. Of course we have had some casualties, but very few as yet compared with some of the others. We sometimes dwell on old Peterborough until quite late and wish we could wake up and find ourselves there or near about, but

MAKES SERIOUS CHARGES AGAINST THE PREMIER

SECOND IMPRESSION OF WILSON'S ADDRESS CHANGES THE VIEW

English Commentators Discover, that Terms of President's Speech Were Identical with the Purpose of Allies

RESENTMENT AT FIRST

BY T. P. O'Connor

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The first and the second impression of President Wilson's address to the Senate, differ considerably. The first impression produced the same presentment as the President's note to the belligerents, or the same presentment as son apparently saw no moral distinction between the cause of the Allies and German militarism.

To confound the Allies, fighting for national rights of small nations and freedom and peace, with the perjured, butchers of Belgium, the murderers of the Lusitania victims and the confederates of the Armenian atrocities, was too great a demand on the patience of the Allies. A further reading between the lines of the note suggested that President Wilson had no such confusion in his mind and implied his condemnation of German policy by his conventionally polite acceptance of her now peaceful purposes. Similarly when President Wilson's speech again seemed to suggest an analogy between the Allied and the German purpose there was the same instinctive and almost shuddering revolt, especially during the week bringing further details of the horrors of the deportations of the Belgians and the execution of a poor letter-carrier's young daughter of sixteen for alleged espionage.

But when the terms President Wilson sets forth as a proper ending for the war, were further examined, English commentators discovered to their delight, that these terms were absolutely identical with the avowed purpose of the Allies. This lead to the comforting feeling that President Wilson wanted the same things as the Allies and that his co-operation in enforcing these terms might be counted on when peace is discussed. This lead to a quiet admiration of the adroitness of the speech, which while suggesting an impassive frigid attitude of equal judgment on both belligerents, really as a matter of fact throws President Wilson to the side of the Allies. Scepticism, however, prevails of President Wilson's ability to get the United States to enter on policy so entirely different from all its traditions as to actively co-operate with a peace league backed by the force of many nations.

LLOYD GEORGE'S FRENCH.

I dined with Premier David Lloyd George this week for the first time since he became head of the British Ministry. He looks well and cheerful and has already begun to overcome his bashfulness in speaking French and now follows easily all French speeches, especially those of Premier Briand.

At the very moment when a number of old fogey educationalists are screaming for the retention of Latin and Greek as the universal form of educational training in this country, there never was more abundant evidence of the handicap that the prejudice and ignorance of Continental tongues has imposed on British statesmanship. With Allies all over Europe, not only to consult but largely to guide and to persuade, there are scarcely any men in the front ranks either of the form or the field who can speak any language but their own. Extraordinary, and of course, undesirable results follow. Sometimes the results may be described as even disastrous. I have heard for instance that on one occasion Mr. Asquith and Mr. Lloyd George went over to a Continental conference with a certain very definite policy in their minds on which they were in thorough agreement; but they failed to carry their point largely because the discussion was almost entirely in French, and the French speakers accordingly were able to get to the mind of the Conference much more promptly and effectively than the English speakers

Mr. J. G. Turriff, Member for Assiniboia Asks For Parliamentary Committee of Investigation and Promises to Prove His Charges "to the Hilt."

STARTLED THE HOUSE

OTTAWA, Jan. 26.—Two specific and serious charges were preferred directly against Sir Robert Borden, the Premier, by Mr. J. G. Turriff, member for Assiniboia, at to-night's sitting of Parliament. Mr. Turriff asked for a Parliamentary committee of investigation, and undertook, if such were granted, to prove the charges "to the hilt."

Mr. Turriff charged, in the first place, that the Government — "and particularly the Prime Minister" — had maintained the Nationalist alliance, the appointment of Nationalist members in the Cabinet, for "the one and only purpose of preventing recruiting in Quebec," and thereby providing material for a racial appeal to the electors of the English-speaking Provinces at the next general election.

Mr. Turriff charged, secondly, that when the representatives of the Ontario Recruiting Committee had waited upon the Premier last spring in private conference Sir Robert Borden had "intimated that if he had his way there would be no more recruiting in Canada, and the attention of the Canadian people would be turned to the development of their industries."

Charges Startle the House.

Both charges caused a sensation in the House, and sharp interchanges, in which the Ministers participated. Mr. Turriff declined to make public his authorities at the present time, but applied for a committee of investigation in order that he might establish his charges against the Premier. Mr. Turriff spoke with the grim earnestness of a man who had recently lost his only son killed in action.

Additional Charges Made.

In addition to his charges as to the deliberate policy of slacking up on recruiting, and as to the nefarious ends of the Nationalist-Conservative alliance, Mr. Turriff charged that at least one hundred million dollars has been wasted through recruiting units — 60,000 of them rejected just before their battalions sailed for England, and 30,000 now in England who could never get to the front.

Finally he charged that hundreds and thousands of Canadian lives had been sacrificed because the Government kept the Canadians armed with an unserviceable rifle for nearly a full year after the Government knew, or at least should have known, the rifle had become unserviceable. He declared this charge, too, would be proved to the hilt before the session ended.

DON'T PUT IT OFF.

If you think your eyes need attention why keep putting it off? They only grow worse with delay. Call and let Dr. Lacey examine them for you. He can tell you what the trouble is. 410 George Street.

CONGRATULATIONS TO TORONTO.

We have many reasons to be proud of Toronto as the capital city of the Province; and now we have the greatest reason of all. We must, and do, congratulate Toronto, heartily upon the splendid issue of her three days' Patriotic Fund campaign. The Queen City has raised three and a quarter million dollars, a really splendid achievement—a million and more dollars a day. Well done, Toronto! The city has done well in other ways, it has the largest record for recruiting in the Dominion. A championship in soap and money, too, is something Toronto can be proud of. And the rest of the Dominion, city, town and village, and given heartiest congratulations.

AN EXCELLENT REPORT.

The report of the annual general meeting of the Toronto Railway and Power Company will be agreeable reading. It not only shows a prosperous and successful year for a young and growing strong company, but records the pleasant fact of prosperity among the clients of the company and the general public.

The net earnings of the Company, after payment of expenses, of management and other claims, amounted to $1,843,444.35, which, including the balance brought forward from 1915, and $100,000 transferred to it out of $300,747.65, available for distribution or apportionment. Of this $400,000 was devoted to the payment of four quarterly dividends, at the satisfactory rate of 10 per cent. for the year. The sum of $400,000 was transferred to the Reserve Fund, increasing its total to the strong position of $1,200,000, equal to the total paid-up capital. These distributions constituted the addition of $636,747.08 to the profit and Loss account, making its total $296,147.08. On the whole, the results of the year's operations are not only satisfactory in themselves but also as indicating efficient management, and a large place in the confidence of the public.

Mr. H. G. Dee was elected president; Messrs. W. D. Matthews and Rudolph Hall, vice-presidents, and Messrs. D. W. Dumble, E. T. Malone, K.C., and R. E. Wood, directors.

SHORT-SIGHTED.

The Elgin County School Trustees' Association has put itself out of touch with the spirit of the times the present time calls for. It has placed itself on record as opposed to military training in schools, on the ground that "it would result in the development of the military spirit, while it would individually spoil the child." It is difficult to see by what process of reasoning, or exercise of prejudice—for there is no reasoning nor reason that goes to the adoption of such a decision—the trustees took such a stand. As to the development of the military spirit it is as logical to claim that teaching children in school the duty of loyalty and patriotism develops the military spirit, for at the present time it is only in the response to the military spirit that patriotism and loyalty find, or should find, expression. If we had had more military training in our schools we should doubtless have had a larger response to the call for recruits. The Elgin system evidently confound legitimate military spirit with the malicious spirit of militarism—two things as different and antagonistic as religion and bigotry. The military spirit leads to preparedness to be at hand when the country needs defence—and Canada is attacked by a ruthless enemy, though the fighting frontier is three thousand miles away, Canada is virtually just as much attacked as if the enemy were at our gates, for if we do not win this war Canada will have to listen to the warning of Samson of old: "The Philistines be upon thee". And if we are shorn of our strength by failure to do our duty in obedience to the call of the true military spirit, we shall soon the fate of the foolish Asburite. "The true

A NATIONAL GOVERNMENT.

Mr. W. F. McLean, a prominent and able member of the Conservative contingent in Parliament, made an earnest appeal yesterday for the formation of a National Government that would secure the best elements of Canadianism, and secure united and effective work in administering Canada's share in waging war.

He with thousands of other loyal Conservatives, who desire that Canada should do her duty more effectively and fully, is convinced that there is need for a new crew for the ship of state. There is nothing disloyal nor radical in such a proposal. In Great Britain they now have their third—a national government—and if the spirit of the nation, the demands for speeding up war work, was met by the formation of a new government, that certainly presents a justifiable precedent to similar action in Canada.

The present government has been in power during the whole course of the war, and for three or four years previously. It was not a war cabinet, such as they now have had two of in Great Britain. It was an opportunist cabinet and was founded on conditions quite hostile to the spirit that should animate a war cabinet. It was a cabinet held together by the support of a faction that held that Canada had no duty to discharge in this war; and that faction is the dominating influence yet. Why have we how convicting results in Quebec? Simply because Quebec is represented in the Borden Cabinet by ministers who are hostile to the duty of Canada participating in the Empire's wars. How would Ontario have answered the call to arms, if the ministers from this province, with the same reasonable sentiments as the Nationalist ministers in the Borden government had been given the fattest portfolios—simply because they represented a political faction that had for years, with the party blessing, been preaching treason and disloyalty. How the present composition of the government affects recruiting in Quebec is distinctly plain. Even the government as a whole, has, by official leading and enthusiasm, by the use of government personal influence and government machinery, done little for recruiting. The splendid response has been almost entirely due to the voluntary spirit and the activities of private citizens, organized for the purpose. Nor has the general administration of war waging interest been more satisfactory—nor has it failed to justify the demand of one of Sir Robert Borden's supporters for a war cabinet that would be secured by the union of men of both parties, in the formation of a strong, effective and efficient war government, freed from party entanglements."

The proposal for a National Government comes from a supporter of the present government, and is free from party bias. In the event of such a government being formed, one cannot forecast who will compose it, but one can very certainly assert what it will not contain, if the views of the loyal citizens of Canada are met—it will contain, if the views of the loyal National, not a Nationalist, Government.

THE ONLY WAY.

Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, very neatly counters on President Wilson's absurd plea for "peace without victory," by pointing out that if the allied nations now consent to peace it must be a peace based on victory; otherwise—

"It would mean a peace which would leave the German military machine unbroken, with the halo of victory surrounding it. It would leave the control of that machine in the hands of the same men who for a generation prepared for war, who mean to make the same preparation again and would choose their own time to again plunge the world in the horrors we are now enduring."

Here is the explanation in a nutshell why the war must go on till we have peace, with victory of the powers that stand for peace and the triumph of the principles upon which only enduring peace can be possible. President Wilson professes, and no doubt sincerely desires, to see peace come; but his desire and ours in this direction cannot be realised, except on one condition. From our point of view there is only one way of realizing the peace for which we are warring, and that is to fight on, to fight our own battles. To take President Wilson's advice now would be to fight Germany's battles. What she is fighting for is the subjugation of all principles of right and international relationships to her own greed of domination. If she is unbeaten she will be victorious, and the history of the past three years shows us what use she will make of her power to do wrong, if that power is left to her.

AN INDEPENDENT JOURNAL'S VIEW OF "INVINCIBLE PARTIZANSHIP"

It may be, as the Hamilton Spectator asserts, that the cooperation of the political leaders in the organization of a truly national government is impossible to-day. But we should suppose that the Spectator's readers would desire a better reason than that newspaper offers for its opinion that such a government is an impossibility. Its reason is that in the present circumstances a coalition government would make necessary the admission of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to the cabinet, and that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is not fit to be associated with loyal and trustworthy men in the government of Canada because he is disloyal and untrustworthy. Many years ago Sir Wilfrid avowed his belief that independence was the destiny of Canada. Sir Wilfrid showed hesitancy in consenting to the use of Canadian troops in the South African war. Sir Wilfrid expressed sympathy with the half-breed rebel, in the Riel rebellion of 1885. Sir Wilfrid doubted the reality of the German menace. Sir Wilfrid opposed the Borden naval policy, preferring his own. Sir Wilfrid in parliament made an appeal to Ontario generously in the matter of bilingual instruction in the schools. Therefore, asserts the Spectator, he is not a fit and proper person to be associated with loyal Conservatives in the government of Canada.

Most of these crimes and misdemeanors with which the Liberal leader is charged were committed, prior to 1908, when the Canadian people for the fourth time voted confidence in him. And now, whatever one may think of his policies or his utterances, the fact remains that he is the chosen and trusted political leader of about one-half of the Canadian people. Cannot the Spectator see that in condemning him as being disqualified for admission to a national government, it impugns the loyalty of all Canadians who gladly accept him as their political guide? And does it not seem to be partizanship run mad to hold that the man who was for fifteen years the king's chief constitutional adviser in Canada is not fit to be associated in a coalition government with men who have been ministers of the crown for only a third of that period?

We agree that if the spirit manifested by the Spectator is shared by the Conservative leaders at Ottawa, the organization of a national government is at present an impossibility. But we decline to believe that the Borden cabinet is composed of such small-caliber politicians as that. As for the premier himself, we are quite sure that he would quit office rather than insult his venerable predecessor in the premiership as the Spectator insulted him yesterday.—Hamilton Herald (Independent Conservative).

Kaiser Celebrates His Fifty-eighth Birthday To-day

This is the fifty-eighth birthday of William II., Emperor of Germany, but, following the precedent established last year, the occasion will not be marked by anything of a festive nature. The Kaiser has ordered that the observance be confined to religious services and the display of flags. In peaceful times the twenty-seventh of January was the greatest of German holidays, when labour was suspended, and the masses of the people, with the exception of the social democrats, gathered in the beer gardens and other places of public resort to toast the Emperor in many brimming mugs of the national beverage.

Just what part the Kaiser will play in history is yet to be recorded. One thing is certain—the world has attained that stage in civilization when war, although not impossible, is no longer glorious. If it should be shown that William II. was responsible for this terrific orgy of blood, not even the most conclusive victory could make him respected.

Passion and prejudice still obscure the vision, and doubtless shall continue to do so until long after the war has passed into history, but neutral and unprejudiced opinion seems to be overwhelmingly inclined toward fixing the guilt on Germany. Even among those most certain of Germany's responsibility, however, there are many who insist that the Emperor, himself, did not initiate the struggle. It is the view of these apologists for the Kaiser that he, while claiming greater power than any other sovereign of a civilized state, and asserting himself responsible to God alone, was yet the victim of the conspiracy of war-mad civil and military officials. All this is but surmise, and time with its clearer vision alone can decide how much or how little the Kaiser wanted war.

It must be admitted that a perusal of the multitudinous newspaper and magazine articles about the Kaiser, written and published before the war, do not afford any firm basis for the belief that the German ruler had any consuming passion for peace. The great majority of such articles published in the American press prior to the war agree in painting the Kaiser as a monarch whose chief interest was in his military machine. Almost from the beginning of his reign he was known as the "War Lord," and he was never quite at ease unless clad in one of his several hundred military uniforms. While not neglecting the arts of peace, his great passion was always his military machine, if one accepts as true the myriad statements about him, written before the war.

If the caretaker of the Market Hall had been a German he could not have been more inhuman. It was pitiable to see the women shaking and shivering with the cold, noble women who are doing so much for our boys in the trenches. There were three stoves, with the dampers closed in two of them. There were a few coals and burnt ends in the back of the stoves, with a wet stick of mixed wood thrown in on top and in front of the fire in each stove, shutting off the draft from the coals and burnt ends. I found a couple of pokers but both had the crooked end broken off, which rendered it impossible to pull the fire forward, and I gave it up in despair. Others tried, but without success. These fires should be started the night before and well under way when the dampers should be shut, and then the first thing in the morning they should be opened, the fire pulled forward and fresh wood put on top.

Yours, etc.

God's Out-of-doors

William Newton Clarke, D.D., in his book, entitled, "What Shall We Think of Christianity, gives clear expression to fundamental truths concerning Christianity which must be helpful at the present time when many people have been saying, "Christianity is a failure."

In the chapter, 'The Christian Doctrine,' Dr. Clarke shows that Christian doctrine was formed from two sources, first the great contribution of the one Lord himself, the truth that his people had from him. Then the added contribution of Christian men who saw light in his light, and had visions of the truth of God through his illumination."

"The Christian doctrine sprang up in the experience of the Christian living. It was the Christian truth so learned by the Christian people; and both elements, the truth and the experience, were essential to the producing of it. Any thought that did not take root in this vital soil, and take root to stay and live, did not come to form a part of Christian doctrine." Jesus appeared among men and poured out a spiritual truth in great abundance. Words, deeds and personality all uttered living and powerful truth.

This rich expression of truth entered into the very being of these early Christian people with transforming power and a new life sprang up in them. After a time this truth from Jesus "filtered through their minds and hearts and lives,' and came forth in expression on the other side. It is this lived-over substance of the truth that Jesus brought, that constitutes Christian doctrine."

This experienced, realized and re-uttered truth with which Christianity began its course, may be summed up under the five great truths, all uttered by the Master, and again by the disciples, as truths now known to them in actual experience.

1st. The relation between man and God has come to be experienced, and enters into the doctrine. Jesus said, "When ye pray say Our Father." Paul said out of the common experience, "We have not received the spirit of bondage again unto fear, but we have received the spirit of adoption, whereby we cry Abba Father." This experienced relationship is the fundamental element in the Christian life. At the centre it is a doctrine of the Fatherhood of God.

2nd. The significance of the coming and work of Jesus himself has been learned by experience and enters into the doctrine. The Master said, "Come unto me — I will give you rest." The disciple said, speaking out of the common experience, "Being justified by faith we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ through whom we have had our access by faith into this grace wherein we stand." To the early church Christ is the Saviour of men, able to save to the uttermost. His place is that of the restorer, the bringer of men home to God, and this is not a theoretical but an actual experience. It is the doctrine of the Saviourhood of Jesus Christ.

3rd. Christ said, "I will send you another helper that he may abide with you forever, even the spirit of truth." Paul said out of the common experience, "The Spirit himself bears witness with our spirit that we are children of God. "As many as are led by the spirit of God they are God's sons." The Christian experience has created the doctrine of the reality and friendhood of the spirit.

4th. Jesus presented the relation between man and man, as the right one, to be a relation of love. Jesus said, "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself." Paul answered, "Now abideth faith, hope, love, these three, but the greatest of these is love," and John said, "Let us love one another, for God is love." Fellowship is the sweet bond of a living unity among those who have learned of Jesus, and helpfulness, the Christian badge. Experience has made a doctine of the Supremacy of Love.

5th. The high ethical demand of Jesus is beginning to be fulfilled in the life of the Christian people, because here is a power that can fulfil it, and the attainableness of moral victory has entered into doctrine. Jesus said, "Ye shall all be perfect, even as your Father in heaven is perfect." Paul, the disciple, replies, "The law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus has delivered me from the law of sin and death." The fruit of the light is in all goodness and righteousness and truth."

Christ required goodness after the pattern and inspiration of the eternal good, and he brings it to pass by the strong, holy operation of the indwelling spirit. Experience has taught the church to hold with joy the doctrine of the Transforming Power."

Dr. Clarke shows through what influences the early doctrines have come down to us, Greek philosophy, organization and individualism. But after all the explaining and difference and variation, all the elaborating by philosophy and formalizing by churchly organization and scattering by modern thought, these same divine realities hold their place as the centre and substance of the Christian doctrine. 'And the presence in the world to-day of the original body of Christian doctrine, existing not in theory alone, but in experience as an inspiring and renewing force I hail with joy as a proof of the presence of God in the history of mankind.'

Only the genuine experience of the divine grace and life—such experience as the early Christians had, and all the best of their successors—only this can powerfully strengthen the cause of religion in the world.

Already there is a fresh insistence upon genuineness and reality in religion. "The experience of God, of Christ, of the Spirit, of Love, and of Victory is coming in. It will take new forms, but it will be the old reality, and the Christian doctrine will stand forth clear and strong, clear in the light of simplicity, and strong in the light of God."

"FIDELIS."

Among the prominent French statesmen of to-day there are three great figures, all of whom speak English perfectly. The first is M. Clemenceau. It may be forgotten in America that during the closing days of the Empire, M. Clemenceau spent four years of exile in the United States—employed in teaching, I think, most of the time. M. Franklin Bouillon was born in the Island of Jersey where his father had gone into exile after Napoleon the Third's coup d'etat, and his mother was an Englishwoman. He speaks English perfectly, and has therefore been invaluable in the Franco-British Parliamentary Committee, translating French into English and English into French with a lightning-like rapidity that has got him often rounds of applause. M. Cailloux also speaks English also quite fluently. This is a discreditable contrast between our methods of education and those of the continent; after the war a revolution in those methods of education is one of the inevitable things

Be Clean Internally

Over 500,000 People Are Now Doing So

For many years physicians have agreed that 95 per cent of human ills was caused by accumulated waste in the Lower Intestine; that in our present way of living Nature could not remove all this waste without assistance, no matter how regular we might be; and that the poisons from this waste circulated through the blood pulled us away down below par and were responsible for many diseases of a serious nature.

During this time the "J.B.L. Cascade" for Internal Bathing has become of their recommendation and those of its users, been steadily growing in favour.

Recently, however, the startling news which has been covering the country that great surgeons and specialists have been operating on the Lower Intestine in such serious diseases as Tuberculosis and attribute such conditions of chronic ill-health as Nervous Debility and Rheumatism to this cause, also saying that these poisons are favorable to the development of Cancer and Tuberculosis (as stated in a recent article in The New York Times) has caused people to become thoroughly awake to the importance of keeping the Lower Intestine free from all poisonous waste matter, and over 500,000 are now using Internal Baths.

This enthusiastic and grateful letter is by no means an exceptional one amongst the hundreds on our file;

765 7th Ave South, Lethbridge, Alberta.

Dr. Tyrrell, Toronto:

Dear Doctor Tyrrell,—After using your "J.B.L. Cascade" for four months, I feel in my duty as a thankful patient to express my enthusiasm for the great blessing it has been to me. You cannot feel my emotions as I write this letter in praise of you in your great work. Words simply fail to express my thankfulness for the blessing of your Cascade. Previous to using it I could not go a day without a dose of some sort and since using it I have not, on my word of honor, swallowed five cents worth of drugs. I spent over $300.00 in the two years previous to hearing of the "J.B.L." Would that all the young men and women I see in this town with their faces covered with horrid, unsightly pimples would use it. They would soon get rid of them as I did. I must stop or I will be keeping you from your work, but I could fill ten more pages of my past condition of health, also in praise of the "J.B.L. May you enjoy this life to the full.

Sincerely yours,
William Devoy.

If you try the "J.B.L. Cascade" you will find yourself always bright, confident and capable—the poisonous waste makes us bilious, blue, dull and nervous. Internal Baths are Nature's own cure for Constipation—just warm water properly applied. Drugs force Nature—the "J.B.L. Cascade" merely assists her.

Call and have it explained at the Warne Drug Company's Store. Ask for "Why Man of To-day is only 50 per cent. Efficient," a booklet of great interest, which is given on request. If you prefer write at once to Charles A. Tyrrell, M.D., 163 College Street, Toronto, for this book.

German Spy System Extends To Office Of Morgan & Co.

Burns Detective Alleges Personal Friend of Bernstorff Got Information.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The German embassy at Washington was at one time apprised of "inside information" of the business of J. P. Morgan & Co., on behalf of the French and British Governments, through an alleged compact between an employee of the Morgan firm and a Washington lawyer who was a personal friend of Ambassador von Bernstorff, according to a brief filed in court here on behalf of Wm. J. Burns, detective, and Martin J. Egan, accused as tappers of private telephone wires.

Burns and Egan are charged by Seymour & Seymour, lawyers, with publishing the contents of private letters to war contracts. They are said to have done the alleged wire-tapping in their efforts to discover the reason for a "leak" from the Morgan firm.

Their counsel in the brief filed when the trial of Burns and Egan began to-day, asserts that in the fall of 1915 a Morgan employee "intent on personal profit entered in a compact with a lawyer practising at the seat of government." By which information regarding the bankers' business on behalf of the Entente Allies was to be imparted to the lawyer, "who, curiously enough, happened to be not only counsel for the German Government in a litigation then, and still pending, but a personal friend and fellow member of the German ambassador." It is alleged that activities of German sympathizers manifested in explosions on outbound steamships and other deeds of violence terminated abruptly after the "leak" stopped.

MYSTERIOUS "HUN" OUTWITS REPORTERS

NAVAL ATTACHE ON SECRET MISSION RETURNS TO THE UNITED STATES IN WOMAN'S GARB WITH A VEIL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The diplomatic corps in Washington is having a laugh over what is regarded as a master stroke by a well known naval attache in outwitting New York ship news reporters and others who might readily recognize him, and who might be curious concerning his absence from this country. The attache was known to have left Washington two months ago, but where he went remained a profound secret both there and in New York city, where he is perhaps as well known. Passenger lists of incoming steamships were carefully scanned and passengers duly scrutinized, for the attache's movements were of considerable interest. When he suddenly appeared in the usual official circles two days ago, just as if he had been out of town for a day or two, many of his friends and acquaintances were more than impressed.

His mysterious mission and whence it carried him are not known to any one save the Ambassador to whose staff he is attached. That he was outside of continental United States was well known, however, but how he returned, by way of the port of New York, might well find a place in a chapter of Alexandre Dumas.

Down the gangplank of an ocean going steamship a few days ago a veiled nun, reverently bowing her head beneath her coiffure and clasping her breviary as if in prayer, stepped to the pier. eHr presence on board the vessel had not been noted by the other passengers. She was met by two friends, and all three went in a taxicab to one of New York's leading hotels. The nun was never seen to emerge from the hotel, but the naval attache soon afterward appeared in the dining room.

She hath done what she could

Every married man in the ranks of Canada's soldiers means that his wife gave her consent.

His the sacrifice, the danger, yes—but his also the interest of a new experience, the companionship of comrades, the inspiration of action, the thrill of the advance, and the glory of victory.

Her's the pitiful parting, the weary waiting, the fevered watching for the dreaded message, the gruelling grind of daily responsibility for those dependent upon her—and her alone.

No, no, not alone! Not alone, as long as the people whose battles her husband is fighting have a heart in their bosoms or a dollar in their pockets.

Not alone—as long as Canadian manhood and womanhood knows the meaning of the word "trust." Not alone, as long as Generosity is the handmaiden of Duty and Privilege.

Only an appreciation of the need is required by those of us who here at home keep the hearth fires burning Not for some of us the supreme sacrifice, but for one and all of us at least that whole-hearted answer to the cry of patriotism that never yet has failed to go ringing around the world when the call has come.

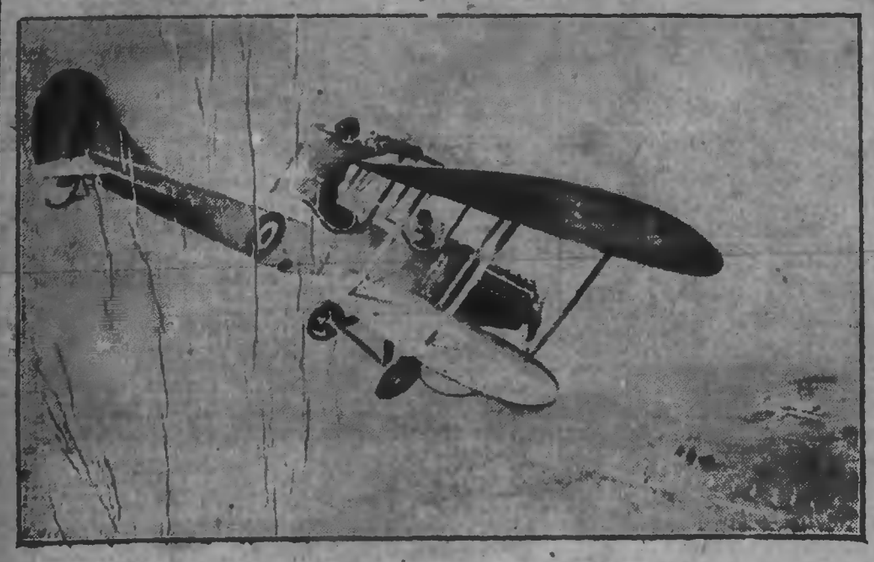
CANADIAN GOVERNMENT FILM, SERIES 2

— OFFICIAL —

CANADA'S FIGHTING FORCES



WHAT AN ARMY goes through in making an attack under heavy shell fire can never be appreciated by one who has not had the experience, but some shadow of an idea can be gleaned from seeing Moving Pictures of the Event. In "CANADA'S FIGHTING FORCES, SERIES TWO" which are to be shown for THREE AFTERNOONS AND EVENINGS AT THE GRAND THEATRE, beginning on THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 1st, there is a remarkable picture of a CANADIAN BRIGADE making an assault on an enemy position. The wild passion of the men on the attack and the perfect discipline maintained at all times are too incongruous to be believed without having been seen. The use of the new-fangled modification of a very ancient weapon, the catapult, is interestingly demonstrated in this section of the picture.

CANADIANS IN THE FLYING CORPS is another fascinating portion of the series. Scores of young men from this Province have enlisted in the air service and distinguished themselves for their brilliant work. In the film some dozen of these boys are easily recognizable to their friends in the audience by friends in the different towns, hence an extra interest will be lent to the portrayal of flying "stunts" for their own sake. Twenty-five hundred feet of film were taken from the air by Lieut. D. J. Dwyer, the photographer, but owing to the difficulty of focussing in the treacherous air pockets 2,000 feet had to be discarded. The 500 feet shown in "Canada's Fighting Forces" is the finest thing of the kind ever shown in this city, nevertheless.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE TO SECURE ARCHITECT

A committee to appoint an architect and report back at a special session, to meet at the call of the Warden, was appointed by the County Council this morning, composed of Messrs. Anderson, Matheson, McKee, Darling and Warden Brown.

Reeve Rye made a plea for the adoption of a method of issuing dog tags similar to that adopted by the city, giving authority for the destruction of those that are useless wanderers.

The report of the Printing Committee, presented by Reeve McKee, was passed as follows:

That the clerk be authorized to give the printing of all tax sales to the Review and Examiner alternatively.

That the printing of all minutes be given to the newspapers published in the villages in the county alternately, and that, in printing the same, as much matter be inserted in each page as can be reasonably done, and that $1.50 per page be paid for the same.

That all printing be given to the villages consistent with statute.

That in the printing of the minutes there be supplied 100 copies after January session, 100 after June session and 150 after November session.

That the assessment rolls, non-res. rolls and collectors' rolls be distributed between the Review, Examiner and Times newspapers, providing the quality of paper is suitable.

Reeve Griffith presented the Schools Committee report, which was adopted. It provided for the usual payments of inspectors' expenses, school grants and other minor matters.

EATING MEAT REGULAR CLOGS THE KIDNEYS, THEN YOUR BACK HURTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally With a Tablespoonful of Salts to Avoid Danger

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatism twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

THE TAX ON PROFITS

How a Company Can Give $1,000 to the Patriotic Fund at a Cost of $750

It may not be known generally that contributions to the Canadian Patriotic Fund and the Red Cross can be treated as expenses in any business subject to the federal tax on profits. This implies of course that the profits on which the tax is based are lessened by the amount of the contributions.

Take a sample case. A business makes a profit of $10000 in excess of seven per cent. The tax on this of 25 per cent. is $2,500. But if the business has contributed $1,000 to the Patriotic Fund its profits will be estimated at $9,000, and its taxation will be reduced from $2,500 to $2,250, a saving of $250.

This means, therefore, that a thousand dollar contribution costs the giver but $750.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE COUNCIL OF WOMEN

Large Attendance Heard Encouraging Reports of Year's Work—Equal Suffrage Petition Will Be Circulated For Presentation to the Legislature.

The annual meeting of the Local Council of Women took place yesterday in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. There was a large attendance, all the societies affiliated with the Council being present. Mrs. (Dr.) Neal, the President, was in the chair.

A resume of the meetings of 1916 was read by the corresponding secretary, (Mrs. (Dr.) Mann. This included lectures by Drs. Caroline Brown and Helen McMurty and Miss Ferguson, all of which had provided exceedingly interesting and helpful.

The report of the treasurer, Miss Davidson showed a balance in the bank of $10.65.

The President, Mrs. Neal, pointed out the idea and aim of the Council was the care, protection and uplift of women and children. She spoke of the idea of forming into an organized corps to go as a body into munitions. This step Mrs. Neal considered unnecessary at present. She also suggested the slogan of the women during the present crisis should be, "Tarift and Economy." This had been carried out in Toronto to such a degree that hundreds of bank accounts had started since the idea was first formed.

Communications were read from Mrs. Plumptre, asking for a representative, or to have some one appointed, to represent the local Council at Toronto of the Social Service Council to be held there. From Mrs. Cummings, replying to the invitation extended to the executive of the National Council to hold their winter meeting in Peterborough. This, she later regretted, could not be done, as by holding the Council in Ottawa they could get directly in touch with the Duchess. However, it was hoped the autumn meeting could be held here.

Mrs. Harstone was chosen to represent the Peterborough branch of the Council at Ottawa.

A communication from Mrs. Torrington, asking for financial assistance, as the finances were low, and the salary of general corresponding secretary must be made up or abandon the office.

Moved by Mrs. Matthews, seconded by Mrs. Mowatt, that $25 should be sent immediately.—Carried. This to be made up by what means the chosen committee of two, Mrs. Stevenson and Miss Davidson, should see fit. A tea was suggested as an idea to raise the necessary amount.

The different affiliated societies were called upon for reports. These showed as a whole to be working on Red Cross work, most of the societies being supplied by the Red Cross Society.

Mrs. Mowatt was elected 4th vice-president.

Mrs. Douglas' paper on the work done for immigrant girls was concise and comprehensive, showing the great undertaking of guarding the girls against the pitfalls so many have slipped into. She pointed out that the society watches for the single women, over 10,853 of whom arrived last year in Quebec, how they are mothered, their description, age, etc. telegraphed to their destination and some one appointed to care for them there. In this way many hav been saved. It is hoped to establish a chain across the continent for this work. She pointed out the danger of the lax laws in permitting undesirable and mentally deficient women coming into Canada, which is a menace to the public.

Dr. Birnie's speech on 'Equal Franchise' introduced some new arguments for the cause. She spoke of the difference in ideas of the place women could and do hold in the world in the past and present. Women as school teachers were ridiculed, but step by step they entered into the broader walks of life, law, medicine, etc., and now the evolution must be complete when, having proved herself man's equal, she will vote with him. Homes will be happier with the common question to discuss. "To me it seems," said Dr. Birnie, "that more divorces are caused by incompatability of intellect than in compatability of temperament." Dr. Birnie had been in communication with many prominent men of Peter borough, 90 p.c. of whom had proclaimed themselves favourable to equal franchise. A number of people will be appointed to circulate the petition for suffrage which will be presented at the Legislature.

Moved by Mrs. Morrison, seconded by Mrs. Harstone that the balance of the business should be brought up at a meeting to be held next month.—Carried.

The officers of the Local Council of Women are as follows:

President—Mrs. F. P. Neal
1st Vice Pres.—Mrs. Robt. Harstone.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Jas. Wood.
3rd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Jas. Kendry.

in either their native tongue of their not very ready French. One day I took up a French paper and found an interview there between a journalist and M. Thomas, the French Minister of Munitions. M. Thomas, as your readers know, was a Socialist and I think a working man before the upset of the war brought him to the great position which he now so worthily occupies. Naturally he did not know any English; and in this interview he pointed to the difficulty that arose whenever he had his consultations with Mr. Lloyd George with regard to munitions that neither understood the language of the other, and accordingly all their conversations had to be carried on through an interpreter.

MR. ASQUITH'S DIFFICULTY

Mr. Asquith could speak French, but he could do so only slowly and of course, without that perfect mastery of the language which he has—none more so—of his own. On one occasion when he went to Italy he was informed that he was going to receive a deputation at Turin or some other of the Italian cities through which he had to pass on his return journey to England. Of course, he knows some thing of Italian and in addition was once a great Latin scholar; so he was able to master the speech in Italian which was perhaps made up for him by his secretaries. When he arrived, however, at the Italian city he found that the deputation was from the English colony of the city and the Italian speech became useless.

Some years ago the late Marquis of Salisbury was very much criticised because he appointed the present Marquis of Lansdowne as his Foreign Secretary. At that time the repute of Lord Lansdowne had sunk very low, for he had been Minister for War during all the first disastrous months of the Boer war. Lord Salisbury replied in private to his critics that Lord Lansdowne was the only member of his Cabinet who spoke French well. Lord Salisbury was himself I think all right in this respect; indeed for many years he spent several months in the Chalet Cecil, as it was called, near Bieppe.

To-day I do not think there is any of the British Ministers who speaks French perfectly. Mr. Lloyd George shows in languages the same curious and weird insight that he has displayed in dealing with military problems. You remember how he first learned French in order to qualify himself for his examination as a young solicitor. His uncle who brought him up was a shoemaker, and he was just as ignorant as the nephew of French. So they got a French dictionary, a French grammar and a French book to learn the language together, setting down each word with chalk on a piece of sole leather taken from the uncle's shop. But Mr. Lloyd George has a memory as tenacious as a rat-trap; he never seems to forget anything. And this early knowledge of French has remained with him all his life. I have seen him read French novels by the score; indeed whenever I get hold of a French book that appeals to me, I send it on to him. He can narrate every scene and every conversation in the book, and you might think that he was a quite perfect French scholar.

But when it comes to speaking, that shyness almost universal among Britishers, stands in the way, and he refuses to speak unless he is driven to it. And yet whenever he gets over the shyness he has no difficulty in expressing himself; he has even less in understanding what is said to him. He always comes back from the front with long and interesting accounts of the conversations he has had with French Generals; somehow or other he manages to convey to them what he wants to know, and they are able to convey to him the answer he wants to get. A few words are sufficient to go a long way with this extraordinary quick and nimble mind. He told me that he managed to travel once quite comfortably through Germany with a knowledge of about twenty German words. It is a pity that a man so quick to learn never had the chance to learn properly. People now call him the Prime Minister, not of England only but of Europe. A knowledge of two or three languages would have made that position still more unquestionable.

GERMANS BETTER EQUIPPED

The Germans, of course, are much better equipped in this respect. Bethmann Hollweg has been suggesting lately that he never used the phrase attributed to him by Sir Edward Goschen in their last interview before the war which called the Treaty of Belgian neutrality a scrap of paper; and this semi-official advocate suggests that the conversation was in German and therefore might be misunderstood or mistranslated by the English Ambassador. The reply has come properly," of course, namely, that the conversation was carried on in English which, it is added Bethmann Hollweg speaks perfectly. Bismarck, of course, spoke English a little slowly but very well, with a certain tendency to air his knowledge by using a good many slang English phrases. I feel pretty sure that there is scarcely any high official of the German Empire to-day who does not speak both English and French. In Buda Pesth there is a club where the rule is that everybody shall speak English.

MAY HAVE BURIED THE WRONG MAN

Harry Kelly, Supposed Dead man, Writes from Idaho

LINDSAY, Jan. 27.—To be drowned in British Columbia, to be buried in Victoria County, to be still alive in Idaho, is the strange tale which is being told about the streets of Lindsay concerning Mr. Harry Kelly, son of Mrs. A. D. Mallon, formerly of Lindsay, but now of Toronto.

Lindsay citizens will remember that some three months ago a young man, who was at the time identified by his mother, brother and sisters, as Harry Kelly, was drowned in British Columbia, where he was employed with a lumbering concern in Vancouver. The remains were embalmed and put in a beautiful coffin and brought to Lindsay, the wake and funeral being held at the home of Mr. Geo. Neal, Lindsay. Interment afterwards took place in the Emily Catholic cemetery.

The story, which has been circulating in Emily for several days past, and which has been told to relatives in Lindsay, is to the effect that Mrs. Kelly has received a letter from the same son in Idaho, U. S. A. The story continues that the man who was buried in Emily burying ground was one by the name of Horselick, and that the lumber firm in British Columbia failed to make the proper enquiries concerning the drowning. Hence the mistake.

However, relatives in Lindsay frown upon the story as being but a silly rumour and they have as yet failed to receive any word from Mrs. Kelly or other relatives concerning the matter. Following the death of Harry Kelly relatives at Fort Francis left for Vancouver to look into the affairs of the deceased, who owned land there, but no word has been received, it is understood, from this source.

At the time of the funeral, however, those who knew the dead man best, failed to distinctly recognize him. He was always known to have worn a moustache, and his photographs (of which there are quite a few) all showed the moustache. The dead man, on the other hand, had no moustache and friends thought at the time that the features were not quite the same.

Needless to say friends and relatives in Lindsay are anxiously awaiting the sifting and clearing up of the story now being circulated.

AUTOINTOXICATION OR SELF-POISONING

The Dangerous Condition Which Produces Many Well Known Diseases.

HOW TO GUARD AGAINST THIS TROUBLE

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" — The Wonderful Fruit Medicine — will Protect You

Autointoxication means self-poisoning, caused by continuous or partial constipation, or insufficient action of the bowels.

Instead of the refuse matter passing daily from the body, it is absorbed by the blood. As a result, the Kidneys and Skin are overworked, in their efforts to rid the blood of this poisoning.

Poisoning of the blood in this way often causes Indigestion, Loss of Appetite and Disturbed Stomach. It may produce Headaches and Sleeplessness. It may irritate the Kidneys and bring on Pain in the Back, Rheumatism, Gout, and Rheumatic Pains. It is the chief cause of Eczema—and keeps the whole system unhealthy by the constant absorption into the blood of this refuse matter.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always cure Autointoxication or self-poisoning—as "Fruit-a-tives" acts gently on bowels, kidneys and skin, strengthens the bowels and tones up the nervous system.

Boiled rice served with chocolate or hard sauce makes a simple and wholesome dessert. Raisins can be cooked in the rice is desired.

"I Owe My Life To Gin Pills"

Every one who has suffered from Kidney and Bladder trouble should read this letter from a gentleman in Port Kidney:

"I was once a terrible sufferer with Kidney and Bladder troubles and at times got so bad that I would lose the use of my legs. I could not go away from home without remedies with me. My son advised me to take Gin Pills and after taking the first two or three doses I got relief. I continued to take them until I got completely well. I owe my life to Gin Pills.

Yours very truly,
P. M. Empton.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF KNOX PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The Pastorate of the Rev. J. A. MacKenzie Closed a Very Successful Year—Increase in Membership—Over One Hundred Members Have Responded to the Call of the Empire—Pastor Commended For His Excellent Work—The Reports.

The Annual Congregational meeting of Knox Church was held on Tuesday evening. There was a good attendance of the members present who took a lively interest in the reports submitted from the various departments. The Rev. J. MacKenzie presided over the meeting which was opened by the singing of a hymn and prayer by Mr. J. F. Morrison. The message from the session as submitted by Mr. T. R. Kennedy, referred in part to their work during the year and their thankfulness for the blessing of God which has manifestly rested upon their efforts.

520 MEMBERS

The members on the roll at the present time are 520, an increase of 60 during the year. There are now over 100 members who have responded to the call of the Empire and are wearing the King's uniform. The report of the Board of Managers as submitted by Robert Mulligan, chairman and J. W. Byers, secretary reviewed the work, and received with satisfaction the results accomplished. That the congregation has prospered is quite evident, as the auditors and treasurers' reports show the finances in a very satisfactory condition with an improvement of 75 per cent. on the current expense account. The thanks of the Board was tendered to Rev. J. A. MacKenzie, The Ladies' Aid Society, the Young People's Guild, the Men's Bible Class, the Berean and Bible Class and other organizations for their valuable assistance and co-operation.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

Mr. T. Carpenter, treasurer submitted his report showing a revenue of $5528.06, and expenditure of $5350.68, balance of $227.43. Mr. W. Watt, missionary treasurer submitted his report showing revenue of $706.87, as against $603.83 in 1915, an increase of $106.04. The report from the Sunday School Department was read by Mr. Roy Laing. The enrolment for the year was 550 and the average attendance was very good. The report in part congratulated Mr. M. Clark, General Superintendent and his staff of assistants and teachers on the excellent manner they have controlled their classes which have all competent teachers.

The financial statement of the Sunday School was read by Miss Jessie Miller and showed the receipts $500.86,; expenditure $428.07; balance $68.79. The report of the Primary Department of the Sunday School was read by Miss M. Cunningham. The membership has increased under the superintendance of Miss M. A. MacDonald and staff of five teachers. The receipts were $53.12. The report of the Women's Missionary Society was read by Mrs. J. F. Allin, showing a successful year under the leadership of Mrs. McPherson and Mrs. MacDonald. Clothing and supplies had been shipped to the North West and financial aid given.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

The financial statement was presented by the treasurer, Mrs. Robert Mulligan, the receipts being $184.17 and $11.00 receipts in the Expense Fund. The report of the Ladies Aid Society was read by Mrs. D. Beavis. This has proved to be the most successful year in the history of the Society, and Mr. W. Watt, President and the membership were congratulated on what they had accomplished, which had been of great benefit to the management. The revenue of the Society totaled $941.-26. The financial statement of the choir was read by Miss M. Crocker, showing receipts $40.23; expenditure $27.25; balance $12.98. The report of the Go Forth Mission Band was read by Miss M. Bulmer. The Band retains its record of sowing seeds and kindness by the distribution of clothing and supplies. The financial statement showed receipts of $26.76. The report of the Volunteer Bible Class, was read by Miss Beatrice McGill. The class under the leadership of Mr and Mrs. A. MacKenzie has taken up practical work, the sick have been ministered to by personal visits and flowers, and Red Cross work has become one of the regular activities. The financial statement showed receipts of $43.92. The report of the A. S.K. Bible Class was read by Mr. D. J. McLeod. The A.S.K. class is composed of young men, under the able leadership of Mr. A. MacKenzie. There is a membership of 66 at present, 33 of whom have donned the khaki. During the year the class sustained the loss of two of its charter members in the death of Everett Williamson and Robert Thompson, the latter being killed on the battle fields of France.

WAS CONGRATULATED

The financial statement showed receipts of $73.09; expenditure $66.69; balance $6.40. Mr. W. W. Yale, treasurer of the Men's Bible Class read the financial statement which showed receipts of $160.59 and the retiring President, Mr. R. Hillier was congratulated on the success the Class had achieved. The report of the Berean Bible Class was read by Mrs. Humpage. The Class continues to do a good work under their teacher, Mrs. Rogers, and Red Cross work has engaged the member's time to the full extent and large quantities of hospital supplies has been forwarded. The financial statement showed receipts of $183.55. The Cradle Roll as submitted by Mrs. J. F. Morrison, showed a membership of 62 names. Mr. H. J. McCannan, chairman of the Property Committee submitted a report concerning the fitting up of the basement for Sunday School rooms at an estimate cost of about $1,000. On motion the matter was referred to a Committee to investigate and report to the Board of Managers, Dr. J. Malcolm McCullough, stated that $1,000 had been paid on mortgage and the interest on balance fully paid up.

RETIRING MANAGERS.

The new members are Messrs. K. Denoon, R. Hillier and J. Buckham. The membership were unanimous in pronouncing the past year a very successful one in all departments of Knox Church. During the evening Mr. W. J. Byers of Byersville presented the treasurer with two cheques from residents of his district and this brought forth general applause.

MORE CHANGES CONTEMPLATED ON GEORGE ST.

It is Said the Bank of Toronto Will Enlarge and Remodel

From what can be learned the corner of George and Hunter streets is to be further improved. The Bank of Toronto it is understood will take over the Hunter street store of H. Le Brun and Co., as an addition to the bank premises and greatly improve the whole corner. The addition is necessary owing to the increased demand for space, caused by increased business. Peterborough has now some fine buildings occupied by commercial businesses and financial institutions and at this stage of getting into permanent and convenient quarters it might be expected that the Bank of Toronto would have a very modern and up-to-date Bank Building when all the contemplated changes have been made. The George street store of H. LeBrun and Co., will be modernized and made very up-to-date so that the clothing stock from the Hunter Street store will be merged with the George Street store for the convenience of the public.

Several law offices are also talked of as finding it necessary to secure new quarters.

MARKET SITUATION FOR THE WEEK

The following comment on the marvances in the prices of bar iron and appeared in Canadian Grocer this week:

A decline of 10c per hundred was recorded in the price of Canadian sugars during the week. Larger supplies of new crop raw sugars are reaching the market. There are some indications that sugar might be lower within the next month or six weeks. Flour held steady during the week, but at the time of writing there is an inclination toward weakness, owing to the easier prices for wheat. Charcoal has advanced in Toronto and will in all probability be increased to the country districts as well.

There is a scarcity of molasses, with a good demand. Difficulty in getting shipments forward is causing a temporary shortage in this product. Prices have been named on new season California figs which are ten per cent. higher than last year. Teas were firmer in the primary market by one cent per pound. Locally the prices in teas held steady. Shippers of shelled walnuts in France have withdrawn quotations for later shipment than February. Japan and Patna rice have been advanced 10c per hundred by one of the large import milling concerns. There have been no advances as yet on rice by wholesalers, but firmness in the primary market has made local prices firm.

POTATOES ARE FIRM.

Potatoes are in firm market. Fish is also slightly higher in some lines, owing to the bigger demand for the product. Live hogs made a considerable advance during the week and pork products were firmer as a result, advances being registered in some lines. Chewing gums have advanced from 5 to 10 per cent. Brown wrapping paper has shown a further advance. Costs of containers and parcel wrapping materials have advanced in cost so rapidly that they are seriously affecting grocers' profits.

The canned goods market is quiet, and prices are being shaded by some wholesalers, although the market generally is firm. The consumption of canned goods has been curtailed by the high prices prevailing. A wide range of prices is being quoted on spices.

Features of the week in hardware markets have been considerable advances in the prices o bar iron and steel, horse shoes, wrought iron washers, axes, cow chains, shelf hardware and many miscellaneous lines. Cut nails have advanced 25c per keg, with further advances in sight. Ingot metals are firm in price, with slight advances recorded in some instances. The lead market continues firm, but with an improvement in the freight situation, prices are expected to ease up a little. Wholesalers and retailers have experienced great difficulty in securing shipments of goods, owing to embargoes placed on certain districts by the railways. Shipments from the United States have been very slow in arriving, and there is a scarcity of many lines of goods. Travellers are making the best of a trying situation created by the curtailment of the passenger train service. Travellers affected most are those working the smaller towns and cities. Business is seasonably good and the outlook for spring is very promising.

Two Big Submarines On Hunt For Raider

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—Word reached New York from Bermuda by the crew of the steamship Bermudian that two big British submarines had arrived there from Halifax and were going south to join the other British and French warships in the search for the German raider or raiders. They were built in Canada, and are 200 ft. long, carry two three-inch guns on the forward deck in addition to a supply of torpedoes, and have a cruising radius of 6,00 miles.

In addition to the submarine, five light cruisers of the Arethusa type, which carry four six-inch guns and a number of smaller quick firers, have called at Bermuda during the past week, and proceeded to sea after spending a few hours at the naval station. Their next base for fuel is St. Lucia. These cruisers have a speed of 30 to 35 knots and have very little armor. Two Italian cruisers with a speed of 25 knots, and four French war vessels with high speed also stopped at Bermuda for a few hours last Friday, and then continued their voyage south. Some of the warships steered toward the West African coast to look out for the raider in case she should try to creep up along the shore.

The British armored cruiser Leviathan, which has been on patrol duty in the waters around Bermuda for some months, took on coal and provisions at Hamilton on Friday, it was said, and left the harbor on Saturday morning on secret orders. She is heavily armored and carries two nine-inch guns in addition to two eighteen inch submerged torpedo tubes, and has a speed of 23 knots.

WOMAN GETS MILITARY MEDAL

For First Time For Bravery in Field

LONDON, Jan. 27.—For the first time in history a woman has won the Military Medal, and it has been awarded to her "for bravery in the field."

She is Staff Nurse Catherine Margaret Carruthers, of the Territorial Force Nursing Service, and the honor now awarded to her is announced officially in the London Gazette.

Sir Douglas Haig mentioned her in his despatch of November 25 last. Nurse Carruthers was bravely carrying on her work of mercy, calmly caring for the wounded in very dangerous circumstances in a "hot" region in France. She was eventually slightly wounded by a shell which burst near the spot where she was on duty. The courageous nurse has now recovered, and has resumed her work among the wounded fighters.

She afterwards joined the Territorial Force and was posted for duty at the 4th Territorial hospital, Glasgow, a few days after the war began. Some months later she went to France, where she has been doing valuable work in the face of danger.

LIEUT. HUBBS WRITES FROM SWITZERLAND OF HIS EXPERIENCES

Has Had Some Curling and Wishes he was home in the Hastings Rink

Mr. P. M. Howard of Hastings, has received the following letter from Lt. Fred Hubbs, recently an exchanged prisoner, now in Switzerland.

Much water has rolled over the dam since you heard from me and I from you, but that can all be remedied now. Since July, or rather June, I have been very much in the dark as regards things even in Ontario and at home in Hastings as well. I saw the eye witness account of the my mix-up, that is the general mix-up at Zillebeke. Take it from me that he was no "eye-witness" who wrote it, as absolutely nothing is right, even to the troops engaged, except that they were Canadians. I saw Powers the night before as I was on my tour, but never after. Blackburn brought me my breakfast at 4 a.m., and I have not seen him since, though I have the pleasant news that he is alive and well, or as near well as a man can be in Germany. Rummels got out and of course he had rare good luck, as the other chap, Raynor, who was sent out with him, was killed. Poor Wharrie! I was hoping that being a brigade runner, he would stand a better chance, but in some shows all chances are even. I was hit about three hours before the attack and was out of business when they came over, but my guns were going, and from accounts from chaps I have met who saw my crew working I have every reason to be proud of them. They are all gone but four, from the latest I can find out.

I was exchanged as a useless crock on December 19th at Constance. I passed a commission at Beschofseverda, in Saxony, on November 2nd, and came to Constance, which is on Lake Constance, just on the Swiss border, on November 15th, remaining there until I came over. Of course I had a whale of a trip, and could not bend my leg at all until I found the train had got into Switzerland. Then at the same station an old artillery officer came in, and to the five in my compartment he presented a bottle of Scotch. I believe that it made my leg bend more than all the doctors in Germany! Then at Berne, we sat down to a square meal (there were 20 officers and 400 men.) I carved a real ham for the first time in many moons. The lid was off and we rolled at it. Gradually we got back into our train, and at 5 a.m. started on for here where we are at a hotel about the same class as the King Edward (only it is not dry). All my board is paid but the extras are quite large. Just opposite us is the Jungfrau, the Eger and the Monk, the finest peaks in the Alps; really the scenery is wonderful. I have been curling for three days and expect to be able to skate soon.

I had a four day trip to Chateau D'oeux to bring one of our boys who died there, and had a beautiful trip, and met a lot of my old pals, but I certainly would give an arm to be able to put my legs under my own table, and after tea drop down for an evening's curling at home. I think I have been more homesick since I came here than ever before, though I don't want any more barb wire and Germans with fixed bayonets guarding me.

I was all over Germany, up the Rhine to Stuttgart, then to Bischopeverda, through Lepsig, Nurenburg and Dresden to the Boohemian border, then back across Saxony, Bavaria and Wittenburg to Munich, when I had the pleasure of sleeping on a plank in the town clink; then a boat trip from Lindau up Lake Constance, past Fredrickshaven, where the Zeppelin shed is, with most of its tail feathers pulled out, where one of our aviators dropped a brick on it.

So you see I have been some tourist, and all I await now is the word for home, which I expect is a year away. Give me all the news you can about doings at home, and remember me to all friends.

Yours as ever,
Lieut. F. S. HUBBS,
Interned Prisoner of War,
Murren, Switzerland.

Serbia Remembers Protecting Saint

Conquered and shattered are the Serbians. Belgrade, their proud capital, is a city of ruins, and all the other cities are in the hands of Serbia's enemies. Hated Bulgars and accursed Austrians now lord it over the villages and homesteads of agricultural Serbia. Many of their quaint little communities, where the stareshinas formerly held benevolently despotic sway, are now deserted. Others contain only women, young boys and very old men. Unmarked graves now hold uncounted numbers of Serbian men, while the survivors are fighting bravely on the southern borderland, striving with might and main to reconquer their lost land and rejoin their wives and children. Yet the Serbians are profoundly confident that the invaders will soon be driven out, and the flag of their kingdom go back over the capital of an enlarged and united Serbia.

The Serbians have faith in their allies, faith in themselves, but most of all faith in St. Sava, their patron and protector, whose festival they celebrate to-day. St. Sava's Day is the real national feast of the Serbians, and it is widely celebrated by Serbians and their descendants on this side of the Atlantic, as well as in the stricken mother country. Sava was a royal prince of the thirteenth century, who devoted his life to the education, enlightenment and general betterment of the people of the Balkans. He travelled about the country from village to village, founding schools and churches, and it is in these rural communities that he is held in greatest adoration, and his festival most enthusiastically celebrated.

Rural Serbia is still much as it was in St. Sava's time, in the habits and mode of life of its people. Most of the villages and homesteads comprise a group of families, united by ties of blood, and usually acknowledging the leadership of the stareshina or patriarch of the community, who regulates the labours and distributes the rewards of toil among the various families. The buildings of these villages are usually surrounded by an immense palisade. The chief structure is in the centre, and contains the common kitchen, dining room and assembly hall of the community. In the latter all the members of the community gather in the evening to work and play, and to listen to recitations of the poetical rhapsodies in which Serbian literature is rich, and many of which sing the praises of St. Sava. This simple and patriarchal communal life has been sadly disturbed by the war, and it is not with songs and rejoicing, but with prayers for speedy deliverance, that Serbians will celebrate their festival to-day.

Y. M. C. A. NEWS

Mr. R. F. Downey, Principal of the Central school, will address the Y.M.C.A. meeting Sunday at 4.15 p.m. Mr. Downey, on several other occasions, has addressed young men, giving most inspiring messages. We trust that there will be a good attendance of men and older boys to hear Mr. Downey on Sunday.

Secretary Meserve was in Toronto on Wednesday of this week and spent the afternoon and evening at the Y.M.C.A. quarters, Exhibition Camp. Mr. J. J. Thompson, former physical director of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A., is in charge of the work of the camp, which has a typical Y.M.C.A. outfit designed especially to appeal to the soldier boys. Meals and lunches are served under the direction of Toronto ladies, there being four hundred identified in this effort, working in shifts. The leading attractions are moving pictures, lectures and musicales and other forms of entertainments. On Wednesday Mr. Thompson first conducted a song service which was followed by readings by one of Toronto's leading elocutionists. Later an illustrated lecture on London was given by a leading lecturer. In other parts of the building three tournaments were in progress, checker, chess and trokinole, and many young men were in the correspondence room writing letters. This, we understand, is a typical scene at the Y.M.C.A. quarters, showing that the soldiers enjoy and appreciate all that the Association is doing for them.

Mr. Thompson wished to be remembered to all his friends in Peterborough.

Some time ago an inquiry came to the local Y.M.C.A. from an organization of ladies asking if the Y.M.C.A. was prepared to distribute socks to soldiers at the front. Word has been received from the Y.M.C.A. National Council in Toronto that they will receive and transport to the front and carefully distribute any socks directed to the Y.M.C.A. National Council, 15 Toronto St., Toronto.

Mr. G. A. Gall, circulation manager of the Farm and Dairy, gave a very helpful talk to the Senior Collegiate Club on Friday evening on Advertising. This is one of a series of vocational talks being given to the Collegiate members and it is expected that a talk on Banking and Insurance will be presented at the next meeting of the Club. No Collegiate man should miss these addresses as they are designed with the idea of preparing young men to make a choice for their life calling.

To the average figure the all-in-one gown that has a sculpture finish is more becoming than the straight one cut in the mediaeval manner, or even than the Princess one.

Peterboro' One of Only Thirteen Counties That Haven't Adopted The County Good Roads System

But City and County Appear Unanimous That There Should Be No Further Delay in Preparing to Inaugurate the System Here.

MR. GEO. HOGARTH'S ADDRESS

That Peterborough County is rapidly approaching a decision to make application for its inclusion in the Protect there was an unanimity of exlicity was indicated quite clearly at last night's special session of the County Council. There was not a dissenting note from the members of the Council nor from the numerous deputation, including a representation from the city and a few rural ratepayers. In fact there was an unanimity of expression that there should be no further delay in adopting this enterprise which, it was admitted, would not only benefit the rural communities, but also advance the interests of the city.

The feature of the conference was an address by Mr. George Hogarth, Chief Engineer of the Provincial Highways Department, who discussed in detail the provisions of the Good Roads Act. One of his most significant remarks was that already twenty-four counties have adopted the County Good Roads system and that thirteen have yet to join the ranks.

Of the former group not one county has indicated a desire to withdraw, nor reported any dissatisfaction with the system.

Among those present at the meeting were the members of the County Council, Mayor Duffus and Aldermen Smith, Weir, Langford, Taylor, Saunders and Duncan, and Messrs. S. R. Armstrong, Ryerson Ritchie, H. C. Winch, D. W. Dumble, Felix Brownscombe, Col. Miller, G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., E. A. Peck, Vincent Eastwood, Arthur Stevenson, Dickson Hall, W. Comstock, B. D. Hall, R. L. Dobbin, C. H. Amys, M.D., W. G. Freeburn, H. O. Fiske and others.

Warden Brown welcomed the deputation.

Reeve Anderson, of Otonabee, stated that nothing had been done by the County Council's special Good Roads committee last year. But at Mr. Anderson's suggestion the city was asked to what extent it would maintain roads within a specified radius of the city.

Mayor Duffus stated that public works to be undertaken at the end of the war would be indirectly intended for the employment of returned soldiers. He hoped peace would come at least within a year. There were eighteen municipalities adopting the Good Roads system this year. It was therefore regarded elsewhere, as in Peterborough, a very important question. Mayor Duffus gave the assurance that the city would be ready to give its heartiest support when a scheme was decided upon and outlined. He repeated his belief that good roads would be of greater importance than radial railways, especially in this part of the province.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., declared his interest in good roads, stating that he had always taken the view that it was almost as important for the city to build good roads leading to the city as it was to assist a new industry. Mr. Gillespie promised his assistance in any work the county intended to undertake.

Mr. Peck pointed out the feature of the Act which placed the cost of improved roads upon all the people and not on the farmer alone. As the Act was more widely applied it was likely various amendments and additions would be made to improve it.

Col. Miller remarked that the fault of the old system was that no one was made directly responsible for the maintenance and proper building of roads. Townships carried on the work, but under a wasteful method. In many sections there were stretches of good roads, but they were interlinked with very bad parts. Under the new plan the government and the municipalities were working together and good results were bound to come of this co-operation.

Mr. Hogarth's Address.

Mr. Hogarth introduced his address by referring to the importance of a system that provided permanency. This was the smallest feature of the County Roads System. The Government pays 40 p.c. of the cost of construction and 20 p.c. of the cost of maintenance of the roads designated for improvement. The types of road depend to a large extent upon the material available locally. If a gravel pit is convenient and the road properly built the result is a satisfactory highway even for heavy traffic.

The macadam road of crushed stone will cost about twice as much as that of gravel, but it is required where the traffic demands a hard surface to support a large number of vehicles. The gravel road could be built at a cost of from $1,500 to $2,000 a mile, the macadam would vary from $5,000 to $6,000.

Tar Bound Roads.

Near the city a tar or asphalt macadam is most desirable. It would cost about 5c. a sq. yard more than the plain macadam.

To apply the County Roads scheme, the County Council must first pass a by-law to that effect and prepare a schedule of the roads to be adopted for improvement. When this has been approved by the Lieut. Governor the work may be commenced. If the County Council as a whole declines to adopt the scheme, four townships may secure through the Council its application to them. These townships then received the assistance of the Government.

Question of Finances.

The County Roads scheme is financed by a direct levy on the equalized assessment of the county amounting to a mill and a half, or upon the townships in the system. Permanent work such as bridges may be paid by the issuing of fifteen year debentures in order that the present ratepayers may not be called upon to meet the entire cost of the work.

The Roads Assumed.

Only main market roads are assumed by the county. It is the purpose of the act to improve the market facilities throughout the whole year. The townships are thus enabled to provide better side roads.

Suburban Roads.

When the scheme applies to suburban roads, a commission of three is appointed, one man representing city, another the county, and these two select a third. They determine the area for suburban roads to be improved. The radius might be six or eight miles.

The cost of construction of such roads is apportioned as follows. By the county 30 p.c., by the city 30 p.c., and by the province 40 p.c.; and for maintenance 40 p.c. each by the county and city and 20 p.c. by the province.

Ald. Smith inquired about the city's voice in the determination of the suburban roads. Mr. Hogarth replied that the Commission must be agreed upon such roads. That done, the city must provide a share of the cost equal to that paid by the county.

Mr. Eastwood endorsed the city's assumption of a share of the cost of suburban roads. These were of more advantage to the city than to the county. We must have, he said, better roads as soon as the work can be undertaken.

Preparatory Work.

Mr. Hogarth stated that it takes about a year to outline the work, appoint a superintendent and otherwise prepare for the inauguration of a system. The counties are being advised at the present time to endeavour to maintain their roads assumed by by-law, to properly grade and drown them in order to keep the water off them. Mr. Hogarth particularly stressed the importance of drainage, stating that in the past the surface was allowed to become soaked and sodden. Every passing vehicle dug deeper holes and ruts as a result of that softened condition.

In the construction of a gravel road the gravelled section should be from seven to ten feet in width, with a shoulder of six to eight feet. Nearer the city the width of gravel might be 18 feet with a shoulder on each side of four or five feet. In some places it might be preferable to gravel the entire width of road about twenty-six to twenty-eight feet.

The system does not dispense with statute labour, which still remains under the authority of the township, which may have it worked where the county decides.

In regard to the appointment of a road superintendent, Mr. Hogarth stated that the county should have a trained engineer. He recommended that the official should be a practical man. A Government inspector visits the county roads to see that they are constructed according to the proper principles of road building. At the last session of the Government a provision was made to assist in paying the salary of a township superintendent, the Government paying one-quarter of his salary up to $300 for the first three years.

Regarding the city's contribution toward suburban roads it may be called upon to pay up to one half a mill of the city's assessment for the cost of construction.

Mr. Dumble and ex-Warden Darling spoke in favour of the good roads scheme as did Reeves Anderson and Rye. The latter related briefly outlined what Monaghan had been endeavouring to do to provide better roads.

At the conclusion of the meeting a vote of thanks was moved to Mr. Hogarth by Reeve Squire of Norwood, seconded by Col. Stevenson.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES

The Public Library Committee have recently purchased a complete set of Doubleday, Page & Co.'s Nature Books. These will be kept in the Reference Department and should be very useful in conjunction with the Museum, for pupils, teachers, and other nature lovers, in helping them to identify specimens, to place them in their correct family, and to learn about their habits and natural haunts.

Nature study rightly forms part of our Provincial education. There are few things about which healthy children (even cooped up in the heart of a city) show more curiosity and interest than about natural objects, especially living things, beasts, birds, insects, fish, flowers, and trees. We all know what a fillip novelty gives to our interest, but most of us forget that to children everything, even the commonest beast or flower of the field, and the homeliest fowl of the air, is new and exciting. Even when they are nearly grown up and go further afield by wood or lake, especially camping, they are still like novices at original research and making discoveries day after day in the animal or in the vegetable kingdom. One of the first things the young discoverer clamors for is the name, and many a tender bud of interest has been nipped by the grown-up's careless or contemptuous admission of ignorance: "Oh, it's only a 'worm' or a 'bug,' or a 'weed,' or a 'ground-bird,'" as the case may be.

NEW NATURAL HISTORY.

The Library possesses an excellent standard work in Richard Lydekker's New Natural History. This is thoroughly comprehensive, accurate and up-to-date; it is well illustrated, too, and no greater master in the study of Zoology could be found than Lydekker, the author of one of the best histories of our domestic horse yet published in English. But the New Natural History is too scientific for any except adults, and the most thoughtful of students; moreover, its illustrations are taken from all over the world, chiefly Europe and the Tropics.

What we needed for this group of readers was a popular work on the flora and fauna of North America. For those whose interest, once awakened, has endured, and who are steadily pursuing some chosen line of nature study, Lydekker's volumes form an admirable supplement to the Doubleday, Page & Co.'s Nature Library. These Nature books deal entirely with the life of North America; they are fully even richly, illustrated in natural tints by the three-colour photography process; the letter-press is instructive and accurate, but not too technical to be understood. There are seventeen of these volumes, and nearly all are excellent, quite the best thing of their kind in the great book world.

A few years ago the present writer got the two volumes of this series by Holland, on Butterflies and Moths for the use of a field club and wrote to the late Professor Fletcher of Ottawa for his opinion of the choice. James Fletcher was one of the highest authorities in our Dominion, and his letter, in reply, brimmed over with good things; had such books come his way when he was a school boy he would have been in the seventh heaven with delight; books with good coloured pictures of beasts, birds, insects and flowers, before colour-photography, cost from $20 to $100 a volume; nowadays, parents, dominies, bachelor uncles and big brothers could make youngsters rich for life at an outlay of $3 or $4, the price of the Butterfly book or "Bird Neighbours" and ought to be ashamed of themselves if they lost the chance of suiting some such present to the taste of the little folk.

COLOUR PLATES.

The beauty and the truth of the colour plates may be judged from the fact that practically all the butterflies of North America can be identified, even to the species, all the larger moths, most of the medium sized and less conspicuous, besides the general at least of the smaller drabs and neutral-tinted sorts, from Holland's coloured plates in the volumes on Butterflies and Moths. In Miss Blanchan's book on Flowers most of the showy wild flowers of Ontario will be found with most interesting descriptions; a special feature of this gifted authoress' writing on plants lies in her interpretation of flower structures as adapted to insect visitors; these guests are lured to the flower by its chalice of nectar, but have to pay for their sip of sweetness by becoming carriers of their host's pollen to other flowers of the same kind. Her books on birds have earned high praise and a preface from the editor of Recreation (G. O. Shields) as well as from the father of aesthetic ornithology, (John Burroughs). "Bird Neighbors" describes 150 of the common birds of garden, orchard, field and forest, while its companion volume contains as many as 170 kinds of hawk, owl and game bird. Dugmore's name is now almost a household word for skill with the camera, and his "Bird Homes" reaches a very high order of excellence.

Nina Marshall's books on Mushrooms and Mosses are also very serviceable and the Reptile Book of Raymond Ditmars, both picture and writing, is full of fearful fascination. The author is a snake fancier and has collected for many U. S. scientific institutions. If you are tired of the dull monotony of mere living and want something blood-curdling, read some of his pages of hair-breadth escape from poison fangs; but whatever you do don't take up the page on Rattlesnake Jack just before bed-time. Poe's "Murder in the Rue Morgue," or Kipling's "Bertram and Bimi," might spare you the horrors of nightmare, but not the Rattler.

Altogether, these additions to the library, linked with specimens taken or seen by the inquirer, or supplemented by the excellent museum of the library, should prove an invaluable boon to hundreds of our citizens, pupils, teachers, and all genuine amateurs (i.e., lovers) of God's out-of doors.

CROWD LIKED THE BATTLE

The 247th intermediates maintained their winning smit last night, when they took Bud McLean's T. R. and A. A. seniors into camp by a score 9 to 6, in a snappy exhibition game at Brock Street rink. The Soldiers were in front nearly all through the procession, leading by 4 to 2 at the end of the first period, and 7 to 5 at the close of the second. The visitors were only leading the procession once, and that was in the early stages of the first period. They were soon overhauled and the 247th took the lead and were never headed afterwards.

The game was played six men aside owing to the fact that Hicks of the T. R. and A. A. was ill, and unable to go on. The six-man style did not suit the homesters, who found it interfered with their team work to some extent. However, they tore off some fine passing at times, and a number of the goals were the result of snappy combination that carried them inside for shots. The visitors passed nicely as well, but on the whole the game was of the N. H. A. variety, with little back-checking and the teams alternating in speedy dashes that kept the fans on their toes all the way. The pace was fast and both teams gave a fine exhibition of speedy skating and stick-handling. The absence of consistent back-checking combined with the six-men-a-side style opened up the play and it was a pretty game for the spectators. The crowd was not nearly as large as the excellence of the contest merited.

In beating the T. R. and A. A. the Peterborough soldiers put away a pretty fast senior aggregation, as the visitors had five of their regulars in action and were reinforced by Smylie, the good right wing of the Dentals' senior team. Crooks, the former Hamilton-Port Colborne net guardian, was between the posts for the Toronto gang, and he saved them from a much worse beating. Crooks gave as clever an exhibition as has been seen in the nets here for some time. The Petes were slinging them at him hard and fast from all angles, and at all ranges, and he remained cool and unworried through it all. The ever green Bud McLean, although he loafed a lot, was the star of the visitors. He broke in fast and used his head all the way with the result that he was responsible for four of the visitors' goals. Brickenden, the Cobalt Lake boy, who is a member of the 208th Battalion, was very effective on the defence, and rushed nicely as well. Hill started at centre, but McLean soon moved up there himself, and sent Hill back to the defence, where he did good work. Smylie of the Dents., on right wing, and Artindale on the other side of the rink, are two very likely boys.

All the home brigade showed up well. The team uncovered more combination than in their earlier games, and should improve steadily in this respect. The forward line, Adams, Armstrong and Evans were all going strong and the three puffed off some pretty combination, as well as a wealth of good individual stuff. All three stick-handled beautifully and the fans enjoyed their performance. Halpin was very effective on the defence, and Flanagan and Thornton both did good work, the former playing the first period and the latter in the last two. Legros gave a fine exhibition in the nets. The style of hookey played gave him a lot of work to do, and he handled himself nicely. With the exception of two shots from McLean's stick, one of which he never saw, the counters scored against him were at close range.

The line-up:

T. R. and A. A.	247th.
Goal.
Crooks	Legros
Defence
Brickenden	Halpin
McLean	Flanagan
	Thornton
Centre
Hill	Armstrong
Right Wing
Smylie	Adams
Left Wing
Artindale	Evans

It was fast going from the start, and both goal-keepers had an early chance to show their ability. Crooks handled a couple of nice shots. Then Evans broke away and passed to Armstrong, who flammed goal No. 1 past the visiting net-man.

The Toronto gang opened out fast after this set-back and soon tied the score. Brickenden was responsible, as he broke up a Peterborough rush, and breaking down the centre, slipped the rubber out to Hill who scored nicely.

McLean stopped one of Armstrong's swift shots with his leg, and the game was held up until he recovered. When they got going again T. R. and A. A. flashed out in front, when Hill came down with McLean and Smylie, bluffed a pass, and then sailed in alone when the defence opened up. Legros had no chance to save, and the score was 2 to 1 for the visitors. They did not hold the lead long, however, for Armstrong, and Adams broke away for a passing run, and although Crooks got the first shot, Evans swooped in and batted through the rebound, putting the teams even again.

The prettiest combination of the night gave the Soldiers the lead, when Adams got away and passed to Evans, who slipped the rubber to Armstrong, and the tall centre scored from close in. That left it 3 to 2, and Adams increased the majority by a pretty individual rush for a score. There was nothing more doing in the period.

The 247th were the first to score in the second stanza, Evans rushing and passing to Armstrong, who flipped the rubber into the top corner of the nets.

Armstrong added another shortly after, when he tore off a beautiful rush. The rubber went behind the nets, but Adams followed in and passed out to Armstrong, who registered.

Then the T. R. and A. A. commenced a dangerous spurt and nearly crawled up on even terms. McLean started the fireworks when he tore up the centre and fooled Legros with a swift shot. The veteran of the visitors followed with another counter on a good drive from the side. Then McLean, Hill and Artindale broke away together and although Legros stopped the first shot, Hill slammed the rebound through before he could clear.

With the visitors only a goal behind it was getting too close for comfort. A long shot from Thornton got away from Crooks, however, and the Soldiers were again two to the good, the figures remaining unchanged to the end of the period.

McLean opened the last session by taking a pass from Smylie and scoring at close range, making the figures 7 to 5. The Petes got going and for the next five minutes Brooks was the busiest man on the ice. He beat the Soldiers half a dozen times when they were inside, making some spectacular saves. Finally Evans contributed one of the feature plays of the night, when he got away at centre and circled through the visitors. He fell while eluding Brickenden, but rolled over unto his feet, regained the rubber and slammed a swift one past Crooks.

Evans also nailed the last goal of the night when he took a timely pass from Thornton and drove a beauty into the nets. There was no further scoring.

WITH THE CURLERS

Things are dull these days at the curling rink. The nights are lively with business, professional and other estimable citizens sweeping muscles up and down their arms and across their shoulders and actively warring on adipose tissue and middle age rotundity, the meanwhile enjoying the grand old game of raising, drawing, running, nicking and the other fine strokes of the winter pastime of the Scots. The nights are bright with fellowship, unkindled with Scotch and an abundance of nitrogen lamps that have recently suffered the imposition of a metre. Other worries being forgotten for the moment every evening is the perfect end of a day that is soon forgotten on the ice.

But the old leisure class that used to gather in the morning to reassemble after luncheon is noticeably absent. The war lords who held regular cabinet sessions in the mornings delving into questions of strategy and tactics on the various fronts, these are conspicuously absent. You will find them variously scattered about munition shops, 'tis said. Some are inspectors, other are machine men. The insistent call of the shell factories got them one by one. To-day they are doing ten hours more deeply involved than they expected, probably, in the work they freely discussed twelve months ago.

Gone, too, is the "Kickers' Club." This organization was wont to convene in the afternoons concentrating its attentions upon the affairs of the Rink company, the club and the skips. There hasn't been a single meeting this year. When the first signs of ice appeared the suggestion was thrown out that perhaps the sessions might be appointed for evenings, but the idea bloomed for a day or two only to meet the frost of the demands of the night games. The Kickers' Club was a lusty organization. It struck out in every direction, that is at the meetings, and at times beats its own breast when a member had to be called on the carpet. It was a production of leisure, and as such neither knew nor respected any of the conventions in the conduct of affairs. It is scarcely necessary to add that the Club's doings were ephemeral, sufficient only to the particular afternoon's whims and fancies, and never reaching the main body of the curlers.

But even its pseudo-seriousness has gone with its levity, and its leisure. Hence the days are dull and colourless. And few members of the old guard drop around occasionally, but the days are under a cloud; the old spirits are in the shell factories.

PETERBOROUGH JUNIORS BACK IN THE RUNNING

Oshawa Series is Cancelled Owing to Ineligibility of Oshawa Player and Games Are Ordered to Be Re-played, the First Game Here on Tuesday Night and the Return in Oshawa on Friday.]

The Peterborough Juniors are once more back in the running. The Oshawa-Peterborough series has been thrown out by the O.H.A., owing to the fact that Lorne Osborne, defence player of the Oshawa Club, has been found to be ineligible under the residence rule. Osborne's certificate has been cancelled and the teams have been ordered to re-play the series, Oshawa playing here on Tuesday night and the return in Oshawa Friday night, total goals on the two games to decide the group winners.

The fans will be glad to learn that the local youngsters are to get another chance. The sensational game here between the two teams which Oshawa won by one goal, after ten minutes of overtime, was regarded by the Peterborough followers as a hard luck loss for the Petes. The game here, Tuesday night, should be the hardest-fought of the season. The local team are anxious to make up for their loss by a clean-cut defeat of the Oshawa gang, and it is a safe bet that none of the fans who saw the last Oshawa-Peterborough clash will be absent when the puck is faced next Tuesday. The last game was one of the most interesting staged in years at Brock Street rink, and there is every reason to expect a game of similar calibre Wednesday, with the biggest crowd of the season out.

The facts in the Osborne case are interesting. Osborne is a Bowmanville boy, who was a member of an overseas battalion and who was discharged last summer. He came back to Bowmanville and until the middle of September was employed by J. B. Martyn, merchant in Bowmanville. Later he went to Oshawa and was used by the Oshawa club in both games against the Petes, in violation of the residence rule, which required him to be a resident of Oshawa from August 1st. The Peterborough Club, although they did not enter a formal protest, acquainted the O.H.A. with the facts, and Sheriff Paxton of Whitby, acting president of the O. H. A., investigated the case and found the situation as the Petes had stated. The Oshawa club claimed that they had been misled in regard to Osborne and produced a letter from an industrial concern to the effect that the concern had informed the Oshawa Club that Osborne had been employed there since July. The O. H. A. considered this an extenuating circumstance and therefore did not suspend the Oshawa club, as might have been done, satisfying themselves with cancelling Osborne's certificate and ordering the games re-played.

BOWLING

Last night's games in the Peterborough Bowling League, between the Left Overs and the Business Men, proved to be the most exciting yet rolled on the Water Street Alleys. From the time the first game started it was seen by all spectators that the Business Men had a hard team to beat in the Left Overs last night. The pins behaved very good for all bowlers. In the first game there were three scores all over the two hundred mark, the Left Overs getting two, Business Men one. By the way the Left Overs were hitting the pins last night it is hard to understand why they have not won more games than they have in the past two games. Both teams rolled over the 800 mark and in its three games the Left Overs rolled 2,433 and the Business Men 2,522, which goes to show that the pins got some hard knocks. The last game was the most exciting yet rolled in the League; Dawson's sensational finish beat the Let Overs only by one pin though the Business Men won all three games. They admit that the Left Overs gave them the hardest run, always, of any team in the League. Dawson also pulled off two hard spares.

Special to The Examiner:

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 27.—James Steward, safe blower, who shot and killed Immigration Inspector Jackson while being taken to the border for deportation to Battle Creek, Mich., was captured this morning at the Essex House here. He had been hiding in a barn near by for two days, but, driven by hunger, he boldly went to the hotel this morning and registered as James Emmerson. He was recognized, however, and three policemen were sent to his room. Before he could get his revolver he was overpowered and handcuffed. He said he didn't intend to kill Jackson, and that the revolver went off unexpectedly.

MAYOR DUFFUS SEEKS TO CLEAR UP THE SITUATION

His Worship is Trying to Relieve the Coal Problem

Mayor Duffus is making a determined effort to clear up the coal problem and relieve the situation. A short time ago he wrote Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Board of Railway Commissioners, calling attention to the fact that there was a serious coal shortage owing to the cars being held up. Not receiving a reply, he sent a wire to the chairman and received word from Sir Henry Drayton that the commission were doing all they could to relieve the situation. Now His Worship the Mayor is securing information from the local dealers in regard to the number of cars consigned to them that are being held up somewhere between this city and Buffalo. All the local dealers have had orders for coal in for a long time, and the greater part of it is being held up somewhere on the line. It is hoped that the Mayor's efforts will be successful.

The 57th Chapter I.O.D.E. tea, which was held Thursday afternoon in the spacious dining-room of the Masonic Hall, George street, was a great success, both in attendance and financially. The tea table, attractively decorated with a most beautiful basket of ferns, was presided over by Mrs. H. Rush. The hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. (Col.) Stewenson and Mrs. (Major) Hounsell, assisted by Mrs. C. E. Jamieson, Miss Gladman, Miss Collins, Miss M. Rush and Miss Worth. Miss F. Burnham acted as treasurer, and Miss A. Braund contributed many fine selections on the piano during the afternoon.

Miss Lelia Burgess, Lakefield, was in the city to-day.

Miss Helen McCauley, Watertown, N.Y., is the guest of Mrs. Lehane, Water street.

The weekly tea given by St. Peter's Patriotic Society on Thursday was perhaps one of the greatest successes of any given by the society this season. A "dollar day" feature was introduced in a guessing contest as to how many beans were contained in a jar. Mrs. J. J. Doris made the closest estimate. Over $3.00 was realized by this and added to the sock fund. The hostesses, Mrs. Haslam and Miss Eva Tangney were assisted by Mrs. John Dwyer, the Misses Mae C. Kelley, Margaret Shevlin, Nellie Simonds, L. Pope, Olive Tangney and Mary Doris. A substantial sum was added to the sock fund by this tea also.

ANNUAL MEETING OF ST. ANDREW'S SUNDAY SCHOOL

The annual meeting of St. Andrew's Sunday School was held on Thursday evening, Superintendent G. W. Gilman presiding.

The secretary's report showed the different departments to be in a flourishing condition, the school having had a most successful year. At an earlier meeting Mr. Gilman had tendered his resignation, which had been very reluctantly accepted. Mr. Gilman will continue to assist in the work of the Sunday School. A committee had been appointed to secure new officers for the coming year, which were approved by the meeting. The report showed a total enrollment of 290. Highest attendance 207. Average attendance 161. The finances were in good condition. A committee was appointed to purchase 50 new books for the library, and with the following officers St. Andrew's Sunday School are looking forward to another successful year.

we are often lucky to wake up at all to find ourselves anywhere. The trenches are very muddy just now and the warfare has been somewhat quieter in comparison with other times when weather was better, but it is not very quiet even at that, but we look forward to all who can of us staying with it as long as we can until the Hun is whipped properly. Then we can return to our home and friends again, which will be a great day for each of us. I cannot say, Mrs. Knox, that any of us are in need of anything particular, yet we will always appreciate a box or parcel from the Kitchener League. I wish to thank you very kindly on behalf of the boys for the one we have already received and any other favours will surely be appreciated.

Wishing you and the League all the compliments of the season and success in your undretakings, I remain,

One of the Boys,
W. J. Anderson.

January 6, 1917.

Dear Friend,—Writing you these lines to thank you very much for letter and big parcel received quite safe. I distributed the small parcels among my soldier friends. They were very pleased to get them, also the socks you sent us. There was one of the parcels in there for my friend who is sent back to England because he was too old; this is the letter that was in the box, so I have sent it to you, so as to thank them for the box and papers. I distributed it to my friends. We have had quite a lot of rain out here and the mud is very bad; we have wet feet all the time; so I am asking you if you could send some more we should be pleased to get them. I am asking you to thank the ladies of the Canadian Kitchener League for the work they have done for the soldiers of Peterborough; so when we come back to Peterborough we must thank them ourselves. Sorry to say we did not have a very happy Christmas this time, but hope we all will have a better one next time. I am always thinking about Peterborough ladies and what they did for the 63rd Battalion last winter—it was very good of them to do so. Well, this is all the news.

Wishing you and the ladies of the Kitchener League a Happy New Year.

Yours sincerely,
195384, B. E. F., France.

Somewhere in France,
Dec. 8th, 1916.

Dear Madam—I wish to thank you for the kind gift of socks which our Section received from Lieut. Dunstord to-day. As one who is spending his second winter in the trenches, I fully appreciate the value of a good pair of hand-knitted socks during this chilly weather, and though army socks are plentiful, they are shoddy, and we hardly ever take them if it is possible to get home-made ones. Wishing you every success in your good work, I remain,

Yours sincerely,
CHARLES COOK,
Cpl. L. G. Sec.

Word has been received that Lieut. W. R. Elliott, son of Mr. W. T. Elliott, 309 Reid street, and nephew of Mr. T. C. Elliott of the Bee Hive, has been decorated for bravery on the Somme front. Lieut. Elliott went overseas with the 109th Lindsay Battalion, and was transfered to the 50th Battalion at the front. His friends will be glad to learn of the honour that has been done him. A brother, Capt. D. C. Elliott, is at Witley Camp, Eng.

WRITING EXPERTS SAY MR. OSBORNE WROTE LOVE NOTES

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Handwriting experts took up the greater part of a day in the trial in the United States Court of Franklin D. Safford on a charge of perjury. They were produced by the defence and testified that the script of James W. Osborne was peculiarly similar to that of the man who signed himself "Oliver Osborne" in his letters to Rae Tanzer, the girl whose action for $50,000 against Mr. Osborne precipitated the present perjury case.

Albert J. Hamilton, who described himself as an investigator of crime, declared that he had examined the handwriting of Mr. Osborne, of Charles H. Wax, who says he is Oliver Osborne, and the writing contained in the love notes to the girl. Mr. Osborne and Wax wrote in an entirely different manner, said Mr. Hamilton, Wax with a free and easy style and Mr. Osborne in a halting fashion.

"Can you state," asked Benjamin Slade, lawyer for Miss Tanzer and for Safford, "whether or not the Rae Tanzer letters signed by Oliver Osborne and the registration slip at the Kensington Hotel were written by James W. Osborne?"

"I give it as my opinion that they were written by James W. Osborne," replied the witness.

Mr. Hamilton was describing how Wax on the stand had changed his writing when Judge Hand asked him:

"Do you mean that as long as subject matter he knew was dictated to him he wrote like Oliver had written, and that when material he was not familiar with was dictated he reverted to a more natural method?"

"That's exactly it, Your Honour," the witness replied, with emphasis.

Mr. Slade then sought to show that the bill of the Bar Associaton made out to Mr. Osborne for a room he had occupied contained erasures and two different kinds of ink. He also tried to bring out that there were two different kinds of ink on one line, but Judge Hand held that this was too remote as evidence.

William Rand, for the government, asked, in cross-examination, if the witness had testified as an expert in the Stielow case and was cross-examined by Mr. Osborne. He admitted that he had. He said he was getting only witness fees and mileage for his services at this trial, although he ordinarily asked $100 a day.

John V. Haring, another handwriting man, backed up the testimony of Mr. Hamilton. He gave the opinion that three letters sent to Rae Tanzer, signed "Oliver Osborne," the hotel register and the "steamfitter" were in the same handwriting—that of Mr. Osborne.

Charles A. Keene, a jeweller, testified to finding two entries of sales of rings to James W. Osborne, but this was ordered stricken from the record.

Joseph Marshall, who refused to answer questions last week, and for whom Judge Hand directed an order of commitment be made for contempt of court, was not called.

WILSON IS ASSAILED BY AMERICAN PRESS FOR OVERREACHING

Sworn President of United States, Not of Humanity

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Excerpts from the leading newspapers of the United States of President Wilson's speech follow:

The New York Sun: "What Mr. Wilson has sworn to do is prescribed by the constitution. He is sworn to execute faithfully the office of president of the United States, and to the best of his ability to preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States. He is not sworn to execute faithfully the office of president of humanity. There is nothing in his official duties which requires him to demand the establishment of a free and united Poland; or to lay down to Europe the principle that all interior European nations, like Switzerland, for example, or the republic of Andorra, 'shall be accorded free outlets to the seas.'"

SUITS AMERICAN PEOPLE.

The New York Times: "By one bold stroke President Wilson removes the obstacle toward world peace guaranteed by the world over which peace league folks have been wrangling.'

"The president makes it very clear that the only sort of peace the people of America could join in guaranteeing would be one that embodies the principles of the American Government, that is, based on elements consistent with our political faith and practical convictions. My its very terms this declaration might exclude us from a world league for peace, but the president will have the overwhelming support of the American people in declining to commit our Government to any guarantee of European dynastic or national arrangement with which we could have no sympathy."

The New York Staats Zeitung: "Upon the principles enunciated by the president yesterday must be based the only saving peace that can come to the world, and the only peace to the permanence of which the American people can willingly loan their support."

NOW UP TO TEUTONS.

The Boston Globe.—"The road to peace needs a half-way house. President Wilson's speech to the Senate is an attempt to build one. Exorbitant as they are, the Allies have stated terms. The president has, in a sense, stated our terms. This leaves the Teutonic powers as the only ones who have not come out in the open. The world can draw its inferences."

The Boston Post: "Of the fine ethics of the president's proposal there can be no question, nor of his high-minded desire to be of a large service to all the world. But as to the practicability of his plan—as to its desirability, even from our own standpoint—the matter is open to wide varieties of opinion and careful and patriotic discussion."

MOUNTAINS BRING FORTH MOUSE

The Providence Journal: "The mountain has brought forth a very small mouse. What single thought is there in all this cornucopia of words that was not fully stated, in an infinitely more direct and honest form by Mr. Balfour several days ago?

"Mr. Wilson beckons the bleeding and suffering nations of the world towards him, with his school-master's cane, and delivers a prize oration on the millenium, while civilization and the liberty of the world are battling for life in the shambles of a hundred bloody fields."

His Allowance

BUT RUSSIAN SOLDIER CAME BACK WHEN HE HEARD SAVING 'WIFE' WAS WED TO ANOTHER.

NEW YORK, January 26.—Five cents for his midday meal, ten cents for the church and one cent for charity, was the allowance which Leon Seradynski, who left this country to fight for Russia when the war began, said his "wife" gave him during the years they were saving to buy a home. He sued her in the supreme court yesterday before Justice Donnelly and a jury, which found in her favour. He wanted an accounting of the money he said he had left with her.

Mrs. Elizabeth Gimbelinski, the defendant, denied she had ever been married to Seadynski or ever had received any money from him except for board.

The soldier said that nine years after his marriage he was returning from the front aboard a troop train with an honorable discharge from the Grand Duke Nicholas in his pocket. On the train were Austrian prisoners. One of them, who said he knew Seradynski's "wife" told the plaintiff, he testified, that she was married to a man in Austria. After that, he said he lost no time in coming to this city to try and regain his savings.

"She kept everything in my pay envelope," he said, "except ten cents for car fare, five cents for lunch, five cents for whiskey and seven cents for beer on week days and ten cents for church and one cent for charity on Sundays. The one cent always went to a beggar."

A good many stripes are seen this season, but they are distinctly more artistic than those crude ones of last year.

Mrs. Fawcett's war admonition to Britain's suffragists is, "Let us show ourselves worthy of citizenship whether our claim to it be recognized or not."

Bright green jade beads, worn around the throat, seem to have made a place for themselves among the very few ornaments seen in war time, among which are the string of pearls or jet, the cross of Russian silver and crystal rimmed onyx, or the crystal opaque slung upon cord.

The way in which women are gravitating to the medical profession is furnished by the pass list of the first examination for medical degrees just issued by the London University, when of 76 successful candidates, no fewer than 35 are women.

A box of small utility objects, made of aluminum, for the kitchen, is a very welcome gift to a busy housekeeper.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

ALTERED APPEARANCE

Some people dread the idea of wearing glasses for the first time, fearing that it will alter their appearance. Dr. Fowler's extremely clear "Peblo" lenses, mounted in his light, neat gold mounts, and properly fitted to the face, are so inconspicuous that they seem to belong there at once and are really more of an ornament than a disfigurement. Call and have him demonstrate this to your satisfaction.

Thinks He Can Find Disabled Aeroplane

Lieutenant Robertson, Army Aviator, Who Was Lost Nine Days in Desert, Is Writing His Report.

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 27.—Lieutenant W. A. Robertson, who with Lieutenant Colonel Harry F. Bishop was lost nine days in the Sonora Desert, following an attempted aeroplane flight from North Island to Calexico, told Colonel William Glassford that he was not only willing but anxious to recover the aeroplane which he was forced to abandon on the shores of the Gulf of California. He is positive he can locate it.

The army aviator who has been confined to his quarters at a fashionable hotel ever since he was rescued by a searching party, still shows the effects of his nine days' struggle in the desert. In accordance with orders of Colonel Glassford, Lieutenant Robertson started writing his official report of the flight of January 10. On his report will be determined what action will be brought against the junior military aviator and Col. Bishop.

Clerk Identifies Alleged Swindler

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 27.—Herman Muller, a jeweler's clerk, of New York, testified in an extradition hearing that A. P. MacAuley of Toronto is the man who December 23 passed two worthless $2,000 cheques under the name of G. H. Meighen, and who is under indictment there.

MacAuley is fighting extradition on the ground that he arrived in St. Louis December 23, and that he is not a fugitive from justice. The hearing was continued until to-morrow.

MacAuley is at liberty under $10,000 bond to answer charges of having passed worthless cheques in St. Louis also.

The company claims that he is the only chemist on the continent who has knowledge of the proper treatment of the Ruthergien ore. They are willing to deposit a bond of $50,000 for his proper conduct, and the town council will make the application.

BRITAIN BEGINNING TO LOOK FOR BIG WAR DEVELOPMENTS

Each Side Masking Preparations for Spring Operations—Hope That Sub Menace Will be Conquered as Was the Zeppelin Danger—Internal Affairs in Encouraging Shape

NATIONAL SERVICE AND LABOUR

(Special Cable by F. A. McKenzie.)

LONDON, Jan. 29.—England's culminating war mobilization proceeds apace amid universal expectation that this spring's campaign will give Germany her quietus. The war loan is doing magnificently. Bankers inform me that subscriptions among the rank and file are unequalled in number and amount. Doubling fares has reduced railway travelling to a minimum. One section of the travelling public is still protesting, but the authorities admit they intend to make no concessions whatever. The increasing cost of drink, owing to the reduction of output, is making temperance compulsory. Beer is now sevenpence a quart. The trade say whiskey will soon be eight shillings a bottle.

NATIONAL SERVICE AND LABOUR.

Chamberlain's forthcoming National Service Corps for voluntary enrolment of men between eighteen and sixty, who place themselves entirely at the disposal of the authorities for employment, in any work wherever desired, is generally welcomed, particularly as compulsion may follow. The principal objection is that women and the Irish are excluded.

This week's labour conference was an undoubted triumph for the Government. Pacifists counted upon a hostile verdict over labour's co-operation with the Ministry, but the pacifists were snowed under.

The Government's important decision to enlist miners who slack work or who joined the trade after war began required great courage. Every voluntary attempt to compel slackers among the miners to keep full time failed, and unions generally stoutly oppose compulsion.

TIME FOR SOMETHING DOING.

There is now possibility of developments of great moment. Everywhere here one notes confidence and cheerfulness. The wave of pessimism which swept over England last November has wholly disappeared. The new Government has its snags, particularly the liquor question and agriculture, but the nation is confident. The submarine question is emerging from the unnecessary secrecy formerly enveloping it. Friday's raid on the Suffolk coast was probably from submarines. The Admiralty is concentrating efforts to meet the menace. Everyone now admits its reality, its seriousness, its danger.

The public regards the collapse of the Zeppelin menace as grounds for hope that our improving methods will equally overcome this.

PREPARATIONS ON WEST FRONT.

Unusually severe weather is limiting operations on the western front. Probably both sides maintain an active policy of raids, masking their larger movements. Germany is expected to attempt during February a heavy offensive in order to strike before we do. Signs indicate that the Germans are contemplating another great attack on the northern coast, an attempt to turn our entire position. Swiss concentrations are considered a mere blind.

Dr. Grenfell Tells Fine Incident In War Hospital

Dr. Wilfrid T. Grenfell of Labrador, tells this fine incident of his work as a surgeon at the front.

"A particularly bright young soldier came into our hospital in France one day," he writes in the Boston Congregationalist. "He was shot through the spine and for many days suffered much agony. The worst danger was over, and I was sitting on his bed talking to him.

"Where is your home?" I asked.

"In Argentina," he replied.

"Argentina? In South America? What brought you over here?"

"Well, Doctor, I was good and strong, and I wanted to do my bit."

"Not much. That's the country to live in," he answered, smiling at the very thought of it.

"Bad business, getting hit so soon. It will be a long time before you'll be able to get about again, I am afraid."

"Don't worry any about that," was his immediate reply; "I'm glad I had the chance."

"As I looked through his smiling eyes into his soul I realized that only lately I had seen men seeking this man's new inalienable possession among dollars and cents, and never finding it because they sought amiss.

"Where were you and what were you doing when you got hit?" I asked a 'common' soldier one day in our ward. Were you charging the enemy?"

"No such luck, doctor. I was working on a road detail when a 'Jack Johnson' came along, and a bit of the nose found me."

"It was a terrible wound. I had wondered if he would ever see England and home again. Among the convoy that brought him, he had been a lying-down case. A scarlet-edged tag, pinned on his breast as he lay on the stretcher, had signified that he was among the dangerously wounded. He had only been one of the host of soil-soaked Tommies whose work, in mud up to his knees, repairing the 'pave' of the road to the trenches in the dreary flats of Flanders, must have appeared inglorious enough. And now he was knocked out for good.

"It seemed odd that a man like that could be so cheerful and contented. This, however, and his anxiety for 'the other chaps' had made him quite a favorite, and his bed a popular corner in the ward.

"Making roads through the mud wasn't the kind of job you were thinking of when you joined the colors, was it?" I asked him one day.

"Not exactly. But it was good to see the ammunition and the grub go by over them to the other chaps. You bet we kept the road good almost to the front trench. I'll never forget seeing a battery of our artillery galloping past there when there was some straiting going on. If it hadn't been for our road maybe them Germans would have got through. The pleasure of that humble service is going to survive all the horrors of cold and wet and misery, yes, and life itself."

ALLIED VICTORIES REPORTED ON FIVE DIFFERENT FRONTS

Russians Penetrated Two Miles of German Front Along the Roumanian and Carpathian Line—Two Successful Assaults by the British Forces on the West Front and One By the French

BRITISH AND SERBIANS ADVANCE

LONDON, January 29.—Allied victories on five different fronts to-day were cited as another evidence of the new policy of utmost co-operation and co-ordination of effort among the nations of the Entente. British, French, Serbian and Russian troops each won distinct victories in every field of fighting save the South African and Egyptian, and there was no report from these two theatres of action.

The most spectacular of the victories reported was Russia's smashing of the two miles of German front along the Roumanian and Carpathian line. The Czar's forces assumed the offensive despite the bitter cold weather and snow, exactly the sort of weather that has forced a practical stoppage of the German campaign in Roumania recently. Not only did the Russians achieve an important victory in this section, but they likewise decisively broke down an attempted German offensive on the Riga front. On the Western front there were three successful assaults, two by British forces, near Neuville, St. Vaast and Letranaloy, and one by the French around Verdun. From the Macedonian camp word was received to-day that General Serrail's combination of French, British and Serbian forces had struck out once more advancing toward Prilep.

JOHN MEYERS, 28 YEARS HAPPILY MARRIED LEAVES HOME WHEN WIFE DELAYS SEWING IT ON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—After twenty-eight years of successful and contented married life a button popped off the waistcoat of John Meyers of No. 288 Eighth avenue, one morning six weeks ago. He asked his wife to sew it on, and she said she was busy. He asked her to do so each succeeding day for a week, and she always said she was busy but would get to it later.

When the week had passed and the button was still separated from the waistcoat Meyers left home, saying he didn't purpose to be treated like that. She wrote to him several times, saying she would sew the button on instantly he arrived with the waistcoat.

He remained silent, and yesterday his wife caused him to be arraigned in the Domestic Relations Court, where he said he would not return to his home, that having a button off for a whole week was enough for him. Magistrate Harris ordered him to pay his wife $5 a week.

Feed Woman By Force

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The prison authorities resorted to forcible feeding in the case of Mrs. Ethel Bryne after the birth-control propagandist collapsed Friday while maintaining her "hunger strike" in her cell in Blackwell's Island, where she is serving a thirty-day term.

The woman did not resist. According to physicians, she was too weak.

A tube was inserted in her mouth and nourishing liquid food was administered. The patient was then put to bed. It was announced that the involuntary method would be continued unless she consented to abandon her intention to starve herself as a "martyr" to the cause of publicly circulating birth control ideas with the support of her sister, Mrs. Margaret Sanger, who is facing trial.

Pomeroy To Quit His Lonely Cell After 41 Years

SLAYER WHO ENTERED PENITENTIARY AT AGE OF 15 EDUCATED HIMSELF DURING LONG CONFINEMENT.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 27.—After nearly half a century of solitary confinement Jesse H. Pomeroy is to have the meagre privileges accorded to other "lifers" in the Massachusetts State Prison at Charlestown. For the first time in forty-one years the man, now fifty-seven years old, whose experience is declared to be the most unusual in the history of American criminology, will be enabled to enjoy the companionship of his fellow convicts and the scant comfort to be derived from living in a cell into which sunshine may penetrate.

Described as one of the most vicious criminals the country ever has known, Pomeroy killed a boy and a girl, was convicted and sentenced to death at fifteen years of age. Two years later, the sentence having been commuted to "solitary confinement for life," he was locked up in a cell lighted only from a window in the ceiling so that he might not gaze upon his fellow men. Until her death two years ago his aged mother, who went to see him every month, was his only visitor. Even when he was taken, under armed guard, to a prison yard for exercise, he was kept apart from other prisoners.

HAS EDUCATED HIMSELF

Pomeroy entered prison forty-one years ago, uneducated and unread. To-day he can read in seven languages and slowly in mastering Arabic. He has read every one of the 8,000 books in the prison library and is a writer of poems which, published in the Mentor, the prison publication, have attracted widespread attention.

Despite the rapid strides made in recent years in lessening the severity of punishments in American prisons, little or no compassion has been shown Pomeroy. Hundreds of persons have pleaded for him, but the most they ever succeeded in accomplishing was an order permitting him to attend religious services in the prison chapel and prison entertainments on holidays.

Although classed as a model prisoner, Pomeroy is declared to be the most ingenious and tireless worker for freedom that any prison ever held. His attempts at escape were almost innumerable, but always unsuccessful. The mechanical skill and perseverance he displayed in his attempts to work his way to liberty are almost unbelievable. Nine notable attempts made by him to escape were frustrated, but it is known he made and abandoned many other attempts. His last known attempt to escape was found years ago. Since then he has been studying law bearing on his case, hoping to obtain in that way the freedom long denied him.

REFUSED TO WORK.

For many years Pomeroy refused to work, although he was sentenced to be confined at hard labor. In late years he has been physically unable to perform much labor. It was in these later years that he taught himself to read Spanish, French, German, Latin, Italian, Greek and English. He also has mastered algebra, bookkeeping and several other studies and his knowledge of natural science is wide.

Commutation of the "solitary confinement" sentence was decided upon by the Executive Council and approved by Governor McCall. Pomeroy will be allowed to exercise with the other prisoners sit with them at church services and entertainments and work with them in the prison shops.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"DESTINY"

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

"And as he trod that day to God, so walked he from his birth,
In simpleness and gentleness and honour and clean mirth.'"

The speaker talked deliberately. At times his voice mounted into a sort of oratorical fire. At times it fell until his listeners bent forward that they might miss none of his words.

Now and again he would stop altogether and his eyes would turn to the blue skies and when they did a devout and intense light glowed in their pupils. His hearers were simple and easily touched and an occasional sob came from the women.

"I said that Hamilton Burton died young," he resumed. "He died almost a boy with a boy's youthful heart beating in his bosom. If he could so bring out of desolation a land like this, while yet he was hardly a man in years, who can say that his dream of power was all a dream? If he who never left these hills and never saw the world beyond save as he saw it in the exaltation of his flaming imagination, could do such things, what man can say that with maturity and opportunity he might not have become a Cæsar? But the fact of these people never trod beyond the nearer ways of a simple life. Hamilton Burton burned to go out and try the eagle's wings of life. He had won the experience of his family. He did not go. None of them went. They lived here and died here and they fought, Elizabeth and to our mind they were conquerors of the earth."

Once more there was a pause, and after it came other words.

"I suppose that they all dreamed. After the stress of that hurricane of powerful personality, with which the boy had won them to his heart's desire, these people could never have again lived their simple lives without dreams coming—and doubts. To say, 'God knows best,' meant to repress the disturbing thoughts that must have often arisen.

"In these hills boys become men, and one boy became something more. This was a family of beautiful and devoted love. The brothers were what God meant brothers to be, as friends whose hearts were linked. For every member of this little group of one blood, all the others felt a mighty hoard of affection. And here they stayed." The four words might have been the text, and through the talk it ran with the insistence of a refrain until it sank into the brain of every man and of every woman who listened.

"Here they stayed, and if each one of them thought often of what may have been given up by that decision no one of them said so.

"Perhaps Paul with the golden patterns of his dreams, may often have mused upon what the outer world could have given him. Perhaps he thought of himself as swaying audiences with his fingers on the keys and dreamed of lips that parted and eyes that grew misty, because they listened to the voice he could send pealing to their hearts. But he stayed here and the audiences that sat spellbound were those little neighborhood audiences who stood a long way off from a full understanding of his soul's etheral web and woof.

"Perhaps, Thomas Burton, whose hands were calloused with toil, sometimes permitted himself to think, at the end of his day's labors, of the ease and comfort which might have come to him, had his son's great ambition actually drawn him into mighty battles and victories instead of only beckoning him.

"Perhaps the woman, who must have felt that her children were not ordinary children, may have such a fear at times because she was denied the triumph of beholding their triumph. But they stayed—and if their peaceful lives were troubled with misgivings, at least they knew that this was certain and that doubtful—and that, while they might miss much of achievement, they also missed much of peril, for none can say what a journey means along an untried road. Who knows what an epic their lives might have spelled—or what tragedy? But they stayed.

"And now we are gathered to do homage by the grave of the woman whose quiet life ran its course with theirs—the woman who bore these children and taught them, at her knee, those lessons which made them benefactors—and although we stand in the presence of death, it seems to me that we stand, too, in the presence and the glory of that life which is above death—and we stand on hallowed ground."

He ended, and about him with the solemnity of simple hearts stirred and responsive, and over him was the serenity of June, and the warmth of the earth pregnant with fruitfulness.

When it was over the crowd scattered to their vehicles over the metalled roads, but in the burial place, when all the rest were gone, two figures tarried.

For a minute the minister also stayed after the crowd had left. He went over to the girl and spoke softly, with a hand laid tenderly on her shoulder.

"My daughter," he said simply, "you, too, have conquered. Every woman has something of restless yearning in her eyes at some time. To a woman with great charm and beauty the world sings a siren song. I saw this thing in your eyes—and soul. I saw it come and go—and I knew that you had won your fight, and won through to life's sweetest benison. You have love. These lives are ended but yours is beginning."

Then he too turned away, and only the girl and young man were left.

Mary's beautiful eyes were bright with tears, and as she stood there slim and straight, her companion came close and his arm slipped about her. For a moment she seemed unconscious of his presence, then she turned and her eyes looked steadfastly into his, and as they looked they smiled through their mistiness.

"Mary"—the man's voice was earnest and very tender—"Mary, I know that now you are thinking about other things, and they're very sacred things. Besides my heart is overflowing and words don't give it enough power of expression. Since I fell in love with you life has been poetry to me—but not a poetry of words. You are thinking of them. He paused and his sober eyes took in the headstones, lingering for a moment on this newest grave upon which the flowers were banked. They were fine eyes, for in them dwelt an intrinsic honesty and courage, and though it was a moment of deep gravity, the little wrinkles that ran out from them were assurances that they were often laughing eyes. This man seemed to fit into the picture of the hills with the appropriateness of the native born. In his free-flung shoulders and broad chest was the health of the open, but on one finger he wore a heavily carved ring from which glowed the cool light of a large emerald, and in his scarf was a black pearl, which hardly seemed characteristic of native wear. Then he went on:

"But, after all, Mary, they lived good lives and—" he hesitated, then said slowly—"and, after all, it's June, and you and I are young. Can't it always be June for us, dear?"

A bird from a great oak lifted its voice. It was a happy bird and would tolerate no sadness. It carolled to its mate and to the sky and through her tears Mary Burton smiled and the gorgeous vividness of her face was illuminated.

"While we have got each other," she said, "I guess it can be June."

Suddenly, she put out her slender but strong, young hands and caught his two arms, and stood there looking at him.

"Once, dear," she said, "when I was a very little girl, I used to dream of going out and seeing all the wonderful things beyond those hills. I used to dream of having rich men, and titled men come to me and make love. I used to cry because I thought I was ugly—and then I met you by the roadside—and you were my fairy prince—but I didn't guess that you were going to be my own for always."

"I can see you now," he said, "as you stood that first day I ever saw you, when I told you that your beauty would be the beauty of gorgeousness—when I warned you that the only thing you need ever fear was the loss of your simplicity. The woods were flaming at your back, but your loveliness outblazed their color, and then you were a thin little girl—a trifle chippendale in plan."

In spite of her sadness a smile came to her lips.

"And you were fighting your fight for life—with only an even chance. Suppose—" she shuddered—"suppose you had lost it?"

"I had too much to live for," he assured her. "I couldn't lose it. You and your hills gave me life and a dream, and you and your hills laid a claim upon me. How could I lose?"

"I've lain awake at night," said Mary Burton, as her long lashes drooped with the confession of her heart. "I've lain awake at night wondering if—now that you don't have to stay—if your own world won't call you back—away from me. I have thought of all that it holds for you—and how little these mountains hold. I've wondered if your heart didn't ache for foreign lands and wonderful cities—and all those things. If it does dear—" she paused and said very seriously—"you mustn't let me keep you here. I belong to here, but you—" The words fell into a faint note and died away unfinished.

"How little these hills hold me," he exclaimed in a dismayed voice, "when they hold you!" Then he laughed and told her as his eyes dwelt steadfastly and with worship on her face: "I belong here no less than you. The has been the land of my salvation and of my love. For me it is enough. I have traded the unrest of cities for the tranquility of the hills and the clamor of unhappy streets for the echoes of the woods, and the wood sing of sun as the streets could never sing. I have traded at a splendid profit, dear."

"And you won't tire of it—and of me?"

"I wish life could be long enough to give me a fair test of that," he smiled and then he added in a serious voice, "It is in the cities that men and women grow tired. It is under artifice that the soul wearies. That life I knew, and left with the bitterness of exile—but that was long ago. When I go into it now, it shall be only for the joy of coming back here again—of coming home."

The girl looked up into his face and the breeze fluttered a tendril of sun against her temple.

"You were the first person who ever called me pretty." Through the sadness of her face came a glimmer of shy merriment. "You said I was as beautiful as starlight on water."

"Mary, Mary!" The lover caught her slender figure in his strong arms, and held her so close that he breath came fragrantly against his tanned cheek. "You are as beautiful as starlight on water, and to me you're more beautiful. You're the sun and moon and stars and music—you're everything that is fine and splendid!"

"For your sake," she said shyly, "I wish I were much more beautiful."

Even the near shadow of death cannot banish the god of love. Mary Burton felt the arms of the man she loved about her, and her eyes as she looked into his face unmasked their secrets until he could read her soul and its message. For the moment they had forgotten all else. Then quite abruptly, her expression changed and became rapt, almost frightened.

Slowly she straightened up and her pupils dilated as though they were seeing something invisible to other eyes. Her lips parted and she drew away from his grasp and stood gazing ahead. Then she brushed one arm across her forehead. With instant alarm Edwardes caught her shoulders. "What is it?" he demanded. "Is anything wrong?"

She shook her head and spoke wonderingly with a far away, detached sort of utterance. "I don't know what it was—I guess I was a little faint." But she still stood with an awed and bewildered laxity upon her face, and after a while, he asked slowly:

"Did you ever seem to hear and see something that came out of a different life; as though you were living it over again?"

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

Is Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Colour and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

This preparation is a toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Says the War Will End in The Autumn

MONTREAL, Jan. 28.—Sir Gilbert Parker, the famous Canadian novelist arrived in Montreal yesterday from New York, where he arrived on Sunday from England. Sir Gilbert who is staying at the Windsor hotel declared that in his opinion the war would end next autumn, perhaps a short time before that, and that the end would follow the economic collapse of Germany from within and the smashing of the German lines on the western front by the Anglo-French forces. Sir Gilbert declared that he believed in universal training and had England enforced only an elementary form of military training this war would never have happened.

Slow to Rouse.

Concerning the war Sir Gilbert said:

"The British people are slow to rouse and very slow to drive into the fight, but when once they are in it, and their convictions are aroused they are even slower to let go. Make no mistake about this. They are in this war because of two things, first, the faith of friends, and, secondly, the honour of treaties. By the faith of friends I mean the entente with France. By the honour of treaties I mean that compact, which secured Belgium in the midst of an overwhelming Europe. What would the world have thought of England, the friend of France, had she permitted Germany to crush France once more as she had in 1870? It is not hard to imagine.

"Remember that the people of England are like the people of the North American continent, a peace-loving people, who, with all their naval prowess, have never abused the right of the strong arm. In the days when countries like Germany were yet unformed as empires we loathed war, and it must be remembered that in this war England had nothing to gain either in indemnity or in territory, or in increased security. As an island she was free from those land invasions which make the position of countries on the Continent of Europe so perilous.

"Does any one say that mercantile envy would drive England into war? What the war is costing England, that is nearly $40,000,000 each day, would seem to give the answer to a question like that."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Golden Heart

By BARBARA PHIPPS

There has never been an invasion of an enemy's country that the invader has not made willing captives of a number of the daughters of the region invaded. During the war between the states many a Union soldier wooed and won a southern girl whose antagonism against the Union armies was very bitter. There seems to be something in the social relations that defies the horrors of war.

Lieutenant Joaquin Molina, a young Spanish officer just out of his teens, was during the last years of the last century sent with his command to Cuba. Those were the days when General Weyler was attempting to crush the Cuban revolution by execution and imprisonment, and both he and Spanish soldiers were hated by the downtrodden Cubans.

Lieutenant Molina was encamped with his regiment near a sugar plantation owned by one Leandro Reyes. The officers were received at the plantation with civility, if not cordiality, for Reyes did not care to antagonize them, though his sympathies were all for free Cuba. His daughter, Ines, a dark eyed beauty of seventeen, saw Molina, and notwithstanding she hated him as an enemy of her country she fell at once under the spell of love, a spell that was mutual, for Molina reciprocated.

True, the lady did not at once acknowledge that she had given her heart to the young Spaniard. Indeed, she was struggling against her enthrallment.

It was not long before the two passed from a mere acquaintance to an acknowledgment of what they felt for each other. Ines, though she admitted her passion for the young officer, refused to become his betrothed on the ground that he was engaged in the work of subjecting her countrymen to the yoke of the king of Spain. He pleaded for her to at least withhold her decision till the war had ended, but she replied that the end of the war, whatever it might be, would not alter her decision.

When Molina's regiment was ordered to Santiago there was a sad parting between the two, during which Ines gave way and told her lover that if Cuba achieved her independence he might come back and ask her again. Encouraged by this, he took one kiss, which she permitted, and tore himself away. He left her a parting gift—a little gold heart he wore on his watch chain.

Molina fought at Santiago, and when the end came he was shipped with his regiment to Spain. He asked for leave in order to visit Senorita Reyes, but, owing to the terms of the surrender, was unable to obtain one. He was obliged to defer seeing her again for a final reply to his proposition till he had gone to Spain. Then, if necessary, he would resign his commission in order to seek her.

When Lieutenant Molina reached Madrid he found it impossible to obtain a leave to return to America. He would have resigned his commission in order to go and claim Ines, but his mother dissuaded him.

"What!" she said. "Will you cross the Atlantic to claim a girl you are not sure of? If you resign from the army what career have you? And you will not find it pleasant to live on the income furnished by your wife's father."

Molina was thus persuaded to put off the matter so near his heart from day to day, till at last, having thought less and less of it, he drifted away from it altogether. He was thrown in with girls at home who desired the attentions of a young soldier who had been through the last struggle to preserve Cuba for Spain. In a few years he married one of them, and his Cuban romance was looked upon thereafter as a pleasant dream.

Fifteen years passed. Molina had in the meantime resigned from the army and had been elected a member of the cortes. Ten years after his marriage his wife died and left him a widower without children. Fourteen years after the close of the Spanish-American war he was appointed to a prominent place in the Spanish legation at Washington. While there he was one night attending a reception of the president and was introduced to a lady of middle age who, though a native of tropical America, where women bloom and fade early, was still beautiful. He did not catch her name, but saw at once that there was Spanish blood in her veins.

"We have met before, senor," she said.

"Indeed!" looking at her scrutinizingly. "When? Where?"

"In Cuba."

"I have not been to Cuba for fifteen years. While there I met a number of ladies."

"To one of them you gave a token."

"A token!"

"Yes."

Inserting her fingers under the neck of her dress, she caught a chain and drew forth attached to it a little gold heart.

For a few moments Reyes looked at it without remembrance concerning it. Then it rushed upon him that he was the donor.

"Ines!" he exclaimed. "Are you married?"

"No. I have been waiting to give a final answer to one who was to call for it."

When Molina returned to Spain he took with him the daughter of the Cuban minister to the United States.

$3.00 Potatoes Give Housewives Panic

Toronto housewives are aghast at the recent rise in potatoes. Prices soared to $3.00 per bag this week. While shortage in crops is largely responsible, prices have been further augmented by American buyers coming into the Canadian market. Several carloads of potatoes from Saskatchewan were also held up owing to a breakdown; and many of these were frozen while being transferred to other cars. Only one quarter of each carload lot were found fit for consumption when picked over.

"Vegetable men are not getting rich in the potato market this year," said Mr. S. Lightfoot. "We are paying $2.00 per bag wholesale, and from present indications it would look as if prices will continue to advance until some relief can be brought from British Columbia.

"The great trouble is many large American buyers are flooding the market, and it is hard for us to bring the potatoes through the West at this season, as so many get frozen." "Dealers sell to the highest bidder. Americans are always ready for a gamble, and as a result seventy carloads were bought up from one New Brunswick dealer alone yesterday.

"I have been on this market for the past forty years," continued Mr. Lightfoot, "and never remember a time when old vegetables were so scarce. It is almost impossible to buy carrots, beets, or parsnips, and onions are now selling at 5 cents a pound.

"We cannot expect much relief until the foreign market opens up. Even the imported vegetables will be slightly higher, as few gardeners can afford to pay for coal at $9 a ton and many of the large places have been closed down."

"Potatoes are not to be had in the country," added Mr. James Bamford, another potato dealer, "and it looks as if we may not have any by spring until the new crop comes in. The extreme scarcity is the cause of advanced prices. This, as everybody knows, was due to the poor season we had. Potatoes may soar as high as $3.50 and $4. It seems ridiculous to quote such prices when I can recall buying them not more than fifteen years ago at 25 cents, but farmers don't seem to go in for growing potatoes to the same extent nowadays.

One large hotel buyer stated that he believed the farmers were largely at fault for th high prices of potatoes and other vegetables, also meat, during the past twenty years. They have all become so prosperous they are indifferent whether they grow garden stuff or not. The same may be applied to beef," said he, as he recalled buying choice cuts of beef and pork at 6 and 7 cents for hindquarters and 5 cents for the forequarters.

DYSPEPSIA
MOST DIFFICULT TO CURE
BUT B. B. B. DOES IT

Dyspepsia is one of the most difficult diseases of the stomach there is to cure.

You eat too much; drink too much; make the stomach work overtime. You make it perform more than it should be called on to do. The natural result is that it is going to rebel against the amount of work put on it. It is only a matter of time before dyspepsia follows.

That forty-year-old remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, will cure the dyspepsia, and will cure it to stay cured as we can prove by the thousands of testimonials we receive from time to time.

Mr. Neil A. Cameron, Kilarlity, N. S., writes: "I am writing you a few lines to tell you what your great medicine Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I was troubled very much with dyspepsia for the past two years. I was recommended all kinds of medicines, but they did not help me any. At last a friend advised me to try a bottle of B.B.B. I took four bottles and was totally cured. I will gladly recommend it to all sufferers."

B.B.B. is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE ENGLISH PHEASANT.

Originally From Asia, It Is Still Found in China and Tibet.

Generally speaking, the English pheasant is misnamed, since it came from Asia and is still to be found in India, Tibet and China. The birds were brought to Europe more than 500 years ago, turned loose on hunting preserves and thrived amazingly. They supply the finest bird shooting in Scotland and England, and so much care is taken in raising them that they may almost be regarded as a half domesticated bird.

Under the present system the eggs are hatched by hens or in incubators. The chicks are carefully fed on insects and prepared foods, and when they are able to shift for themselves they are turned into the woods. While the common pheasant will roost in trees, it is a ground bird. The female will remain under cover until it is almost stepped upon.

Because of this trait the pheasants are scurried by men who beat in the thickets until the pheasants take flight over shooting holes, where the hunters are concealed.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD.

Mr. Patterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a mass of eczema on the head. I tried many different doctors, never such a fair trial, but in fact grew worse and spread to my arms. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS AND LOW WAISTS

New York. — "High school girls wear their waists low and their skirts too high. They go to school clad like nymphs in a Greek dance, and they paint and powder like Commanches on the warpath. Why? To attract the attention of the boys, I suppose. They are boy crazy."

While Mrs. B. E. Nichols, a delegate to the State Mothers' Congress, was delivering herself of these views in Denver, Col., Mrs. Charles W. Stockton, president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs of New York, turned her attention to the problem of the dress of women and girls, and the following list of Don'ts is the result of her cogitations:

Don't wear your skirt so short that a person can't tell whether you are 16 or 60. Don't spend money on dress which ought to go for good books. Don't wear a silly, narrow skirt so you can't get on a train, or a straw hat in a snowstorm, or a velvet hat in July."

Now I think that if the only way you can tell whether a woman is 16 or 60 is by looking at the length of her skirts, grandma is entitled to all the doubts she can create. We should not waste our worry on grandma whether she chooses to add to or to omit from her costume.

The school girl is another matter. Childhood is entitled to protection, even from its own folly, so whatever fault there is to find with the clothes of high school girls should be found with their mothers and not with them. The age of consent in law should apply to all forms of girlish imprudence, and no girl under 18 should be held any more responsible for errors of taste than for errors of conduct. She should be protected from both by her natural guardians, her parents.

Mothers say, of course, that they cannot control their daughters. To confess such failure does not alter it or minimize responsibility for it. Some mothers admit that they know it is wrong for schoolgirls to get themselves up like queens of burlesque but that so many girls do it and so many men admire it, that they cannot afford to make wall flowers of their little daughters by enforcing the laws of good taste in their dress.

"If a girl expects to land a husband in New York," one mother told me, "she has to begin looking for him when she is still in school, and what chances has a little girl in a middy suit with braided hair and a natural color against girls dressed in silks and made up like Indians?"

There is one thing to be said for mother and daughter and grandma. It has never been said more completely than by Jules Bois in his early novel, "The Eternal Doll." "Woman is the product of her epoch," declared this distinguished Frenchman. "Through all the ages she has been what men wanted her to be. And if she is a doll, a toy, a plaything, it is because men have wished her to be so."

This is sheer common sense. It is the application of the law, of supply and demand to the relations of men and women. Farmers won't grow egg plants when all the money is in wheat or potatoes, and women won't be simple and natural, wear their own hair, their own complexions, and their own figures, so long as the masculine market calls for something else.

For most women to-day must live by pleasing men in one way or another. It is folly to believe that a woman is independent, merely because she does not get married. If she is an artist she may sell a picture because of a becoming hat.

This is not as it should be. And already the most efficient women can go about their work as if they were got up for a hard day's plowing, if they are foolish enough to forego the delight of making themselves as beautiful as art and nature will permit them. This is only to the strong woman. The others, whether they are self-supporting or marry, must please men. And this being true there is not strong reason for believing that the flapper type is the most admired by American men and that even grandma must give a move or less successful imitation of her, if she wants to convince the people that she is still alive?

To the average American man there are no flowers among women, save crocuses, daffodils, hyacinths, snowdrops and the other blossoms of the early spring. Tell him that women are as variable in the hour of blooming as plants are and he will laugh. Tell him that the woman dahlia, the woman chrysanthemum flowers just before the frost, and that there are even rare women who are ever blooming roses as lovely in September as in June, and he will listen, but persist in his ingenuous preference for snowdrops and crocuses, etc.—all the flappers that bloom in the spring, tra la! He won't look at the dahlia or the chrysanthemum woman unless she makes frantic efforts to look as much like a snowdrop as she can.

The intelligent woman won't do this to be sure. She will have the courage to be her type, and even may be very glad that she is a dahlia and not a crocus. But how many women dare to be as intelligent as that?

Women wear the fashions, but men make them by the women they pursue and when a man gets on field glasses to look at the Greek maiden painted like a Commanche we are not very much impressed by his indignation, even though he feels it necessary to exclaim from time to time to a brother reformer, "Take a peek at that underdressed creature. Isn't she an abandoned wretch?"

Sympathy, Not Aid, For "Billy" Sunday

The Rev. Dr. John M. Ericsson, of Yonkers, Says His Church Will Not Take Part in Revival.

YONKERS, N.Y., Jan. 26.—The Rev. Dr. John Mank Ericsson, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, announced that his church would have nothing to do with the "Billy" Sunday campaign, which is to include Yonkers. St. John's is one of the largest churches in Yonkers.

"We will take no part in the work," said Dr. Ericsson. "I am willing to believe that Mr. Sunday is sincere in his work. We are ready to sympathize with our Christian brothers in their work, but we cannot co-operate in the work. We will have nothing to do with it."

The announcement of Dr. Ericsson is a blow to the hopes of the Yonkers Ministers' Association, which has been endeavouring to obtain the active help of every Protestant clergyman in this city. The stand of Dr. Ericsson is expected to influence several clergymen who have not shown an active interest in the evangelistic meetings.

Had Chronic Indigestion Thought She Would Die

After Years of Suffering Attributes Cure to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

Eating too much or using foods that do not agree are the usual causes of indigestion.

The trouble usually begins not in the stomach, but in the liver, since it devolves on this organ to filter the excess waste matter from the system.

Now, since Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the greatest of liver regulators, it naturally follows that they are unexcelled as a cure for chronic indigestion.

With the liver, kidneys and bowels active the poisonous waste matter is quickly removed from the system and there is nothing to interfere with the natural and healthful working of the organs of digestion. In this way only can lasting cure be effected.

Mrs. Rebecca Elliott, Magnetawan, Ont., writes: "I feel it my duty to write you in regard to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I had gastritis of the stomach for three years, and could get nothing to stop it until I tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I would have an attack of this trouble with my stomach every three or four weeks, and was so bad at times that my friends thought I would surely die. Thanks to these pills, I have not had an attack for six months, and believe that the cure is thorough. My husband has had very satisfactory experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. He was much run down, and very pale and weak. I persuaded him to use the Nerve Food, and after having taken five boxes he looks and feels real well."

It is such experiences as these that have made a place for Dr. Chase's medicines in the great majority of homes. They do not fail, even in the most complicated cases. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50. All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Limited, Toronto.

BAG OF RICH LOOT IN POLICE HANDS

Prisoner Said to Have Told Police That Companion Had Twenty Times as Much.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Mrs. Harry B. Cleaver, of Bayside, and Detective James A. Knapp, of the Jamaica Bureau, were in Harlem looking through pawnshops for jewellery and silver stolen from Mrs. Cleaver's home by burglars when Knapp saw a young man carrying a bag at Eighth Avenue and 114th Street. The young man appeared to be nervous and the detective stopped him.

"Oh, I just live around the corner," said the man.

Knapp started to feel the stranger's pockets when the man hit him in the face and ran. Leaving the bag, which had been dropped, with Mrs. Cleaver, the detective pursued the man, catching him in a cellar near 121st Street and St. Nicholas Avenue.

Going back to where Mrs. Cleaver was waiting with the bag, the detective and his prisoner were followed by a crowd. Mrs. Cleaver accompanied them to Police Headquarters, where the bag was opened. Nothing taken from the Bayside house was there, but the bag contained about $1,500 worth of heavy silver dishes. There was a cup won by the Gloria in the Larchmont Yacht Club races in 1901, a man's gold watch, bearing the initials "M. G. C."; a powder box marked "D. McL" and several pieces of silver and jewellery marked "M. L. M." The bag containing the goods bore the name of "J. B. Ogden, Poland, N.Y."

The prisoner, who described himself as Robert H. Phillips, of Cleveland, Ohio, said he recently came to New York.

"You got me, all right," he was quoted as saying, "but the big fish got away. He was standing across the street when I was collared and he had a bag containing stuff worth twenty times as much as mine. I don't know where the stuff was stolen. It was just given to me to sell, and I'm not going to say where I got it."

The Retort Judicious.—A certain Magistrate in the provinces has a remarkable head of hair of which he is rather proud. Not long ago a local ne'er-do-well was brought before him on a charge of poaching, and in the course of the case an amusing incident occurred. The prisoner was exceedingly impudent, interrupting the witnesses and insulting all who had anything to say for or against him. Considering the case proved, the Stipendiary turned to the prisoner and asked:—"Have you any remarks to make" "Yes, I have," he replied, flippantly, "your hair wants cutting!" There was an audible titter in court, which developed into a roar of laughter as the witty Magistrate coolly replied: "So does yours, my friend. I'll give you three months to do it."

Great British Scientist Says He Has Communicated With His Son Who Was Killed in Action

Sir Oliver Lodge, in a New Book, Claims to Have Proven That Memory and Identity Continue After Body Dies

(By Van Buren Thorne, M.D., in the New York Times).

Several years have passed since a notable group of scientists conveyed to the rest of the world their belief that it was possible to communicate and exchange views with the spirits of the departed. The leader of this group was Sir Oliver Lodge, the very personification of scientific achievement.

The dawn of 1917 finds Sir Oliver more firmly intrenched than ever in his radical beliefs. In his latest book, 'Raymond, or Life and Death,' (George H. Doran Company), which deals largely with alleged communications with the spirit of his youngest son, Lieutenant Raymond Lodge, slain on the field of battle, he declared his faith anew in these words:

I have made no secret of my conviction, not merely that personality persists, but that its continued existence is more entwined with the life of every day than has been generally imagined; that there is no real breach of continuity between the dead and the living; and that methods of intercommunion across what has seemed to be a gulf can be set going in response to the urgent demand of affection — that in fact, as Diotima told Socrates (Symposium, 202 and 203), Love bridges the chasm.

Nor is it affection only that controls and empowers supernormal intercourse; scientific interest and missionary zeal constitute supplementary motives which are found efficacious, and it has been mainly through efforts so actuated that I and some others have been gradually convinced, by direct experience, of a fact which before long must become patent to mankind.

CLEVER SCIENTISTS.

No matter how absurd, unreasonable, ridiculous, and opposed to what is ordinarily called "common sense" these so-called communications, and the methods of obtaining them may seem to be, it must be acknowledged that the scientists who have interested themselves in these matters are persons trained to the highest degree in accurate methods of investigation and research.

The distinguished career of Sir Oliver Lodge in itself is sufficient to attract respectful attention to anything he may say relative to matters with which he is familiar by reason of long study and investigation. He has been president of the British Association, President of the Physical Society of London, President of the Society for Psychical Research, and is Principal of the University of Birmingham. He has been honoured by a dozen or more universities, and holds the honorary degree of Doctor of Science from six of them, including Oxford and Cambridge.

So much for Sir Oliver's scientific attainments. The interesting questions in connection with his name now are: Why does he believe that he has communicated with the spirits of his son Raymond and others, and what did these spirits reveal to him concerning their present surroundings, and the general conditions of life hereafter.

ACCURATE INFORMATION.

Broadly speaking, Sir Oliver says that information was conveyed to him and other members of his family at different times and through different mediums which neither himself, his family, nor the mediums knew anything about, and which it was impossible for them to know anything about—and yet it was demonstrated later that this information was true and accurate to the last detail. Moreover Sir Oliver says that this information came through the mediums at a time when the latter were unaware of his identity or that of the other members of the family who visited them. There is nothing in the book, however, to indicate that Sir Oliver may not have been deceived on this point.

As to the conditions of post mortem existence, quotations from the book itself will appear later in this article so that the reader may know exactly the sort of messages that Sir Oliver and others of his family recorded as they fell from the lips of the different mediums.

The scientist convinced that his son Raymond is now engaged in pioneer work in the sphere of his present existence in the endeavor to make the interchange of communication with those on earth much easier than at present. In this work he believes Raymond is assisted by the spirits of persons who were actively engaged in psychical research during their lifetime.

AN OLD FRIEND.

One of these is Frederick Myers. Raymond tells his father that he has met many of his (Sir Oliver's) old friends. When asked if he can name any of them, he readily answered "Myers." Later, Myers speaks for himself. Investigators in this country, such as Dr. J. H. Hyslop, have frequently had communications from "Myers."

Raymond tells his father that he has pro tem. father where he is now, although the child spirit who conveys this information through the medium says she does not know what pro tem. means, and wants to know if that is a correct expression. Sir Oliver recognises Myers as the pro tem. father.

According to a spirit called "Moonstone," who communicated through a medium named Peters, a group of spirits of whom, apparently, Myers was one, sent this message to Sir Oliver, the admonition accompanying it to write down clearly every word:

"Not only is the partition so thin that you can hear the operators on the other side, but a big hole has been made."

DEATH A DREAM.

Sir Oliver expresses his belief that Raymond has proved personal survival and identity as follows:

I consider that he has done so. And the family skepticism, which up to this time has been sufficiently strong, is now, I may fairly say, overborne by the facts. How far these facts can be conveyed to the sympathetic understanding of strangers I am doubtful. But I must plead for a patient hearing, and if I make mistakes, either in what I include or in what for brevity, I omit, or if my notes and comments fail in clearness, I bespeak a friendly interpretation; for it is truly from a sense of duty that in so personal a matter I lay myself open to harsh and perhaps cynical criticism.

That Raymond is engaged in work calculated to demonstrate clearly in the future the practicability of communication between the living and the dead, Sir Oliver firmly believes. This is his assertion:

He has entered another region of service now, and this we realise. For though in the first shock of bereavement the outlook of life felt irretrievably darkened, a perception of his continued usefulness has mercifully dawned upon us, and we know that his activity is not over. His bright ingenuity will lead to developments beyond what we could have anticipated, and we have clear hopes for the future.

In a chapter on "The Group Photograph," Sir Oliver gives what he considers to be absolute proof of the survival of personal identity and memory. Here is a brief summary of his arguments. Lady Lodge had a sitting with Peters, the medium. "Moonstone," a spirit, says through Peters, that there is a photograph of Raymond with other men, and that prominent in the picture is Raymond's walking stick, and Raymond "is particular that I should tell you of this."

Later, Sir Oliver had a sitting with Mrs. Leonard, another medium whose control is a child spirit called Feda. Sir Oliver, as soon as he was supposed to be in communication with Raymond through Feda, remarked that Raymond had said something about a photograph (meaning that Raymond had said it to Lady Lodge through the medium Peters.)

After Sir Oliver had asked several questions he obtained from Feda, speaking for Raymond, a detailed description of a group photograph, which neither he nor any of the family had ever seen. Raymond says that some one wanted to lean on him when the picture was taken. He describes vertical lines at the top of the picture and gives the letter B as the initial of the man most prominent in the photograph.

Some time later copies of the photograph were sent to the Lodges. They show a group of officers with a low shed for a background and with vertical lines on the roof. Raymond is seated on the ground, his walking stick across his feet. An officer in the second row is leaning on Raymond's shoulder. The strongest light falls on Captain Boost, behind Raymond, and unseen by him, and Captain Boost is the most prominent figure in the photograph.

Raymond never saw this picture, because it was not developed until after his death. It was developed in England, although it was taken on the continent, but it had not been developed when Lady Lodge first heard of it through the medium Peters. Moreover, none of the Lodges had seen it nor could the mediums mentioned have seen it up to the time it was described in detail to Sir Oliver.

The communications from Raymond Lodge were obtained through the voices of mediums, automatic writing and table rappings. Some of these communications follow. The first one quoted is the result of an anonymous sitting Lionel Lodge, Raymond's brother, had with Mrs. Leonard. Feda, the spirit who is Mrs. Leonard's control, sometimes speaks in the first person and sometimes in the third.

"Do you remember," Lionel asks, "a sitting at home when you told me you had a lot to tell me?"

The answer:

Yes. What he principally wanted to say was about the place he is in. He could not spell it out—too laborious (meaning with the table rappings.) He felt rather upset at first. You do not feel so real as people do where he is, and walls appear transparent to him now. The great thing that made him reconciled to his new surroundings was—that things appear so solid and substantial. The first idea on waking up was, I suppose, of what they call "passing over." It was only for a second or two, as you count time, (that is it seemed), a shadowy vague place, everything vapory and vague. He had that feeling about it.

The first person to meet him was Grandfather.

And others then, some of whom he had only heard about. They all appeared to be so solid that he could scarcely believe that he had passed over.

He lives in a house—a house built of bricks—and there are trees and flowers, and the ground is solid. And if you kneel down in the mud apparently you get your clothes soiled. The thing I don't understand yet is that the day doesn't follow the night here as it did on the earth plane. It seems to get dark some times, when you would like it to be dark, but the time in between light and dark is not always the same. I don't know if you think all this is a bore.

(I was here thinking whether my pencils would last out out; I had two and was starting on the second one.)

What I am worrying now about is how it's made, of what it is composed. I have not found out yet, but I have got a theory. It is not an original idea of my own; I was helped to it by words let drop here and there.

People who think everything is created by thought are wrong. I thought that for a little time that one's thoughts formed the buildings and the flowers and the trees and solid ground, but there is more than that.

He says something of this sort: (This means that Feda is going to report in the third person again or else to speak for herself.—O. J.L.)

There is something always rising from the earth plane—something chemical in form. As it rises to ours, it goes through various changes and solidifies on our plane. Of course I am only speaking of where I am now.

He feels sure that it is something given off from the earth that makes the solid trees and flowers, etc.

He does not know any more. He is making a study of this, but it takes a good long time.

L. L.—I should like to know whether he can get into touch with anybody on earth.

Not always.

Only those wishing to see him, and who it would be right for him to see. Then he sees them before he has thought.

I don't seem to wish for anything.

He does not wish to see anybody unless they are going to be brought to him.

I am told that I can meet anyone at any time that I want to; there is no difficulty in the way of it. That is what makes it such a jolly fine place to live in.

L. L.—Can he help people here?

That is part of his work, but there are others doing that the greatest amount of his work is still at the war.

I've been home—but my actual work is at the war.

He has something to do with his father, though his work still lies at the war, helping on poor chaps literally shot into the spirit world.

LOSS OF LIMBS.

Lately Sir Oliver had a sitting with Mrs. Leonard, and after the spirit of Raymond, through Feda, had manifested its presence, Sir Oliver inquired:

"What about a limb lost in battle?"

The answer:

"Oh, if they have only just lost it, it makes no difference. It doesn't matter; they are quite all right when they get here. But I am told—he doesn't know this himself, but he has been told—that when anybody's blown to pieces, it takes some time for the spirit body to complete itself, to gather itself all in, and to be complete. It dissipated a certain amount of substance which is undoubtedly therio-theric, and it has to be concentrated again. The spirit isn't blown apart of course—he does not mean that—but it has an effect upon it. He hasn't seen all this but he has been inquiring, because he is interested.

O.J.L.—What about bodies that are burned?

Oh, if they get burnt by accident, if they know about it on this side they detach the first spirit. What we call a spirit doctor comes around and helps. But bodies should not be burned on purpose. We have terrible trouble sometimes with people who are cremated too soon; they shouldn't be. It's a terrible thing; it has worried me. People are so careless. The idea seems to be—"hurry up and get them out of the way now that they are dead." Not until seven days, he says. They should not be cremated for seven days.

ATOMS FROM EARTH.

O.J.L.—Raymond, you said your house was made of bricks. How can that be? What are the bricks made of?

That's what he hasn't found out yet. He is told by some, who he doesn't think would lead him astray that they are made from sort of emanations from the earth. He says there's something rising, like atoms rising, and consolidating after they come, but we can collect and concentrate them—I mean those that are with me. They appear to be bricks, and when I touch them they feel like bricks; and I have seen granite, too.

There's something perpetually rising from your plane; practically invisible—in atoms when it comes to the others, it gains other qualities around each atom, and by the time it reaches us certain people take it in hand and manufacture solid things from it. Just as you can manufacture solid things.

All the decay that goes on to the earth plane is not lost. It doesn't just form manure or dust. Certain vegetable and decayed tissue does form manure for a time, but it gives off an essence or a gas, which ascends and which becomes what you call a "smell." Everything dead has a smell, if you notice, and I know now that the smell is of actual use, because it is from that smell that we are able to produce duplicates of whatever form it had before it became a smell. Even old wood has a smell different from new wood. You may have to have a keen nose to detect the difference but it is there.

Old rags, he says (sotto voce, — Yes, all right, Feda will go back) cloth decaying and going rotten. Different kinds of cloth give off different smells—rotting linen smells different to rotting wood. You can understand how this all interests me. Apparently, as far as I can gather, the rotting wool appears to be used for making things like tweeds on our side. But I know that I am jumping. I'm guessing at it. My suit, I expect, was made from decayed worsted on your side.

IN DREAD OF CROUP.

Every mother dreads croup unless she knows about Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Given in treatment small does at the first indication of trouble, this treatment loosens the cough and affords relief and comfort. Its use should be kept up until the child is entirely recovered.

First Stamps of Nippon.

It was in March, 1871, that postage stamps were for the first time issued in Japan, following the system of western countries. The stamps were of four denominations of mon. These stamps, however, disappeared shortly after their issue, to be replaced in 1872 by another series in the denomination of sen. These denominations are still in use today, but at the present time there is a far wider variety, the values being from one-quarter of a cent to $5. The first stamps were extremely crude in appearance, were without gum and were printed by the ancient method of wood engraving. Today electric machines turn out the stamps, as we know them in this country, in enormous quantities.—Japan Society Bulletin.

Animals Under Water.

The ability of a beaver to remain under water for a long time is not really so tough a problem as it looks. When the lake or pond is frozen over a beaver will come to the under surface of the ice and expel his breath so that it will form a wide, flat bubble. The air, coming in contact with the ice and water, is purified, and the beaver breathes it again. This operation he can repeat several times. The otter and muskrat do the same thing.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

MISS' AND SMALL WOMAN'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

A design that answers every demand of fashion—from its one-piece cut to the button decoration at front, which indicates where the closing is made.

At the shoulder seams the fronts are gathered, giving a pretty line over the bust. The fulness of the skirt section is neatly drawn to the sides and back and held in place by arranging a belt across the back, its ends being tacked to the front sides, as pictured. In this way the long, slender silhouette is maintained, as the front of the frock shows.

A very attractive sleeve is made with a slight puff just below the elbow, and from there it buttons to the wrist, finishing without a cuff, but with a fitted cuff effect. A pocket is inserted at either side and trimmed with a triangular tab for novelty. The collar and neck revers are of contrasting color goods. While the button decoration is all that is really necessary on this model, one who is partial to embroidery may add it, for it is a popular style note.

Serge, gabardine, wool faille, wool poplin, velveteen and broadcloth are among the most favored fabrics for this type of garment. By comparison with a ready-made, you will be convinced that the pattern of such a simple little frock will help to solve your dress problem.

The dress pattern No 8,099 cuts in nine fourteen to twenty years. To make in nine sixteen requires four and a half yards thirty-six inch material, three-eighths yard twenty-seven inch contrasting goods. To obtain the pattern send ten cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

THE RUSSIANS CAPTURE 10,000 PRISONERS

SCORE BIG SUCCESS IN SATURDAY'S DRIVE

OVER TEN THOUSAND GERMAN SOLDIERS CAPTURED BY THE RUSSIANS SATURDAY

Petrograd Official Statement Announces Many Prisoners Taken in Victory Northeast of Jakobenion---German Report Admits Great Activity on the Part of the British Forces--French Repulse Attack at Hartsmannsweilerkopf

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

PETROGRAD, January 29.—The capture of thirty officers and more than 10,000 German soldiers was announced in to-day's official statement as among the fruits of the Russian victory northeast of Jakobenion on Saturday.

WASHINGTON, January 29.—The further armament of British ships, including guns forward, will not necessarily subject them to legal submarine attack without warning, it was announced at the State Department to-day.

Will Take Charge Of Russian Railways

OTTAWA, Ont., January 29.—It is reported here that E. C. Bury, first vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has been appointed to go to Russia and take charge of the entire railway system supplying the Czar's troops with food and munitions.

Claim British Raids Were All Repulsed

BERLIN, January 29.—Great activity of British raiding parties, and details of an assault in three waves of British troops north of Armentieres were reported in to-day's official statement claiming the repulse of all attempts against the German lines.

French Troops Easily Repulsed An Attack

PARIS (French Official Communique), January 29.—French troops last night easily repulsed an attempted attack by the Germans on a trench at Hartmannsveilerkopf, Alsace. During the night numerous patrol engagements took place in the Champagne and at various points along the Alsaic front.

A Big Shake Up In United States Cabinet

WASHINGTON, January 29.—A big Cabinet shift will take place early in President Wilson's second term, it was learned to-day. This will be in addition to the diplomatic shake-up which will take place about March 4, or very soon thereafter. These expected Cabinet changes, however, will not begin, it it believed, until several months after the President's second inauguration. In all cases, it is stated, the Cabinet resignations to come will be "voluntary." The contemplated changes will effect the treasury, agriculture, commerce and probably State portfolios.

TORONTO, January 29.—The Star's war expert points out to-day that the British are now able to produce more four and six-inch guns than the army requires. Their output of shells for field guns and field howitzers is fifty times what it was in the first year of the war. The exact figures cannot be revealed, but it is clear that the shell output is considerably more than a million a day, or four times the entire German output in May of last year. This spells victory.

NEW LONDON, Conn., January 29.—New London was simply buzzing with various submarine rumours to-day. There was one report that a British cruiser had captured or sunk the merchant submarine Deutschland. The "Mother ship" Willehad took on large supplies of food and crude oil last week, apparently for the Deutschland, which, it is expected may arrive any day.

A Statement To The Public From Robert Hicks & Co.

We regret our inability to supply the excessive demands made on us for some time past for hard coal.

The general shortage of hard coal in the city prompted us to buy coal from the jobbers at higher prices in order to add to our usual supply, and to partially meet this excessive demand. This coal is now coming forward daily, anad we are making every provision to increase our already increased output of 50 per cent. over last season. We cannot hope to do better than this, in the face of Public School contracts, and contracts with different factories and public buildings, in the city for soft coal.

It is incumbent upon those who have gas installed to ask for as little nut and pea coal as possible, as many houses can only use these sizes, of which there is a shortage.

Do not order beyond your requirements for February:—

1st—Because it is not the fair thing to do under conditions.

2nd—The price will likely be reduced when our regular source of supply can fill our wants.

FRENCH SOLDIER WILL LECTURE IN PETERBORO

Private E. L. R. Grosvalet of the French army is in the city in connection with picture series number two of "Canada's Fighting Forces," which will be shown in the Grand Opera House on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. The pictures will be shown each afternoon and evening. Like series number one, they depict the Canadian forces in action showing every known method of warfare as it is carried out on the western front. Pte. Grosvalet will lecture on the pictures.

RETURNED SOLDIERS' CLUB IMPORTANT

A general meeting of the Returned Soldiers' Club will be held to-night at 8 o'clock in the Armouries. All members are earnestly requested to be present, especially the new members. There is a lot of important matter to attend to.

TWO MORE MEMBERS OF 93RD BATTALION ON WOUNDED LIST

Pte. H. J. Miller Brother of Mrs. H. Beattie of Peterboro and Pte. Tom Drain of Crowe's Landing Among To-day's Casualties

BOTH ARE WELL KNOWN

Two more members of the 93rd Battalion are reported wounded to-day and although neither was a resident of Peterborough both are well known in this city.

Pte. H. J. Miller, brother of Mrs. Harry Beattie, Rubidge street, is officially reported wounded. His mother, who resides in Perth, Ont., received the news from Ottawa on Friday. Pte. Miller came to Peterborough from Perth to enlist just before Christmas, 1915, and was with the 93rd Battalion until the Peterborough unit reached England, when he was drafted to the 20th Battalion at the front as a bomber. He has many friends in Peterborough who will wish him a speedy convalescence.

Pte. T. Drain, who enlisted last winter in the Apsley platoon of the 93rd Battalion, and went overseas as a member of C Company under Capt. Bygott, is also officially reported wounded. Pte. Drain is a son of John Drain, Dummer township and lived near Crowe's Landing, Stoney Lake. He is well known to summer visitors to the east end of Stoney Lake, as for a number of summers he was employed as a guide. Like Pte. Miller, he was born in Canada.

COAL RELEASED FOR PETERBORO

Forty-One Cars Are on the Way—Announcement by the Robert Hicks Company

Through the instrumentality of Mayor Duffus, nineteen cars of coal have been released for one dealer in the city and twenty-two cars for another dealer. These cars have been held up on the road for some time. They are now on the way and will do much towards relieving the present coal shortage.

Attention is drawn to announcement on another page by the Robert Hicks Company. The public is asked to co-operate with the dealers and not attempt to order more coal than is absolutely necessary. There is every reason to believe that the difficulty will be overcome in a short time. Every effort is being made by the local dealers to meet the demands of their customers.

"The House of the Golden Windows" contains a story quite different from what they have done before as there is a delicate touch of fantasy intertwined with a plot of tense human emotion, love, excitement and happiness. It is what has become to be known as a picture of happiness in contrast to the sordid subjects of which there have been on the screen all too many. The photoplay also will mark the first appearance, with these two stars, of Master Billy Jacobs who created such a favourable impression with Marie Doro in "The Heart of Nora Flynn" and Victor Moore in "The Clown."

MORE POSITIONS NEEDED FOR RETURNED SOLDIERS

Any other places open for returned men? Those advised of have been exhausted, in a general way. It would be helpful if a few more places were available. Mention to the Patriotic Fund Office what you have. Some one can be found to fit in.

A couple of men are wanted to take places. These are advised to the office as for real soldiers. That is the employer desires to help the man who has seen service. A mighty good thought, and we excuse to him the reservation he makes. A young man, bright and adaptable, and who can take charge of the work of several girls. Nothing hard about the work and the fact that the girls are nice people to work with is an additional inducement. A fair wage in it, too. Now don't all speak at once. But apply.

500 CLUB WILL BE ORGANIZED HERE DURING PRESENT WEEK

Systematic Campaign to Fill up the 247th Battalion Will Be Launched on Sunday Night Next in the Grand Opera House---Some Information in Regard to the 247th Battalion---To-Day's General Military News

No fraternal society, social club, or organization of any kind merits the support of the citizens of this city at the present time more than a club whose duty it is to assist in the recruiting of men for the 247th Battalion—a unit of the army doing honour for Canada on the battlefields of France. Many hundreds of the citizens who have already done so much are still anxious to do more and for that reason a club, to be known as the Five Hundred Club, is being formed for the purpose of co-operating with the 247th Battalion. This club will be organized during the week and a most energetic campaign will be launched on Sunday night, Feb. 4th, in the Opera House.

To-day's orders of the 247th Battalion contains the announcement of the appointment of a band committee with Major E. D. O'Flynn as President, and Capt. M. G. Hamilton and S. J. Dunsford as members.

Another announcement in to-day's orders is to the effect that Co. Sergt. Major Harry M. Latimer has been appointed a lieutenant in the 247th Battalion, and is transferred from A Company to the headquarters staff. His many friends in Peterborough will be glad to learn of Lieut. Latimer's promotion.

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 28.—Lieut.-Col. J. J. Glass, who has resigned as commanding officer of the 252nd Battalion, Lindsay and Haliburton, will be succeeded by Major R. E. Porter, engaged in staff work here. Major Porter comes from Lindsay.

The Lindsay Post says:

Major "Rod" Porter's many friends will congratulate him on his appointment. He entered the ranks of the 45th Battalion at an early age, and by dint of close application to matters military his advance was rapid. His ability as an officer was recognised after war was declared, when he was appointed on important recruiting work in this section as well as in other parts of the province. Latterly he was attached to the Divisional Headquarters, Kingston, where he was assigned important work, and where he was looked upon as an efficient officer, whose work has produced splendid results. He is immensely popular in his home town and as successor to Lieut.-Col. Glass O. C. 252nd Battalion (who has asked to be relieved) can be depended upon to work with zeal and enthusiasm in order to recruit the battalion up to strength.

The Lindsay Post says:

It has been rumoured about town during the past few days that the Militia authorities intend calling out all available officers and men of the 45th Regiment to do guard work on the canals and other points in order that the men at present doing guard work could be sent overseas.

This order, it is said, applies also to the 57th Battalion, Peterborough, 15th Battalion, Belleville, and other organizations.

Lieut. J. A. Detlor of the 247th Battalion, who has been stationed at Bancroft, has given up his commission and enlisted as a gunner with the Cobourg Heavy Battery. Last week Lieut. E. J. Leishman, of the 255th Battalion, did likewise in order to get overseas quickly and with a good lot of men. The seventh overseas draft is rapidly filling up with the usual fine personnel. The sixth draft, which includes several Peterborough men, is still at Cobourg awaiting instructions to proceed overseas. Anyone interested in heavy and siege artillery can get full particulars by applying to Major J. McKinnon, Officer Commanding, Cobourg, Ont.

The 256th Railway Construction Battalion (Toronto Unit, with Lieut.-Col. W. A. McConnell in command), is recruiting in Peterborough, and any man, skilled or unskilled, who can do a day's work, and pass the physical standard for recruits, (which standard has been considerably lowered for this unit), will be accepted. The age limit for the unit is forty-eight years.

If a man is passed as fit, his pay commences immediately, and recruits will be given sufficient time in which to attend to their personal affairs before reporting for mobilization. The headquarters of the unit is at 24 Front Street West, Toronto.

By joining this unit you will help in a very important way to bring victory to our cause. It is upon such battalions as the 256th that the men in the fighting trenches depend for their supplies, food and ammunition; and without which they are helpless in front of the enemy; and also are unable to send back promptly their wounded for medical attention unless backed up by units like these.

Following are the rates of pay and allowances in this unit:

The pay and allowance on enlistment amount to $1.10 per day, average per month..... $33.00
Clothing, rations and quarters, estimated per month 30.00
Separation allowance, if married, or only support of a household, per month..... 20.00
Total $83.00

If promoted to rank of Sergeant:
Pay and allowance, $1.50 per day; average per month..... $45.00
Clothing, rations and quarters, estimated per month 30.00
Separation allowance, if married or only support of a household, per month $25.00
Total $100.00

The above amounts do not include the allowances made from Patriotic Funds, which are granted in accordance with the requirements of individual cases.

So, join now and help. The Battalion will go as a unit. Bring your friends and relatives with you.

Sergt. Stanley is recruiting for the 256th in Peterborough.

The Office of the Chief Press Censor for Canada has issued the following in regard to cables for members of Canadian Expeditionary Force in France.

The Department of Militia and Defence reports that considerable delay and confusion frequently results through improperly addressing in care of the War Office, London, cable messages intended for officers and men serving with the Canadian Expeditionary Force in France. No arrangements exist for the forwarding of such messages from London by telegraph, and it is therefore necessary in all such cases to send them on by post.

All cable messages intended for members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force in France may (like telegrams for others) be sent from Canada addressed directly to France the addresses of such messages, in addition to stating regimental number, name, unit, etc., to bear the words "Canadians, France." These messages, however, even if paid for at

GERMANS TRAPPED IN MIDST OF BLIZZARD

A Successful Attack Made by the British in the Neighborhood of Le Transloy on the Somme Front

350 PRISONERS TAKEN

LONDON, Jan. 28—In a successful operation on the Somme front in the neighborhood of Le Transloy to-day, says the official communication issued from British Headquarters last night, a commanding portion of a German position was captured by British troops. More than 350 prisoners were taken in the operation.

The statement follows: "A successful operation was carried out by our troops on the Somme battlefront early this morning in the neighborhood of Le Transloy. All the objectives attacked were gained, and a commanding portion of the enemy's position was captured. We have taken over 350 prisoners, including six officers.

"Vigorous counter-attacks were made by the enemy during the day to regain the lost ground. These were all driven back by our fire with heavy losses. Our total casualties were very slight."

GERMANS ADMIT REVERSE

To-day's German official statement says:

"Army group of Crown Prince Rupprecht: After a strong artillery fire British detachments succeeded in occupying a small section of our most advanced line southwest of Les Transloy and north of the River Somme."

ATTACK IN BLIZZARD.

With the British Armies in France, Jan. 28 (via London, Jan. 28.)—(From a Staff Correspondent of the Associated Press.)—In spite of the hard weather conditions, a gallant attack was made to-day by British troops against a strong German point on the Somme resulting in its capture with three officers and more than 300 men. The Germans apparently did not anticipate an attack, and were somewhat off guard, owing perhaps to the heavy frost and strong blizzard sweeping over the snow-covered field. The Germans remained snugly in their dugouts, probably believing that the British would do the same.

Outwardly there was no movement within the British lines, but in the trenches the troops were waiting for a sudden attack, which had been well prepared for and organized beforehand. Suddenly the ordinary desultory fire of the British batteries was

SEVIGNY ELECTED IN DORCHESTER BY 244 MAJORITY

One of the Most Strenuous Battles in the Political Annals of the Province of Quebec Ends in Re-Election of Minister

RETURNS BY PARISHES

ST. HENEDINE, Que., Jan. 28. — Hon. Albert Sevigny, Minister of Inland Revenue in the Borden Cabinet, was returned to Parliament yesterday, when the electors of Dorchester county, after one of the most strenuous battles in political annals in the Province, gave the new Minister a majority of 244 over his Liberal opponent, Mr. Lucien Cannon, former M.P.P.

A later despatch by the Canadian Press gives Sevigny's majority as 276.

The Conservative parishes clung to Mr. Sevigny and were more Conservative than in the last Provincial elections, when Mr. Cannon was elected by over 500 majority, while the Liberal strongholds of Ste. Germaine and St. Leon de Standon fell off in their majorities for the Liberal candidate.

Returns by Parishes.

The majorities by parishes are as follows:

Sevigny's majorities—Ste. Rose, 38; St. Prosper, 34; St. Isidore, 12; Ste. Claire, 42; Frampton, 121; St. Odilon, 125; Ste. Marguerite, 58; St. Anselme, 89; Ste. Henedine, 36; St. Nazaire, 48; Ste. Justine, 74; St. Bernard, 21; total, 688.

Cannon's majorities—Ste. Germaine, 215; St. Benjamin, 53; St. Malachie, 33; St. Louis, 16; St. Zacharie, 20; Ste. Aurelie, 8; St. Leon, 109; total 454.

Net majority for Sevigny, 244.

Mr. Sevigny is Gratified.

Mr. Sevigny was given a public demonstration in the different parishes of the county on his way to Quebec after the election. On his arrival at Levis on Saturday night two thousand people assembled at the depot to greet him.

Mr. G. N. Gordon Says Review's Statement Was Made Out of Whole Cloth

In regard to the statement in last Saturday's Review, Mr. G. N. Gordon stated this morning that there was absolutely no foundation for the Review's story that a project was on foot to retire Mr. Gillespie. Such a story is made up of whole-cloth, and that he had always supported Mr. Gillespie, and would continue to support him in future as long as he championed the purposes of reform and honest government, as he had done in the past. In addition to that Mr. Gordon said the Hon. George P. Graham had nothing to do with any plan for proposing candidates for either the House of Commons or the Legislature.

In addition to that Mr. Gordon said it was well known that Mr. Gillespie had always had his support, would have it in future, and relations between the two were most cordial and friendly.

ONLY PEACE WITH VICTORY.

DORCHESTER.

Hon. A. Sevigny, Postmaster-General and Nationalist Conservative, was on Saturday elected in Dorchester. His majority was slightly reduced from the general election. That is, however, a small matter. What counts is that a Nationalist, a member of a Conservative cabinet, with his anti-British sentiments, has been elected in a Canadian constituency. This demonstrates again the malign influence of Nationalism and explains why recruiting his been slow in Quebec. Nationalism is opposed to recruiting, opposed to Canada taking part in the war. This doctrine has been industriously pumped into the minds of the simple habitants of Quebec for a dozen years. For the past half dozen years, since the Borden government came into power, and holds power by grace of Nationalist votes, it has protected, encouraged and patronized Nationalism, giving it the fattest portfolios in the cabinet, and giving an anti-British cult its blessing. Under these circumstances it is natural that the people of Quebec would reason that they were meeting the views of the government in refusing to recruit in obedience to the Nationalist spirit which, under government protection, has been infused into them. And when an appeal was made by the Conservative government for recruits, it was natural that they should meet this appeal as coming from the Nationalist wing of the government and treat it accordingly. In a word there is no doubt that slow recruiting in Quebec is due to Nationalist influence, and there is equally no doubt that Nationalist inquence is due to the protection and encouragement, official and moral, extended to Nationalism by the Borden government, official and moral, extended to Imperial conference will have as its first duty, consideration of the winning of the war. Sir Robert Borden will go to the conference, flushed with the victory in Dorchester, a victory that represents death to recruiting in Quebec—discouragement of the greatest factor in winning this war—more men. In this regard will Sir Robert Borden represent the loyal sentiment of Canada?

Things have been made easy for Sir Robert Borden to attend the conference. We don't know he will report in the name of Canada as to the parts Canada has contributed to the winning of the war. He can tell his fellow-conferees that the determination of the great mass of the people of Canada is to stand by the Mother Country and her Allies with all their resources.

But what will he tell them of the part the Government is prepared to play; what the Government is prepared to do to give effect to the popular spirit of imperial cooperation in war work? Can he tell the conference much of what the Government has done to help recruiting and what it proposes to do more? Will he tell the conference what the Government proposes to do with its National Service enterprise? If he does, he will do more than he has done for the people of Canada, who don't know yet what the National Service campaign means—what it is intended to accomplish, and what are the prosperts of its objects being reached.

One must not attach too much importance to the serious charges made in Parliament on Friday in regard to the Premier's attitude towards recruiting. It would be unfair to deduce conclusions from charges that have yet to be proved or disproved; but one question irresistibly suggests itself: What is the reason of Sir Robert Borden's friendly relations to Nationalism—a thing that is anti-Canadian, anti-British and anti-imperial in principles and propagandism? Why has Sir Robert Borden kept Quebec, directly, and Canada, indirectly, represented in his Cabinet by a blatantly disloyal and unpatriotic element opposed to recruiting?

What is the secret by which he has been able to make the Orange lamb and the Nationalist lion lie down, cheek by jowl, in his Cabinet? It is to the credit of his astuteness or to the pliability of his antagonistic following, where office is concerned, to have held the allegiance of a fiercely pro-British and ultra-loyal element in Ontario, which professes the deepest interest in winning this war, and at the same time commands the support of a fiercely anti-British and ultra-disloyal element in Quebec, whose object is to prevent Canada doing her share or doing anything in helping win the war; and who have succeeded better in killing recruiting in Quebec than their antagonistic equivalents in Ontario have succeeded in promoting recruiting?

The representatives of Quebec, in the Borden Cabinet, ever since its formation, have been anti-British Nationalists, opposed to recruiting, or to Canada taking part in the war. At St. Rose, Dorchester county, Quebec, where Sir Robert Borden's latest Nationalist pet, Mr. Sevigny—made Postmaster-General—is seeking re-election, Mr. Sevigny made a characteristic recruiting speech. He told the people whom he wanted to vote for him that he was opposed to conscription, and if any of his constituents were afraid of conscription, the United States border was not far away, and they could cross over—"skedaddle." Sir Robert Borden can cite to the Imperial conference as an example of solidarity of the empire, the fact that the latest Nationalist minister — King's adviser — he appointed, advised his constituents to "skedaddle" rather than fight.

The puzzle of it all is how can these things be in a British dominion?

HUNS MAKE FRENCH WORK.

700,000 Inhabitants of Invaded Regions Exploited By Germans.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—Seven hundred thousand inhabitants of the invaded regions in the north of France are engaged in forced labour for the Germans, according to M. Dibudeville, mayor of the town of Corchy, who has just arrived from the occupied region at Evian.

The major's estimate he says, is based upon careful, serious calculation, taking as a basis the numbers of inhabitants personally known by him as having been taken from the communes in his region. Three hundred out of the 900 inhabitants of the village of Esmery-Hallon, he declares, have been obliged to serve the German occupying force, the recalcitrants being either imprisoned or exiled to Germany. No distinctions are made as to age or sex in the choice of the forcibly enrolled labourers, M. Dibudeville says.

IF YOU WANT to BUILD UP YOUR BUSINESS, you must USE THE PAPER that goes into the Home.

THE PUZZLE OF IT.

In an interview with the London correspondent of the Australian United Cable Service, Lloyd George gave his reasons for convening a conference of the leaders of the Empire. It is plain that post bellum imperial reconstruction and adjustment of inter-imperial relations and allocation of inter-imperial responsibilities, will not be the first, nor the chief, object discussed. Lloyd George made it clear that the first duty of the council or conference would be to consider the immediate task of winning the war.

The question that concerns Canada is what Sir Robert Borden's contribution will be to the discussion on this point. Will he be able to show that the Government of Canada and the people of Canada have done as much to add to the winning chances of the allies as the splendid representation of manhood Canada has sent to the trenches; the gallant soldiers who by their bravery and resources have given Canada a place in the esteem of Britain the Allies and the world that goes far to cover the shortcomings of the Government and the people at home.

A Revelation Of Germany's Preparation For A German Peace

The most highly significant evidence of the German mind, and, by the same token, never intended for publicity outside Germany, is to be found in a recent article in the 'Berliner Lokal Anzeiger' over the signature of Walter Rathenau, the individual who, for a number of years, before the war, had complete charge of official organisation among war mwed industrial establishments in the German Empire, and who has been deputized to continue this particular work in the supreme effort the Teutonic nation is about to put forth.

This article, which is before my eyes as I write, says in full, copied verbatim:

"We began the war a year too soon. When we have secured a German peace we must begin at once a reorganisation upon a broader and firmer basis than ever before. Establishments that produce raw materials essential to the army must not only continue their work, but enter into it upon lines of increased energy, forming thus the kernel of economic Germany in preparing in the economic sense for the next war. We must carefully calculate in advance, in view of the lessons learned in this war, what our country lacks in raw material or essentials of raw material, and secure immense reserves to remain unused until a day in the future. We must organize as genuine an industrial mobilization as we had a military mobilization. Every technician or semi-technician, enrolled or not in the list of mobilized, must be empowered through official credentials to take charge and direction of a given establishment upon the second day following a new declaration of war. Every establishment manufacturing for commercial purposes must be mobilized also and understand officially that upon the third day after declaration of war their entire abilities are to be devoted to serving the army upon demand.

"It must also be determined in advance just what quantities and sort of essentials such establishments can furnish the army in a given time. Each establishment also should be required to furnish a detailed list of workmen who can be dispensed with, these alone to be mobilized in the military sense.

"We must finally establish some definite commercial understanding with nations outside Europe that will offer them advantages to be duly specified in detail whereby these nations, as neutrals, will find it to their direct disadvantage commercially to trade or sell munitions during the war to either ourselves or our enemies. We can afford to offer such conditions ourselves. And, finally, when the next war comes, it must not be a year too soon."

Here in a nutshell, or "kernel," to quote frank Mr. Rathenau, is what Allied Europe has long understood, and what has not been truly understood in the United States save by a relative few.

It is the reason why the war would be continued for ten years if necessary by France, England and their allies. It is the reason why nothing short of the "knockout" will serve. It is the reason why any talk or effort for peace would be ill-received, even if backed by the best of motives and official sanction from the greatest of neutrals, or the smallest, or all the neutrals collectively.

The war cloud that hung over Europe for thirty years prior to August, 1914, must be dispersed finally and forever. The intolerable conditions prevailing must be finally made impossible of repetition. The horrors and unutterable sufferings and privation, the whole gamut of evil that no single individual can understand through reading the writing of another, that must be seen, felt, experienced through the sense to be grasped even in outer circles, must never again be a worldly portion.

This will only be possible through making war against war until a humane peace is the reward. It would be as impossible under a German peace as would a railway journey to Mars.

Germany realizes all I have here written in a sincerity beyond mere words for the telling. She feels her setting sun. She is reaching out at the two extremes of the compass in vain effort to remedy that "beginning the war a year too soon."

One is her present huge peace propaganda in the United States. The other is her last supreme effort in the levee en masse, the deportation of the Belgian populace, the "kingdom" of Poland, and all the rest of it.

Neither scheme, neither plan, will avail. She feels it, and senses but dimly the supreme postponement of the inevitable. The mills of the gods are grinding.

The article from the "Berliner Lokal Anzeiger" is but reiterative proof of open stupendous fact patent to individual or nation who will judicially examine the evidence at this 860th day of hostilities.

The fact is, the issue is no longer between the Allied and Central Powers. They but represent two ideas. One champions justice, humanity, civilization, the right of peoples, respect for moral law, and understanding as to definition of the word honour. The other has deliberately as aim the ultimate domination of the globe by a Prussianized German.—Henri Bazin, in New York.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir, — In view of the high price of coal and the belief that some day business may suffer from interrupted supply, many Canadian and American firms in the manufacturing and wholesale districts are turning to gas as a fuel. This is true also for domestic service, where gas is displacing coal. Lots of people can find a new use for gas that would reduce the percentage of coal required.

It is stated that although the cost of materials and labour which enter into the manufacture and distribution of gas has increased like everything else, the price of gas has not been advanced. Then, too, gas is not subject to railway blockades in winter as is the case of coal.

Why does not the Peterborough Gas Company take advantage of the present coal situation to bring the merits of their gas more aggressively before the public. The present would seem to be a most opportune time to explain the advantages of gas as compared with coal. There are hundreds of our citizens who no doubt will fortify themselves for the future, and it occurs to me that gas could be utilized to relieve the present situation very materially.

Yours truly,
A WOMAN.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In your issue of Friday evening last, I noticed an article headed "Two Suits for a Soldier."

Now, if anybody is entitled to the best that is going, it is our soldiers, and I only hope that the recommendation to Ottawa will have the desired effect. However, I would like to resent a part of the statement made, where it refers to "men of the better class," and for information would ask, who are these "men of the better class." This to my mind is a direct insult to the boys who have already enlisted and have gone across with only one suit, and are doing their bit, quite a large number of them paying the supreme sacrifice. These men and all others who are wearing the King's uniform are to my mind "The better class." Not those who have had to be coaxed and pleaded with for the past two years, and are still waiting for an extra suit.

BE FAIR

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—It would appear from an editorial article in your issue of Friday last that my statement, presented to the County Council on Wednesday, created, in some reports at least, a false impression. While it pointed out that the enrolled attendance at the rural schools of the Inspectorate of Peterborough East had fallen off by about 300 or nearly 20 per cent. in the last ten years, I by no means wished to imply that there are that number of children, of school age, in the Inspectorate who are not now attending school at all. It was pointed out that the average attendance of those enrolled has considerably increased, and there is little doubt but that the number of children of school age not entered on the school registers at all is now smaller than ever before. The fact is that in East Peterborough, as in every other rural community in Eastern Canada, the population, and especially the school population, is decreasing. There are not as many children now as ten years ago, and, judging from present indications, there will be still fewer at the end of the next decade.

Thanking you for so much of your valuable space and for the interest you are taking in matters educational, I am

Respectfully yours,
RICHARD LEES.

It is gratifying to gather from the above explanatory note by Mr. Richard Lees, Public School Inspector, East Peterborough, that his interpretation of his report, as presented to the County Council, shows that school interests in the County are not in the somewhat discouraging condition that the quotation of mere figures would indicate. After all, however, his explanation seems to leave large room for improvement. The object of the Examiner in referring to the matter was to stimulate public interest, to incite to the provision of means to remedy the conditions, and above all, to arouse parental indifference, which is, perhaps, the chief cause why the fullest measure of benefit is not received from the expenditure of money upon the provision of educational advantages. By the way, a very discouraging feature of Mr. Lees' explanation is the statement that the school population in Eastern Ontario is decreasing. This is accounted for by the fact of the drift of population citywards, and the absorption of so many Easterners by the Canadian West. In view of this condition—with the school population growing less, it is very important that the best use should be made of the material that remains; that every child should be made, as far as possible, the recipient of one of the prime equipments of useful citizenship, an adequate public school education. There is in some quarters, a demand that every child of French-Canadian parentage should have the advantages of securing an English education, and while this is desirable, it seems worth while to use greater energy and enterprise in seeing that every other Ontario child should receive a similar education.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—The case of Hopwood vs. the King (or in other words, of Hopwood against the Government of Canada, to recover damages for the flooding of his island in Chemong Lake by the raising (as alleged) of the new Buckhorn dam and the narrowing of its outflow in 1912 as compared with the old dam, is at last set down for a certain date, viz.: February 26th, at the Court House, Peterborough, at 11 o'clock a.m. Government commissioners or valuators try to block claims for damages which are frequently fake claims, no doubt at any rate in part. But often great injustice is done and as I believe the report of the valuators is wrong with regard to these claims, I looked horns with the Minister of Railways and Canals who, however, was generous enough to give me the necessary "fiat" or permission to prosecute. Naturally no claimants wanted to pay any of the expenses, hence I have had to pay court and my own legal agency fees and I was not a bit pleased that my first "test" case turned out to be erroneous information as to ownership. I had to get a new one. Now, then, the point of this letter is that I hope all claimants for damages by the Buckhorn flooding in 1912 will be present at the trial. It may be necessary to call them as evidence, but it will be at no risk of further expense to themselves. While the case will turn on the alleged fact of a change in the dam it is necessary to show that damages did result or else the case will fall to the ground. We have had along pull and a strong pull, and now let us finish by all pulling together to the extent of being present at the trial and on time.

J. H. BURNHAM.

Zeebrugge Action Fought in Darkness

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Latest reports received in naval circles from the naval action in the North Sea serve only to confirm the official announcement of the Admiralty. It is not considered that many details will be added to the official report, as the battle was fought in a night of pitchy blackness. Naval officials are surprised that an engagement was possible in those circumstances, and state that, as the combatants carried no lights, accurate gunnery must have been exceedingly difficult.

The theory that the German destroyers were driven from Zeebrugge by ice is not given much credence by naval officers, who declare it is not even certain that the German flotilla came from that Belgian port.

The bow of the British destroyer lost in the engagement was completely carried away by a German torpedo and, since it was considered impossible to tow her to port, she was sunk, as if she were left afloat she might become a menace to other units of the British flotilla.

According to the statements of German officers, says a Reuter's despatch from Ymuiden, twenty-three of the crew of the German torpedo boat destroyer V-69, which was badly damaged in the North Sea fight with a British flotilla, are missing. Among these are several officers.

A survivor of the German destroyer V-69 interviewed at Ymuiden by the correspondent of the Evening News says the main action occurred at a point thirty miles off Zeebrugge. His vessel with another torpedo boat destroyer formed the rear guard of a flotilla of eleven vessels.

Suddenly the German flotilla was confronted by two British squadrons composed of four and six big ships each. The British marksmanship was accurate and the V-69 was badly hit. The compass and steering gear being destroyed the officers of the German destroyer followed the stars and used the propellers in steering toward a German port. While making for home they were confronted by four British destroyers and the V-69 ran for the Dutch coast.

"We don't know what happened to the other vessels," the survivor concluded, "but they must have got it badly."

BIG JUNIOR GAMES STIRS UP FANS

Second Series Between Oshawa and Peterboro Promises to Provide Spectacular Hockey—First Game Will be Played Here To-morrow Night With the Return in Oshawa on Friday

The announcement that the Oshawa-Peterborough junior series has to be replayed has tickled the local fans and from the interest shown around the city in the situation, the biggest crowd of the season will be at Brock Street rink to-morrow night when the first game of the series will be played. The return game will be played in Oshawa on Friday night, total goals on the round to count, with the understanding that if the score on the round is tied at the end of the second game the match will be continued until a winner is decided.

The local team is delighted to have another chance and particularly pleased that the O.H.A. decided to have the games re-played instead of suspending the Oshawa Club. The Peterborough youngsters prefer to win the group if it is possible on the ice, and not through the committee room and the action of the O.H.A. gives them that chance. Everyone who saw the 8-7, ten minute overtime game, between the two clubs the week before last is still talking about the game and happy over the prospect of another such battle to-morrow night. The feeling among local fans is that the Petes were travelling in hard luck in their last match with Oshawa and that with any team work the local youngsters should have won.

That is just the point. It is up to the Petes, if they get together to-morrow night, pass the puck and play their positions they should win handily. If they play the same individual style with every man trying to star, it will be a toss up. Anyway you look at it, it will be a good game of hockey and with good ice assured Brock Street Rink should be crowded for the occasion. No one who saw the last game will want to miss to-morrow night's session.

The locals say they have learned their lesson and they want a chance to redeem themselves in the eyes of the fans by showing the public they know how to play systematic hockey as well as shine individually.

The game is called at 8.15 o'clock and like the last junior game will start sharp on time as the referee will be here on an early train while the Oshawa club will reach the city at 5.35 o'clock.

WITH THE CURLERS

The first game of the year for the possession of the "Andy Webb" cup took place on Saturday evening when Percy Fitzgerald won it from Andy by the score of 15-11. It was some game, and out of it has developed an idea that is bound to appeal to many of the curlers.

In the first place, however, let it be said that the cup was manufactured and donated by Alex. Archibald and naturally is decidedly ornamental. It is built on the general lines of an Egyptian case, with full, well-rounded outlines. Even a curler, however, would realize at a glance that none of Ptolemy's daughters ever carried that vessel to a well, and that no Egyptian fashioned it. It looks like the product of a plumber, and Mr. Archibald is the guilty party. Perhaps he should be acclaimed as the artist, for there is considerable sentiment attached to this particular trophy. But having won the cup so many times, Mr. Webb's name has been identified with it to such an extent that it is generally designated as the Webb Cup, and on Saturday Andy laid down a new rule by which every curler playing in any game for this cup must deposit with Angus McIntosh five cents. Thus every Webb cup game yields 40 cents for a tobacco fund for the soldiers, and Mr. Tooley has already entered a challenge to Mr. Fitzgerald the game to be played as soon as possible. That will provide another forty cents and, as the prospective series advances, there should be considerable money in the old tobacco box.

There is one feature of the situation that should be mentioned. It has been stated that Mr. G. H. Logie won the Webb cup from Andy Edwards the end of last winter, but if such is the case Mr. Webb doubtless takes the position that sufficient to the season is the curling thereof, and it was the Webb cup anyway, in spite of the reported fact that Archibald made it and Logie won it. At any rate he has established a few rules to govern the present season's play. Any vice-skip is eligible to challenge the holder of the cup. Each game shall yield forty cents. All monies shall be deposited with Mr. Angus McIntosh, who is responsible for the collection and retention of such cash. The total pot shall be expended in the purchase of tobacco for the soldiers.

Saturday night's line-up is as follows:

D. Moore	D. Mulholland
G. Benor	W. J. Henry
W. G. Morrow	T. F. Matthews
P. D. Fitzgerald	A. H. Webb
Skip 15	Skip 11

To-night's Games.

To-night's scheduled games are as follows:

W. G. Ferguson vs W. H. Denham.
Kay vs. Sturgeon.
Davidson vs. Archibald.
Wightman vs. Morrow.
Dr. Greer vs. H. F. Foote.

Orillia May Come.

There is a possibility of a number of Orillia rinks coming to Peterborough this week. There were no definite details handed out this morning.

SERBIA UP TO 1914

Instructive Papers Read at Meeting of the Women Teacher's Guild

The members of the Women Teachers' Guild were entertained at a Serbian Tea, at Central School, on Friday, January 26th, the Kindergarten Room being very appropriately decorated for the occasion. Tea was served by girls in Serbian costume and during the evening the following paper on "Serbia up to 1914" was read by Miss Lettie A. Shearer.

Serbia, a kingdom of south-eastern Europe is separated from Hungary by the Danube and Save Rivers. It is bounded on the north by Hungary, on the east by Roumania and Bulgaria, on the South by Greece and on the west by Albania, Montenegro and Bosnia. Serbia has an area of 33,891 square miles, and a population of 4,547,992. The area up to 1913 was 18,500 square miles but the Treaty of Bucharest in that year added portions of Salonica, Monastir and Kosovo bringing the area up to its present figures.

Serbia has a temperate climate though subject to extreme variation. The forests covering 3,700,000 acres contain valuable beech, oak, fir, walnut and other trees. Large supplies of copper, coal, iron, gold, silver, zinc and mercury are to be found, but transportation facilities are lacking, the roads being extremely poor, having been neglected during the Turkish occupation. The land is very fertile and agriculture is the chief occupation of about 80 per cent. of the population.

As regards Serbia's constitution, she is a constitutional and hereditary monarchy. Legislative power is vested in the King and the National Assembly. This last consists of about 170 deputies. Besides this body, there is a senate of 16 members, 8 chosen by the King and 8 by the National Assembly, which acts as a permanent state council. The army that is in time of place, consisted of about 35,000; reserves numbered 210,000. Military service is universal and compulsory. It is interesting here to glance at Serbia's history.

The original home of the Serbians seems to have been the country adjoining the Carpathians. They migrated in 638 A.D. when their history begins. Serbia has had a never ceasing stormy period of history, ever since her establishment as a nation. The Serbs at the beginning of their history as an individual nation were governed by a series of petty rulers until the time of Stephen (1159-96.) He became a monk and abandoned the government to his son. From 1196 to 1371 Serbia retained her independence until 1389 when the Serbian monarchy came to an end and she passed under the control of the Turks, becoming a Turkish province. The Serbs groaned under the Turkish yoke until the beginning of the 19th century, but in 1804 exasperated beyond endurance, they rose under the leadership of Kara George a rich swine owner, and man of influence, who by 1807 stormed and took possession of Belgrade, and the other fortresses. In 1813 the Turks assailed Serbia with such vigor that George fled to Austria and Turkey once more recovered the country.

Turkish oppression again provoked an uprising of the people in 1815. They chose as their leader-one, Milosh by name, who in a single campaign expelled the enemy except the garrisons in their fortresses. This man became the leading spirit in the struggle of the Serbians for their independence. In 1817 he caused his rival Kara George who had returned to be assassinated, and himself proclaimed chief.

In 1829 the Turkish Government formally agreed to the Treaty of Bucharest and the following year recognised Milosh as hereditary Prince of Serbia. From this until 1903 Serbia's throne passed through a stormy period, the only period of peace being in the reign of Prince Michael, who came to the throne in 1861. Under his rule a new period came for harassed Serbia and the country moved along the path of peace and prosperity. The Turks withdrew in 1867, but in 1868 Prince Michael was assassinated and another stormy period ensued in which was involved a war with Bulgaria.

On the morning of July 11th, 1903 a party of officers broke into the palace and assassinated King Alexander and his Queen. A few weeks after the present King Peter I., was proclaimed king. In 1908 the question of the union into one empire of Serbia, Bosnia, Montenegro and other countries, largely Serb, became acute when Austria Hungary annexed Bosnia and Herzegovinia. Serbia demanded compensations and the national feeling rose to fever heat, and war appeared imminent. Ultimately Serbia abandoned her demands against Austria Hungary while the dual monarchy declared that it harbored no unfriendly designs against Serbia.

In 1912 Serbia played an important part in the Balkan war against Turkey. In 1913 the Treaty of London ended the war, giving each of the Balkan states a part of the Turkish possession in Europe.

Dissatisfaction of the division of the spoils at once arose and in 1913 Serbia and Greece aided by Roumania formed an alliance against Bulgaria and defeated the latter. By the Treaty of Bucharest 1913, Serbia received a large part of Macedonia and territory east of Kosovo.

In 1914 the assassination of Crown Prince Ferdinand of Austria by a Serb brought the deep-rooted hatred between the two nations to a head and on July 6 diplomatic relations were severed, and the beginning of the present conflict began.

The Serbians are dark-complexioned, black-haired and dark-eyed, a true gypsy type. The men wear a long smock of homespun linen, beneath red of blue waistcoats with trousers of white frieze.

The women's dress consists of a similar smock and jacket of embroidered velvet and two brightly colored aprons, tied over a white skirt, one in front, and one behind. The headdress is a small red cap, tambourine-shaped and strings of coins are coiled in the hair and worn as neck-laces and bracelets.

When a Serbian peasant decides to build a house, his first preoccupation is to find a lucky spot. They have several methods by which they proceed to do this. Most of the Serbian peasants' houses have only one-floor. It consists of a large kitchen with a square hearth and one or two adjoining rooms. There is generally a cellar under the house.

The Serbian peasant has to marry at the desire and generally according to the choice of his father. He must marry very young and usually to a woman who is at least a few years older than himself. In some parts of Serbia the young unmarried women carry a special mark in their headgear, a red feather indicating they are open to proposals.

The state church of the country is the Greek Orthodox church, but there is a dullness of religious sentiment among the Serbians of our day. The churches are generally empty except on very great church festivals. The Serbians consider the church as a political institution. They do not allow anyone to attack her, nor compromise her, although when she is not attacked they themselves neglect her.

But that the Serbians as a race are not incapable of religious fervor is shown by the religious fanaticism of the Mohammedan Serbians of Bosnia and also by a Christian sect, known as the Serbian Nazarenes. These have no churches, no priests. They repudiate the worship of the saints and the madonna as idolatory and consider it the greatest crime to kill a man and therefore refuse to bear arms and serve in the army.

It is interesting here to note the Serbian peasant's views on God. He has his own views on God and the world. He knows that the "self created God" has created the world, angels and men. One of the angels rebelled against God and became Satan. God does good without ceasing and tries to induce men and women to do likewise. The Devil tries to frustrate God's good intentions and to induce men and women to do only what is displeasing to God.

To every man and woman God has given a good angel, who, although invisible sits on the right shoulder and whispers in their right ear good advice. The devil has placed on the left shoulder one of his little devils, who unceasingly whispers into the left ear bad advice.

The earth, according to their belief, is resting on the back of a giant bull, which is generally quiet, but sometimes shakes his ear, causing the earth to shake and an earthquake then occurs.

Once a year the sky opens and God shows himself. This happens on the night of the Epiphany at midnight Whatever wish a man expresses in the moment he sees the heavens open, God will immediately fulfill.

In regard to death the Serbians believe decidedly in predestination. "There is no death without the appointed day." The Serbians believe that beginning on Easter Sunday for seven days the gates of Paradise are open and whoever dies then can go straight to Heaven, even if he has lived the blackest of lives here on earth. The reason why the gates of Paradise are open during the week is amusingly explained by the Serbian peasant. The keeper of those gates are St. Peter and St. Elijah. They are generally more than careful and strict but on Easter Sunday both the gate-keepers being in a rejoicing mood take a little more than is good for them, indeed, they take so much that they are overcome by sleep and do not waken for seven days, leaving the gates of Paradise open all the time.

There are many stories about St. Peter all representing him as a sort of jolly-good fellow.

Elijah, according to the Serbian peasant's knowledge, is of a somewhat riotous disposition. He drives a sort of motor car across the uneven pavement of the sky and the rattling of his carriage produces the thunder.

The Serbians cannot boast a very rich literature but there exists a sort of unwritten literature, a ballad literature. The Serbians are a people very fond of dancing and singing. There are a large number of writers of dramas, though so far have never produced any great dramatist, nor have they any noted novelist.

Serbia's history as we have seen has been a tempestuous one and it would seem as if her lot were destined to be stormy.

In summing up, perhaps the following incident will tend to show the feeling, characteristic of the nation as a whole and can we reproach them—a nation whose whole history has been a tragic one, a constant struggle to maintain her existence?

A Scotchman travelling through Serbia and interested in her religious life was introduced to a Serbian clergyman, and after a long, interesting talk, the Scotchman complimented the Serbian on the intelligence of his people as a whole, but said that he felt saddened to see the churches empty. He said, "You should teach your people to pray more." "I beg your pardon" said the Serbian, "what we want nowadays is not prayer, but good education, good schools, good soldiers, good officers and good arms."

TOURIST TRAFFIC TO ALASKA WILL BREAK RECORDS

The Canadian Pacific Railway is preparing for a record tourist traffic to Alaska this summer, it was announced to-day.

The "Charlotte," one of the largest of the Pacific boats now operating between Vancouver and Seattle will be requisitioned for two extra trips.

The first real effort to attract tourists to Alaska was made by the Company last year. So successful was the initial effort that with the additional facilities completed by the railway, the tourist business to Alaska is expected to increase each season.

On account of the war, which has curtailed tourist traffic to Europe, American tourists welcome the opportunity to "tour Alaska," the passenger officials assert. Many points of interest are in pleasing contrast to European tourist centres.

Inquiries for information regarding the route to Alaska centre on Alert Bay, B.C., where American tourists desire to see the activities of the Indians. Here are many of the most elaborately carved totems in America. The Indian village of Bella Bella also is prominently mentioned in inquiries from tourists.

Alaska, during the tourist season, which extends from June 15 to Aug. 15, is not, as is generally believed a bit of sea ice here, a snowy mountain there, a studded pine or a polar bear to relieve the monotony, but a combination of the fjords of Norway and the Alps of Skitzerland.

Skagway, Alaska, is 1,000 miles from Vancouver. In addition to its novel and interesting attraction, Atlin, one of the places of call on the trip, the climate is such that it is believed it will become one of the world's greatest summer health resorts.

Daring Murderer Still at Large

Provincial and Windsor Officers Search For Fugitive.

WINDSOR Jan. 26.—Detective Marshal Jackson, Canadian Government Deportation Officer, who was shot and killed by James F. Stewart, on board a C.P.R. train yesterday morning at 12.30 o'clock two and one-half miles from Windsor, lost his life through kindness to the man who killed him.

Stewart, alias George Gordon, was being brought from Winnipeg by Jackson to be handed over to Detroit officers at Windsor and by them to be turned over to Battle Creek authorities who wanted him for safe-blowing in that city on March 15th, 1916. Stewart pleaded with Jackson not to handcuff him and because of this bit of carelessness on the officer's part, was enabled to secure the other's revolver while they sat side by side on the car seat. As the train neared Lake Shore Junction Stewart was seen to rise in his seat suddenly walk to the water cooler and take a drink and then turning back, draw the revolver and fire a shot point blank into the officer's abdomen. The other men in the car, including two soldiers jumped to intercept the murderer, but before they could reach him he had opened the vestibule door and raising the grip, jumped into the snow and was gone. The travellers hurried to the stricken policeman's side, but he was past all earthly aid.

"This is what I get for being good to him," the dying officer muttered, "I did not put the bracelets on him because he said they hurt his wrists." Jackson died before the train reached Windsor.

Windsor detectives headed by Provincial Detectives Smith and Hanna and aided by a bloodhound, are combing the Windsor district and the case is fast developing into the hizgest criminal dragnet in the history of the county. So tightly has the net been drawn that Windsor people going to work in Detroit this morning via Walkerville ferry were forced to pass in single file to guard against Stewart making a break across the river.

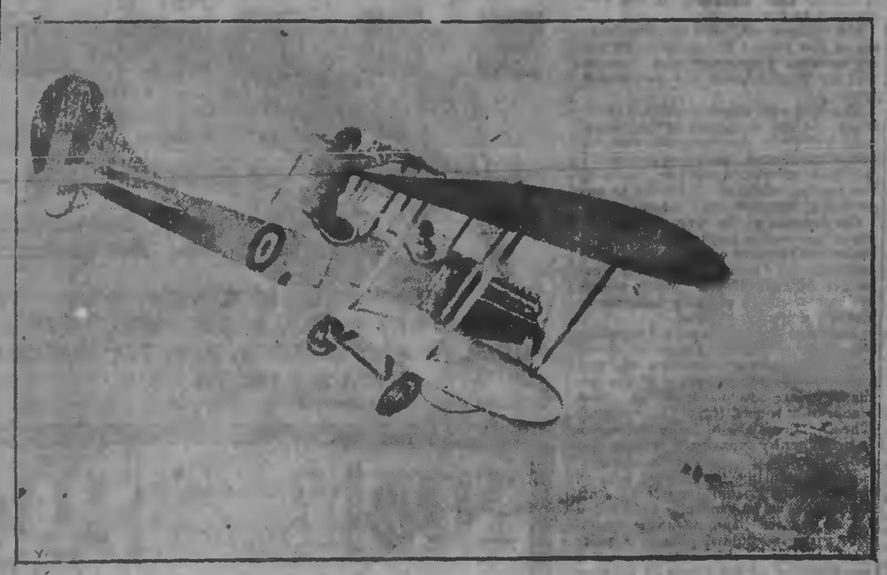
CANADIAN GOVERNMENT FILM, SERIES 2

—— OFFICIAL ——

CANADA'S FIGHTING FORCES



WHAT AN ARMY goes through in making an attack under heavy shell fire can never be appreciated by one who has not had the experience, but some shadow of an idea can be gleaned from seeing Moving Pictures of the Event. In "CANADA'S FIGHTING FORCES, SERIES TWO" which are to be shown for THREE AFTERNOONS AND EVENINGS AT THE GRAND THEATRE, beginning on THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 1st, there is a remarkable picture of a CANADIAN BRIGADE making an assault on an enemy position. The wild passion of the men on the attack and the perfect discipline maintained at all times are too incongruous to be believed without having been seen. The use of the new-fangled modification of a very ancient weapon, the catapult, is interestingly demonstrated in this section of the picture.

CANADIANS IN THE FLYING CORPS is another fascinating portion of the series. Scores of young men from this Province have enlisted in the air service and distinguished themselves for their brilliant work. In the film some dozen of these boys are easily recognizable to their friends in the audience by friends in the different towns, hence an extra interest will be lent to the portrayal of flying "stunts" for their own sake. Twenty-five hundred feet of film were taken from the air by Lieut. D. J. Dwyer, the photographer, but owing to the difficulty of focussing in the treacherous air pockets 2,000 feet had to be discarded. The 500 feet shown in "Canada's Fighting Forces" is the finest thing of the kind ever shown in this city, nevertheless.

The Mission Band report was read at the annual congregational meeting by their secretary, Miss Margaret MacIntyre. The Band has a membership of 40 and the average attendance is good. The children have made a study of child life in some of the Foreign Mission fields. The revenue has been raised principally by a sale of work, and a thank offering meeting at which the Rev. J. A. MacKenzie addressed the children, also by teas on various occasions. A parcel was forwarded to an Indian school and supplies for a Mission hospital. The financial statement showed receipts of $33.19

Leader—Miss Lillian Cadwell.

President—Miss Grace MacKenzie.

Secretary —Miss Margaret MacIntyre.

Treasurer—Miss Gladys Chambers.

This important report was overlooked when the account of the annual meeting was handed in for the Saturday papers.

J. W. BUYERS,
Sec. Board of Managers.

Comfort Club Does Its Bit

That Lakefield is doing its bit is evident by the monthly report of the Comfort Club. This Club, which sends its supplies directly to the trenches, has a membership of eighty, and an average attendance at the weekly meetings of 30, and has sent this month 95 pairs of socks, 14 scarfs, 41 trench caps and 24 shirts. One member, Mrs. MacDonald, who is over ninety-six years old, has sent in sixty-three pairs of socks since October, 1915.

Dr. Robertson Is Appointed

TORONTO, Jan. 29.— It is officially announced this morning that Rev. Dr. Andrew Robertson, who recently resigned the ministry of St. James' Square Presbyterian church, has been appointed executive secretary of the Presbyterian Association. This signified another stage of the old line Presbyterians to prevent the organic union of Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational churches of Canada. Legal counsel has been retained. Another field secretary will be appointed tomorrow at a meeting in Montreal.

Paid A Tribute To Prominent Ministers

At Trinity church on Sunday morning Rev. J. P. Wilson, pastor, paid a tribute to the lives of two great men of the Methodist church who recently passed to their reward, in the persons of Rev. Dr. John McDougall, late Superintendent of Indian Missions in the west, and the Rev. Dr. James Woodsworth, Superintendent of Northwest Missions. Rev. Mr. Wilson stated that he had intimately known both these men and their work. He had succeeded the late Dr. Woodsworth in his pastorate at Brandon and had been associated with him for three years, and had also been closely identified with the late Dr. McDougall.

Mr. T. H. Graham Will Sell Farm Stock And Implements Mar. 7th

A sale of live stock and farm implements will be held on March 7th on the farm of Mr. T. H. Graham, Smith township. Mr. Graham has decided to retire from farming, but will continue to live on the Graham homestead, on which there are several dwellings. His stock is a valuable one, including pure bred and imported Shorthorn cattle. The equipment of farm machinery is a very complete one. Further announcement of the sale will be made later.

PATHETIC TRAGEDY OF THE FROZEN NORTH

British Court Find That Arctic Ship Karluk Has Been Lost.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—In the Summer of 1913, Edmund Lawrence Golighty joined the ship Karluk in the Canadian Arctic Expedition. He wrote to his mother in England, "I always wanted to go North but never got a chance till now. I am only going as bos'un but it is something to go." W. L. McKinlay, second lieutenant of the Argyll Highlanders, one of the surviving members of the scientific staff of the expedition, submitted an affidavit that Archie King was one of the relief search party which left the Karluk before the ship was ice nipped, and that all members of this party were doubtless lost. Photographs of Golighty and King were produced. The court ruled that he was the same man, and that the trustees of his grandfather's will were entitled to pay the income to the brother of the plaintiff. Thus ends a pathetic tragedy of the frozen North.

247TH BATTALION AT ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

Impressive Sermon Delivered to Peterboro Soldiers at Yesterday Morning's Service by Rev. T. H. Mitchell

ATTENDANCE WAS LARGE

The 247th Battalion attended the morning service at St. Andrew's Church yesterday. The congregation, aside from the soldiers, was large, and the Rev. T. H. Mitchell delivered an inspiring sermon with his usual eloquence.

The music was well rendered and enjoyable. Besides the regular anthem by the choir, which was well handled, Miss Helen McLaren sang beautifully "Land of Hope and Glory," and Mr. Herbert Treneer, organist and choirmaster contributed an organ offertory solo with much skill and expression.

The Rev. Mr. Mitchell took as the text for his sermon the 10th verse of the 3rd chapter of the Gospel of St. Luke, which reads: "And the people asked Him saying What shall we do then?" It was Matthew Arnold who said that conduct is three-fourths of character, and that character is nine-tenths of life. Like all general statements this was open to criticism. But the speaker used it because it emphasizes conduct. The word for Ethics comes from the Greek word for "manner of life," and a man's manner of life depends on a man's theory of life. The speaker, by way of illustration, referred to a man of his acquaintance who became thoroughly intoxicated once every year. When asked for an explanation he said that when he was under the influence of liquor he felt as rich as Croesus, that once a year he liked to experience that sensation. This was one of his theories of life, and it showed itself in its conduct.

"What shall we do then?" There were four great ways in which men answer that question. The first is the answer of self-assertion. This is the answer of the vain. We have all known the little boy in the home who "owns the house." He is insensible to the needs of others. So, in answering, the self-assertive people domineer their way through life. One of their great needs is that of self-preservation. Their pity is but the imagination wrought up to thinking lest the same sorrow should befall them. Their friendship is their need for kindness. Their duty is self-interest: "I grant you," said Mr. Mitchell, "that self preservation is a law of life. But here is the criticism of that theory— the man who seeks all loses the best." He lives on a parable with the dog, who with a piece of meat in his mouth was crossing a stream by means of a log that had been placed across it. As he made his way across he saw his reflection in the water, anad thought it to be another dog, also with a piece of meat in his mouth. In his desire to get the meat which the other dog has he drops his own——losing the best because greedily he wanted all.

The second great answer to the question was that of self-suppression. What then shall we do? Suppress ourselves. That was the answer of the dilettante; that the answer of the slave of fashion, the one to whom custom is everything, effort is vulgar, and duty—that great thing called duty—is a dream. When in Rome do as the Romans do is their motto. Of course, generally speaking, we all are the creatures of circumstance to a very large extent. But here is the criticism of this great answer; it ignores the potent power of personality.

We should not ignore personality. Here we have two boys, living in the same home, getting the same start, having the same chance and having the same difficulties to overcome. One lives his life unnoticed, while the other becomes the pride of the nation. One has the vision—the other has not. "I would give to the boys and girls here this morning," said the speaker, "Paul's great word "cultivate." Cultivate the things that are in you."

Thirdly we have the Utilitarian answer of self-adjustment. In this doctrine Virtue means but wise calculation; Vice, a mistake in calculation, and progress the ability to answer wisely. Prudence was the characteristic virtue of this class. As a matter of fact the man who toils and saves and puts away is a higher type of man than he who goes to a foreign land to spend his substance in riotous living. Prudence is a virtue—but not the highest virtue. In their theory of life they make no allowance for the unmixed good—a good that is all "quality." Their theory ignores the moral hero whose compassion rises above his love of life and who gives up his life to succour or rescue a wounded enemy. There is more grandeur in five minutes of this unselfishness than a whole life of Utilitarian practice.

"Now I come to the last answer, and the best. It is the answer of self-sacrifice." That is the answer of the acorn. Down into the dampness and darkness and dirt the little acorn goes. But presently we have the great oak sheltering the birds and giving shade to the herds in the field. Last of all the woodman comes along, and the trunk becomes part of our houses and buildings, while the branches burn brightly in our homes as fuel and give out their heat. So it is—Life comes through death always. The answer of self-sacrifice is the answer of many of our soldiers at the front. One boy writes home: "I would rather give up my life there for this glorious cause than be King George the Fifth on the throne of England." This answer, too, was the answer of Jesus Christ. He could have taken the sword and lead His people. But He chose the lonely road. But some day Jesus Christ will look out into the great world and will have the future—all the future—for His own.

Germans Trapped In Midst of Blizzard

concentrated in a terrific drum fire, flinging shells of enormous destructive force upon the German trenches and defensive works.

The barbed wire before the German positions was cut as though by sharp shears. Following the curtain of fire, the British troops went briskly out into No Man's Land. The breath of the men looked like a smoke cloud as they went across the field of hummocky snow and shell craters filled with solid ice.

TRAPPED IN DUGOUTS.

The British troops had been cold but, fresh with the heat of battle, they moved forward like a machine and carried out the operations with precision and self-control.

The Germans were trapped in their dugouts. The British boys went over and around the position before the Germans could get up to bomb them or fire upon them with machine guns. The whole garrison of the strong point surrendered almost without a fight, seemingly thinking that resistance was useless. The British suffered few losses and sent back the prisoners in triumph.

Meanwhile, the German gunners had seen signals of distress, and presently they became aware of the fact that the strong point had been captured. They came out of their dugouts and began firing at the captured position, but the visibility was bad, owing to the whitish fog, and the German drum fire was not so intense as in former days on the Somme front.

The British troops had taken possession of the deep underground rooms within the German position. In this way, the officers laughingly said, they celebrated the German Emperor's birthday.

Have Raised $450 For Patriotic Purposes

The Peterborough Operatic and Dramatic Society has commenced the study of a very heavy work "A Greek Slave." The success of the two former productions "San Toy" and "The Geisha" by an organization hardly two seasons old, speaks volumes for all concerned, and the Musical Director, Mr. R. J. Devey is sanguine as to the result of the new opera, which will be produced at the close of the present season. The results have been splendid, both musically and financially. From "San Toy" $200 went to the 93rd Band Fund, and in less than a year "The Geisha" produced $250, which sum was handed over to assist the splendid work being carried on in our midst by the Progressive Club. The following letter has been received from Mrs. (Dr.) Cameron.

318 Stewart Street,
January 28, 1917

Dear Mr. Devey:—

I am instructed by the Executive and members of the Peterborough Progressive Club, to express to you and the members of your Operatic Society the most sincere thanks and hearty appreciation of your splendid gift of money to the club, and you may be sure that every cent of it will carry to our boys in the trenches, hospitals and prison camps, not only material comforts, but that assurance so necessary to them, that we at home are working in our way to help them win the war. Again allow me to tender you our heartfelt thanks.

Sincerely yours,
GRACE M. CAMERON,
Secretary Peterborough Progressive Club.

TRAVELLED AT CHEAP RATE.

And That Prevents Widow of Man Killed From Getting Damages.

LONDON, Jan. 20. — The Privy Council delivered judgment in the case of the Canadian Pacific versus Dame Leosophie, which raised questions of importance upon which there was considerable divergence in the courts below. Joseph Chalifour was engaged to bring cattle by rail from Winnipeg to Montreal, consigned under special contract, exempting the appellants from liability to a person travelling with the cattle if a pass were granted such person to travel at reduced fare. Chalifour was killed in a collision. The question was whether Chalifour by signing the pass to travel at reduced fare renounced what would otherwise have been his rights. Their Lordships are of the opinion that the judgment appealed from should be reversed, and the action dismissed, costs of the appeal to be borne by the appellants, and costs in the court below by each party.

Enthusiastic Welcome Was Extended To Col. McMillan

Stirring Scenes at the Salvation Army Temple—Ninety-Four Conversions Recorded Over Sunday—Civic Welcome to Distinguished Visitor

On Saturday evening a public reception was held in the Salvation Army Temple to welcome to this city Colonel McMillan, who, after twenty years' service in Australia, has been transferred as second in command of the Salvation Army in Eastern Canada. Col. McMillan's territory extends from Port William on the West to Cape Breton on the East. The Reception Committee of the City Council, headed by Ald. G. H. Duncan (chairman), officially welcomed the distinguished visitor on behalf of the city.

Ald. Duncan's Address.

Ald. Duncan, who was introduced by Brigadier Morehen, delivered the following address:

It affords me much satisfaction and pleasure to welcome so able and distinguished a member of the administrative force of the Army to Peterborough. His presence here is an evidence not only of the importance of the station, but of the esteem in which his branch is held.

We know, who have watched with interest the progress made in Peterborough that, locally, no organization has been a larger power for good than the Army. It has our entire respect and approval. It excels in good, practical work. Especially do we remark on the service given by the able officer in charge, Adjutant McElhiney and his excellent and devoted wife. Both are examples of the highest type, prominent in all public work and lending a helpful hand to succor those in adverse circumstances.

I have pleasure in bespeaking for the Army in Peterborough all assistance in the objects when presented. In the haste and call for war funds and objects the claims of the Army have been kept in the background, but the day is coming when local public recognition will be amply and freely made.

With renewed expressions of welcome and regard and best wishes for success, I again thank you for the privilege of saying these few words on behalf of the city.

The Reception.

The reception of visiting officers was a feature of the evening's programme. The visiting officers included Brigadier Belleridge, in charge of the young people's work for Canada East; Brigadier Morris, field secretary for Canada East; Adjt. Pelstree of Belleville; Mrs. Ensign Smith of Kingston; Capt. Parsons, Capt. Leader, Capt. Keith, Capt. Johnstone, Cpt. Laurie, Lieut. Kingston, Capt Hargreave, Capt. Beer, Capt. Spooner, Scout Leader; Capt. Mopp, Guard Leader; Ensign Richards, of Montreal, and Brigadier and Mrs. Morehen, D. C. for Eastern Ontario. Major and Mrs. Jennings came with the party and conducted the Senior meetings at the Temple on Sunday. These are old officers of the Corps, and they received a great welcome. Delegates from Belleville, Port Hope, Campbellford, Tweed, Trenton, Cobourg and Kingston some fifty in number, attended on Saturday night and Sunday.

94 Conversions.

Yesterday's meeting for young people only in the Foresters' Hall, Simcoe stret, was a big day. Ninety-four conversions took place and Commander Richards went home happy with the results. Major and Mrs. Jennings were at the Temple yesterday and did well all day. Brigadier Belleridge and Captain Spooner are staying over to look after the interests of the young people's work. The scouts met Captain Spooner and all the other young people met Brigadier Belleridge at the same hour.

Then the repeating of the sham fight, held last Thursday night, with some other numbers, will take place and all are cordially invited.

TALES FROM THE BIRDMEN

By Canadian Overseas

(His experience was related to me by a friend of mine in London.)

"My first flight was on a Sunday morning when a friend invited me to fly from London to Salisbury plain and then perhaps on to Brighton. London was blanketed in a low, wet mist, so I demurred, but my birdman insisted.

It was half an hour motor run to his "bus," and when we got there the mechanics had just finished giving her a preliminary race. The sun, striving through the mist, caught the tightly stretched fabric of the planes and made them shine like silver. The propeller looked like polished bronze. Garments were put on me in layers, a sort of leather straight jacket last of all. Then I was helped to my seat and the pilot took his. Men were standing by the wheels, under which little wedges had been placed. Another man was standing grasping the propeller. This he suddenly swung around, jumping out of the way, and with a roar from the exhaust we swayed a little, trembled, reluctantly moved forward and were off.

For some 100 yards we lumbered ungracefully and then it seemed as if the ground suddenly subsided. In a moment we were hastening through space with nothing below or above us on either side but the thick mist.

Always we went upwards, climbing towards a yellow disc high up, that was the sun. It was like nothing so much as a nightmare, in which one speeds through space without being able to stop or see anything that could give an idea of speed. Then suddenly I saw it in a different light, I knew that we were travelling at a terrific pace. My next idea was that we were not moving at all; it seemed that the engine was racing, a strong wind was rushing past us, and that now and again we were rocking as if we were in a small boat crossing the swell from the wake of a large steamer. This idea persisted for some time.

Suddenly we entered a new world. We were through the fog belt, which was now well below us. Above was the blue sky and a way over to our left was a large, shiny caterpillar, that was a kite balloon, hung motionless. Looking down at the fog carpet one could see holes in it as if some giant had been walking over a grass field slightly covered with snow and had left footmarks that showed the grass beneath. Then we went over the fringe of the mist and clear below us were the chessboard fields and dolls' houses that stood for Sussex villages.

With a wave of his arm the pilot pointed out a string of motor lorries winding along a white road below us. I looked and saw little dark coloured blobs with white blobs attached. These were the men sitting on the lorries. It is extraordinary how far away one can see a man's face. I leaned over to see the altitude meter and received a dot of warm lubricating oil in my eye. When I got it wiped away and looked down again the lorries were so many tiny dots in the distance.

An idea came to me as I saw a wood and some neaty tilled fields below, that I must have seen this before. Then I remembered where. Once, some years ago I had worked with an adjutant who was a master of the science of war. Our evenings were spent pouring over an elaborate landscape map of his own drawing, in which trees and houses appeared in their proper proportions. It was repeated in this scene below me.

I looked up again and there was my pilot sitting with his back to the bow and his legs stretched out in a comfortable position. He was making unmistakable signs to me and I handed him a cigarette. I jumpered him to turn around and attend to his levers. We veered a little once, and he reached out along arm and shifting a warping lever and we sailed on as before. Once again we wabbled, as I thought threateningly, and I said over to myself paragraph 1830 of King's Regulations. It reads, "A military funeral will be accorded to an officer or a soldier." But with a careless kick my pilot changed the position of some lever and we regained our equilibrium.

Far off in the distance appeared a silver thread. It was the sea showing through a rift in the clouds below us. We noticed a speck in the dim distance. It grew larger with astonishing rapidity until we could see that it was another plane, a sea plane. It passed us and the roar of its engines, mingling with the noise of ours, made a crescendo which rose and beat against the ear drums like the reports of gigantic mitrailleuse. So close were we that I could see every feature left uncovered by the goggles and the mask. We waved a friendly greeting at each other and when I looked back the other machine was fast becoming a speck in the distance.

Below us was a at open space dotted with white parallelgrams that were other aeroplanes. This was the aerodrome and we shut off the engine. We seemed to drop with no possibility of ever straightening out again and landing safely.

It was a 2,000 feet slide into space that we did and I heaved a sigh of relief as the ground once more stopped dashed up towards us. We circled once, twice and a third time, and the wheels took the ground, left it again and then settled to it for good.

At lunch I felt the floor of the room lift and glide swiftly away from the foundations. I suppose I showed what I felt, for I was cheerfully told, "I should feel like that for a bit, but it would wear off."

Not a Tank.—Laden with a travelling rug and four or five bags, the stout old gentleman was endeavouring to make his way gracefully to the railway carriage. At the door he stumbled, and brought down a No. 9 boot on the pet corn of a brawny Scot. "Hoots, man!" groaned the injured one, "canna ye look whaur ye're gaun? Hoot, man hoot!" The overburdened traveller slammed the door behind him. Then he put his head through the window. "Hoot, yerself!" he retorted. "I'm a traveller, not a tank!"

INSPECTORS SENT HERE BY THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT HAVE SEEN ACTIVE SERVICE

Four Fine Horses Were Passed on Saturday—Peterboro Has Contributed More Horses For War Purposes in the Last Four Months Than Any Other Place in Ontario—A Growing Industry—How the Animals Are Cared For at the Front.

Captain de Cheviguey, who for some time has been inspecting horses purchased by Mr. L. Green for the French government, has left for the front. The horses now purchased by Mr. Green in Peterborough and adjoining counties will be inspected by Captain de Cherge and Captain Monperts. Both of these men have seen service at the front and after being wounded were invalided home, and subsequently appointd Inspectors for the French Government. They spent a few months in United States and last week arrived in Peterborough. Since their arrival in the city they have inspected a large number of horses to the satisfaction of Mr. Green, the buyer, and the farmers from whom they were purchased. Several of the latter who were in the city on Saturday expressed themselves as being well pleased at the manner in which the new Inspectors are performing their duties.

A Growing Industry.

During the past three weeks over three hundred horses have been purchased by Mr. Green, making a total of about nine hundred in the past four months. Horses of all colours are taken, with a possible exception of light greys. The latter will be purchased, providing they weigh between thirteen and fifteen hundred pounds, also a horse of nine or ten years of age, if he is of good type. Buying for the French Government is carried on in Montreal, Peterborough and Toronto. This city is one of the three main purchasing depots, and it is interesting to note that Mr. Green's disbursements for one month is between forty and fifty thousand dollars. This money comes to Peterborough from New York, and is circulated in this city and the surrounding country. Mr. Green has eleven men in his employ and his work extends over the whole county, also adjoining territories.

A Heavy Contribution.

Peterborough has contributed more horses in the last four months for war purposes than any other place in Ontario. On Saturday last forty-five horses were inspected, whereas in Toronto on Monday last, only twenty two animals came up for inspection. Mr. Green has stable accommodation for over one hundred head of horses, and an average of from two to three ton of hay is required each day for the horses that are on hand. Horse buying in this district has assumed large proportions, and is an industry Mr. Green is in the market to buy any class of a horse that the farmer have to offer. Horses not suitable for the French government are sold for other purposes.

Mr. Green hopes to build up a business that will continue long after the war has passed into history. This he is endeavouring to do by careful attention to business, and fair dealing with all whom he has occasion to do business with.

Million Horses in Use.

It is estimated that there are over a million horses being employed in the vast battlefield at the present time. Before the war, mechanical haulage had superseded horse draught to such an extent that some of us supposed that in a comparatively short space of time the horse would be almost as extinct as the buffalo. The war to-day has proved that there are countless tasks for horses that motor traction could never perform, especially when it is necessary to cross country through ploughed fields, ditches, hedges, etc.

In all the wars known to history, horses have taken a leading part, and in the former campaigns the agonies and wastage of these poor animals were deplored, but little or nothing was done for their relief. During the Crimean War, and even as late as the South African War, this condition of affairs still existed, but during the last few decades, there has been a rapid change from passive recognition of such suffering to active measures for its alleviation.

WONDERFUL ORGANIZATION.

The practical outcome of this change is the Army Veterinary Corps, which is part and parcel of the British Army. This wonderful organization not only carries on its magnificent work to prevent unnecessary loss of animal life, but is an economic factor as by its methods thousands of horses are restored to health, and every one saved means another weapon in the fight.

The Army Veterinary Corps had a peace strength of 166 qualified veterinary officers and 240 non-commissioned officers and men. This has now been increased to 700 fully qualified veterinary officers and 8,000 men, and is continually growing in numbers. To every division and cavalry brigade is attached a mibile veterinary section consisting of one officer and twenty-two trained men of the army veterinary corps, all mounted and fully equipped with the necessary veterinary outfit. Their function is to relieve the field units of all sick, wounded, injured or inefficient animals.

First Aid Treatment.

After first aid treatment, the patients are despatched by train to the advanced veterinary hospital which is equipped to deal with 1,000 horses. Here they go through the Mallien test for glanders, that scourge of horses, before they are drafted into the wards set aside for their ailments. A deep manger runs the whole length of the stable and each horse is separated from his neighbour by a bail-bar. The tether rope is of sufficient length to enable him to lie down, and in cases of pneumonia two stalls are turned into a loose box so that the patient can rest undisturbed. With an ample supply of water, roomy stalls, dry standing and excellent fodder, these victims of the strife of nations are given a chance of recovery.

When the weather is fine, and their condition permits, they are tied by breastlines in the open or are turned out in the roomy paddocks where they have every opportunity for exercise and grazing. In the middle of the exercise track is a sand bath for the delectation of the mules. Animals which are slightly wounded are sent to the convalescent horse depot which has been established in one of the healthiest regions in France, and which covers an area of twenty miles. After a short stay here, the horses are again in condition to go to the front and carry or dray their burden, for King and country.

From All Corners.

The horses used in the British Army are collected from remote pastures. There are the natives of the British Isles representing the hunters, hacks, carriage horses, omnibus, farm and draught horses; the walers from Australia; the little animals from India and the far east, the hardy creatures of the Veldt, and our own Canadian productions from east to west. Let us hope that they are able to have some common method of communication, especially when they are convalescing. Imagine a conversation between a denizen of India and one of our western ponies! Perhaps the native of India would feel his "caste" too keenly to hobnob with a breezy westerner, or perhaps the westerner would find him too silent and thoughtful, and side up to a waler or a native of the veldt as to one more ligely to understand his longing for the spaces and silences of the prairies. Their recitals of their hopes and fears, longings and sorrows would perhaps be much like that of the humans who are similarly situated. The longing for home seems to be the strongest feeling in battle-scarred man or beast.

Swedish Expert Visited Peterboro

Young Efficiency Engineer on World Tour in War-Time

Sten Thiel, a young civil engineer of Stockholm, Sweden who is on a world trip to study shop efficiency visited Peterborough industries. He will see Henry Ford and his factories in Detroit and will go to Montreal. He will proceed to Panama, and, ultimately, will go to China, Japan, and India.

"I am neutral. In my country, of course, there are individual sympathies. For instance, one section of the press prints British news in capitals, while another features German despatches. The Kings of Denmark, Norway and Sweden met in the three capitals and decided that Scandinavia must unite on its war stand. The three Kingdoms have remained neutral, and, so far as one can tell, will take no part in the war. Scandinavia, of course, wants peace, as war has interfered with our normal conditions. We have butter, sugar, and other food cards, but are not suffering. The three countries. I should say, could put 800,000 men in the field out of a population of 9,500,000."

Sweden has lost ships, but fewer than Norway. Sweden has no coal, and so sends its 'raw iron' to England or Germany. When Mr. Thiel left Stockholm "raw iron" was not on the "contraband list," but, according to Thiel, "everything may be on the list soon."

Mr. Britling Is Wells Himself; Scene, His Home

(By Hayden Church.)

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Everybody one meets here who reads at all appears to be just reading, or to have just read, or to be just about to read H. G. Wells' fine war novel, "Mr. Britling Sees It Through."

And in America you all seem to be reading it, too, and talking about it, as is inevitable, for this magically written story of how the war came to the quiet English countryside is one that you must "talk over" once you have turned the last page.

How much of "Mr. Britling" is real? That is the question that is being generally asked, and it is pleasant to be able to answer it in great part. It is mostly real, as I discovered on the spot.

Everybody of course, will have recognized H. G. Wells himself in "Mr. Britling," and the village of "Matching's Easy" was not hard to recognize, even from London, as Dunmow, the village in Essex famous previously for its "Flitch' competitions for married couples, which now is the country home of this later Jules Verne.

Wells There Five Years.

His house there is really called "The Retcory," and Wells, who previously had a place by the sea, at Sangate has now resided there for some four or five years and entertained there, among many others, his sometime friend, sometimes antagonist, Bernard Shaw.

Many of the other characters—and some of the best—in "Mr. Britling" are drawn from life, including the delightful stationmaster at the wayside station at Easton Lodge, a few miles from Dunmow and his wonderful garden of roses and sweet peas alongside the rails. Another character formerly well known in Dunmore is "Herr Heinrich" an inoffensive young German tutor.

The Fiction Violin.

In reality it is a faithful portrait of a young German who was until the outbreak of war tutor to Mr. Wells' children, but the great reading public who have devoured this fine book would never have guessed that the story of this German told so sympathetically is not only true, but the sequel as imagined by Mr. Wells is likely to come true also.

"Herr Heinrich," so the story goes, went to Germany when England declared war, leaving behind him in his hurry most of his belongings including a violin.

He continued to correspond with his former employer through a neutral and then, after "Mr. Britling" has been stricken with the news of the death in action of his eldest and most beloved son, comes a letter saying that the boy's tutor and playmate had died a wounded prisoner in Russia.

Before he died he expressed the wish that the fiddle should be returned to his parents.

And The Real One.

That is the fiction. Now for the truth.

In Mr. Wells' home there is the fiddle of the young German tutor who spent many happy months under his roof. Postcards came from him after he had gone back to Germany. About a year ago they suddenly ceased, and now it is thought that he is dead or a prisoner and for some reason unable to send any message.

It will be interesting to see whether the violin goes back to Germany.

Everybody in Dunmow and district has recognized this description of the young German in the book.

At Dunmow the other day a news agent told me how "Herr Heinrich" when the crisis began would come eagerly to the shop to read the news, becoming more and more downcast as things got worse. Everybody liked him.

"He was a most pleasant boy, and I felt sorry for him when he went away," said one woman.

Heart of Britlingland.

The railway station at which Mr. Britling's American visitor, Mr. Derlick, would have arrived really is Easton Lodge, in Essex, about two miles from Dunmow—the heart of Britlingland and Mr. Wells' home.

There is Dunmow, Little Easton, and Great Easton, which is undoubtedly bigger than Little Easton. Within the radius of these three places the Britlingianders live and play their respective roles in the novel. Mr. Wells lives at Little Easton when he is not in London.

Dunmow and district are, as Mr. Wells has described, something quite different from anything in the other counties of England. In addition to the ordinary rural population there is a little literary colony, including one distinguished editor of a London newspaper, who is said to be easily recognizable in the novel.

They discuss Mr. Britling at the local inns, but here 6 shillings for a book being a prohibitive figure to some of the habitues, even in war time, and it being scarcely possible to put all the inhabitants of Dunhow and district on the complimentary list, comment is based a good deal on second hand information.

Somewhat Exaggerated.

Consequently exaggeration is apt to creep in. One man had discovered a murder mystery in the book and was prepared to argue out the whole solution with anybody that happened to come along.

"Go on with yer—it's about the war—there's no murder mystery about that—it's about wot we've been doing in the war in Dunmow. They say we're all in the book—all of us," interrupted an old man over a pint of ale.

Driving in the dark to the station in a dogcart, my driver, who had seen something of the book, told me that Mr. Wells must have been describing some of his own experiences with motor cars and learning to drive one of his own.

"It's very lifelike, that part," he said.

"Don't you think Mr. Wells is a wonderful writer?" I asked.

"Mr. Wells he ain't no ordinary writer," he replied. "He don't write these love stories. He's got brains; 'e's a thinker; 'e knows."

A "SLUG" OF GIN COST HIM $13.75 IN COURT

MILLBROOK BOY WOUNDED BUT STAYS ON DUTY

Lieut. A. C. F. Winslow, Slightly Injured, Went Overseas with 80th Bn.

Lieut. A. C. Farwell Winslow was wounded January 9, but is remaining on duty, according to a telegram received by his aunt, Mrs. S. F. Hinckson, of Toronto. In a recent letter he told of how a captured German dugout, forty feet under the ground, was fitted out in mahogany. Lieut. Winslow enlisted at Welland with the 80th Battalion, where he was employed in the Bank of Toronto. He went overseas as a captain, but reverted to the lower rank in order to get to the front. At Bramshott he was transferred to the 74th Battalion, and entered the fighting zone last July with the 11th Brigade, Canadian Light Trench Mortar Battery. On several occasions his bravery in action has been commended by his commanding officer. In the same battery as Lieut. Winslow there were a number of Toronto boys who had been attached to the Fourth Division Cyclists. He sent their names home to his aunts, and this resulted in the forming of a women's auxiliary here to look after the needs of the battery. Lieut. Winslow's father, Major Charles H. Winslow, of Millbrook, died just a month before his son went overseas. He fought in the same Durham County Regiment as General Sam Hughes during the North-West Rebellion. Lieut. Winslow is 22 years of age.

SEARCH AMERICAN PASSENGER ABOARD DUTCH STEAMSHIP

At First Taken for German Spy, He is Finally Released with Apologies.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Hayward Reed of Sacramento, Cal., an American, who arrived here aboard the steamship Ryndam, expressed his opinion somewhat forcefully in regard to British official methods of search at Falmouth.

"We were held up three days at Falmouth," said Mr. Reed, "and the officials seemed to concentrate their whole attention upon me. They thought I was a spy, I guess; but the only reason they might have had for such a belief was that I had told them I went over last November that I was going in search of my sister's husband, Professor Ludwig Demeter, of the University of California, a naturalized American citizen, who had gone to Germany and not been heard from in more than eighteen months. When the Ryndam reached Falmouth the same official who had examined me in November again came aboard and asked me whether I had found my brother-in-law. I told him I had and that he would come to the United States in three months.

"'That's too thin a story,' said the official; 'you are not Reed but Rutherford.' I denied this and showed letters of introduction from Governor Johnson of California, and United States Senator Phelan, as well as my passport. Nothing availed. They took me to my cabin and searched me. Unfortunately I had put paper into my shoes to keep my feet warm. This was regarded as conclusive evidence of my guilt, and I was hustled ashore and taken to headquarters, the officials telling the people aboard the Ryndam that it would be a long time I ever saw America again.

"After I had been locked up three hours an official told me a mistake had been made, apologized to me for my detention and I was escorted back to the vessel."

Mr. Ethelbert Watts, United States Consul General at Brussels, Belgium, was also a passenger. He said that he is here on a leave of absence. "I am going to my house in Philadelphia," he said, "and cannot say exactly when I shall return to my post in Belgium."

J. M. Boisevain, brother-in-law of the late Mrs. Inez Milholland Boisevain, arrived in connection with business of his firm, Robert Boisevain and Co., bankers.

Robert Von Buelow, formerly United States Vice Consul in Denmark, and Mrs. Von Buelow were also passengers.

Captain W. Krol, commander of the Ryndam, reported that when his vessel was in latitude 50 deg. 36 min. north, longitude 27 deg. 33 min. west his attention was called to an upturned lifeboat.

There was nothing to disclose the identity of the vessel to which the boat had belonged. It was thought that the lifeboat had held part of the crew of the vessels sunk by the raider which stole out of the North sea recently.

Asks Insurance Against Medal; It Cost Too Much

LONDON, Jan. 12.—A perturbed young man in the uniform of an officer, wearing on his breast the bi-colored ribbon which indicated that he had won the Distinguished Service Order, one of the highest military decorations within the gift of the king, entered the offices of an insurance broker attached to Lloyds, the famous insurance mart.

At Lloyds they insure you against anything, from fire and Zeppelin attacks to influenza and the measels. Lloyds are most famous for that sort of thing and it is seldom they fail to figure out some way of insuring against loss on anything under the sun. This time, however, Lloyds was beaten.

This Dazed the Brokers.

"I want," said the young British officer, "to be insured against winning the Victoria Cross."

The brokers gasped in amazement. Here was a war born something that was utterly new and they demanded details.

"It's just this way," declared the officer. "Recently I won the D. S. O. and I hope that before things are over I will win the Victoria Cross; I certainly shall try to do so, and possibly I will.

"But after winning the D. S. O. which I was quite proud to have done, I found that it is really a costly thing to do. I am not rich, in fact I have but little money. But what with dinners and luncheons and drinks in celebration of my getting the D. S. O., it cost me much more than I could possibly afford—about fifty pounds in all, I should say.

Stumped Even Lloyds.

"Now, if I win the V. C., which, as I say, I will try to do when I get back to France, I will get leave and come to England again. Then there will have to be celebrations all over again, and I suppose it will cost me hundreds of pounds. Therefore I wish to pay a certain premium enough so that if I win the V. C. you will pay me, £500. That sum ought to pay all celebrating expenses and leave something over."

The insurance people carefully considered the matter, and finally decided it couldn't be done, for the reason they could reach no solid basis for estimating the risk of losing on the policy. The young British officer departed sorrowful.

DRY MANITOBA A SUCCESS.

Results of Prohibition a Surprise, Even to Its Friends.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 26.—A report on the operations of the Province of Manitoba Temperance Act, presented to the Legislature states that the support accorded the prohibition measure "surpassed the most sanguine expectations of its friends." The report says the change has had "little if any" effect on labour conditions. Drunkenness has been reduced 87 per cent. in the province as a whole. Taking the convictions in four cities as the basis, and according to the commitments to jail, all other crime has been reduced 80 per cent. under prohibition.

"The results have been obtained with the minimum friction" it is added. There were 260 prosecutions under the act and fines aggregating $41,285 were imposed.

Annual Meeting Of Lakevale Church Held

Presentation Made to the Organist Mrs. Frank Fowler

The annual meeting of Lakevale church was held in the church on Wednesday, January the 24th, with the pastor, Rev. G. J. Craw in the chair.

The secretary, R. J. Tully, read his report of the year's business and was very satisfactory indeed.

After the reading of the different reports and the election of officers, the organist, Mrs. Frank Fowler, was presented with a very handsome mesh bag and purse of gold.

Little Marguerite Deyell presented it, while Mrs. E. Archer read the following address:

Dear Mrs. Fowler,—We your friends and co-workers in Lakevale Presbyterian church take much pleasure at this opportunity of expressing to you our grateful thanks for your faithful services with our choir.

We feel you have never grudged time or effort in making the music of our church services helpful and enjoyable though pressed by home duties many times you have always been a very willing helper, and we are pleased to acknowledge to you how much we have appreciated your faithful endeavour to add to the beauty and helpfulness of the services of our church.

We ask you to accept this purse as a token of our appreciation, and hope you may be long enabled to fill your place as organist of the church.

Wishing you a bright and happy New Year.

Signed on behalf of the church—
Edward Archer,
George Deyell,
George Mouteif.

Mrs. Fowler, though very much surprised, replied briefly, thanking her many friends.

Refreshments were served and a social hour spent.

The pleasant and profitable afternoon was brought to a close by singing the National anthem and prayer.

Pomeroy Prefers Solitary Cell

Jesse Pomeroy Wants Freedom, But No Privileges.

BOSTON, Jan. 29.—Jesse Pomeroy's expressed preference to remain in solitary confinement instead of going to work with other prisoners is not taken very seriously at Charlestown State Prison. It was said at the warden's office Saturday that the plan did not contemplate the prisoner's entrance to the workshop before Monday, when it was expected Pomeroy would be found to be as amenable to the rules of the institution as he has been during his forty-one years of close confinement.

When Pomeroy was informed Friday that the executive council had relaxed his punishment to the extent of affording him the privileges alloyed other life prisoners, he expressed disappointment that a full pardon had not been granted. He declared that unless he could be free he preferred the isolation of the cell that he has occupied since as a boy of 14 he murdered another youth.

COMMITTED TO AN INSANE ASYLUM

Herbert S. Love, of Harvey township, was committed to an asylum for the insane by Magistrate Langley on Saturday. He had been living alone in a shack on the "Oregon trail" above Buckhorn, and was arrested in the woods by County Constable Moore several weeks ago. At that time he was carrying a gun. Residents of that vicinity had complained of his actions.

CELEBRATED THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Richardson, 541 Homewood Avenue Have Been Fifty Years Married

On Saturday, the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Richardson, was observed at their home, 541 Homewood avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Richardson came to this country in 1873 and have resided in this district for the past forty-four years. The greater part of that time has been spent in Peterborough. The original wedding announdement, which was clipped from the Liverpool Mercury of January 26th, 1867, contains the following:

RICHARDSON—BIGGER.— Jan. 27, at St. Brides, by the Rev. W. H. Falloon, A.M., incumbent, Isaac, youngest son of the late John Richardson, of Croxton, Staffordshire, to Julia, second daughter of the late Mr. John Bigger, of Capel street, Dublin.

On Saturday evening a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richardson. A large number of relatives and friends were present.

Relatives were present from St. Catharines, Hamilton, Toronto, and other places to congratulate the couple.

Among the presents sent were a five o'clock tea set, in 22 karat gold; a purse of gold contributed by relatives; the lady stenographers in Mr. Hill's insurance office, sent some beautiful flowers; the male members of the staff made up a purse of money; and a number of other handsome gifts were received from different friends and well-wishers.

HOUSEHOLDERS ARE URGED TO ECONOMIZE IN USING POTATOES

Householders are strongly advised to exercise economy in the use of potatoes for the family board. The price has been steadily advancing until to-day it may be safely said that potatoes are considerably dearer than bread regarded from the standpoint of food values. Retail grocers stated to-day that they are selling their best grades of potatoes at $2.75 a bag or fifty cents a peck, yet the price quoted to W. J. Oke to-day by the New Brunswick Potato Exchange was $2.70. This was for seed Cobblers to be delivered in March for seeding purposes. McWilliams and Everett's circular for the present week quotes New Brunswicks at $3.00 a bag. In other words the present basis upon which the potato business is operating warrants 60 cents a peck or a price of $3.00 a bag.

Midwinter Stringency.

Opinions gathered from the trade emphasize the difficulty the midwinter cold spell has created for the potato trade. Both to the east and west the provinces report fairly encouraging stocks, but it takes twelve days for New Brunswicks to reach Peterborough, due to the labour difficulties on the railways. Besides, inexperienced workmen at the railway terminals have at times failed to refuel the oil heaters in the cars with the result that unnecessary freezing has occurred.

Canadian stocks are being further depleted by the demand from the southern states for present seeding. A recent Cuban order for 9,000 bags at a price of $2.50, f.o.b. Toronto, per 90-lb. bag was recently filled. In fact there is a considerable demand from the United States generally to relieve their own scarcity.

Buying Freely.

Mr. Oke takes the unselfish view that householders should economize while potatoes are at a high figure. Retail grocers state that buying at 50c a peck has been as free as when the price was 25c. When the cold weather passes late in March the danger of freezing having been removed, the price pressure should be considerably lightened and the whole situation ameliorated.

There is still peace piffle going about, and we have not heard the last of it for the present. The War Council of the British Dominion premiers would seem another effective answer to this kind of peace without victory talk and new war orders also constitute a fairly good answer. The melon cuttings are calculated to reawaken bullish sentiment on the part of the public as the market is still pretty full of such opportunities. Stocks like Ind. Alcohol, Airbrake, General Electric, Beet Sugar, Utah, Marine Pfd. only a comparative few such stocks that occur at the moment. Smelting should be included in such an array. The very strong market for steel, iron, copper, Lead and Zinc suggests continued strength in the stocks concerned. The Federal smelting issues should come in for some belated appreciation some time. Independence Lead is a very cheap sister proposition that should give big profits to current buyers. Am. Zinc looks very good at the moment, while U. S. and American Smelting are certainly cheap. Anaconda seems at last ripe for a real advance. Inspiration and other coppers should harden. Can. has great possibilities. But it is Steel and allied stocks that should do best. Republic and Crucible look very good. Rubber and tire stocks should do better now that the passing of the Lee tire dividend and the Goodrich annual report are out of the way. Railway Springs, Airbrake, Pressed Car and the Locomotives are worth while. The Leak quiz is now more or less scare proof. The market should do better to-day. So should cotton. Buy only good selbacks in wheat.

Ambulance As Wedding Carriage Groom Former Reaboro Man

(Northern Echo, Jan. 1st.)

The war that has produced so much of sorrow has also brought to light many tender touches of romance. Darlington has not been without its share in this respect, but probably its most beautiful incident, despite the attendant pathos, took place on Saturday, when Lance Corporal Fleming, 48th Highlanders of Canada, 1st C.E.F., (late of Reaboro, Ont.) and Miss Sarah Alderson, of Lower Consicliffe were married at Holy Trinity church.

Arriving home on a few days' leave from the front, Lce.-Corp Fleming discovered that his bride-to-be was lying in the Greenbank hospital with a broken leg. Sympathising with the couple in their disappointment, the matron, nurses and a few friends determined the marriage shoud take place, as arranged, so, attired in a light blue wrapper and a tasteful arrangement of white tulle as her head dress to give the bridal touch, the bride was conveyed to church in the ambulance requisitioned from the fire station. The sisters of the ward and three nurses carried the stretcher to and from the vehicle, the matron and a number of convalescent soldiers from the hospital bearing them company.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. George, of High Consicliffe, the bride's sister being bridesmaid and the brother of the groom best man. Naturally the return journey to the hospital was made in the ambulance, the bridegroom on this occasion accompanying the invalid. A hearty reception, and later in the day, prior to the Lance-Corporal's departure for the front, they were presented with a centre piece, the gift of the house surgeon, the matron and her staff, as a token of their good wishes for the bride and bridegroom, whose wedding had taken place under such unique circumstances.

Britain's New Sub. Chasers

As the size, speed and importance of the German sub-marines has rapidly developed, the allies have developed various ways of catching or destroying them. Otherwise the trade routes of the entire world would be infested with German subs., destroying allied merchant ships and neutral vessels. The great marvel is that the success of the allies has been so near absolute perfection. The naval defence of the allies has certainly worked a modern miracle in this regard.

Until the present time, one of the chief sub-marine destroying weapons of the allies has been a very fast high-power motor boat. England built a great fleet of these and has small squadrons scattered all about her coast, constantly cruising and constantly in touch with shore stations, and special observation posts. The instant a sub. is located, a number of these racers dash after it. But in many cases, the sub. is able to submerge before its pursuers arrive, and escape. Speed is therefore of prime importance in these sub.-chasers.

This imperative call for great speed has called forth a new creation—the seabird. It is really a motor boat with a wide wing extending from each side—giving a total wing spread of 135 feet. These wings cause the boat, which is 55 feet long, to skim on the water, giving the least possible resistance. And the faster the boat travels the higher it will be raised out of the water with a corresponding decrease in the resistance to be overcome by the engines in driving the seabird. The name—sea-bird—is certainly appropriate. These sea-birds are equipped with powerful engines, which drive them at the rate of 100 miles per hour. They can almost jump on their prey when sighted. Each carries a crew of from ten to twelve men and enough fuel and supplies for 1000 miles. Thus loaded they can travel 100 miles per hour. Certainly the crews of German subs. will have something to think about when they learn of these new chasers.

Exposes Prussian Duplicity About Belgian Workmen

Belgian Minister Declares Deportations Are Not Due to British Blockade—Country Exploited; Her Labourers Seized—120,000 Sent Into Slavery in Germany—War Tax Ten Times That in Time of Peace.

SYSTEM LIBERATES GERMAN WORKMEN

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 30.—Germany misrepresented to the United States the real reason for deporting Belgian citizens into Germany, it is charged in a statement issued by Emmanuel Havenith, the Belgian Minister, Germany declared that the deportation was a social necessity, because of the great number of unemployed Belgians, in consequence of the British blockade. Mr. Havenith brands these assertions as false and exactly contrary to the real situation.

"It is the Germans who have created a state of affairs upon which they have afterward endeavoured to establish the justification of the illegal measures taken by them," the statement reads:

"On June 30, 1915, the legation of the King formally and officially protested against the seizure of raw materials amounting to the sum of $17,000,000. Other official protests have been made under dates of December 29, 1914; March 4, 1915, and October 29, 1915, against the seizure of machines and tools requisitioned by the Germans in Belgium and sent into Germany.

BELGIANS SACRIFICED.

"Belgian industries having been thus prevented from continuing work there followed an increase in the number of unemployed due entirely to the actions of Germany, who has not hesitated to sacrifice Belgian interests, as indeed General von Bissing openly acknowledged when he recently declared that he was not in Belgium to watch over the interests of that country, but to take care of the interests of Germany.

The German Government, in its communication, then takes up the matter of the finncial burden which this state of affairs imposes upon Belgium. The legation of the King considers that it is not the affair of Germany to go into this matter. The legation does not desire at the present moment to discuss the present financial relations btween the occupying Power and its victim. It is sufficient to recall briefly that Germany has wilfully disregarded all its obligations toward the occupied country. It was the strict duty of Germany to feed the population. However, had it not been for the initiative and good will of citizens of the United States the Belgian population would to-day be dead from starvation. Germany considers that she has fulfilled her international duties in permitting other nations to take that burden upon them.

Burden of War Tax.

The legation of the King recalls also that Belgium (which, even according to what Germany herself says, is for the moment without commerce and without industry) is subjected to a war tax amounting to $8,000,000 per month (more than ten times the amount of ordinary taxes in time of peace); that she has paid this tax since the beginning of the occupation of her territory and that in addition she has been subjected to requisitions of all kinds which Germany has imposed upon her and which have made a desert of certain parts of this unfortunate country. Public opinion will judge whether it appertains to Germany to speak of the financial burden which Belgium endures in order to feed her population when this burden should be borne exclusively by Germany.

German Workmen Rejoin Forces.

"When Germany had thus reduced to idleness a large number of workmen she decided to export them into Germany in order to liberate in this way an equal number of German workmen who would rejoin the German army in the field.

"To-day it is no longer a question only of the deportation of the unemployed. According to information received by the government of the king, employed and unemployed—all those whom the German government thinks it can utilize—are deported into Germany. The number of these unfortunates is to-day more than one hundred and twenty thousand Thus again Germany, after having created a situation, makes of it a pretext for the justification of her illegal actions, for these actions are illegal whatever may have been the cause which created the situation.

"These unfortunate workmen are being deported into Germany, where they are employed on work of a military or semi-military nature, such as in lime kilns and cement plants, when they are not sent near the firing line. However that may be, their presence in Germany liberates German workmen, who go to rejoin the army in the field. It is, therefore, a violation of international law in spirit and in letter.

"It is a return to an institution which has been definitely suppressed by civilized nations."

Keep Uric Acid Out of Joints

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Eat Less Meat and Take Salts

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well known authority. We are advised to dress warmly; keep the feet dry; avoid exposure; eat less meat, but drink plenty of good water.

Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat, and other rich foods that produce uric acid which is absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate the uric acid, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate the uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which helps overcome uric acid, and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

Boiled rice served with chocolate or hard sauce makes a simple and wholesome dessert. Raisins can be cooked in the rice is desired.

Britain Has More Guns Than Needs

Ministry of Munitions Gives Out Semi-official Statement Showing That the Army Has More Artillery Than It Needs and Enough Ammunition to Keep Them Going Incessantly—Turning Workers Back to Productive Work in a Systematic Manner.

EXPORTS ARE GROWING

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The high water mark has now been reached and passed in making British guns, shells and all kinds of ammunition for the Allied armies. This fact now presents the large problem of diverting the production into new and useful channels, by which England will again supply the outside world with goods; thus diminishing the steady outflow of gold and checking the decline in the British exchange rate.

As the Ministry of Munitions and the Board of Trade inquiries brought out some interesting facts on the maximum point reached in guns and shell production, and the need now of turning to more useful lines of domestic production and exports.

At the Ministry of Munitions these facts were given out:

There are now 4,623 private factories and works, ordinarily employed in various kinds of metal production which have been taken over by the Government and are now "controlled" works. These are in addition to the regular government factories. There are 2,225,000 employees working in these "controlled" and government factories making exclusively guns and shells.

Artillery Armament Complete.

This enormous production has now reached a point where the equipment of the army is approximately complete in some of the main lines, such as light field pieces, so that the manufacture of eighteen pounder guns has had to be slackened in the last few weeks instead of further increased. The establishment of piece of the 4.5 calibre is also practically complete. In trench mortar ammunition and grenades also the production has been so developed that any further increase seems unnecessary.

The number of "controlled" factories making the one article of munitions is more than half of all the factories usually employed in metal industry, making all kinds of iron and steel goods from a nail up to steel beams, steel rails, and all kinds of machinery as well as the infinite variety of small metal goods usually exported by England.

The number of people employed in this one industry of gun and shell-making is a large percentage of the total British working population. The entire membership of all the trades unions last year was about 5,000,000 while those now working in gun and shell making is 2,250,000 or about half of the full trade union strength, which includes about half of all the wage earners. Before the war there were about 50,000 unionist workers in all the various metal trades, which is only one-fourth the number of those now employed in the single industry of making guns and shells.

Some Amazing Figures.

The extent to which this gun and shell output has grown is shown by the figures given by the Ministry of Munitions. The comparison is made between June, 1915, when the war had just got under way, and the production to-day.

For every heavy howitzer produced then there are 323 produced now. For every field howitzer produced then there are 46 produced now; for every medium gun then there are 66 now. The output of sixty-pounders and six-inch guns went up eighteen fold, and has now dropped back to twelve fold, as the supply is too great. As a whole the production of guns of all calibre has increased forty-one fold on those of medium weight and twelve fold on the heavier guns. There is the same remarkable expansion in the output of all the other various types of ammunition, machine guns, explosives, etc.

About the only exception is in small arms, as the increase of regulation rifles is particularly difficult and has not much more than doubled since the war began. The shell production, however, has taken such a leap that the production for heavy guns in a single day equals the entire year's production during the first year of the war, and on projectiles for field howitzers and seventy-five millimetre guns the weekly output now equals the whole year's output during the first year of the war. In a single week recently, from Nov. 19 to 26, the shell output was 30 per cent. greater than the entire reserve stock of ammunition held at the outbreak of the war.

Turning to Commerce.

It is because this high-water mark in the output of ammunition has been reached and passed that attention is being given to gradually diverting labour to other lines so that the trade and export war may be carried on. This is the reason for the creation of a new member of the ministry, Mr. Neville Chamberlain as Director of Service. Mr. Chamberlain's chief duties are to divide occupation into "essentials" and non-essentials," and to divert labour gradually from the non-essential industries turning out luxuries to the essential industries which turn out those articles on which England's great export trade is based in normal times.

Exports Are Growing.

The Board of Trade returns show that the scale is already turning favourably, and that exports are steadily increasing and the heavy trade balance against England steadily going down. Last year, as shown by the returns totalled £606,546,212, an increase of £121,000,000 over the previous year, or 31 per cent. Yet practically all this increase was on cotton linen and jute piece goods, which do not go to America in large quantities, so that the trade balance is offset chiefly in other countries than America. On practically all the articles usually sent to America the exports kept steadily dropping off last year.

This is what has given point to the present movement to concentrate all attention on essential industries and take advantage of the turning point which has now been reached in the supply of ammunition.

Mock Displays In German Shops

An interesting "Berlin Letter" appears in the Frankfurter Zeitung."

In speaking of Berlin shops the Frankfurter correspondent remarks on the "surprising" opulence of the shop windows of drapery establishments—silks fit for queens, delicate vettinge, astrakhan fur jackets, and fur dress trimmings in lavish abundance—but he notices that these are all articles which have either not been placed under an embargo because of their practical uselessness, or articles of use on which the embargo rests.

The correspondent says you must look at these piled-up shop windows with scepticism. They don't bear examination. From a distance they represent abundance, narrowly observed they are a fraud. Goods are there of no use to any one, and you are told on a card that you may buy them "without special permission." You look in the window of a great "delikatessen" shop, with its enticing array of appetizing things. They must be fearfully dear—towers of chocolate boxes, symmetrical buildings of preserves in tins, all sorts of geometrically arranged designs of glass jars and pots with labels that make your eyes bright and your mouth water. It is incredible, but we have the "Frankfurter" man's word for it, that all these mighty edifices of boxes, pots, cans, bottles, and jars are either empty or commandeered, and therefore not for sale.

For a long time the public could not accustom itself to these mock displays, and resented the lavishness, but the "better-class" shops now display cards in the window on which they ask the public to believe that the jars and boxes and things are empty, and other cards which tell what articles have been commandeered, and what are still for sale. Batocki's regime, we are told, has only partially put an end to the street "polonaises" of waiting women. As soon as any particular article becomes unusually scarce the queues of women form up as it were automatically.

We are further informed that in educated and exclusive circles in Berlin the most engrossing subject of conversation deals with "How and through whom this or that person has procured this or that food dainty?" One has received a ham and butter from a civilian official in Brussels, another a hare and some venison from an estate in East Prussia. Frau Von M. had a goose from Warsaw, and Frau Von N. had an extra quantity of butter from someone who gave it in exchange for sausage. Another lady bartera flour for sausage, flour which she had slowly accumulated on her bread card. Doctor X. delights in telling how he is able to spread on his bread the butter which his sick wife is unable to eat, and a lady doctor makes a point of collecting flour, sugar, milk, butter, eggs, oil, coffee, and bacon from patients whom she is dieting.

About eight months ago I read your advertisement in one of the Halifax papers offering a free sample of Gin Pills for the Kidneys. Suffice it I had finished the third box I found myself for the first time in years perfectly free from pain.

GERMAN FOODSTUFFS ARE NOT SATISFYING

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—The New York Tribune this morning says:

It is impossible to obtain nutritious food of any kind in Berlin, according to correspondence from Germany appearing in a recent issue of The Vilag, a daily published at Budapest, Hungary. The correspondent is Prof. Agaston, a Hungarian sociologist with an established reputation. He says:

"I noticed with surprise that the present German meals will not satisfy one's hunger. Two hours after my meal I felt as hungry as a wolf, which compelled me to look for another restaurant where to eat again. But all the obtainable food is not sufficiently nutritious. Only once I succeeded in finding a restaurant a French sausage, the size of my little finger, for which I paid 1 mark 20 pfennings.

"The food dictator has provided an additional ration for the workers, but the latter claim that they don't get it. In front of the popular kitchens during the dinner hour there stand long lines of hungry and tired workingmen, who used to utilize in the past that hour for rest. And it is therefore not surprising that in the evening after the worktnk hours the street cars are packed with sleeping people.

"A similar weariness and silence is to be observed throughout the entire country. All are silent and avoid conversation. There is everywhere a feeling of mutual distrust. It is true one will not hear anywhere even a single word of dissatisfaction, but one will also fail to hear any expression of enthusiasm. 'Do they not want peace?' I will be asked at home. I find it difficult to answer this question. All the papers print the appeal of the Independent Union advocating a "German peace."

"What is a 'German Peace?' with this question I turned to a certain German politician. 'Is not annexation meant by this term?'

"'I don't know,' was the answer, 'and it seems to me that nobody knows, nobody, not even the Government leaders.'"

OUR SERIAL STORY

"DESTINY"

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

He smiled and shook his head. "I have often heard of such things," he reassured. She had been nursing her mother through a long illness; perhaps, he thought, the strain had left her nervous.

"It was as real as if it had truly happened," she assured him as she put up both hands and pressed her fingers against her temples. "You were standing there—right where you are standing now, and you smiled—like you smiled at me that day on the road. There were little wrinkles around your eyes."

"That is all real enough," he laughed. "I was and am doing all those things."

"Yes, I know, but—" Once more she shook her head and her voice carried the detached tone of a trance-like vagueness—"but somehow it was all different. You were you—and I was I—and yet we were in another life... we didn't seem to belong here....and there seemed to be some terrible danger hanging over us."

"Did we seem to talk?" he asked her.

"Yes." The girl's words came very low, but with a tense emphasis. "You said, 'Maybe there's some land beyond the stars where every mistake we make here can be remedied... where we can take up our marred lives and live them afresh as we have dreamed them. Perhaps in that other life we can go back to the turning of the road where we lost our way and choose the other path.' You said that, and then after a moment you smiled again."

"It's strange," said the young man—he unconsciously took off his hat, baring the curly hair over the tanned face. F very wholesome and honest a song, and the girl's eyes lighted into a smile of pride and love.

"Yes," she said. "It was you and me—in some other life. I don't know what it means—but somehow it seems to—to guarantee everything."

They turned and walked together to the last buggy hitched against the stone wall under the wild apple trees.

After a while she demanded—"After you got well—why did you stay here?" and as promptly as an echo came his answer—

"Because you stayed."

The moon was up early that night, and it flooded the mountains with a glory of silver mists. The shoulders of the peaks stood out in blue barriers, strong, abiding, beautiful. In the valleys it was all a nocturne of dove greys and dreamlike softness. The stars, too, shone down in a million splinters of happy light, but the radiance of the moon paled them.

The vines which covered the walls of the Burton house hung out their lacy tendrils and through the windows came the soft glow of lamplight.

There was nothing dreary or poverty stricken about the old farm house now. From its front, where every shutter, by day, shone in the healthy trim of fresh paint to the gate upon the road went rows of flowers, nodding their bright heads above the waving grass. The barns at the back stood substantial and in repair, and now out beyond the road, Lake Forsaken mirrowed the stars and broke in light when a fish leaped under the moon.

Mary Burton and her lover walked down to the gate, and he said simply:

"Now, dear, there is nothing more to hold you here. If you still long to see beyond the sky-line, I can take you wherever you want to go."

But she wheeled and laid a hand in protest on his arm.

"No!" she exclaimed tensely. "No, this is where I belong. After a moment she went on. "Life holds enough for me here. This is home

Children Had Eczema Doctors Failed To Cure

Two Letters Which Prove the Efficiency of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a Cure for Eczema

Fortunate are the mothers who know the virtues of Dr. Chase's Ointment, for there is no treatment so suitable for use after the bath to relieve irritation and chafing and to thereby prevent eczema and similar skin diseases.

Mrs. W. L. Barnes, Timmins, Ont. writes: "I want to tell you about the case of my little boy, who had baby eczema when he was three months old. It started on the top of his head, on his forehead and around his ears. The doctors failed to do him any good, so I tried D. Chase's Ointment on the recommendation of a friend, and in a month's time the child was entirely free of this disagreeable skin disease. He is now four years old, and has never had any further trouble from ailments of this kind. I also have great faith in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and believe that it cannot be beaten as a restorative for pale, nervous women."

Mrs. George McNair, River Charlo, N.B., writes:— "We use Dr. Chase's Ointment in our home, and would not wish for anything better for cuts, burns and bruises. A few years ago a friend of mine, whose baby was terribly afflicted with eczema had her child treated by their own family physician, but the little one got no better. They tried several remedies, but they all proved useless in this case. Upon the advise of a neighbour they got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and before the first box was used the child was completely cured. I can also recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to suffering friends who I now will be glad to learn of something to relieve their nervous trouble. You have my permission to use this letter for the benefit of others."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S FOUR GORE SKIRT.

By Anabel Worthington.

8128

For style and sturdy service a better model than this in a separate skirt would be hard to find. It is cut in four gores and has the front and back gores and the yokes all in one.

The popular straight-line idea is carried out with the panel effect front and back; the side gores are gathered where they join the yokes to give a little fulness, and a pleat is introduced where each side gore meets the front. The closing is at the left front side and a few buttons and loops provide a little trimming if one favors it.

This is an excellent design for wear with a practical style blouse. It shows that skirts are a bit longer and a bit more conservative in width also—the lower edge in size 24 both being 3 yards. Black and white striped worsted is a great favorite for sports skirts, and mannish serge, diagonal cheviot and the novelty mixtures are largely used also.

With the front and back gores and yokes all in one the making of this garment is greatly simplified, and no one will deny the saving that a pattern means in this day of high prices.

The skirt pattern No. 8,128 cuts in sizes 24 to 32 waist. To make in size 24 requires 3½ yards of 44 inch material. To obtain the pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 10 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

to me. I don't want anything else."

"I am glad. It is what I hoped to hear you say," he responded. "I do not think somehow I could be as happy anywhere else, but the world's a big place and you—you have the right to the best it holds—anywhere."

"Once dear, you know," she told him gravely, "we threshed that out, and we had almost made up our minds to leave leave here. We were almost whipped—and Ham had his dreams. He wanted to go out and try life in a bigger world—and you recognized his power. I wanted it all, too—but we stayed. I don't know what would have happened if we had not, but I do know—" she looked up into his face and smiled into her eyes came a regal serenity—"I do know that I haven't to go out and hunt for life—life has come to me, and I'm happy."

The man caught her to him and she clasped her hands behind his head. Before them was June and starlight and youth and life—and love. He bent his head and pressed his lips to hers and felt her heart beat against his own.

In the mirror of Lake Forsaken, back of her, gleamed the splintered light of a thousand stars, and in his heart gleamed a million.

"As beautiful as starlight on water," he whispered.

THE END.

The narrow plain skirt is of black satin, and the over-drapery is made of a piece of the moire used lengthwise of the goods, allowing the selvage to show on the lower edge. This is gathered into a band, apparently tied about the abdomen and held up to the waist line by another belt.

The blouse is of black with white stitching, making a moire effect. It is very full and shirred at the neck with a round black moire collar.

Why Boiler Rumbles

That noisy rumbling and clattering in the kitchen boiler after the gas water heater has been lighted for some time has scared many a woman. The Bulletin of Monthly Gas Chat says it need alarm no one, as it is caused by the expansion of the water as it is heated from the top of the boiler. The colder water below, rushing up to replace the expanded water above, will often cause a concussion.

SPORT AT THE FRONT

Much Manly Games Enjoyed by Officers, Men and Natives

It is by no means "all work and no play" at the front. Even within sight and sound of the firing line it is said there are occasional intervals of leisure. These, as may be imagined, are put to good use by all ranks, both officers and men. If our troops fight well, they also play well. This is what keeps them so admirably fit after long months of exhausting work.

Practically every form of outdoor sport is assiduously followed by our men in France and Flanders, writes an Englishman. There seems to be only one solitary exception—namely, golf. Still, golf cannot be missed much, since there are abundant facilities for cricket and football, not to mention boating and swimming, together with race meetings, gymkhanas, horse shows, and the like.

Perhaps the simplest sporting fixture to arrange is an athletic meeting, with a general programme which includes a large variety of events. So far as possible the management is left to the men themselves, but two or three officers are always on the committee. A prize fund is also put up by the commissioned ranks, and a liberal grant is probably forthcoming from the surplus profits of the field force canteen.

A tug-of-war is always a feature of garrison or regimental sports at the front. Sack races, obstacle races, sprinting, and jumping also figure in the programme, and in addition there are probably two or three events for the villagers who assemble in force to watch "Les Anglais." Party feeling among them runs high, and the respective champions of the different communes almost come to blows when the decision happens to be against them. However, a bottle of red wine and a cigarette in the nearest cafe soon restore harmony. Jean and Pierre then shake hands—they also probably kiss one another—and swear eternal friendship.

"ABSOLUTE WASTE"

London Rector's Striking Comment on Harvest Festival Decorations

The Rector of St. Augustine's-with-Faith's, London, commenting on harvest festivals in his parish magazine, says that in these days of war economy it seems absolute waste. "What could be more incongruous," he asks, "than a harvest festival, with all the customary decorations of flowers and vegetables, in the centre of bricks and mortar?

"No one has seen the things grow, nor had the slightest personal interest in them, and the worshippers would not suffer if the harvest were good or bad. As long as these things were to be got, and they had the money, they would have them." The rector adds that it would have been of real value to have sent the cost of the fruit and flowers used in the decorations straight away to some charity.

Any Woman's Struggle For Good Health Quickly Rewarded

A Simple Home Treatment Now Advocated that Gives Fine Results.

When a woman's face grows haggard and pale, when she is tired all day and ready to cry when night comes, she ought to know something is wrong.

Putting off only makes matters worse. The best advice we can give any sickly woman is to test out the following treatment.

At the close of every meal, with a sip or two of water, take two chocolate-coated Ferrozone Tablets. This seems to be the best thing going for folks that are tired out, run-down, and in need of a strengthening, building-up medicine.

Ferrozone's action aids the three principal functions of the body—digestion, assimilation, elimination.

By strengthening digestion it forms an abundance of rich, red blood—this gives good colour.

By perfecting assimilation, Ferrozone supplies nutrition—this gives strength, vim, stability.

Elimination is assured because Ferrozone quickens the action of the liver kidneys and bowels—this guarantees the maintenance of vigorous health.

Not a man, woman or child needing blood, vigor, endurance — not a person who is weak, nervous or sickly, not a person in ill-health who won't receive immediate help from Ferrozone.

As a tonic and restorative, as a health-bringer and body-builder, Ferrozone is unrivalled. It cures because it feeds and nourishes, because it contains the elements that build up and strengthen. Try it yourself—sold everywhere in 50 cent boxes, 6 boxes for $2.50, or by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Horse Thief's Girl

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

The human heart beats much the same among the good and the evil. This is a story of a girl, rough, uncouth, but an outlaw among outlaws, who made a sacrifice which, though in a bad cause, should entitle her to the name of heroine.

When the state of Colorado was a wild country, filled with wild people, a man there was who, starting under the title of road agent, degenerated to the condition of common horse thief. Human laws may be inherited, but they do not originate by accident. In a new country a horse or a mule is an absolute essential. Consequently one who steals a horse is given the greatest of all punishments. While a man may deliberately shoot down another in the street or over a card table and not be called to an account, the man who steals a horse is strung up to a tree by the neck.

Ryan was the only name known for this person who had slid down so far in the scale of crime. He had become such a thorn in the side of the settlers of the region he worked that they decided to drop everything else to run him down. It was a long chase, but at last they got him in a gulch the sides of which were unscalable. The mouth of the gulch was guarded by the committee. If there was any egress they did not know it. There was an outlet for a good climber near the upper end of the gulch, but in order to escape by that route the fugitive would have to expose his body to the fire of any one in the center of the gulch.

While the settlers were laying their plans for the capture they were approached by the girl who has been mentioned above.

"Air y' lookin' for Ryan?" she asked.

Since she might be interested in Ryan's safety, she received no positive reply.

"Cos if y' air I reckon I can help y' locate him. Look a-here!"

She pulled up the sleeve of her calico dress and showed some shocking marks on her arm; then she lowered it at the back of the neck and showed more of them.

"Ryan give me these," she said in a bitter tone.

"Are you his wife?"

"I'm his gal. He came to our house onct when a posse was chasin' him. I hid him, and when he went away I went with him. And these scars air what I got fer what I done fer him. Do y' wonder I want to turn him in?"

The men of the committee looked at one another. This might be a case of a girl who had saved a desperado from death, had trusted herself to him and had received the reward that might have been expected from a hardened criminal. That she should desire revenge was not remarkable.

"Well, what do you propose?" said the leader of the committee.

"See that rock up there?"

"The one next the big tree?"

"Yes. He's goin' to hide till after dark and then climb up there and git away. He's hidin' up near the head of the gulch. I'll go and tell him that y're comin' up to take him. That'll scare him so that he'll try to git over the rock by day. Y' kin shoot him when he's between y' and the skyline."

The committee held a consultation. Some declined to trust the girl; some did not like giving up hanging the man instead of shooting him. But they all wished to be through with the job and get back home. So they told the girl she might go ahead and tell Ryan the story. They would be ready to pick him off as soon as they got a clear view of him.

She went off up the gulch muttering maledictions on the man who had returned evil for good. The men took position where they could get a good view of the rock and any one who attempted to climb it. There they waited, some one of their number keeping watch and his gun cocked ready for the execution.

About an hour after the girl had left them they saw the figure of a man slowly climbing the rock. But it was indistinct and the man on guard preferred to wait till it passed over the upper edge of the rock when it would be between him and the light. Just as it landed on the summit it turned, looked down into the gulch and threw a kiss at some one there. The man of the committee who held his rifle to his shoulder fired, but the weapon was knocked up by one of the committee and the shot went skyward.

"It's the gal!" exclaimed the man who had interfered.

"You got durned fool, you've let the rascal escape. What makes you think it was the gal?"

"He'd never throw her a kiss like that even though he believed she'd saved him again, and it's just what she'd do if she was going to die for him. Spread yourselves over the mouth of the gulch. We'll get him yet."

And they did. His girl had intended to die that he might live, supposing that after she had been killed for him the committee would go home believing that they had killed the man they were after. Then the horse thief could walk out of the canyon in perfect safety. She had betrayed herself and him by a feminine act.

Before they hanged him they asked him to tell them about the girl who would have died for him without effect. He told the story, but did not seem to be especially impressed with the sacrifice she had made.

Prepare This for a Bad Cough—It's Fine

Cheaply and Easily Made, but Does the Work Quickly.

The finest cough syrup that money can buy—costing only about one-fifth as much as ready-made preparations—can easily be made up at home. The way it takes hold and conquers distressing coughs, throat and chest colds will really make you enthusiastic about it.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth). Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Shake thoroughly and it is ready for use. The total cost is about 54 cents and gives you 16 ounces—a family supply—of a most effectual, pleasant tasting remedy. It keeps perfectly.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed or swollen throat membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough will disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, whooping cough or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol and is known the world over for its prompt healing effect on the throat membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

A YEAR INDOORS.

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart bad, and smothering feelings came on till I thought that I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten.

SIMPLIFIED SPELLING.

The One Thing Needed to Make English the World Language.

Having been for years a teacher of English to foreigners and to high school pupils as well as a student of modern languages, the subject of an international language interests me greatly.

Certainly of the four important modern tongues English is the easiest and simplest in grammar, having no awful genders such as German and no dreadful verbs such as French and Italian. It has no baffling depths and subtleties as the last two mentioned nor any impossible pronunciation as the first. Yet, in spite of its simplicity, it is a very hard language for foreigners to master. This is due, I feel, solely to its antiquated method (or lack of method) of spelling. The difficulties arising from the difference between the spelling of English words and their pronunciation are almost insurmountable, fatal to its universal diffusion. How many natively English speaking people do we know, educated, nay, intellectual, who simply cannot spell, who have given up trying?

All over the continent one hears reiterated with boring monotony: "I like to read the English, but not to speak it. It is too difficult to pronounce. I can never tell how a new word should be said." In French and German certain letter combinations invariably represent certain sounds, while Italian is absolutely phonetic. In Italian schools there is no such thing as a spelling lesson. Think what a saving of time, temper and grey (or is it gray) matter this is to the growing child!

It is all very well to insist upon the classic origin of our orthography, but compare it for one moment with the near and aristocratic parent of the Italian. Yet Italian does not hesitate to discard all artificiality.

I feel sure that only one thing will make English, which stands today as the easiest and most concise of languages—only one thing will make it the universal language, and that is simplified spelling.—J. H. Harris

GROWTH OF THE BODY.

It Comes In Alternate Periods of Filling and Stretching.

That men and women grow in height and weight from birth until maturity, if they live the ordinary term of years, and that, as a rule, men are taller than women are facts of common knowledge. How this growth is accomplished is not so generally known, nor is it commonly understood that the difference in length of the male and female of the species is apparent even at birth. Carefully kept records show that the average boy baby is about two-fifths of an inch longer at birth than is the average baby girl.

Another curious feature of this growth discovered by patient research is the fact that it is not a gradual and regular increase. There are periods in which the youthful body expands rapidly in length, while it seems to become thin and lean.

Then comes a time where there is little increase in height, but the body becomes plump. While there is a slight difference of opinion as to the exact number of years and ages when these alternate growths are in evidence, the general proposition is conceded by the most thorough of the investigators.

Professor Stratz tabulates this growth of the body as follows: Period of the first fullness of body, two to five years; period of first stretching, six to eight years; period of second fullness, nine to eleven years; period of second stretching, twelve to sixteen years; period of maturing, seventeen to twenty-five years.

Professor Weissenberg, however, divides the time of growth somewhat differently and makes allowance for a difference between the periods of change in girls and boys.

His tabulation is as follows: Period of first fullness, two to four years; period of first stretching, five to six years; period of retarded growth, boys eight to twelve years, girls eight to ten years; period of second stretching, boys thirteen to eighteen years, girls eleven to fifteen years; periods of retarded growth, boys nineteen to twenty-six years, girls sixteen to nineteen years; period of standing still and of the second fullness, twenty-six or twenty-nine to fifty-one years; period of decline, fifty-two to seventy-six years.

Among other interesting features of this growth, it is noted that the changes are not constant within the limits of a year, but appear to depend upon the season.

It has been found that increases in height and girth of chest are greater in summer than in winter. It would seem that the greatest gains in weight are made from August to January, the weight remaining almost constant from February to May.

Of course there are many special causes which in individual cases make exceptions to these rules, but under normal conditions this is the way our bodies grow from babyhood to maturity.

LINCOLN UNDER FIRE.

A Salute That Might Have Carried Death In Its Train.

In "Reminiscences of a Wartime Statesman and Diplomat," by Frederick W. Seward, is the story of a visit to a French frigate, "I think the Garonne," on which the author accompanied Mr. Lincoln early in 1861. The visit over the party was leaving the frigate and the parting salute was about to be fired.

"As Mr. Lincoln took his seat in the stern he said: 'Suppose we row around her bows. I should like to look at her build and rig from that direction.' Captain Dahlgren, of course, shifted his helm accordingly. The French officers doubtless had not heard or understood the president's remark and supposed we were pulling off astern in the ordinary way.

"We had hardly reached her bow when on looking up I saw the officer of the deck pacing the bridge, watch in hand and counting off the seconds—'un, deux, trois'—and then immediately followed the flash and deafening roar of a cannon apparently just over our heads. Another followed, then another and another in rapid succession. We were enveloped in smoke and literally 'under fire' from the frigate's broadside. Captain Dahlgren sprang to his feet, his face aflame with indignation as he shouted: 'Pull like the ——, boys! Pull like ——!'

"They obeyed with a will, and a few sturdy strokes took us out of danger. After he had resumed his seat and calmed down I said in a low voice, 'Of course those guns were not shotted, and we were below their range?'

"He answered, gritting his teeth, 'Yes, but to think of exposing the president to the danger of having his head taken off by a wad!'

"I did not know until he explained that the wadding blown to pieces by the explosion sometimes commences dropping fragments soon after leaving the gun. Whether Mr. Lincoln realised the danger or not I never knew. He sat impassively through it and made no reference to it afterward."

Was Anaemic
FOR OVER A YEAR

Anaemia, or blood turning to water, is caused by the heart becoming deranged, and if the heart becomes weakened it cannot pump the blood as it should. As a result the blood becomes impoverished, and it loses its nourishing quantities. The face becomes pale and thin, and the lips bloodless. There is a weakness, tiredness and loss of weight.

When those suffering from thin or watery blood start taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills they can see a change from the outset.

Every dose introduces into the blood those vital elements necessary to make it rich and red. The pale cheeks take on the rosy hue of health, the weight increases, and the whole being thrills with a new life.

Mrs. R. J. Grey, Fredericton, N. B., writes: "When I was a girl working at general house work I overtaxed my strength and became completely run down. For over a year I was very bad with anaemia. A friend told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I got a box and when it was done I decided to get six more When I had taken them I gained not only in strength, but in flesh and colour, and best of all was good health."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box; three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

LIBELED THE KING.

Then He Turned Informer and Won a Substantial Reward.

A colonel in the Prussian army, who had been discharged at the close of the Seven Years' war, importuned Frederick the Great to be reinstated. Weary of the incessant solicitations of his troublesome visitor, Frederick at length gave orders that he should never be admitted to his presence. Some weeks later a most bitter libel against his majesty appeared. Frederick seldom gave himself any concern about such attacks, but the present one exasperated him so much that he offered a reward of 50 friedrichs of gold for the discovery of the author. The day following the disgraced colonel demanded and obtained an audience.

"Sire," he began, on being admitted, "your majesty has just promised 50 friedrichs for the discovery of the author of a recent publication. I am come to claim that recompense. Behold in me the unfortunate libeler! My life I forfeit freely, but remember your royal pledge, and while you punish me, send to my poor wife and children the reward due to the informer."

The king, although struck with the sad extremity and self sacrifice of the officer, said sternly:

"Go instantly to the fortress of Spandau and there await my judgment!"

"I obey," said the culprit. "But the money?"

"Within two hours your wife shall receive it," said the king. "Take this letter and give it to the commandant, but be must not open it until after dinner."

The colonel arrived at Spandau and gave himself up as a prisoner. At the prescribed moment the commandant opened the royal mandate. It ran:

To the bearer I give the command of Spandau. The present governor is to take the command of Berlin as a reward for past services. FREDERICK.

Musical Bruises.

"That's a peculiar looking bruise you have on the back of your neck," observed the doctor.

"Yes," said the patient. "I am subject to those. You see, I'm a clarinet player in an orchestra."

"I don't see how that can produce bruises on the back of your neck."

"It doesn't produce them exactly, but it places me in a position where I am very liable to get them."

"How is that?"

"I sit directly in front of the man who plays the slide trombone."

The Soft Answer.

A certain politician seeking office was very much incensed at certain remarks which had been made about him by the leading paper of the town. He burst into the editorial room like a dynamite bomb and exclaimed:

"You are telling lies about me in your paper, and you know it!"

"You have no cause for complaint," said the editor coolly. "What in the world would you do if we told the truth about you?"—New York Globe.

Bound to Have Change.

In the absence of her husband the fascinating young married woman went boating with an old admirer.

"Ah," sighed the old admirer, "if only you had married me instead of Wilkinson."

"Then I should have been with Mr. Wilkinson at this moment instead of you," said the fascinating woman. "How strangely things turn out!"

Where there is much light the shadows are deepest.—Goethe.

LIGHT WAVES.

Some Too Tiny to Be Seen, Yet Science Can Measure Them.

The very smallest thing on earth which has been actually measured is a light wave.

Light waves, of course, are of different lengths. In the spectrum the red waves are longest, orange next, yellow next, and so on to the violet, which are shortest of the visible waves. So if we were to give the measurement of the very smallest thing we would have to take one of the light waves in the violet end of the spectrum or, better still, one of the waves of the ultraviolet portion which is invisible.

The shortest of these that has been determined is 120 millionths of a millimeter. Changing this to fractions of an inch, we can comprehend the smallness of the wave better. If these waves were placed one on top of the other there would be more than 200,000 of them in a line one inch long. The negative corpuscle which is a constituent part of the atom is known to be smaller than this, but its exact size has not been determined.

That these light waves can be measured is due to the fact that as light waves are refracted it is only a matter of determining the angle of refraction and by triangulation finding the length.

Everywhere—Why?

Bandits Kill, Mutilate, And Rob In Mexico

MONTEREY, Mexico, Jan. 27.—Bandit conditions have become so bad in all the territory between here and the City of Mexico that railroad traffic is not only being constantly interrupted and even abandoned for days at a time, but any one who ventures to make the trip takes his life in his hands.

Nearly every train arriving here from the south reports one or more holdups en route and in many instances some of the passengers are killed or brutally maimed.

A notable instance of this kind occurred a few days ago when the through passenger train from the City of Mexico was held up at a point between Catorce and Saltillo by a band of about 100 robbers and cut-throats.

Rob Cars and Passengers.

They claimed to be aligned with the cause of Villa although they were operating some two hundred or three hundred miles away from the recognized Villa territory.

The first thing they did after the train came to a stop was to loot the baggage and express cars. They then lined up all the passengers and proceeded to rob them in true highwayman style.

Some of the passengers were wealthy Mexicans, who were making their way as refugees to the United States, and they carried large sums of money, which fell into the hands of the freebooters.

Each passenger was questioned and his papers examined to discover, if possible, any revolutionary allegiance that he might have.

Colonel's Ears Cut Off.

By this means a colonel of the Carranza army, Luis Tanzar, was found and the chief of the bandits ordered him out in front of the other passengers, and in their presence deliberately cut off both his ears.

Sam A. Robertson, of San Bentino, Tex., who has been in Guano Jnato looking after large mining interests that he owns there, was among the passengers robbed. When the Carranza officer's ears were cut off, Robertson boldly walked to the spot and ordered the chief of the bandits to desist.

For a moment it seemed Robertson would pay the penalty of death for his daring, but he talked so vigorously in his best Spanish that he was not molested.

The train was delayed for several hours and finally reached here, where Robertson told his story to Carranza officers and proceeded to San Antonio.

Along the line of the railroad which runs between Monterey and Tampico, several bands of brigands are also operating and they have committed such terrible outrages upon innocent people that great numbers of non-combatants of the smaller towns have fled into Monterey and Tampico to avoid falling into the hands of the fiends.

Railroad traffic all over the republic is so badly disorganized by reason of the revival of brigandage and the increase of the revolutionary operations of the Villistas and the Profirocistis (the latter being followers of Felix Diaz and taking their name from the late President Porfirio Diaz), that merchants are not risking the risk, except in few instances, of attempting to move shipments of foodstuffs or other articles. In nine cases out of ten they fall into the hands of robbers or revolutionists.

MARRIAGE AND CHARACTER

Man and Woman Are the Same Before and After Marriage

"The only way to be happy, though married, is to look before you leap, instead of crying, when it's too late, over the bump you got."

A man writes, apropos of that opinion, that he will give a large, handsome chromo to anybody who can furnish any practical diagram for looking a man or a woman over on the safe side of the altar so as to avoid bumping the matrimonial bumps.

That's easy. Of course nobody is wise enough to be able to tell absolutely what sort of a husband or wife a man or woman will make, because matrimony is the acid test of character, and until it is applied to an individual we never know for certain what is pinchbeck and what is pure gold.

Matrimony doesn't change the character of men and women. It merely brings out what is strongest in them. It turns good men and women into angels, and it converts bad men and women into devils, and this being the case it doesn't take any Sherlock Holmes to give a pretty good guess at the kind of a husband or wife any particular maid or bachelor will make. You have to observe his or her most predominant traits and multiply them by the common happenings of life.

Take, for instance, the youth who is a lounger and a bar-room loafer, who hangs about poolrooms and saloons and who has never done an honest day's work in his life, and who sponges on his old parents for a living. Can any girl look him the once over without perceiving that he will make the sort of a husband who will always be too tired to work, and whose wife will have to take in boarders to support him?

Take the man who is stingy. A girl with eyes in her head ought to be able to see whether a man has a Yale lock on his pocketbook just as well before she is married to him as afterward. The man who is always haggling over pennies, who invariably buys the cheapest seats in the theatre and takes a girl to the least expensive restaurant and whose whole talk is of money, gives her ample warning that he is going to make a tight-wad husband.

And the man who looks upon women with contempt, who sneers at them, and who believes that a woman should be nothing but a household slave. Can any woman be fool enough to marry a man like that and not know that she will get a husband who will be a grinding tyrant to boot?

And the tests to apply to women are equally obvious. Take the little silly, fluffy-haired girl who babbles like an infant. Can any man listen to her for five minutes and not know that he who marries her will get a fool for a wife, and she who will bore him stiff when her girlish charms vanish?

SHOPPING WITH BABIES

Warning to Mothers from Congress to Infants

Taking baby on a shopping tour is one of the practices against which Dr. Harte makes a protest in addition on the care of infants under the age of one year. "It is not enough," he says, "to find another interval in which our housewife's shopping tours, this same mother may stop long enough at a counter to take from her handbag a bottle of milk and complete the feeding of the baby. Especially during the hot weather, when the baby requires food that must be given at frequent intervals, it is almost impossible for the shopping mother to keep to the proper schedule in feeding. Many times the baby is taken from its carriage and carried from one store to another, thus exposing it to the dangers of infection from the many persons with whom it comes in contact. Many times the baby is kept in the stuffy, overheated atmosphere of the shops for hours in succession, thus subjecting it to the danger of suffocation. Many times the baby is exposed to the cold air while the mother is waiting for a car, thus subjecting it to the common cause of infantile ailments, namely, exposure."

The Royal Kitchens

The kitchens at Windsor Castle are perfect in all their arrangements. The kitchen itself, in the form of a huge square, is surrounded with the offices, consisting of a larder, well-lighted, roomy pantry that is kept from the dimensions of a cupboard down to that of a tiny breakfast-cup. Another feature is the huge roasting table used for serving. It is brilliantly polished, and has hollow legs through which the steam passes upwards, heating the whole table. Another apartment is called the "Cream Room," though what this room has to do with the stage but to set apart for the cooking of vegetables. Yet another is the fruit-and-silver-cleaning room, and the "Confectionery" where the "table delicacies" which are made daily are attended to. Hot-closets, common to all large establishments, are also provided, and the whole arrangement is perfect.

FRENCH AIRMAN FELL 9,000 FEET AND LIVED

Miracle Befell Guynemer—Stunned For 24 Hours—His Own Thrilling Story

The Paris Matin describes how Lieut. Guynemer, the widely known airman, after having brought down three enemy machines, had a fall which nearly cost him his life. The journal says: He was up more than 9,000 feet when a shell burst full in one of the wings of his aeroplane, and the frail bird seemed mortally wounded. The whole left wing was completely cut to bits and the canvas fluttered in the wind, making the rent still worse. In a few seconds there was nothing left of the frame but a piece of canvas the size of a pocket handkerchief. The machine fell with a crash through space; it would not support its pilot any longer. Guynemer gave himself up for lost; the only thing he asked Providence for was that he would not fall in enemy territory.

Machine Balked

"At 4,800 feet," he says, "I determined to make a fight for it, all the same. The wind had brought me back into our own lines. I was almost happy. I was already thinking of my funeral, with sorrowing friends walking behind my last remains. I had nothing more to fear from the Pickelhauben.

"However, I felt that it was death, and the thought is not a very pleasant one. My fall continued. In spite of all my efforts I could not do what I wanted with my machine. I tried to turn it first to the right and then to the left. I pushed and pulled, but all to no purpose. I could do nothing.

At 120 Miles Per Hour

"Down I fell, faster and faster. I shut my eyes, then I opened them again and looked down. At something like 120 miles an hour I crashed into a pillar. There was a terrific crackling sound and a deep thud. I looked round and found that nothing was left of my machine. How is it I am still alive? I wondered myself. I think it was the straps which held me in my seat that saved my life. They had eaten right into my shoulders, anyhow, but if it had not been for them I should be dead at this moment.

"For 24 hours," he added, "I was absolutely stunned."

LEARN DANCES AT FRONT

Officers of Highland Regiments Complete Their Education

A young officer in one of the Scottish battalions at the front tells that his men, during their time in the rest billets, are learning to dance the Scottish reel. "It is quite good fun," he says, "though it seems strange to be out here to fight, and yet being taught to dance. You would have laughed if you had seen the subs. in our room hanging on to the back of a chair, trying to do the correct steps, and then being hauled before the C.O.—who was teaching us—so that he could see how we were progressing." Many of these young officers, though possessing Scottish associations, have never been in the Highlands, and by the fortune of war they have gone to France to learn the Scottish reel.

CANADA WILL NOT WAVER

Sir Robert Borden's Message—General Praises Canada

Addressing the Lawyers' Club of New York, the Prime Minister of Canada said in part: "I have some just claim to know the spirit of my countrymen and I most solemnly affirm that among us there is absolutely no thought of aggression or attack on any nation. In this the spirit of our Dominion exemplified that of the whole empire. We in Canada were entirely masters of our own destiny but just as in the motherland when the hour struck there was no wavering and no waiting, so in Canada the decision was never for a moment in doubt. Our resolve is as fixed and unshaken to-day as at the first and whatever loss or sacrifice we may still have to bear we will not waver or falter."

The peace which the Entente allies seek, Sir Robert Borden added, departing from his prepared speech, is an abiding one and not an inconclusive one. The club elected the Premier as an honorary life member. Major-General Leonard Wood, one of the speakers complimented Canada for her "splendid conduct."

"Without discussing the merits of the war in Europe we all can admire the splendid conduct of Canada and her people," he said, "and we can take unto ourselves, if we are not entirely dead, a lesson from her free and splendid performance of duty."

WIDOW: TRUE PATRIOT

Soldier-Husband Left Ten Orphans—She is Proud

"It is a hard blow, but I must try my best to bear it, and when these little ones grow up they will have the satisfaction of remembering that their father fell fighting for his country. I am better satisfied with a dead husband that was brave and manly than I would have been with a living one who was cowardly," said Mrs. Pecor of Kingston, Ontario, as she gathered her family of ten around her and discussed the cable which reached her announcing the death in action of her husband who enlisted with the 34th battery. Mrs. Pecor was aged 24 years and her eldest child is barely fifteen years and the youngest was on her lap as she uttered the above patriotic sentiment.

CORONER OF PALACES

Dark Doings of Cumberlands of Hanover When in England

The King's grant of York House to Sir William Robertson as Chief of Staff naturally recalled the rather grimy story of the Duke of Cumberland, the fifth son of George III., who, afterwards became King of Hanover. In 1810 he was found in bed in this house with a bad wound in his throat. His valet was lying in another room with his throat cut. The Duke's extreme unpopularity lent vogue to the story that he had murdered the valet; and it is possible enough, considering the evidence, that he would have been convicted by an ordinary jury of murder. But the case came before the Coroner of the Palaces and a packed jury, and the scandal was more or less hushed up.

The Coroner of the Palaces is an officer of the Royal Household, appointed and paid by the Sovereign. In 1888, when Mr. Harcourt was Home Secretary, he suggested to the Queen that this special coroner was a useless luxury, and that it would be better to save his salary and put the Palaces under the public coroner. But the Queen rejected the suggestion. "Certainly not," she replied; "there have been occasions when it would have been extremely inconvenient to have the public coroner in the Palace."

Had Violent Coughing Fits

Looked Like Consumptive

Mrs. Mary Whelen, North Forks, N.S., writes: "Having taken five bottles of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, during the past few weeks, to relieve a chronic cough and general throat trouble, allow me to express my unbounded satisfaction and thanks as to its sterling qualities. A short time ago I became subject to violent coughing fits at night and directly after rising in the morning. I began losing weight, and all my friends cheerfully informed me that I was going into consumption.

"After taking the 'Dr. Wood's' I am pleased to relate that the cough has entirely disappeared and I have since regained the lost weight. I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup."

There are many imitations of "Dr. Wood's" on the market so see that none of these so-called "pine syrups" are handed out to you when you ask for "Dr. Wood's." It has been on the market for twenty-five years, is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price 25c and 50c.

A Costly Fan

Queen Alexandra has a wonderful collection of fans, one of the most interesting of which is that lately given to her by the German Empress. Of exquisite lace, it once belonged to Marie Antoinette. Among the Queen Mother's possessions are painted landscape and figure fans, these usually a la Watteau carried out in soft lovely colors, and adorned with pearls, diamonds, corals, and turquoises. The clear golden tortoiseshell sticks are favorites with her Majesty, and she has some amber sticks, mounted with jade, turquoise, pink topazes, and clouded crystals. Her beautiful collection the Queen keeps in electric-lighted glass cabinets in a room at Marlborough House.

Flattering to the Original

But Imitations Only Disappoint

There are many imitations of this great treatment for coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis and whooping cough. They usually have some sale on the merits of the original, but it should be remembered that they are like it in name only.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The Times says the general situation on the Roumanian front is stalemate for the present. All enemy efforts during the last two weeks have been checked with great losses by the Russo-Roumanian armies. The enemy appears to have decided to withdraw part of the forces from this front, where only four or five German divisions remain.

The German forces have been relieved by Turkish and Austrian troops.

French Repulse An Attack By Enemy

Examiner Special:

PARIS, Jan. 30.—(French Official).—Infantry fire stopped a German attack on a French trench in the region of Hill 304 to-day, the official statement declared. The War Office reported intermittent cannonading on the remainder of the front, and three enemy airplanes brought down in air combats.

Official Statement Regarding Fight on Roumanian Front

PETROGRAD, Jan. 30.—To-day's official statement says regarding the Saturday fight on the Roumanian front: "In the battle north-east of Jacobeni, our detachments took as prisoners thirty-two officers and one thousand one hundred and twenty-six men and captured twelve machine guns and four trench mortars."

Austrian Destroyer is Out of Action

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

German Raider Off the Atlantic Coast

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—British warships are prowling off the coast beyond New York to-day. Their vigil is due to the rumoured presence of a German raider, perhaps one of the recent South American privateers, about 700 miles off this port.

All shipping was warned to be on the watch for the raider and likewise to guard against wirelessing the position to any unidentified enquirer. Shippers feared that the German raider may be planning a spectacular coup along the regular Atlantic lane beyond Nantucket Light.

Are Waiting For Kaiser's Next Move

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The Kaiser's next move toward international peace, considered one of the critical steps in peace movements, was anxiously awaited to-day. Unofficial reports which have reached this country daily during the last week have led those close to the President to believe Wilson's "Peace Without Victory" suggestion offers Germany's ruling power a big opening to come through with the most "lenient" terms and still not appear to humble itself before the world. "A Peace Without Victory" will enable Germany, it is believed, to offer terms squaring in many ways with those laid down by the Entente.

Advance information indicates that Germany will support the President's peace arrangements as regards freedom of the seas, an autonomous Poland, the yielding of Belgium, Serbia, Montenegro, Roumania and Northern France.

SPEEDY NOBEL TEAM WILL PLAY SOLDIERS HERE ON FRIDAY

The 247th Battalion intermediates, champions of No. 1 group, have arranged a big game for Friday night when the speedy Nobel team will visit Peterborough. The Nobel team is the only outfit that has beat the Soldiers this season and the 247th are very anxious to wipe out the defeat by beating the fast Northerners, who represent the explosive plant at Nobel, near Parry Sound, and who beat the Sounders right on their own ice by 7 to 1 last week. The team from the north are a crack bunch of hockeyists from different sections and would cut a wide swath in the O.H.A. They are engaged in war work, however, and cannot spare the time for O.H.A. hockey.

It was with great difficulty that the Soldiers were able to arrange Friday night's game and it is hoped that their enterprise in doing so will be rewarded by a big crowd. The 247th Band will be in attendance, and it looks like a big treat.

12,000 SOLDIERS RETURNING IN THE NEXT FEW MONTHS

Canada's Fighting Forces At the Grand

Thursday, Friday and Saturday of This Week. Matinee and Evening

More than any war film coming out of Europe "Canada's Fighting Forces, Series Two," which is being shown at The Grand Theatre for three days beginning Thursday, February 1st, matinee and evening, makes a strong personal appeal to Canadians. Dealing almost exclusively as it does with the overseas activities of the lads from the Dominion it cannot fail to be of interest to the hundreds of thousands whose sons and brothers and husbands are over there. The numerous intimate pictures of groups of Flying officers, Motor Boat Patrol Officers, Medical Staff and Hospital patients are also of great personal interest to most Canadians, for few there are who see the film and fail to recognize several friends on the screen.

At the private view given to the Vice-Regal party and the staff officers from the Department of Militia congratulations were showered upon the young officer who took the pictures under circumstances fraught with extreme difficulty and danger to himself. Of special interest to these staff officers were the magnificent views of the various Canadian divisions on the parade ground being reviewed by King George, Field Marshall Lord French, and Major-General Sir Sam Hughes. No war films shown in Canada previously have shown such wonderful views of thousands of Canadian troops at once, while it will be a surprise to most Canadians to know how remarkably well they march. No continental army could do better.

LINDSAY SOLDIER TOOK POISON

LINDSAY, Jan. 30.—A young private named Harrison, whose home is at Severn Bridge, took a dose of laudanum at the armouries on Saturday afternoon. It is stated that Harrison had been an insubordinate and was to be taken to jail by the military police. Before reaching the house of detention he appeared very drowsy and the young soldier was not long in the castle when he went into a profound sleep. Later on it was disturbed through the use of a stomach pump which the jail surgeon operated with effect. For two hours the man of medicine worked upon him assisted by a couple of soldiers, and when sufficiently relieved of the stupifying drug he was taken in the ambulance to the Ross Hospital, where he remained until yesterday morning.

He was returned to the jail yesterday to serve a five-days' sentence and is apparently all right again.

THE 500 CLUB AND ITS WORK IN RECRUITING

The fleet of Great Britain has been doing duty in the North Sea every minute and every second of the time since war was declared in August of 1914. What would have been the result of a momentary relaxation of their vigilance? Had the vigilance of the Navy been relaxed to the same extent as the recruiting activity of —say, Peterborough—would it not have been disastrous? Then why should we, if we are true British subjects, allow ourselves to let this, the most valuable time in the history of Great Britain, to to go by without exciting ourselves to the very fullest extent by violating the conventionalities of medieval days by speaking to men on the streets who may appear to be eligible?. Surely they, if they are imbued with the proper spirit of patriotism, will not take offence. Our Mother Country, to whom we have always looked for protection in times of trouble, have adopted this scheme, so why should we not emulate them? The 500 Club is going to prevent the task of approaching men of uncertain eligibility by possessing lists of names of men who themselves admit have no reason for not serving their country.

PLUNGER MADE $470,000 ON PEACE HUNCHES

Special to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. — Bernard Baruch, Wall street plunger, cleared $476,000 playing peace hunches during thirteen days in December, he told the "leak" probers to-day. If he had known what was coming from Washington, he said, he would have sold all day December 20 instead of covering part of his short selling by buying U. S. Steel, and his profits would have been larger.

MRS. FRICK GETS $300 DAMAGES FOR CITY'S NEGLIGENCE

Was Seriously Injured Last June, In Fall on Ware St. —Costs also Allowed

BARRET CLAIM DISMISSED

Judge Huycke disposed of the following civil cases this morning:

Frick vs. Peterborough.

Barrett vs. Heard.

Humphries vs. Bampson.

Ferguson vs. Low.

FRICK VS PETERBORO.

Mrs. Adam H. Frick, Jackson Avenue, secured judgment for $300 and costs against the city for injuries received in a fall on Ware Street last summer. She had claimed $1,000 damages. Mrs. Frick fell over a scantling that had been left by city employees projecting over what had been a crossing. Several of her ribs were fractured; she was confined to bed for a considerable time, and at the hearing, two weeks ago, it was stated that she still suffered from the effects of the fall. Judge Huycke found that the city had been negligent in allowing the scantling to remain in the path of pedestrians. His Honour disallowed other claims such as doctor's bills. Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. G. N. Gordon for the city.

BARRETT VS. HEARD.

An important case that of Barrett vs. Heard in which Geo. Barrett of Ottawa claimed $499 from Bert Heard of Peterborough, covering the balance of the cost of two lots in Tuxedo Park, Saskatoon, Mr. Heard had purchased from Barrett. Judge Huycke dismissed the claim with costs.

Mr. Heard had a counter claim for the return of $200 he had paid for the lots, which he contended at the hearing on the December sittings of the County Court, had been grossly misrepresented. The counter action was dismissed without costs.

Mr. Gordon acted for Mr. Heard, and Mr. Daniel O'Connell represented Mr. Barrett.

THE WEATHER

A year ago to-day, conditions were almost similar to what they are to-day—very slippery roads. Two years ago to-day (1915) we had it 28 degrees below zero.—W.P.

Post Offices in Canada Will Not Accept Parcels For Germany After Feb. 1st—Money, However May Be Forwarded to the Red Cross

CHANGE IS NECESSARY

OTTAWA, Jan 29.—An official memorandum issued to-night states that after February 1 no parcels of foodstuffs or clothing may be sent from Canada for prisoners of war in Germany. The Government has received a communication from the Imperial authorities to this effect.

Some months ago the British Government announced that war conditions made it necessary that all parcels passing from Great Britain to Germany should be forwarded under the supervision of a Central Prisoners-of-War Committee. It is only under arrangement with the German Government that parcels can be forwarded.

All parcels despatched by mail or otherwise from Canada addressed to prisoners of war in Germany must pass through the hands of that committee or some body deputed by it for that purpose. It has deputed the Canadian Red Cross Society at London as the body authorized to supervise the packing and forwarding of parcels to Canadian soldiers who are prisoners of war in Germany. Under the regulations recently issued by the British authorities all such parcels received from Canada by parcel post and otherwise are turned over to the Canadian Red Cross Society in London, where they are censored, repacked and forwarded to Germany. Articles which cannot be censored, without being destroyed or damaged, such as tinned meats, cakes, etc., cannot be sent on to their destination. The director of the Central Prisoners-of-War Committee reports that great congestion is being caused by this method, and that while such congestion is being coped with provisionally, it cannot be permitted to continue. He states that no more parcels containing foodstuffs or articles of clothing can be received from Canada. Money for the purpose of purchasing supplies may be sent and such purchases will be made and all the necessary arrangements carried out by the Canadian Red Cross Society at London.

Tried to Obtain Modification.

The director asks that notice be given to the public at once that no parcels containing foodstuffs or clothing can be accepted for transmission. Sir George Perley endeavoured to obtain a modification of this decision, but the director insists that war conditions make the new method absolutely necessary. It appears that the Australian Red Cross have concurred in the proposed arrangement.

The officers of the Canadian Red Cross Society point out that every Canadian military and civilian prisoner of war receives from the society at London irrespective of parcels sent from Canada the following supplies: First, "a capture" parcel, then seven shillings' worth of food and supplies one week and twelve shillings' worth the following week and so on alternately each week. In addition six pounds of bread each week is sent from Holland and elsewhere. The authorities are satisfied that 96 per cent. of such parcels are received by the prisoners. The weight that may be sent each week to any prisoner is limited to thirty-five pounds.

In consequence of the situation which is herin set forth the Postmaster-General has announced that on and after February 1st no parcels containing foodstuffs or clothing can be received at any post office in Canada to be despatched to the address of a Canadian soldier who is a prisoner of war in Germany.

Detailed regulations concerning all communications with prisoners of war will be issued by the Post-office Department immediately.

HIGHLY IMPROBABLE.

The ghost story published by the Review on Saturday in regard to the alleged intrigues of Mr. Gordon in political matters, is a tribute to the constructive genius of the inventor, since it is evolved entirely from the operation of an active imagination. It does not need the specific denial of Mr. Gordon to stamp the story with an improbability that is fatal to its truth. Mr. Gillespie is the recognized candidate for West Peterborough. He has established a claim to it by the value of his representative services. He has made an excellent representative and shown an earnest interest, both legislative and personal, in the faithful discharge of his duties. He has the honour of having "redeemed" the riding; and it would be highly improbable that any Liberal would intrigue to replace him. If there were one it would not be Mr. Gordon. He is too open and outspoken, as he has shown in various capacities, to take any other than the open and manly way to reach what he desires. It is the exaggeration of petty politics to seek to advance party interests by peddling gossip through the press. This serious time, when the demands for national courage and candour press upon us all, is not the time for exploiting ward politics through the medium of a village style of journalism.

PREPAREDNESS— GENERAL AND CIVIC.

We are having rather brisk prosperity—plenty of money widely distributed—as a result of war conditions; and there is a general feeling that when the war is over and no more munitions are required there may be something like a slump. There, is, however, reason to believe that the demand from Europe for manufactured products will not cease abruptly. The president of the United States Steel Corporation in a recent speech at a Foreign Trade Convention, stated that many orders for munitions from Europe are placed in the United States on the condition that, should their fulfilment be interrupted by the end of the war, delivery will be accepted for an equal amount of material for construction purposes. By the ravages of war in Europe, billions of dollars worth of constructed property, buildings, bridges, railways, factories, etc., have been destroyed. These will have to be rebuilt after the war, and there will necessarily be brisk demand for all sorts of building materials, and for many manufactured articles, that cannot be made in Europe for some time after the war ends. This makes it important that we in Canada should be prepared, as far as possible, to do a large share in meeting the inevitably increased European demand for iron and steel products, and other building materials, as well as certain articles of manufacture. This war has done a great great deal for Canada industrially and commercially, by stimulating enlargemand of our productive resources, with the accompaniment of large profits. It will have done more for us if it stimulates us to larger and more permanent or continuous development of our productive capacity, industrial and agricultural. It is feared that the end of the war will be followed by depression; but the effects of that will be largely neutralised if we make adequate preparation to meet every demand that peace will create; the provision of destructive forces in the shape of munitions will be followed by demands for means of remedying the destruction they have created.

The preparedness for after-war conditions and demands applies not only generally, but with especial force to Peterborough. Is it not true to some extent, that we are leading surface lives, content with giving attention to the demands for action that thrust themselves upon us, to the exclusion of outlook? Is there not need in Peterborough for higher and more comprehensive organization of our well-known energy and enterprise? It is remarked with regret, both as a deplorable fact and an indication of a fatal self-satisfaction with our civic progress and civic activities, that we are lacking in that most important agency—a live Board of Trade. The blame for this lack cannot be placed upon any one or two pairs of shoulders. It must be borne by the general body of business citizens. In everything—national and civic—leadership is the essential. Here is an opportunity for some enterprising citizen to constitute himself a rallying point for other enterprising citizens, with a view of having Peterborough's needs in various directions looked after by some civic body or bodies organised for the purpose. Of course the Mayor is indicated as the natural local leader in public enterprises, but it is plain that he and his council have many things to look after—a big programme of civic administration to provide for; but His Worship might find time to take the initiative and get together a few of the leading business men of the city to discuss the needs of the city. We need that something should be done. As things go now, with the demands for munitions monopolising attention, the industrial interests of the city will run themselves. These, however, are not all. The war will end; new conditions, difficult and complicated, wil confront us, and we need to take serious counsel together as a city, as an industrial and commercial community, and make preparations for the future.

THE CURSE OF PATRONAGE.

There can be no doubt that the patronage system in governments is the cause of more waste, more inefficiency of service, and more injury to national and provincial interests than any one evil associated with our political system of administration. The patronage system prefers the party hack to the efficient office holder and the principle, extended, gives contracts and makes purchases from partisans, not with a view of getting the best work or the best value but with a view of pleasing some party "worker," or hanger-on. It needs no great thought or consideration to show how the patronage system applied throughout the whole Dominion, in all the ramifications of service and affecting tens of thousands of officials charged with the expenditure of millions, results in poor service and immense waste. This system, applied in private enterprises, applied to our industrial activities, would wipe out all the industrial establishments of the country in a short time, and wreck the most stable commercial enterprises.

Applied to the administration of national or provincial, or even municipal affairs, it has the same evil tendencies. Under ordinary conditions the practice of the patronage system is treason to public interests. What word or words then can characterise it as applied to the administration of national affairs in this time of war? We have evidence that the patronage system is employed in connection with government discharge of the duties presented by Canada's participation in this war. From the many cases brought out, one can judge of the extent to which business among the whole government administration must be affected prejudicially to national interests. A recent instance in Toronto serves to show that party patronage is adopted as a principle whose application is aided on understood principles by the municipality of the City of Toronto. A returned soldier applied at the City Hall for a position, under the impression created by an announcement that a returned soldier would have the preference. What was the condition of preference—he must become a member of a Conservative ward association before he could even consider himself "in line for a job." There seems to be no doubt that the patronage system prevails and has prevailed in respect of appointments and promotions in connection with military services in this war. This means, as a sample, that the services of prominent men in one community that we all know of—men who from local connection and local influence, might have helped recruiting, have been set aside, because they had not the indispensable party qualification, though they had every other qualification that counts. If, as seems to be the case, the government is animated by the spirit of patronage; dominated by it, as an adopted policy; that it makes the expenditure of the money, liberally and indeed, lavishly, voted by the people through their representatives in Parliament, spent in connection with the war, a matter of party patronage, is there not need, for change of system—of placing national interests ahead of party interests?

One of the greatest steps of reform in national administration and its realisation of the fullest benefits from national expenditure, would be the abolition of the patronage system. A non-political body like the Canadian Forestry Association, demands that Forestry service should be placed on a merit, instead of a patronage, basis. In response to its appeal, in response to the demands of public duty, the new Liberal Premier of British Columbia, Mr. Brewstor, has pledged himself to the elimination of the patronage system from Civil Service appointments—"to abolish the evils of the patronage system wherever they have been in evidence."

If all our governments could and would rise to this height—if all the millions of money expended were expended with a single eye to securing adequate value, instead of for rewards for party service, millions would be saved. If the millions spent upon war service in Canada were spent on business principles; if appointments to military service were based on merit, instead of party considerations; if party interests were forgotten in regard to all our government management in this war, Canada would not have to confine the boast of her share in the war to the gallant soldiers in the trenches.

THE NEED FOR A NATIONAL WAR-TIME GOVERNMENT IN CANADA

The Toronto Star, in advocating the formation of a national government for Canada, declares that there is no other way by which the people can be united, and and no other way by which a Dominion election can be avoided. It continues:

There is no other way by which we can avoid having a government representing but half the people, and any party government will be a half government, afraid to do this and that because of the future outlook of the party. A special government created to do special work, a non-partizan war administration, could take hold of issues with both hands, that any party government would hesitate even to touch.

The country would not be going back on the party system any more than it has gone back on it already. If we are to have no party opposition, we should have no party government. The government that asks both parties, in parliament and in the country to support it and voluntarily place it in office, and stretch the constitution to keep it there ought to be a non-partizan government. This is so evident that the stated facts ought to be sufficient argument of the case.

The impression The Star is trying to create in Ontario is that the widespread public opinion favourable to non-partizan war administration at Ottawa ought to declare itself in an unmistakable manner, or the smaller politicians in both parties will have their way and involve the country in a violent and disastrous political campaign.

The speeches which have already been delivered in Parliament, dealing with the conduct of the war by the present government, afford sufficient reason in themselves why a national government is desirable. They indicate that gross blunders have been committed which might easily have been avoided, and that there has been throughout a want of firmness and capacity in grappling with an unusual and most trying situation. In Great Britain it was found impossible to continue to conduct war measures with party government, and practically all the allied countries have had the same experience. Canada is an out standing exception, Premier Borden and his colleagues affirming that they are quite sufficient in themselves for every possible emergency, and that the party system, with its patronage caudal appendage, should go on as usual. If the members of the government and their journalistic cinquers are satisfied that men like Rhoudin, Patenaude, Sevigny, etc., etc., also Robert Rogers, are of the superman type, and the best Canada can produce to give this country a patriotic and business-like administration of affairs, we are satisfied a majority of the people do not think so, and that a general election would disabuse their minds.—Brantford Expositor.

Though Sevigny Won Cabinet Isn't Happy

Success For Him in Dorchester, Discredits Campaign Cries For Elsewhere

OTTAWA, Jan. 29.—Now that the Dorchester election is over, it is admitted that the advantage was all with Mr. Sevigny. He was in a position to make promises, and he made them lavishly. He promised an experimental farm for every parish. He promised a munition plant in the county. He promised bridges across every stream. And, turning toward Mr. Cannon, his opponent, he asked the electorate what they expected to get from him, who, even if he were elected, would have no Federal patronage control.

But the powers that be did not confine the campaign to promises, if the story be true that two of the campaign workers, taking advantage of the hint made by Mr. Blondin to anti-conscriptionists that the boundary was near at hand, quietly slipped across, taking with them $11,000 of the campaign funds.

In fact so sure were they, that John Best, M.P., for Dufferin, speaking before the Carleton County Conservative Association on Saturday, and while the ballots in Dorchester were pouring in, expressed the fervent hope that Mr. Cannon would be elected, so that once and for all the other Provinces would know where they stood with Quebec. Now that Mr. Cannon has been defeated, the House awaits with interest the interpretation which Mr. Best will have to place upon the incident.

If the Government claims sincerity for the utterances of Mr. Sevigny (apart from the side campaign carried on by Mr. Blondin and his paper), then they must relinquish once and for all the claim that Quebec is disloyal. The cry of a solid Quebec behind Sir Wilfrid must also be abandoned. For these reasons the victory of Mr. Sevigny was received by the Government with mixed feelings, and the only satisfaction which they are now taking out of it is the thought that it involves a loss of prestige to Sir Wilfrid in his own Province.

An element of the Cabinet had been urging Sir Robert Borden to dissolve the House in the event of Mr. Sevigny's defeat, and seek the mandate from the people, which the defeat of a minister in Quebec might seem to have indicated they did not possess. They contended that Sir Robert could not attend the Imperial conference unless he and his Ministry had the united support of the country. The plans of the schemers have now been entirely spoiled.

A Touch of Ring Hardened In This Letter From the Front

The following letter to the Montreal Star portrays some of the lighter phases of soldiering:

Dear Bill:—

I bet you did the same as me, Bill, and made it a 6 instead of a 7, the first letter you wrote this year. Isn't it funny how long it takes to remember, even though you do your best to make New Year's Day something that you won't forget. Well, Bill, nothing much happened this New Years that I want to remember. It was different, from Christmas, eh, Bill. Gee, I've sure got a home from home in that place what I told you about where I had Christmas dinner. They are real folks, Bill, and I would have gone there on New Years, but they were all away. But I got a steady bid to come back any time now.

The other night though I met an old friend of ours who wanted to be remembered to you. Gee, Bill, I was glad to see him. I'll bet he's about the most popular guy in the Canadian army just now. He's the original cheer-up kid all right.

I was just out for a stroll one night passing the Soldiers' Home when I heard the piano going as though about six experts were hitting it. So thinking there was a good show on with London talent, I butts in. Butts in is good for it was a fight to get by the door. I never seen such a crowd, not even in the canteen on pay night.

"What's up?" says I to a guy.

"It's either Paderooski or Irving Berlin," says he; "I don't know the first guy, but he sounded like a alley, and if it was the second he was worth waiting around to hear, even if he is a neutral. So I edges my way through the mob, and tries to get close.

LAMENT BEGINS.

Then the piano stops and I hears someone saying: "Now boys, here's a little chorus that the boys out at the front used to like. It's called the "Lament of the Conssientious Objector. If you like it, we'll learn it."

Well, I knew that I had heard that voice before somewhere, but I could not figure out where it was. Then the guy started to twiddle the piano, and then he sang. Gee, I wish a lot of those fellows at home could hear it." I guess some of them might join up. We made him sing it over and over, and this is the chorus:

"Call up the Army and the Navy,
Call up the rank and file,
Call up the brave Territorials,
They'll face the danger with a smile;
Call up the boys of the Old Brigade,
Who made Old England free;
Call up my mother, my sister and my brother,
But for God's sake, don't call me!"

It dont' sound much on paper, Bill but you should have heard the bunch sing it. It went big. And when he told a poem about a soldier whose putty was torn by a bullet, limping along the road and saying something in a voice forlorn. That part of it was awful sad, Bill until he started to sing the chorus. It goes like this to the music of "Here we are, here we are, here we are again."

"Hit me there, hit me there, hit me there again,
That little scratch ain't good enough for me.
The Allemand that shot me,
The son of a gun that got me,
Was far too easy, say, send another one,
To hit me there, hit me there, hit me there again,
I'll never get home with a bit of a wound like that,
A Blighty there would suit me,
Will somebody kindly shoot me,
Frits, Frits, hit me there again."

Well, Bill, he had all the bunch singing like they would burst. I was trying to get in close and find out who he was and sing all at the same time. Then he stood up and played with his left hand, and kept the bunch together beating time with his right. Then I see who it was. I guess you know the only fellow who could play like that, eh, Bill?

HIM! GITZ RICE!

Well, it was him. Gitz Rice. Gee I was glad to see him. So as soon as he stopped I yelled, "Hello, Gitz," and he turned and yelled, "Hello, old scout," and everybody opened up to let me go by. I reminded him who I was, and told him about seeing him often at Valois, and after it was all over I walked back with him to the links.

He's getting his commission. I guess he has got it by now, and he is going back to France to take charge of all the entertainments on the Canadian part of the line. He's just the fellow for the job, too, Bill, because he knows how to make everybody feel right at home, and start the bunch off singing. And I guess the boys would rather listen to him play than hear lots of these London people with a big name, but without any pep.

He told me all about the songs he's written, and some of them are certainly great, Bill. He is getting them published and everybody in Montreal who has got anything from a jew's harp to a gramaphone ought to buy them. Most of them were written when the Battery was under fire.

He wanted to know, too, if I ever heard of a guy called Scanlon, who used to be a newspaper reporter or something in Montreal. He used to help him a lot in the entertainments, and about a month ago he won his commission and a military cross, or something like that on the field. I didn't know him, did you Bill?

But I wish you could have heard him play, Bill. He's a wonder. Why he made us forget where we were and there was a war on and we had to get up at Revelly. And I guess anyone who can do that isn't worth a whole lot when you get out to the front, eh Bill? He's the only fellow I met since I joined who hasn't a grouse in his system somewhere.

I wish I could remember all his songs, Bill. They was all fine. Maybe you know that one "They didn't believe me." He had a parody on that that ended:

A GOOD SONG.

"And when I told them,
And I'm certainly going to tell them,
That I am going to win a big V.C.,
They'll never believe me,
They'll never believe me,
They'll say, "Not while you're in the A.S.C."

There was a lot of Army Service Corps follows there, too, but they did not mind. You know the first V.C. in the war was won by a guy in the A.S.C.

We had good time, Bill, and I wish Gitz was going to be here for a long time.

But maybe I'll see him on the other side, because it looks as though we would be going across soon. They can't send me too soon. You can't get leave here now, and things are getting more war like every day.

Lots of the fellows seem to think the war is going to be over soon just because there's a lot about peace in the papers. But none of us wants peace unless the Kaiser and all that crowd is smashed proper and the Allies can get whatever they want. I haven't got much use for the newspapers anyhow, not since they spelled my name wrong once about five years ago in the line up of the old Northern Stars team. They probably get most everything wrong, eh, Bill?

We'd all be crazy glad if peace was declared to-morrow and we could all get back home and start in again on the old jobs, but not if in a few years we'd have to come back and start all over again. All the fellows here say it's a dirty job, but it's got to be done right, and some of them think it's going to take a long time yet.

So don't get out the flags, Bill, or begin buying throat lozenges to be able to cheer properly; just keep on turning out the shells as fast as you can, and remember if you was over here you'd probably be wishing you was a cripple instead of cursing because you are as you seem to be now.

Well, Bill, I've got a date for tonight, because those people, you know, who are back, so I must close. Don't forget to write to your friend.

BERT.

New Senator Is Bit Of A Genius

GENEROUS GIVER TO EVERY WORTHY PHILANTHROPIC MOVEMENT, OWNS FINE PAINTINGS.

"I regard Frederic Nicholls as nothing short of a finincial organizing and industrial genius."

In such words one who knows him well gave his opinion of the new Senator and his capacity of The Star Weekly:

It was in 1874, when he was eighteen years old, that Nicholls came to Canada, having been born in England and educated at Stuttgart in Germany. He is entirely a self-made man, for he was as poor as a church mouse when he first set out to make his fortune. He started in to achieve this feat as a reporter, and later, for seven years occupied the post of secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. He was one of the early pioneers and promoters of the idea of manufacturing everything possible in Canada, and took a prominent part in the establishment of the "National Policy." He founded, and for some time edited the Canadian Manufacturer, formerly the organ of the manufacturing interests of the country.

Senator Nicholls was one of the few men to realize early that electricity was the coming power of the future. In fact, he may not unfitly be called the pioneer of electric development in this Province. In this domain others have, to a large extent, reaped where he sowed, but it is due to the Senator to recognise that it was he who early saw the possibilities latent in electricity. He organised the first company in Canada the Toronto Incandescent Electric Light Co., which adopted the underground system of electric distribution.

To all applications of electricity he devoted his attention, and he was able to attract the interest of capitalists to his undertakings. To-day he is president and general manager of the Canadian General Electric Co., and of the Canada Foundry Co., Ltd. He is also either president, vice-president or director of close on thirty other concerns, some of them vastly important ones. He has the reputation of being the largest iron-master in Canada, and probably one of the largest in the world.

A GENEROUS GIVER.

The Senator is a generous supporter of almost every worthy philanthropic movement in Toronto. Since the war he has thrown his whole heart into patriotic work of all kinds particularly Red Cross work. Off his own bat he was successful in raising a very large sum for the British Sailors' Relief Fund. But generous as he is known to be, the public does not know of all his benefactions. Many of them are known only to the recipients.

He has for long been much interested in the education of boys in secondary schools. He was one of the earliest supporters of Ridley College, St. Catharines, to which he sent all his four sons, of whom two, Capt. Walter and Lieut Fred, are overseas with the C.E.F. To Ridley College, in 1902, he presented a new Convocation Hall and a magnificent skating and hockey rink, which will form a lasting monument to him. In 1904 he gave $25,000 to the funds of Trinity University, Toronto.

Senator Nicholls is a man of culture and taste. He appreciates good literature and is discriminating in his reading. He is the possessor of numerous pictures of great value, one of the most beautiful being one of the Countess of Derby. For some time he had an enormously big country place on Lake Simcoe, known as 'Parklands' and he still has an interest in it. At that time, too, he was the owner of one of the finest steam yachts that have ever been seen in Canadian waters.

A GOOD STORY.

Like many other men whose inches are fewer than their brains, Senator Nicholls has quite a sufficient "guid conceit" of himself. It is possibly to that circumstance that the following yarn, which may or may not be apocryphal, owes its origin. One night, it is said, the Senator, at that time the proud occupant of the office of vice-commodore of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, was landing at the wharf after crossing from the Club. Down at the wharf, too, were omnibuses from the various hotels drawn up.

"King Edward! King Edward!" exclaimed the driver of the K.E.H. bus, meaning to indicate his vehicle and the fact that he was plying for hire.

However, the exclamation was purposely misunderstood. It was taken as the acclaim of the populace at beholding their sovereign.

"No not King Edward—Mr. Nicholls," came from the Senator.

That is how the story runs. But it may be but a story.

STUDYING THE STARS WITH MIRRORS

(1) Dominion Observatory at Victoria, B.C.
(2) Reflecting Telescope.
(3) Observatory open.
(4) Official opening of Observatory.

IT is with the reflecting telescope that many of the most brilliant discoveries about stars are made. Its construction, however, is not so generally understood as that of the refracting telescope, the form of instrument which is so often seen in the parks or on the streets of our cities and through which the passerby can get a peep at the moon for the trifling sum of five or ten cents.

The lens at the upper end of a refracting telescope is called the objective glass. It collects the rays of light and brings them together at a focus to form an image, which is viewed with a magnifying eyepiece. The largest refracting telescope is the well-known Yerkes instrument. It has an object glass forty inches in diameter.

But the biggest reflecting telescope in the world belongs to Canada. This has been erected at Victoria, B.C., which is only a short journey from Vancouver by C. P. R. steamers. In a reflecting telescope the light is collected by reflection from the surface of a concave mirror. If this surface is ground to a parabolic shape, the rays will all come to gether at a single point to form an image. Just as with the refracting telescope; but this point will be situated on the same side of the mirror as the object, and hence the observer who tries to look at a star will find his head in his own line of vision. In order to overcome this difficulty a second reflection is made to take place so as to deflect the beam of light and form the image at one side of the tube, where it may easily be examined with an eyepiece. This second reflection is accomplished by means of a plane mirror or "flat" inserted in the upper end of the tube and set at an angle of 45°. This flat will necessarily cut off some of the light falling upon the principal mirror, but since it is not large and since its supports are made as slender as possible, there is no serious loss.

The building of the seventy-two inch Canadian instrument may be taken as an illustration of some of the mechanical difficulties to be surmounted. One shows the mounting. The ends of the polar axis are supported on steel castings which are bolted to the heads of concrete piers. The permanent pier erected at Victoria is shown also. The polar axis must be set parallel to the axis of rotation of the earth. In the latitude of Victoria it makes an angle of more than 45° with the horizon. To the uprights of the framework of the walls are attached horizontal ribs which are for the purpose of supporting the steel metal walls. The sheathing is attached to both sets, forming thus a double wall, with an intermediate air space of at least six inches. This structure must be made extremely stout in order to bear the enormous weight of the dome. One of the pictures shows the building complete. This is furnished with a system of shutters which with the double wall permit the interior of the building to maintain an even and moderate temperature. Electric motors are used in moving the telescope and dome. These are controlled by push buttons. An important part of the gearing is the clockwork, which carries the telescope with the rotation of the heavens, so that a star can be kept in the field of view as long as it is desired. This must be made so that the telescope moves with absolute steadiness.

The optical parts of the instrument are being made by Brashear at Allegheny. The large mirror is twelve inches thick at the edges and will weigh over four thousand pounds.

The reflecting telescope is used for direct photography, both for recording very faint objects and for getting fine details of brighter objects, such as nebulae. We can also get photographic images of very faint stars, the twentieth magnitude having already been captured. It is also extremely valuable for spectroscopic work. A long exposure is required even with the great forty-inch Yerkes refractor to obtain the spectrogram of a star of the fourth magnitude.

DYNAMITER PREFERS FACTORY TO DUNGEON

McNamara Was No Good in Prison Laundry and Didn't Like Jute Mill.

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., Jan. 30. — After spending 24 days in the dungeon of the state prison here, J. B. McNamara agreed to obey orders and Saturday began work in the jute mill. McNamara who is serving a life term for his confessed part in the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times' building in 1910 has been working in the prison laundry, but his work was quite unsatisfactory and he was ordered to the jute mill. On his refusal to go there he was placed in the dunegon. Every day he was taken out and asked if he were ready to obey orders and until Saturday he regularly refused.

Dangerous Criminal Or a Colossal Liar

Police Are Divided In Their Opinion of Prisoner Held at Windsor.

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 30.— In the person of Clarence E. Pangburn, held in jail here pending his transportation to Kingston penitentiary to begin serving a two-year sentence for securing fraudulent attestation papers, and for perjury the authorities have been decided they have captured an exceedingly dangerous criminal. He is either that they contend, or the most colossal liar living.

Since Pangburn was handed over to the police at Windsor by the United States authorities, he has been reeling off "confessions" which is true stamp him as an all-round "bad man." From the wide range of his yarns the police are divided in their opinions as to whether he is a crook a lunatic or just plain liar, seeking to gain more notoriety.

Pangburn claims to have been associated with many of the barn burnings in Lambton county, but asserts that his purpose was to gain information in order to frustrate the plots and thereby aid the Empire to which he declared he was strictly loyal.

His arrest in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, which resulted in his deportation to Canada was on a charge of impersonating an American civil service officer.

While posing as an officer of the American navy Pangburn was wined and dined by American officers at the Ponchartrian Hotel in Detroit, according to his story.

Leg She Showed To Jury Wins $3,500

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 30.—Having seen what a floating log did to one of the young woman's legs while she was bathing in the surf at Deal, the jurors in the United States court here awarded to Miss Beatrice Forsythe, an actress, $3500 in her action against the borough.

Miss Forsythe insisted that the log hit her right leg, fracturing it, and resulting in it being bowed and an inch shorter than the left leg.

The actress had raised her skirts to her knees in the court room and the verdict followed a grave viewing of the injured member.

Artist's "Dual Model" Would Not Give Him Up, Wife Says

NEW YORK, January 29. — "The Baroness is my model, it is true. But she is my dual model. I use her in my art and in my life. She is my intellectual and spiritual companion, and our love and sweetness are something that no one from the outer world should destroy. Renee will give me up. There is nothing else to do."

And just because Douglass Gilbert Dixon, futurist artist, is said to have so spoken about the Boroness Else von Freytag Loringhoven Mrs. Renee Lois Dixon pressed an undefended divorce action. Justice Giegerich in the Supreme Court, reserved decision.

Mrs. Dixon testified the Baroness had been parted from her own husband by the war and came to this country to pose for artists. When she began to pose for Mr. Dixon, the wife said, she made such an impression he forgot that he was married. Milton Ives Levy, the attorney for the wife, said:

"I had a talk with this beautiful adventuress, the Baroness, and she told me that if she were to be robbed of her 'post lover,' as she called Mr. Dixon, she would die as good Germans before her had died. She was adamant on this point, so I advised Mrs. Dixon to sue for divorce." He quoted Mr. Dixon as telling him that the Baroness was his "dual model."

"Mr. Dixon raved like a madman," said he. "He admitted all the wrong doing, but said that was as nothing compared to the great loss he would suffer if the Baroness were taken from him."

Mrs. Dixon said that she herself went to see the Baroness at the Lincoln apartments, and the Baroness said:

"Why, my dear young woman, you are not capable of loving this soulful husband of yours. You are too material. He is my post lover, and were I to give him up I would die. It is all very well for you. You can live. But I would die to-night if I were to know that he would leave me. Please do not be cruel."

Mrs. Dixon said she agreed with her lawyer then and decided that the simplest way to end her romance was by way of the divorce court, and so she began the present action. Not long after, she said, she received a letter from her husband, which said:

"Let us be—to live on and achieve. You are a nice little woman, Renee, but you are practical and material, while the Baroness, bless her soul, has seen all that there is in this life, and is a living book of philosophy. Goodby, Renee, goodby."

Mrs. Dixon, her attorney, Mr. Levy, and an elevator boy, together with Maurice Du Champ, were the only witnesses. The elevator boy said he had once taken rolls and coffee to Mr. Dixon and the Baroness. Mr. Du Champ said that he had found the Baroness in a kimono in Mr. Dixon's studio when he had called there in May, 1916.

Mr. Dixon is said to be in India at present. The adress of the Baroness was not disclosed.

BALD HEADED LION DIES DESPITE TONIC

NEW YORK, Jan. 30. — Jack O'Brien, the head keeper of the animal enclosure at Prospect Park, and his attendants, are mourning the loss of an unnamed lion cub which contracted pneumonia on the way to Brooklyn from the Hippodrome, and died last Monday.

The cub was one of twins born at sea, and presented to Mrs. Charles B. Dillingham by the owner of the mother. Mrs. Dillingham housed the cubs as pets until they became so big that draperies and stuffed chairs began to fall before their playful caprices. The survivor, known as Dewey, is a very fine specimen of a lion and promises great development.

"In the few days that we knew the cub we grew to like her immensely," said Mr. O'Brien yesterday. "But at the outset we saw that she had not a chance to live, for she was dying when she came to us. If proper care had been taken I believe that she would have been saved. Her mate, Dewey, is one of the best cubs that I have ever seen and I expect that he will develop into a first rate lion.

A few days before the cub died Mr. O'Brien tried an experiment of rubbing a hair growing preparation on her scalp. Her head was quite bald at birth, and had she lived the head keeper believes he could have brought forth a fine shock of hair.

"SILENT SENTINELS" DEFY ICY BLASTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.— With cold feet and red noses due to a sharp wind from the north a delegation of 24 women from New York City, representing the Congresional Union for Women Suffrage, picketed the White House as part of the organization's appeal to President Wilson for a votes for women amendment to the constitution. This was "New York's Day" on a programme arranged so that women from all the larger cities may do their part in serving as "silent sentinels."

Because of the cold the women, who were headed by Miss Alice Carpenter, took turns serving as sentinels throughout the day, until half-past four o'clock, when they all appeared together in a line extending all along the sidewalk in front of the White House. Up to that time only four of the women were on duty at once. The full number was out for an hour.

President Wilson passed through the line once in an automobile, but went so fast that some of the suffragists did not recognise him. Several of the Cabinet members on their way to the Cabinet meeting bowed and smiled to the pickets.

"This is fine," said Miss Florence Harmon, one of the sentinels, as she stood on a hot brick holding a banner that read, "Mr. Wilson, what do you intend to do about woman suffrage?"

Principal Food in Hamburg Is Vegetable Soup

All Except the Wealthy Feel the Pinch of Hunger.

LONDON, Jan. 30. — The Times publishes the following special despatch from Milan:

"An Italian who has lived in Hamburg fifteen years has just arrived here from that city, which he left a week ago. He states that the food crisis has become an obsession, and that all, except persons of the wealthy classes are feeling the pinch of hunger. So far as Hamburg is concerned, he says, the British block ade already has won the war. The principal food now is vegetable soup. Marmalade and jams helped until recently, when the Government ordered the sequestration of all fruits, both fresh and preserved, for the army.

Many food riots have taken place in Hamburg. One especially serious occurred on Christmas Day when shops offering fowl and game—geese were priced at £5 ($25) each—were rifled and the police were unable to suppress the outbreaks.

"The Italian says that men of every sort and condition are now being accepted for the army. The last straw was the disillusionment over the peace proposals. Hamburg, which had been deflagged and hopeful, sank into grim melancholy.

"I, who watched the change throughout the thirty months of the war," he said, "maintain that there is no comparison beween the resistance to-day and that three months ago. Hunger is doing it."

PRESIDENT TO DIET— PERHAPS—FOR A DAY

TWENTY-FIVE CENT MENUS ARE SENT TO MRS. WILSON SUCH AS POLICE SQUAD GETS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. — When Mrs. Eula Clary, one of the managers of the police "diet squad" in this city called on President Wilson recently, he was quoted as saying that he would try the twenty-five cents a day diet for one day if Mrs. Wilson, being the head of such things in the White House, consented to serve it. It was said that Mrs. Wilson was willing, and therefore Mrs. Clary sent to her the following menus for one day at the White House:

Breakfast—Oatmeal and milk, toast and butter, coffee; cost, seven cents.

Luncheon—Salmon croquettes with peas, one date, bread and butter, tea, cost, eight cents.

Dinner—Baked split peas, stuffed green peppers, whole wheat bread and butter, sliced oranges and bananas, tea; cost, ten cents.

Reading the menu many a patriotic boy will abandon his ambition to become the President of the United States, although Mr. Wilson had expressed his willingness to try it for only one day. The fact is, Mr. Wilson may have established a deplorable precedent for future Presidents.

Aside from having free board for nearly three weeks, with nothing to do, the twelve probationary policemen on the "diet squad" have gained a total of nineteen and a quarter pounds since adopting the diet at 25 cents a day, which is intended to prolong life and appease the uneasiness of the workingman over the increased cost of living.

Canadian Cereal Mills Purchased By Quaker Oats Company

Peterboro' Company Will Establish a Branch in London

LONDON, Jan. 30.—It is stated on the best authority that the Quaker Oats Co., Peterborough, had purchased the Canadian Cereal Mills on Talbot street, and would make it one of the branch factories at once, with the probability that in the future it would be made the centre of the company's trade.

The Quaker Oats Company recently lost its big mill at Peterborough by fire, several people being burned to death.

As it would take some months to reestablish itself there, the directors looked about for premises that could be utilized in a very short time. The plant of the Canadian Cereals Company here could be purchased at a reasonable price, and it is understood that they went at once, and secured terms. No information as to the closing of the deal could be obtained from the local concern, but it is known definitely that the machinery is being changed, and that it will be used for other purposes than at present in a very short time.

The Cereals plant is most favourably located. It is on the main line of the Grand Trunk, with sidings, etc., and most admirably situated for business of this character. Manager J. A. Barnard stated to the Advertiser that he had no definite information that the deal had been closed, that any information of this nature must come from the headquarters of the firm at Toronto.

However, it is known definitely that the Quaker Oats Company had taken possession of it, and would start at once in manufacturing its product in London.

Damages For News "Leak"

Western Union Appeals From Verdict Given to Wisconsin Editor

Wisconsin editors are much interested in the final outcome of a damage suit in their State, which is likely to be cited elsewhere as a precedent.

Walter T. Marlatt, editor of the Kenoska (Wis.) News, recently sued the Western Union Telegraph Company for alleged breach of confidence relative to news telegrams.

Circuit Judge E. B. Belden, of Racine, awarded Mr. Marlatt $3,000 punitory damages and $350 compensatory damages. The telegraph company has announced it will appeal to the Supreme Court.

Another Attempt To Kill Alfonso

Obstacle Placed on Railway Track Discovered in Good Time.

MADRID, via Paris, Jan. 30.—An attempt was made to wreck a train on which King Alfonso was a passenger. The royal train was preceeded by a freight train the engineer of which saw an obstacle on the track and removed it. Neither the royal train nor the freight suffered any damage.

The spot selected for the derailment was a particularly favourable one. The police have arrested two men, on one of whom was found code letters from Barcelona.

This is the second attempt on the life of the Spanish monarch reported within the past month. Both attempts were of the same nature. In the previous case the train in which King Alfonso was riding passed over ties that had been placed across the rails, and cut them to pieces without leaving the track.

Music & Drama

ALADDIN.

"Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp," the English pantomime, presented by F. Stuart White's company at the Grand Opera House, last night, delighted the largest audience of the season with its tuneful music, bright humour and pretty girls. Every moment proved enjoyable, and one of the best things in the programme was the announcement that "Aladdin" is coming back to the Grand for a return engagement. Many in the audience who had enjoyed the visit of the Versatiles, the clever company of English entertainers who visited the Grand shortly before the outbreak of the war, were delighted to recognise Zara Clinto, Billy Oswald, Harry Hoyland and a number of other favourite versatiles in last night's cast. Miss Clinto was altogether delightful as "Aladdin," her pleasing personality and splendid voice admirably fitting her for the part of "principal boy." Billy Oswald, as "General Sam Fuse," was responsible for gales of laughter on his every appearance and he was given every assistance by a corps of fun-makers, including Harry Hoyland as the Widow Twankie, Marc Stone as the Grand Vizier, and J. V. Barrett-Lennard as the Mad Magician. A wonderful troupe of Japanese acrobats was a big feature. The musical numbers were all enjoyable; some of the hits were "The Silver from the Silvery Moon," "Little Miss Lancashire," "The Light that Leads Me Home," and "When Love Creeps in Your Heart," and while the comedy successes were "Jennie, My Own True Love," "What a Life," and "Shirts." Miss Clinto's singing of "Somewhere in France" was very effective. The whole performance was a delight and the return engagement will be eagerly awaited.

Yankee Captain Bumps Into British Fleet Off U. S. Coast

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Great Britain has stretched a cordon of battleships off the Virginia capes, in the hope of catching any hostile raiders or submarines putting into Norfolk or Newport News, was the information brought here by Captain Charles Beveridge, commander of the American freighter Moormack, arriving from South American ports.

"Last Monday night it was dark as pitch, and we were steaming under a full head steam for New York," he said. "The Moormack was off the Virginia capes about thirty miles S.S.E. of Cape Charles. I was in the wheel-house, when, shortly after ten o'clock struck, the flickity-flickity flash of a Morse light showed dead ahead. I thought at first I must be 'seeing things' as there were no lights of a vessel of other indications that we were near anything that might signal.

NARROWLY MISSED CRUISER

"I ordered the wheelman to put the helm hard over, and by doing so we narrowly missed running into a large British cruiser. She was standing stock still, and the only sign of life aboard, besides her Morse light were great clouds of black smoke that belched from her funnels.

"After narrowly averting a collision we passed on, and I ordered my wireless operator to call her, and try and establish her identity.

SEES LOTS OF THEM.

"Ten minutes later we encountered another fast cruiser, answering the first one with the Morse light. Their messages were in code and without the aid of a key were intelligible. Although my wireless operator called repeatedly, he received no reply.

"A little farther on three more cruisers were seen a short distance away. They, like the other two, were motionless, and flashed repeated signals to one another. No answer could be obtained by wireless from these either."

THINKCAP ORTEGAL IS HUN RAIDER NOW

RIVER PLATE LINER BELIEVED TO HAVE SLIPPED THROUGH THE BRITISH CORDON.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Jan. 30.—It is reported here that the German raider that has been operating off the Brazilian coast is neither the Moewe nor the Vineta, but the Cap Ortegal, a Hamburg South American liner. The Cap Ortegal is said to have evaded the British fleet after leaving Hamburg in disguise. According to this story the converted liner captured two British steamers which had sailed from the river Plate, took them to a port on the west coast of Africa, where they were armed and manned and then started them out to raid the South Atlantic shipping routes.

The Cap Ortegal is a vessel of 7,819 tons. She was built in Hamburg in 1904, and prior to the war, plied regularly between Hamburg and South American ports.

DEATH OF ADDISON J. WELL-KNOWN CAVAN RESIDENT

MILLBROOK, Jan. 30.—The death of John Mckaren took place at Cavanville on Wednesday, January 24th at the age of 85 years.

Deceased was born at Oxford, Quebec. He moved to Peterborough, nearly sixty years ago and five years ago he came to Cavan, where he has since resided. He was a member of the Church of England and a Conservative. He was united in marriage to Elisabeth Widdis, of Cavan township about 53 years ago, who predeceased her husband by seven years. To this union, nine children were born, six sons and three daughters, all of whom survive their parents. The sons are John, George, of the United States, William, Fred and Sidney, of Cavan, Alex. of Saskatchewan, and Thomas of Toronto. The daughters are Mrs. Charles Hard of Cavan, Miss Elisabeth McLaren and Mrs. R. Hard of Sask.

The funeral to St. John's cemetery, Cavan, on Friday, January 26, was largely attended. Rev. Canon Allen conducted the services at the house and grave.

The pallbearers were: Jas. Douglas, E. Keegan, Jas. Keegan, W. Tinney, W. Pritchard, and Joshua Swain.

WOMEN FORCED GOV'T TO HAND OVER COAL

PARIS, Jan. 30.—Three hundred and fifty women employed in a Paris factory which was forced to shut down recently for lack of coal, have forced an interpellation of the Government upon the coal situation in France.

The factory proprietors advised the women employes to confer with M. Herriot, Minister of Ravataillement.

Immediately they formed a procession and marched to the Ministry where they demanded coal for the factory in order that they might continue their work.

After the demonstration by the women, the proprietor was informed that he would receive at once a month's supply of coal.

MINISTER RETURNS.

Six Days to Elapse Before Mr. Sevigny Enters House.

OTTAWA, Jan. 29.— Hon. Albert Sevigny will arrive in Ottawa to-day and will be given an enthusiastic reception by his friends. There are certain formalities which have to be followed before he can take his seat in the House. Following the official declaration to-morrow a delay of six days is required by the law before the returning officer can make his return of the election to the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery. Mr Sevigny can then take his seat.

TRAGIC EVENTS IN CONNECTION WITH THE DEATH OF COL. GORRELL

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Further inquiry concerning the manner in which Colonel Charles W. Gorrell of Ottawa, formerly commandant of the Canadian Red Cross Hospital at Taplow met death through poison reveals a series of events tragic in every particular. A druggist had just previously warned his landlady that Dr. Gorrell had purchased an unusually large quantity of prussic acid. He was found in front of a grate fire with his clothes burned.

THE "GRAVE IRREGULARITIES

It is now common knowledge that grave irregularities were discovered at Taplow some time back and Col. Gorrell was suspended pending the inquiry. This led to the court-martial of the hospital Sergeant-Major, who received a term of penal servitude.

Another inquiry was recently conducted at the request of the Canadian Red Cross with the result that having been considered by the Canadian Military authorities, they decided to put the conclusions before the Red Cross for them, as a civil body, to take whatever action they might choose for themselves.

We are authoritatively informed that the military authorities had no intention of bringing their code of law to bear upon Colonel Gorrell.

DAILY VISITED HEADQUARTERS

Meanwhile, he had resumed civilian clothes living in London and visiting Canadian headquarters every few days to learn, if possible, what the future held for him. He spent four months under this suspense and the strain upon his was plain to those who chanced to see him. The formerly big hearty man became bent and thin.

The most pitiful thing was the manner in which he endeavored to avoid all his old acquaintances passing along narrow byways in his melancholy journeys, constantly nervous at the possibility of confronting those who had known him as head of one of the largest Canadian hospitals.

The events were dramatic. Dr. Gorrell was living on Portedown Road, Maida Vale, at the house of Mrs. McBonagh of Regina, who had known him well in Canada and who keeps a private convalescent home.

He left there in the morning and went to Victoria street to see Sir George Perley and he afterwards called at the Red Cross offices in Cockspur street. He returned home at lunch time.

"I have a most awful headache," he remarked to his hostess, but declined to order anything special.

WARNING BY DRUGGIST.

A short time later he was heard to go out, and it was remarked that he banged the door behind him, quite an unusual thing for him. Meanwhile, the lady of the house received a visit from a neighboring druggist who told her his assistant had served Colonel Gorrell with an unusually large quantity of prussic acid a few days previously. He would not have been supplied with so much if it had not been known that he was a doctor. Nevertheless the druggist was uneasy at the amount served by his assistant.

Some time later Mrs. McBonagh went to Colonel Gorrell's rooms and found his dead body in the arm-chair by the fire. The feet were in the grate and the greater part of his clothing had been burned away.

A curious thing was that no bottle or glass was found near the body, and it is supposed, therefore, that he took the poison outside of the house, then rushed in and collapsed on reaching the room where he fell towards the fire.

A sealed letter addressed to the Judge Advocate General was found on the table, which remains for the time being with the coroner.

Col. Gorrell assumed command of Taplow Hospital when it was first opened in the early months of the war. The hospital was then merely a compromise, a covered tennis court on the Astor estate. Since then additions have been made, until it has become one of the largest hospitals in England.

Prussic or hydrocyanic acid is one of the deadliest of poisons. The only acid sold is two per cent. strength. It is intensely poisonous, even if only absorbed through the skin or if its vapor is inhaled, "while" according to the encyclopedia, "a single drop of the anhydrous acid, if swallowed, causes instantaneous death by paralysis of the heart, smaller doses causing paralysis of respiration, and of the spinal cord and deep insensibility."

Purchase of Two Hundred Million Acres in Western Canada is Suggested

British Government Would Supply Purchase Money on Condition That Canada Spends the Whole Capital in Immediate Development of the Lands Empire Resources Committee Suggest the Scheme Which is Heartily Approved by Lord Milner.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Is Canada willing to see 200 million acres of Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and British Columbia lands developed forthwith by British state money to provide means of paying off the Empire's war debt? This stupendous proposition is to-day put before the public by the newly formed Empire Resources Committee of which Earl Grey, Lord Desborough, Lord Plymouth, Lord Selborne, Rudyard Kipling, Horace Plunkett, Sir Starr Jameson, Colonel Grant Morton Frewen are members.

Lord Milner gives the scheme his blessing and but for his membership of the War Cabinet would be the president of the committee. A memorandum of the committee suggests that an Imperial Development Board be formed to arrange with the Dominion of Canada for the purchase of two million acres of arable land in Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and British Columbia for say forty millions sterling paid by England at the rate of ten millions yearly, on condition that the Dominion Government spends the whole of the capital in the immediate development of the lands.

It is believed the value of these lands in such an Empire farm would speedily reach twenty pounds per acre, or altogether the Empire would receive in cash four thousand millions sterling, which is the value of its debt for the war. The committee realise the possibilities of this and similar plans affecting the other Dominions which they say are sending. Meanwhile the committee is proceeding with suggestions affecting the resources of the Crown colonies and protectorates and of India.

WILL THERE BE SOME FIREWORKS?

Sir Sam Hughes will Speak in the House To-day

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 23.—Somewhat limited gallery space in the present temporary parliament building promises to be overtaxed this afternoon judging by the number of tickets of admission which have been issued to people anxious to hear Sir Sam Hughes speak. There is much speculation as to what the ex-Minister will say. Some are inclined to think that he will start some "fireworks."

Heavy G. T. R. Engines On Local Division

The new heavy 1204 compound engines began their regular traffic over the local division of the G.T.R. on Sunday. The line from Midland to Belleville has been completely relaid with heavy rails and the result of the improvement is found in the extra work the larger engines are doing. An engine of the 1204 type easily accepts the work performed by a double-header of the lighter variety that has had this division as a sort of a happy and noisy preserve. The big engines pick up these loads easily and find little difficulty in negotiating the grades. One of them went through the city this afternoon.

VALENTINE TEA WILL BE HELD

They have use of the room over Lysch's Drug Store for this purpose and it is hoped that every member of the Club will keep aside Monday night every week so that much may be accomplished.

MISS M. FERGUSON GETS $100 FROM A. LOW FOR TRESPASS ON PROPERTY

In the Ferguson vs. Low case, judgment was given in favour of the plaintiff by Judge Huycke, this morning. Miss Margaret Ferguson owns a lot on Simcoe street, adjoining Mr. Abraham Low's property. It was shown that the dividing fence enclosed a small triangular portion of the property designated in Mr. Low's deed. It was from 2 1-2 to 3 feet wide and extended back to a point where the exact dividing line existed. Miss Ferguson had owned the lot for thirty years. Mr. Low built a garage which encroached on this piece of land and the plaintiff claimed trespass damages. Judge Huycke decided that the plaintiff owned the strip of land by adverse possession for the past ten years. He awarded Miss Ferguson $30, being the cost to remove the concrete foundation of the garage; $20 for lilac and cherry trees the defendant had cut down, and $50 for trespass; a total of $100 damages. His Honour confirmed Miss Ferguson's possession of the strip of land, and suggested that if she should sell it to Mr. Low that he pay $175 for it.

Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. J. E. L. Goodwill for the defendant.

A Message TO Thin, Weak, Scrawny Folks

An Easy Way to Gain 10 to 20 Pounds Of Solid, Healthy Permanent Flesh.

Thin, nervous, undeveloped men and women everywhere are heard to say, "I can't understand why I do not get fat. I eat plenty of good nourishing food." The reason is just this: You cannot get fat, no matter how much you eat, unless your digestive organs assimilate the fat making elements of your food instead of passing them out through the body as waste.

What is needed is a means of gently urging the assimilative functions of the stomach and intestines to absorb the oils and fats and hand them over to the blood, where they may reach the starved, shrunken, run-down tissues and build them up. The thin persons body is like a dry sponge—eager and hungry for the fatty materials of which it is being deprived by the failure of the alimentary canal to take them from the food. A splendid way of working to overcome this sinful waste of flesh building elements and to stop the leakage of fats is to try Sargol, the famous flesh building agent that has been so widely sold in America in recent years. Take a little Sargol tablet with every meal and see if your cheeks don't quickly fill out and rolls of firm, healthy flesh form over your body, covering each bony angle and projecting point. All good druggists have Sargol or can get it from their wholesaler, and will refund your money if you are not satisfied with the gain in weight it produces as stated on the guarantee in each large package. It is inexpensive, easy to take and highly efficient.

If you find a druggist who is unable to supply you with Sargol send $1.00 money order or registered letter to the Nationa Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal and a complete ten days' treatment will be sent you postpaid in plain wrapper.

North County Liberals Manifest Great Enthusiasm

FENELON FALLS, Jan. 29. — The Liberals of North Victoria and Haliburton, who were organized only a year ago under the able Presidency of Dr. H. H. Graham, had a large and enthusiastic gathering at their annual meeting here.

THOMAS MOTT DIED IN MANITOBA

Special to The Examiner.

HAMILTON, Jan. 30.—Thomas Mott, age seventy-five years, father of William Mott, Peterborough, died last night at his home, 86 Baresdale Avenue, Hamilton. He was born and resided his entire life in Hamilton. He leaves a wife and another son, Roy of New Haven, Indiana, and one daughter. Interment will take place Wednesday afternoon in Hamilton.

The Folly of Taking Digestive Pills

A Warning to Dyspeptics.

The habit of taking digestive pills after meals makes chronic dyspeptics of many thousands of men and women because artificial digestants, drugs and medicines have practically no influence upon the excessively acid condition of the stomach contents which is the cause of most forms of indigestion and dyspepsia.

The after dinner pill merely lessens the sensitiveness of the stomach nerves and thus gives a false sense of freedom from pain. If those who are subject to indigestion, gas, flatulence, belching, bloating, heartburn, etc., after eating would get about as ounce of pure bisurated magnesia from their druggist and take a teaspoonful in a little water after meals, there would be no further necessity for drugs or medicines because bisurated magnesia instantly neutralizes stomach acidity, stops food fermentation and thus insures normal, painless digestion by enabling the stomach to do its work without hindrance.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

PETERBORO' JUNIORS GROUP CHAMPIONS

Oshawa Club Have Defaulted and There Will Be No Game To-night---Fast Kingston Frontenacs Will Meet Petes Here in a Second Round Game on Monday Night Next.

There will be no hockey game at Brock street rink to-night. The Oshawa Club has decided to default the series and the Peterborough juniors are therefore group champions, and go into the second round, where they will meet the fast Kingston juniors, champions of Group No. 1. Kingston will play here next Monday night, February 5th, and the return game will be played in Kingston on Friday, February 9th, it is expected.

There will be general disappointment at the calling off of to-night's game. The Peterborough youngsters are disappointed because they wanted a chance to win the group honours on the ice, and the fans will be disappointed because they were looking forward to seeing another red hot battle against Oshawa.

The Oshawa management notified the local club late last night that they would hardly be able to get a team together and would have to drop out, and Manager Bradley confirmed this news this morning. The disqualification of Osborne, and the promotion of Rowden to the intermediate ranks, left the Brailleyites two men short, and although they tried this morning to fill the gaps with two soldier players, they were unable to do so, owing to the fact that the 182nd Battalion is receiving its final innoculation to-day

Although the fans will be disappointed they will have the satisfaction of knowing that there is a treat in store for them next Monday in the visit of the Kingston Frontenacs, who cleaned up No. 1 District without a defeat. This is the first time since 1912 that the Peterborough juniors have reached the second round, and the game with Kingston on Monday should be the feature event of the season with the biggest crowd of the year on hand.

WITH THE CURLERS

Opportunity For Scratch Games.

It was the intention of the rink management this season to provide sufficient spare ice for nightly scratch games. Last night for instance there were only three scheduled games and one scratch, leaving three ices unoccupied. At no time this winter have there been more than five rinks of scheduled games. This means that the new men especially, may take advantage of the opportunity of making up rinks for scratches. If this is kept in mind it will give the new players all the curling they desire if they get around and arrange for it.

Skips For Trophy Games.

The following skips have been selected for the Lindsay, Orillia and Toronto games:

Neill-Shephard Trophy; Orillia Vs. Peterborough.

At Orillia—G. W. Morrow, W. H. Taylor, G. H. Giroux and J. W. McDermid.

At Bobcaygeon — Dr. Wightman T. Brightman T. F. Matthews, and J. E. A. Fitzgerald.

At Peterborough—Sam Ray, John A. Cameron, W. G. Ferguson, R. G. Sturgeon.

At Toronto—J. H. Ferguson, W. G. Ferguson, F. M. Dela Fosse W. H. Denham.

At Peterborough—H. R. H. Kenner, Sam Ray, R. P. Best and G. H. Giroux.

SCHEDULED GAMES ARE DRAWING TO A CLOSE.

Monday next is the concluding date of the inter-rink games, but owing to the many postponements early in the month due to the adverse weather conditions. The games should be wound up by February 5th, but a week or more of grace will doubtless be allowed to complete the games.

In group one R. M. Waddell has the highest standing to-day with four wins, one loss and six games to play. In group two Alex. Kay and Dr. Wightman are tied with five wins each, and Dickson Davidson and R. G. Sturgeon with four each.

HOCKEY GOSSIP

THE "C. P. R. WHITEWASHED"
Time—10.00 to 11.00 p.m.
Place—Brock Street Rink.
Whitewashers—Quaker Oats.

Brock Street Rink was the scene of the most exciting game of hockey of the year last night, when the Quaker Oats whitewashed the C.P.R., in superb style. The C.P.R. arrived with about half a team but managed to collect enough pro's around the rink to make seven men, but this did not at all baffle the Quaker Oats bunch who were full of "pep" from the first sound of the gong. The game started with a combination play by Malane and the lively little rover, Sheehan, the latter scoring the first goal in about one half minute of play. It might be said that Sheehan was the star man, he was always working and his shooting counted most every time. Perry and Malane were also feature players for the Quaker Oats team. The Quaker Oats did all their scoring in the first half and in the second half they decided to give the C.P.R. a chance so allowed them to use eight men. The new man who is not unpopular in hockey circles saved the C.P.R. from being whitewashed the second time, our good naturedness forces us to refrain from exposing the name of this pro.

It was indeed a sad affair and if any man glorified in the defeat of the C.P.R. team it was the Quaker Oats defence man Brooks, who for a number of years captained the C.P.R hockey teams, although he admits that in those days he had a real team behind him which were never known to be whitewashed. Hoping the C.P.R. are not entirely discouraged, we extend our deepest sympathy and wish them more luck with their future opponents. While we ourselves hope to meet and defeat a few more teams, while the ice is in good shape.

The game was refereed in a most satisfactory manner to both teams.

Greeks Endorse Venizelos Gov't

Large Body of Influential Greeks in Boston Seek United States Recognition of Provisional Government

In the city of Boston two thousand, six hundred and fifty-six Greeks, representing a majority of the more prominent Greek business men of the city, have made representations to President Wilson for recognition of the Venizelos government. This goes to show that the sympathies of this particular body of Greeks are with the Allies. Their request was made in the following form:

To the President of the United States, Washington, D. C.:

The undersigned respectfully request the President of the United States that in consideration of the fact that three quarters of he Kingdom of Greece abandoning the antinational and arbitrary Government of Athens, constituted a liberal government for themselves, a Government inspired by the eternal principles, emanating from the American Proclamation of Independence, known as the Provisional Government of Greece in Salonica, in consideration also of the fact that this Provisional Government has decided to recognize none of the official acts and documents issued by the Consular authorities depending from the Government of Athens, a measure, which is of vital interest to Americans, foreigners and subjects of the territories under the Provisional Government of Salonica, the Government of the United States do recognize de jure said Provisional Government of Salonica, and the official representatives of same, as they have been already recognized by the Governments of the Entente Powers.

OFFERED HIRED MAN BOARD AND TOBACCO

Judge Roger of Cobourg, in a recent Division Court case at Port Hope awarded Samuel Gilchrist $20 and costs against Thos. Matthews for whom he had worked as farm hand from June 5th, 1916 to Nov. 5th. The defendants stated that they had not agreed to pay Gilchrist anything for his services except his board and tobacco. Gilchrist denied the agreement. He had received tobacco, a chew at a time, and $1.60. The Port Hope Times comments as follows.

It is no wonder that our country cousins find it difficult to secure help during the season of harvest when they are willing to pay a mere pittance, and this at a time when all farm products are sold at extremely high prices such rural gentry (?) appear to have forgotten that slavery was abolished on this continent many years ago. Think of a farmer in this Canada of ours wishing a man to labour for him during the hottest July and August on record for only board and tobacco!

HAS NO ARMS, BUT IS SUCCESS AT FARMING

Although without arms Perry Dunmire, a farmer residing twenty miles north of Bloomington, Illinois, ranks with the most successful agriculturists of central Illinois. He lost both arms at the shoulder in a railway accident ten years ago.

Although the misfortune would have completely disheartened most men, Dunmire decided to make the best of it. After sizing up various fields of usefulness he decided that farming was the most inviting and he has been a student of crop rotation and soil fertility ever since the accident.

In addition he has been learning not only to do his work without arms but also to do it better than most men who are possessed of these useful limbs. What he cannot do with the combined assitance of his shoulders and teeth, he can accomplish with his feet, with which he is as dexterous as most people are with their hands.

WRITES WITH HIS FOOT.

Here are some of the things that Dunmire has learned to do successfully. Drive a five horse team to a gang plough; plant corn as well as anyone, drive a cultivator; drive an automobile; fire the furnace; open any door of the house; dress himself with the exception of attaching his collar; and write.

About the only things that he cannot do are harnessing the horses and milking the cows. He employs a hired man the year around to do such work. In driving his automobile he uses his shoulders to control the steering wheel.

He has learned to write with his feet, holding the pen between his toes—he has grown so expert that few will believe that his chirography was not produced by a trained hand and fingers.

Dunmire occupies a farm of 120 acres and it ranks as one of the best kept in the country. He pays special attention to the condition of the buildings and the grounds, has a well kept flower and vegetable garden, and his fences are always in good condition. The house is a model of convenience, electricity being utilized in many ways to promote comfort and save labor.

The barn and other outer buildings are carefull designed and marked by modern ideas. All details were carefully planned by the owner and the results have been most successful.

Dunmire is married.

W. J. BURNS FINED $100 FOR MUNITION "LEAK" ACTIVITY

Morgan Employes Acquitted in Case Involving Searc of Seymour and Seymour Office.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Wm. J. Burns, head of the detective agency bearing his name, was convicted in Special Sessions of having 'published' the contents of letters and other private papers taken, without the consent of their owners, from the office of Seymour and Seymour, lawyers, in the Equitable Building.

Mr. Burns had been accused jointly with Martin Egan, publicity director of J. P. Morgan and Co. Justices Freschi, Collins and Garvin decided, however, that there was no evidence to show Mr. Egan had divulged the contents of the correspondence to any one and he was acquitted.

Although Mr. Burns was absolved from any improper motives in doing what he did, a fine of $100 was imposed by Justice Freschi. The fine was paid under protest. De Lancey Nicoll, of counsel for the accused man, announcing that the conviction would be appealed. The extreme penalty is $500 fine or one year imprisonment.

The case was the direct outgrowth of the public protest about a year ago against polict 'tapping' of telephone wires into the homes of officials of individuals. While the controversy was at its height the members of the firm of Seymour and Seymour announced that they had reason to believe their telephone wires had been "tapped."

Investigation of this charge brought the startling revelation that here had been a "leak" from the Morgan offices. It clearly was intimated in briefs submitted at the trial of Messrs. Burns and Egan that Count von Bernstorff was in a position to obtain the information that "leaked" out of the Morgan offices.

Morgan Employees Get Copies.

Mr. Burns was employed by Mr. Egan as soon as the "leak" was discovered. Testimony showed that, with the permission of the landlord of the building in which the Seymour and Seymour offices were, Mr. Burns installed dictaphones and copied letters found on desks in the place. Copies of those letters were taken by Mr. Burns to the Morgan offices, the testimony showed, and turned over to Mr. Egan and Mr. Prindell, also a Morgan firm employee.

The conviction of Mr. Burns was based upon the single act of having divulged the contents of the letters to the J. P. Morgan and Co. employees. The charge against Mr. Egan was based upon the contention that he had divulged the information which Mr. Burns gave to him either to Mr. Prindell or other persons connected with the banking house. The testimony produced at the trial indicated that Mr. Prindell was in the room at the time Mr. Egan received the copies of the letters from Mr. Burns, and that Mr. Egan had not told any one what was in the letters.

"This is the first case of this kind under this statute," said Justice Freschi in imposing the fine on Mr. Burns. "We feel that your activity in this matter was actuated by good motives, the motives which your counsel have so ably set out. The court by its verdict indicates that you were doing what you believed it was your right to do."

Find Motives Were Good.

"We believe that you did not disseminate this information and make it known to the whole world, and that you acted cautiously and without intent to give these matters publicity, but rather, on the contrary, to keep them secret. It may be taken into account, however, that we feel that no detective—no private detective—has any right to enter a place of business in order to get information for purposes of his own. If your conduct was malicious we would not hesitate to vote a prison sentence. We are satisfied that you did this from the very best of motives."

Justice Freschi, after the fine had been imposed, stated he wanted it clearly understood that the leniency shown by the court was not to be accepted as a precedent in future cases. He and the other justices also made clear from the Bench's their belief in the fact that "a man's home is his castle," and that a man's office, particularly the office of a lawyer, must be free from invasions by detectives.

Out of court, John Clifton, a Washington lawyer, whose name frequently was mentioned by the defendants' counsel as a friend of Count von Bernstorff and as having been in communication with Samuel Paul, the employee of the Morgan firm, who, it is asserted, divulged the secrets of the firm, issued a statement denying any improper connections with Paul or with representatives of the German Government.

MORE SALARY BOOSTS BY CARLETON COUNCIL

MAGISTRATE AND CAR TAKER OF COURT HOUSE NOT OVERLOOKED.

County Police Magistrate Smith and Caretaker Wilson, of the Court House, had their salaries increased $200 each by a supplementary report of the finance report of the Carleton County Council at the Court House on Saturday.

The County Police Magistrate formerly received $600 per year and the caretaker of the Court House $1,000. According to the new system of payment, the Magistrate will receive $800 annually and the caretaker $1,200.

These figures bring the total expended in county officials' salaries to thirteen hundred dollars over last year's figures.

DOCTORS ADVISE IRON FOR THE BLOOD

Anaemia, pale faces, nervousness, stomach troubles, watery blood, etc., are sure signs of thin blood. Dr. Malmprise says he can take any of these cases and cure any one of them in ten days by giving Iron for the blood, and Phosphorus for the nerves, "called Bonised Phosphorus with Iron." I have found that 90 per cent. of all stomach, liver, kidney, bowel, nerve, etc., troubles are traced right back to the blood. Just as soon as Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is given it is almost immediately absorbed by the system the blood taking the iron while the nerves are soothed by the phosphorus, making you eat better, feel better, look better, digest better, and finally you will be made 100 per cent. stronger. Do not be taking all sorts of patent medicines and laxatives which only ruin your system; go to the root of the trouble and start taking Iron and strengthen your blood, restore your nerves, and your digestion and will recharge your whole system with new life. Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. C. Wyder dispenses it for Peterboro.

Shams Take Place Of Food and Clothes Among the Huns

Substitutes For Food Are Common in Germany—Glycerine From Fruit Stores—Cotton is a Scarce Commodity and is Affecting Manufacture of Propulsive Ammunition.

DISHONEST DEALERS PUNISHED

(D. Thomas Curtin, in the London Times.)

The only food substitute which meets the casual eye of the American visitor to England in war time is margarine for butter. It is more than probable that as time passes and shipping gets less you will need certain other substitutes, and I propose therefore to write on what I saw in Germany of these important commodities.

Since the war food exhibitions in various cities, but more especially in Berlin, have had as one of their most prominent feature booths where you could sample substitutes for coffee, yeast, eggs, butter, olive oil, and the like. Even before the war substitutes like Kathreiner's malt coffee were household words, whilst our roasting of acorns for admixture with coffee was not only a usual practice on the part of some families in the lower middle class, but was even so generally recognized a custom among the humbler folk that the children of poor families were given special printed permissions by the police to gather acorns for the purpose on the sacred grass of the public parks.

To deal with meat which in other countries would be regarded as unfit for human consumption there have long been special appliances in regular use in Germany in peace time. The so-called Freibank was a State or municipal butcher's shop attached to the extensive municipal abattoirs in Berlin, Munich, Cologne, and elsewhere. Here tainted meat, or meat from animals locally affected by disease, is specially treated by a steam process and other methods, so as to free it from all danger to health. Meat so treated does not, of course, have the nutritive value of ordinary fresh meat, but the Germans acted on the principle that anything was better than nothing. Such meat was described as bedingt Taughich, (that is, fit for consumption under reserve). It was sold before the war at very low rates to the poorer population, who in times of scarcity came great distances and kept long vigils outside the Freibank, to be near the head of the queue when the sale began. Thus we see that many Germans long ago acquired the habit of standing in line for food, which is such a characteristic of German city life to-day.

HORSEFLESH.

Horseflesh was consumed before the war in Germany, as in Belgium. Its sale was carefully controlled by the police, and severe punishment fell upon anyone who tried to disguise its character. An ordinary butcher might not sell horse meat at all. He had to be specially licensed, and to maintain a special establishment or a special branch of it for the purpose. Thus, when wider circles of the population were driven to resort to substitutes, there was already in existence a State organized system prepared to control the sale of horseflesh in most of the large cities. It is not an unpleasant food.

Since the war began sausage has served as a German stand-by from the time that beef and pork became difficult to obtain in Germany. In the late spring, however, the increased demand for sausage made that also more difficult to procure, and we often got a substitute full of bread crumbs, which, when watered, made the food value of this particular Wurst considerably less than its size would indicate. It was often so soft that it was practically impossible to cut, and we had to spread it on our bread like butter.

The substitute of which you have read the most in England is war bread. This, as I have already said, differs in various localities, but it consists chiefly of a mixture of rye and potato with a little wheat flour. In Hungary, which is a great maize-growing country, maize is substituted for rye.

PETROL SUBSTITUTES.

To turn to substitutes other than food, it will be recalled that Germany very early began to popularize the use of benzol as an alternative to petrol for motor engines. This was a natural outgrowth of her marvellously developed coal-tar industry, of which benzol is a product. Prizes for the most effective benzol-consuming engine, for benzol carburettors, etc., have been offered by various official departments in recent years, and I am told that during the war ingenious inventions for the more satisfactory employment of benzol have been adopted. Owing to the increased use of potatoes as food, the alcoholic extract from them, always a great German and Austro-Hungarian industry, has had to be restricted.

It is an ill wind that blows nobody good, as I learned from the owner of a little general shop in a Brandenburg village. He told me that about twenty-five years ago, when kerosine paraffin became widely used in the village for illuminating purposes, he was left with a tremendous supply of candles which he could never sell. The oil famine has caused the substitution of candle light for lamp light during the war, and has enabled him to sell out the whole stock. All oils are at a premium. The price of castor-oil has risen five-fold in Germany, chiefly owing to the fact that it is being successfully used for aeroplane lubrication purposes.

Imitation tea is made of plum and other leaves boiled in real tea and dried.

GLYCERINE FROM FRUIT STONES.

But it is oil from which explosives are derived that chiefly interests Germany. Almost any kind of fruit stone contains glycerine. That is why notices have been put on all trains which run through fruit districts, such as Werder, near Berlin, and Baden, advising the people to save their fruit stones and bring them to special depots for collection.

Five pounds of fat treated with caustic soda can be made to yield one pound of glycerine. This is one reason, in addition to the British blockade, which causes the great fat shortage among the civil population.

Glycerine united with ammonium nitrate is used in the manufacture of explosives. Deprived of nitrogenous material from South America, Germany has since the outbreak of war greatly developed the process for the manufacture of artificial nitrates. Germany spent £25,000,000 after the

3 Teaspoonsful of Red Rose Tea go as far as 5 Teaspoonsful of ordinary tea

Cheap Tea Not Economical!

Many people complain about the poor flavor of the cheap tea they are using, but are trying to put up with it because they think they are saving money.

In reality, cheap tea is rarely more economical, often less economical, than Red Rose Tea.

While Red Rose Tea may cost a few cents more, or even 10 cents more per pound, than common tea three teaspoonsful of Red Rose Tea are equal to five teaspoonsful of common tea.

Less Red Rose Tea is required in the tea pot, because this master blend of Indian-Ceylon teas consists largely of the famous hill grown teas of Assam, India.

These Assam teas excel in vigor, richness and strength. Their leaves yield more liquor and a fuller flavored liquor. Blended with Ceylons they make the ideal tea for flavor and economy.

Try a sealed package of Red Rose Tea and keep count of the extra number of cups it yields in comparison with cheap teas. You will find that Red Rose is worth every cent asked for it—and that it costs no more to use this delightful tea.

WASHINGTON MORE FAVOURABLE TO ARMING OF MERCHANTMEN FOR PURPOSES OF DEFENCE

Intent or Mission of Vessel Must Determine its Defensive or Offensive Character, According to View Now Held by Administration Officials Regarding Clearance—Armed Ships May Be Cleared.

VESSELS ARMED FOR DEFENCE

WASHINGTON, D.C., January 31.—The question of increased armament for merchant vessels was discussed by officials in connection with predictions from European sources foreshadowing action by the Entente governments in arming their ships both fore and aft and increasing the calibre of guns aboard.

In view of the many indications that Germany purposes to press anew the armed ship issue as a cover for increased submarine activities, this statement from official sources here is regarded as very significant. It was said that the United States may make some further declaration clarifying its position in this matter. The statement made strongly suggested that the administration has no more inclination than formerly to increase the scope or effectiveness of submarine operations against merchantmen.

TO TEMPER PRACTICE.

Notice was taken of the fact that while the administration takes, in theory, an advanced position upon the rights of armed merchantmen, it belies that attitude when the necessity arises to make an issue with Germany over cases where the wrong of Germany is far more flagrant—as, for instance, the Marina and Arabic cases, where Americans were killed on ships admittedly bound on peaceful missions. The judgment upon the administration's policy is, in many quarters, that it will take strictly correct and advanced positions under the law, but will temper its practice regarding the past.

According to the official view expressed it is the intent or mission of the vessel which must determine its defensive or offensive character.

Guns may be mounted forward as well as aft on a merchantman without destroying her peaceful status, provided it is the intention to use those guns defensively, and they are used defensively.

The armament of a vessel is only one of several things that must be taken into consideration in determining whether she is bent upon a peaceful or a warlike mission. Thus a vessel might mount guns both forward and

"HUMANIZE WAR NOW" AUSTRIAN TO KAISER

Exiled Member of Parliament Declares War Must be Fought to Finish, But How?

Professor T. G. Masaryk, an exiled member of the Austrian Parliament, writes from London, Eng., as follows: The poison gas attack on the Canadians at St. Julien has burned itself too deeply into the memory of the Canadian people ever to be blotted out by any eleventh-hour contrition. The sea will never yield up its Lusitania dead. The horror of Louvain will go shuddering through the centuries. And yet, knowing the world had irrevocably condemned him, were I the Kaiser I should still deem it not too late to humanize the war.

He Can Change It

With the German Emperor on his throne, for all his immersion in the machine, the power of initiative for good or for evil yet resides with him. Cleansing his soul of evil, he could say to himself and so allying determined "This colossal thing, this war of fifteen nations, must work itself out; it must be a war to the finish. Fate wills it. But let me try and win it of some of its horrors and a moiety of its greatness. If we win, let the world say we won because we were strong and brave, not because we were brutally efficient. If we lose, let the world say we fought well, and in the end, for all our sins at the beginning, not dishonorably."

Kaiser Created Hate

To the Kaiser alone it is due that so much hate has been imported into the war that the enemies of Germany loathe her with an intensity of loathing that must be appalling to any thinking German. For the Turk, in spite of Armenia, no such hatred is discovered. Indeed, the allies are never tired of paying tribute to the good qualities of the Turk as a foe. Had the war been humanized, statesmanship might have had an easier task at the end of the conflict.

There are some good-hearted people in England as elsewhere who talk lightly of the possibility of peace and the chance of a compromise. To them I, a stranger in their midst, say: How can there be peace until the war has reached a decision, when already four million men lie dead in the rough graves by the battlefield and another million men wearily drag on their days as hopeless cripples until death shall bring them merciful release? Dare Europe sully the memory of its millions of slain and its hundreds of thousands of cripples by making peace before the issue has been finally resolved?

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back its Natural Colour, Gloss and Attractiveness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a 50-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

FELT LIKE A NEW PERSON

After Taking Only One Box Of "Fruit-a-tives"

EAST SIDE HARBOUR, N. S.

"It is with great pleasure that I write to tell you of the wonderful benefits I have received from taking "Fruit-a-tives". For years, I was a dreadful sufferer from Constipation and Headaches, and I was miserable in every way. Nothing in the way of medicines seemed to help me. Then I finally tried "Fruit-a-tives" and the effect was splendid. After taking one box, I feel like a new person, to have relief from those sickening Headaches".

TRIBUNALS THAT KEPT MEN OUT OF THE ARMY

How Exemptions Boards Worked in Rural England—A Gloomy View of the Method

After a fortnight's tour of the exemptions tribunals of Northern England, a London Daily Mail representative writes: A stumbling-block is the agricultural representative appointed by the Local Government Board to sit—but not to vote—on all the tribunals where mainly agricultural cases are dealt with. Nearly every agricultural representative I have met strives with might and main to keep every man he can get on the land and out of the army. He envisages his claims from the point of view of the Norfolk farms, where highly technical and really skilled work is needed, drawing no distinction between them and the rough, happy-go-lucky little farms, say, of Dartmoor and the dales and the moors of Yorkshire. He is armed with a circular from the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries, packed with the most perplexing details which nobody attempts to understand. As a matter of fact he is the fifth wheel in this lumbering wagon of national administration.

The Haunted Man

Sitting between the chairman of the rural district council and the labor man—almost invariably his bitter enemy—is the military representative. Amid the byways where I have been he is not, as a rule, a soldier. He is not clothed in khaki and strapped together with a Sam Browne belt, and it has been difficult to pick him out from the ruck—at first. It has been difficult, indeed, to identify him from his parts of speech or the trend of his arguments. But I speedily found that all I had to do when I entered the sanctum sanctorum was to search among the plump, ruddy, self-satisfied faces for a countenance haggard and woebegone, a head prematurely gray or bald, an eye bloodshot, and a mouth sagging at the corners—the Haunted Man!

"Who is that man?" I would whisper to the nearest somebody at hand. And invariably I got the same reply:

"Oh, him!—he's the military representative!"

More Cases; More Fees

Another serious blot on the tribunal system is the scale of pay for tribunal clerks, which was surely invented for the purpose of temptation. The clerk of a local tribunal gets 5s. a head for the first 25 cases listed in any one month, and only 2s. 6. a head for the next 75 cases in any one month. The pay of an appeal tribunal clerk is 2s. 6d. a head for the first 25 and 1s. for the remainder. In glancing over the lists prepared it is significant to note that it is unusual to see more than 25 cases listed in a month. These cases can go on and on and backwards and forwards from exemption to exemption, from first court to appeal, and then back again, like recurring decimals. The oftener any one of the 25 cases is repeated the more wowns are due to the clerk.

BRITISH TEST WITH GAS AND GAS HELMETS

How Officers Are Trained to Instruct Men in Precautionary Measures —The Awful Test

An artillery officer of the British army subjected to be "O.C. Frightfulness," or gas expert for his unit, writes of his tuition as follows: There was an atmosphere of chemistry about the Gas School—both literally and metaphorically. Frightfulness stories were in the air. There was the story of the team of mules which was fitted with gas-proof nose bags, as an experiment. The mules promptly ate the nose bags, with apparent relish, and seemed to thrive on their novel diet.

His First Experience

It was on a beautiful sunshiny morning that I stood outside the sinister looking shed wherein I, together with a dozen or so other officers and N.C.O.'s, was to undergo the ordeal by gas. "Put on your helmets," commanded the instructor. I took what I tried to make myself believe was not a final look at the smiling fields of France, and put on my gas helmet. Adjusting the goggles, I peered at my fellow-victims. We looked rather as if we had been conjured up by the shade of Edgar Allan Poe. Not even our khaki served to bring us within the realms of the real. We were a materialized nightmare. "Mm-mm-mm-mm!" I said to my neighbor.

"Mmm-mm-mm-m," he replied fervently. But in an incredibly short while we found we could breathe, talk, and see with practically no discomfort. It was just a matter of getting used to the how of it. Then we filed into the shed, the door was closed, and we looked through our goggles at each other, and pretended we were indifferent. I tried to whistle jauntily, but nearly swallowed a part of my apparatus, and so I gave up the attempt.

Nothing Happened!

And then, hissing like an impatient steam engine, the gas came pouring out of the cylinders. Round our legs it curled, round our waists, up to our noses, and over our heads. We were being gassed! And nothing happened! We breathed, we looked at each other reassuringly—and then we got bored with the whole business.

Out into the open air again we went, removed our helmets, blinked once or twice; and then—looked at our buttons. They had shone like the noonday sun when we went into that shed; now they were a dull brownish-green. Someone pulled a few coins from his pocket—they were even as were our buttons. Knives, the pins, everything had changed color completely. But we had gained complete confidence in our gas equipment. We could go back to our batteries and platoons and explain what our scientists had achieved; we could impart our confidence to our men; it was our duty to see that our units were fully protected against this particular form of frightfulness.

WELFARE AND MUNITIONS

How Britain Speeds Without Strain on Women Workers

P. A. Best writes: Here is a factory at the Welfare Department of the Ministry of Munitions has made it. It is one of those I had an opportunity of seeing during some visits of inspection for the Ministry. Before the war this factory was making simple metal articles. Under the Ministry of Munitions it was turned into an armament plant. The right type of Women Welfare Supervisor was appointed; she works in perfect harmony with the shop's foreman or manager. The enthusiasm of the girls has been so wrought up by inter-shop competition on output that the efficiency has been almost incredibly increased, without any strain whatever having been experienced by the workers.

Friendly rivalry has been stirred up, and shop competes with shop. In the mess room during meal times good natured banter is thrown from one table to another, occasioned by rivalry in the shops as to how one can beat the other. This sort of competitive spirit is not only good from the material point of view, but from the mental, as it creates a healthy interest in the individual work. Instead of a job being done simply for the agreed upon wage, the work becomes what it always should be—a splendid game.

SPORTSMEN—SOLDIERS

Games Mystify and Interest the French Soldiers

It is only when the locals happens to be a base camp that the onlookers behind the British lines at a race meeting, gymkhana, or football match, and the like, are likely to include any civilians. Even then the proportion is very small. Everywhere else the spectators are entirely military, and if any ladies grace the assemblage they are certain to belong to the Army Nursing Service. But, for all that, the "gate" is not necessarily British throughout, since it is sure to include a number of French and Belgian officers and men.

Our gallant allies take the greatest possible interest in any sporting fixture arranged by their British comrades, and turn up by the hundred to watch it. This lends additional picturesqueness to the scene, since it brings out every variety of uniform. Mingling with the universal khaki on such occasions are light blue frogged tunics, Zouave jackets, crimson overalls, laced képis, plumed helmets, and turbans and fezzes belonging to white faces, brown faces, yellow faces, and black faces.

The peasants and villagers from the district are immensely interested in the proceedings, and shout "Eyp-peep cerap" with all the strength of their lungs. Judging from their private comments, it is a never-ceasing wonder to them that our troops should have the energy to run races and otherwise exercise themselves when not actually compelled to do so. But there are a great many things about the British soldier in France that—despite his long sojourn among them—the French villagers do not understand. "Qu'ils sont drôles, ces Anglais!" they declare admiringly.

GUNFIRE DEMORALIZES

Best German Regiment Lost Spirit Under Physical Strain

W. Beach Thomas wrote on one occasion from France: Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday—each hour of each of these days and nights our artillery has not ceased to drum. The sound is as constant as the touch of the atmosphere. Near the front it kills all sleep, and ten, even twenty, miles behind most wake to wonder what giant event the tumult portends. What is life like where the shells burst Prisoners give us some idea. One rather attractive German of good physique and lively spirit apologised to his captors for his easy surrender. "What were we to do?" he said in effect. "The barrage came down like a storm in the mountains. You could not see or hear, and then while we were blind and deaf the English bombs began to burst in the ravine through the mud and dust and smoke."

I have tried by observation and inquiry at every part of the line to test without prejudice the question whether or not these German garrisons surrendered with the readiness of a demoralised force. I am inclined to judge that the victory was due wholly to the violence of the attack. Instances there are, of course, of despair and cowardice. If men are not relieved often enough and for a long enough time the best regiments become the worst if artillery fire is constant.

COUNTESS CURZON

Wedded to Earl Curson of Kedleston, shortly after he became Lord President of the British War Council in the Lloyd-George "Win-the-War" Cabinet, the Countess became immediately famous. She was formerly the widow of Alfred Duggan, a wealthy former Tennessean and resident of Buenos Ayres, Argentina. She was the eldest daughter of the late J. Monro Hinds, once United States Ambassador to Brazil.

GLASS OF WATER BEFORE YOU EAT ANY BREAKFAST

Wash Poison From System Each Morning and Feel Fresh as a Daisy.

Every day, you clean the house you live in to get rid of the dust and dirt which collected through the previous day. Your body, the house your soul lives in, also becomes filled up each twenty-four hours with all manner of filth and poison. If only every man and woman could realise the wonders of drinking phosphated hot water, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, woman and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

Everyone, whether sick or well, should drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

Weakened By Anaemia
Doctors Gave No Hope

Said She Was Threatened With Consumption, and Gave Her Three Weeks to Live

Anaemia is indicated by thin, watery blood. The gums and eyelids grow pale, there is great weakness and fatigue and digestion fails.

Since Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood, it is naturally most suitable as a treatment for anaemia. This letter proves its efficiency in the most severe cases.

Mrs. J. Adams, Port Hope, Ont., writes: "About six years ago I was taken with very weak spells and though I doctored with the family physician and used other medicines for two years, I got very little relief and, in fact, continued to grow worse. I was so weak I could not wait on myself or raise my hand to my head and decided to go to my daughter in Toronto. When examined by Toronto doctors they pronounced me to be in a dangerous condition, threatened with consumption and other ailments and said I would not live for three weeks. One day I was looking through Dr. Chase's Almanac and read about the cure of anaemia by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I began the use of this treatment at once and am now well on the way back to health, after having used the Nerve Food for six months. I want my friends to know that my cure was effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food alone and after my discouragement from the use of other treatments, I feel it my duty to let everybody know about this remarkable cure."

As a restorative for persons who are pale, weak and run down there is no treatment to be compared to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Gradually and naturally the red corpuscles are increased in the blood, the color is restored to the cheeks and the strength comes back to wasted nerves and muscles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Fish Story

By ALAN HINSDALE

In 1863 Bob Atherton, a soldier in the civil war, was discharged from the service and set about trying to make a living for which three years of soldiering had not prepared him. Yet one kind of preparation he had gained from his campaigning. He was not afraid to strike out in any path. Many of the boys of 1861 to 1863, finding it difficult after the war to settle down to a humdrum life, sought untried fields. Bob Atherton was one of these. He went to Australia to begin life in what was then a new country.

Bob wouldn't have gone had he not believed there was no chance for him at home, for he had a sweetheart whom it pained him to leave. But Elsie Rathbone promised to wait till he had made enough to send for her, when she would go to him. This comforted him.

Australia was then, as it is now, a wool growing country, and Bob on reaching Melbourne, where men were wanted, found a position in the counting room of a wool broker. He learned a lot about the business, but somehow he did not find promotion rapid. Perhaps soldiering had taken out of him that contentment necessary to one working in a treadmill. At any rate, he was not interested in his business, and it is probable that he was not as up and doing as his employers expected him to be.

He went on to a sheep ranch, where he found more congenial occupation riding about in the open air herding sheep. But here, too, he was paid so much money for so much work, and since the work was not skilled he failed to gather in more funds than he needed for his personal wants. Besides one who had spent much of his time in the army playing poker with the dollar bill greenbacks of the period was not likely to look after the pence.

Atherton drifted from one thing to another for five years. He kept up a correspondence with Elsie for four of them, then, considering the status unjust to her, ceased to write. He gradually ran down till he was shabby enough to be mistaken for a larrikin, which means the descendant of a Botany bay convict. From this condition he drifted to the coast, where he tried to pick up a scant living as a fisherman.

One day Bob caught a big fish and in endeavoring to extricate his hook saw something that looked like paper in the gullet. Curious to know what it was, he cut the fish open and found that it had swallowed a newspaper. The journal had been inclosed in a wrapper, and it is not impossible that the fish had mistaken it for another fish. Bob unfolded it very carefully. The outside had been saturated, but the inner sheets were comparatively dry. It proved to be a London paper of a then recent date. On one of the pages Bob saw a notice that the Emperor Napoleon III. had left Paris to place himself at the head of the French army to fight the Prussians.

That meant that war had been declared between France and Prussia, news that had not yet reached Melbourne, for that was before a cable had been laid between Europe and Australia. Another item that Bob noticed was a quotation for wool. The price in the English market was very much higher than in Australia.

That set Bob to thinking. If he had the money he could buy wool for one price, and as soon as a ship came in bringing the news of the war and recent quotations he might sell it for a profit. But he hadn't sixpence to his name. He sat on the sand thinking how he could utilize his information.

He was sufficiently familiar with the wool business to know the names of the principal dealers, all of whom had bought through the commission firm by whom he had been employed. Selecting several firms to whom he was known, he sent an order from each to his former employers to buy a large quantity of wool for each one of them, then went to the firms whose names he had used and told them what he had done, offering to produce proof that the price would rise on condition his order be confirmed and that he be paid a quarter of the profits arising from the deal. Nearly all acquiesced in writing.

The contracts had not been signed long when a ship came in bringing news that war had been declared between France and Prussia, with a new quotation for wool. The firms in whose names Bob had given his orders made enormous profits. Bob's aggregate proceeds were as large as any one of the buyers.

As soon as the money was paid over to him Bob took the next ship for America, hoping that he would find his sweetheart unmarried. He not only found her a spinster, but hoping that she might again hear from him. When he told her that he had made a fortune she rejoiced, but when he told her how he had done it she thought he was chaffing her. However, he confirmed his story by producing the newspaper he had taken from the fish's belly and an item cut from a Melbourne paper describing his coup.

As to how the fish carried the English paper to Melbourne ahead of the mails, that is a matter of conjecture. It can only be accounted for on the theory that the paper was thrown overboard from some ship not bound to Melbourne, picked up by the fish and carried to the spot where Bob Atherton was fishing.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Agassiz, B.C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter, and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was formerly entirely cured of protruding piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

BRAVERY OF A TOREADOR.

Remarkable Display of Nerve by a Spanish Bull Fighter.

The famous Spanish toreador Reverte figured in one of the most thrilling incidents ever witnessed in the bull fighting arena.

It was at Bayonne. After disposing of two bulls Reverte had twice plunged his sword into a third of great strength and ferocity, and as the beast continued careering wildly the spectators began to hiss Reverte for bungling.

Wounded to the very quick of his pride, the Spaniard shouted, "The bull is slain!" and, throwing aside his sword, sank on one knee with folded arms in the middle of the ring.

He was right, but he had not allowed for the margin of accident. The wounded beast charged full upon him, but the matador, splendid to the last, knelt motionless as a statue, while the spectators held their breath in horrified suspense.

Reaching his victim, the bull literally bounded at him, and as he sprang he sank in death, with his last effort giving one fearful lunge of the head that drove a horn into the thigh of the kneeling man and laid bare the bone from the knee to the joint.

Still Reverte never flinched, but remained kneeling, exultant in victory, but calmly contemptuous of applause, till he was carried away to heal him of his grievous wound.

Indian "Moons."

Time is calculated among the Red Indians by moons instead of months. January is called the "hard moon," February "the raccoon moon," March "sore eye moon," April "the moon in which geese lay eggs," May "the planting moon," June "the moon when the strawberries are red," July "the moon when choke cherries are ripe," August "the harvest moon," September "the moon when rice is laid up to dry," October "the rice drying moon," November "the deer killing moon" and December "the deer moon."

Dodging Mother Meng.

Infant prodigies are not unknown in China, and Chinese Buddhists find it easy to account for them. According to the doctrine of the transmigration of souls, persons passing through Hades on their way to the wheel of life (which relaunches souls into the bodies of babies or animals just being born) have to cross a bridge. Before mounting the bridge they are stopped by an old hag called Meng, who, ladle in hand, compels each soul to drink a mouthful of the waters of forgetfulness, for which the popular name is Mother Meng's soup. Those who drink of this forget all that they had passed through or had known in their former life and thus on being reborn into the world are entirely ignorant. Some, however, manage to dodge Mother Meng and enter the world full of knowledge, which they display as soon as they can articulate.

STOP CATARRH! OPEN NOSTRILS AND HEAD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Relieves Head-Colds at Once.

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every pair passage of your head, soothing and healing the inflamed, swollen mucous membrane and you get instant relief.

Ah! how good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear, no more hawking, snuffling, blowing; no more headache, dryness or struggling for breath. Ely's Cream Balm is just what sufferers from head colds and catarrh need. It's a delight.

MARK TWAIN'S LAST DAYS.

"Sorry, but I Can't Hurry This Dying Business," He Told a Friend.

Mark Twain's last days, it will be remembered, were spent in Bermuda, at the home of Vice Consul Allen, where he had gone following the shock of his daughter Jean's death. The great humorist, suffering from heart attacks which began to recur with increasing frequency, knew that he was a dying man. Yet his whimsical humor never failed him. His biographer, Albert Bigelow Paine, writing in St. Nicholas, recalls how Mr. Clemens at this time referred to the hypodermic injection, which had become necessary to him, as "hypnotic injunctions."

"As long as I remember anything," writes Mr. Paine in describing the trip from Bermuda, "I shall remember the forty-eight hours of that homeward voyage. He was comfortable at first, and then we ran into the humid, oppressive air of the gulf stream, and he could not breathe. It seemed to me that the end might come at any moment, and this thought was in his own mind, but he had no dread, and his sense of humor did not fail. Once, when the ship rolled and his hat fell from the hook and made the circuit of the cabin floor, he said, 'The ship is passing the hat.'

"I had been instructed in the use of the hypodermic needle and from time to time gave him the 'hypnotic injunction,' as he called it. But it did not afford him entire relief. He could remain in any position but a little while. Yet he never complained and thought only of the trouble he might be making. Once he said:

"'I am sorry for you, Paine, but I can't help it—I can't hurry this dying business.'

"And a little later:

"'Oh, it's such a mystery, and it takes so long!'"

EVOLUTION OF A SENATOR.

His Career Briefly Sketched From Baby Holding to Congress.

Prior to election a future United States senator is meek and lowly. He is not averse to holding babies or four aces, as the environment may demand, while campaigning for votes. One may safely slap him on the back without fear of rebuff. Before the last precinct is counted he seems to know his success, for the senatorial candidate stiffens, dons his black clothes and a fresh collar and begins to practice a dignified stride for future use on Pennsylvania avenue. Babies and jackpots have lost their alluring possibilities; no longer does he tolerate familiarity. He is as patronizing as a rooster who scratches worms for the hens and then eats them before his invited guests arrive.

Seated in a niche of the hall of congress the new senator feels as though he should peer through a microscope to make sure he is there, but confidential letters sent to the editor of the Jumpoff Breeze tell how he is preparing a bill advocating the irrigation of Sagebrush valley; also how he is worked to death by other senators asking favors of him. As a school for fiction writers the United States senate has all other correspondence schools lashed to the mast.

Many senators fail to receive just reward at the conclusion of their maiden voyage through the troubled congressional waters probably because the law is so strictly enforced against murder.—Harper's Weekly.

Ancient Abyssinia.

The Abyssinians are a race renowned for their courage and good looks. Of a deep brown in color, they are well formed and handsome, intelligent and fond of gayety, too, but their needs are very simple, and they live in primitive fashion in rough circular stone huts thatched with grass. The history of Abyssinia dates very far back. Before Christ the country formed part of the ancient country of Ethiopia. The queen of Sheba was an Abyssinian queen, and the kings of Abyssinia claim descent from her.—London Spectator.

Sick Herrings.

"Why," said a youngster to his elder brother, "do herrings have so many more illnesses than other fish?"

FIRST ADVERTISING

It Was Done in Egypt, on Papyrus, Thirty Centuries Ago.

ANCIENT PUBLICITY DEVICES.

The Greeks Used Town Criers and Music, and Then Came Symbols and Signboards—The Revolution That Accompanied the Art of Printing.

The Egyptian gentleman who sought a runaway slave 3,000 years ago and advertised on a bit of papyrus for his recovery turned out the first piece of advertising copy.

Whoever he was, he was a genius in more than a small way. His copy still lives, preserved in the British museum as an exhibit of considerable archaeological importance and as an example of what our advertising experts of today would do if they, like the Egyptian, did not have the benefit of up to date information.

The Egyptians knew nothing about the topography of advertising nor the effect of different colors. He didn't know, for instance, that red is the most effective eye catching color and that green is second and black third.

Of these and a thousand other things that influence the character of present day advertisements he was totally in ignorance. But he gets full credit for making the first attempt at a written advertisement.

The Greeks, with a fine regard for art, usually made music a part of the advertising program. They gave us the idea of employing bands to attract attention, undoubtedly one of the most successful methods of drawing a crowd at any place and time.

At first a town crier, accompanied by a musician playing a lyre or a harp, mingled among the Greek peoples and used only the best and choicest Greek in his extravagant praises of the product he was exploiting. Later, however, private advertisements in writing began to be introduced, particularly on the whitened walls of the homes, giving some information regarding the social standing and the age of the residents, their financial rating and the family lineage.

The Romans advertised in many ways. They named their streets, advertised shows, exhibitions and sales on the terra cotta walls of public baths, acquainted the public with sales of estates and absconded debtors and began the practice of notifying the Romans of articles lost and found and houses for sale or rent.

The Romans are commonly credited with the origin of the sign board. Today we have the bulletin board, which corresponds to the Roman tabella found in the ruins of Pompeii and Herculaneum, where public announcements were made.

Advertising met the same fate as the Romans did when the Huns came sweeping down from the north. Until the middle ages very little of it is seen. But with the appearance again of the town crier, supplied with the customary long winded declarations and a choice supply of adjectives, advertising began to make itself felt in the conduct of business affairs. The public criers began to organize themselves both in France and in England, and they were persons with considerable prestige.

From crying out the superior qualities of merchandise and all kinds of goods and wares the crier soon began to make announcement of things lost and found, of sales, weddings, christenings and other interesting events.

Gradually as time went on inns began to use distinctive signs and symbols to mark their hostelries, just as individuals had employed coats of arms. All kinds of devices were used and are still used by inns to the present day. All such signs as the blue anchor, the black dragon, the three tuns, the boar's head, the red lion, and so on, made definite representations and implications.

Of course with the development of the printing press advertising took a great spurt. The use of posters came into vogue, and all kinds of pamphlets were printed and distributed. Printing gradually began to supersede the handwritten manuscript. William Caxton set up his press in Westminster abbey in 1471, and two centuries later, in 1622, a newspaper, believed to be the first real newspaper, was printed. It was called the Weekly News and purported to contain news of doings in Germany, France, Hungary and Bohemia.

From then on newspapers, mostly weekly publications, began to appear from time to time in increasing numbers. Advertisements of medicines began to be inserted in the newspapers at an early date. The insertion of the first real newspaper advertisements, however, is credited to Nathaniel Butler, who advertised books.

The first two magazines to carry advertisements were Godey's Lady Book and Peterson's, but it was not until 1864 that magazine advertising really began, and it was not until 1880 that a general use was made of magazines for advertising purposes.

Other resolutions pledged the fifty weekly and daily newspapers represented to increase subscription rates 50 cents a year for weeklies and $1 a year for dailies, and advertising rates 20 per cent. The members pledged their support to bills before Congress providing for a Government-owned paper mill an for a zone system of rates for second-class mail.

PIMPLES and BOILS

ALL OVER FACE AND BODY

When the blood becomes impure you will find that pimples and boils will break out all over the body, and although they are not dangerous trouble, they make you appear unsightly both to your friends and yourself.

Burdock Blood Bitters will cleanse the blood of all the impurities and poisons which cause the skin to break out in these eruptions.

Miss Sylvia Swanson, Theodore, Sask., writes: "I am letting you know what great value your B.B.B. has been to me. A year ago I started to grow pale and weak, the cause being bad blood. I got so many pimples and boils all over my face and body that I would not let strangers see me, and I used to avoid company. I tried many remedies but all seemed a failure. I read about how good your B.B.B. had been to thousands of people so I got a bottle and after I had finished the second one my pimples and boils had all disappeared. People thought it a miracle how well I looked.

"Your grand old remedy sure has been as good as gold and better, to me".

SMITH FAMILY IS THE LARGEST IN THE WORLD

There is no truth in the legends that Smith draws his name and blood from Shem, son of Noah, whose descendants wrote their patronymic successively — Shemit, Shmit, Smith; or from the mythical Pharaoh Smithosis of the Theban line of kings.

The name has its root in remote Saxon times, in the word "smitan" (to smite), when it was borne by every man who earned an honest living by his arm muscles, whether as blacksmith, wheelsmith, carpenter or mason.

Every Smith is a member of the greatest clan in all the world; for almost every civilized land has its army of fellow Smiths in as many different guises —from the Russian Smittowski to the Spanish Smithas, and from the Icelandic Smithson to the Mexican Smithl.

In our own little islands the Smiths stand alone at the head of the clan lists; even Jones, Brown and Robinson must pay homage to them. In England of every 72 persons you meet one writes his name, "Smith"; in Scotland the proportion is still greater strange to say—one in every 70; while in Ireland, Smith takes fifth place on the list, beaten only by the Murphys, Kellys, Sullivans and Walshes.

In England and Wales there are more Smiths than there are people of all names in any one of 30 counties; they outnumbered the entire population of Oxfordshire by more than two to one. In Scotland there are Smiths enough to repeople the four counties, Bute, Kinross, Nairn and Sutherland, with a few thousand to spare.

In England and Wales there are approximately 800 bearers of any one surname, on an average. The Smiths alone number more than 400,000, or 500 times as many.

This great family can boast of more men of distinction who have helped to make our Empire what it is than the bearers of any other name.

There is one Smith who wears a viscount's coronet; another was Baron Strathcona and Mount Royal, one of the most famous pioneers of the Empire. Five Smiths and one Smyth help to make our laws in the House of Commons.

In the roll of our baronets there are half a dozen Smiths to say nothing of one Smythe and one Smith; and no fewer than 31 of the name are entitled to the knightly prefix "sir." In the gallant roll of D. S. O.'s 18 Smiths figure, and half a dozen have won the Cross for Valor, in addition to one Smyth and one Smythe, V.C.'s.

The lady Smiths are no less notable than their menfolk, although their achievements are less known; but there is scarcely a walk in life in which they have not acquitted themselves at least as well as those of any other surname. And to-day it may interest those who wish to ally themselves with this wonderful family, there are over 60,000 spinsters of the name, all between the ages of 20 and 34, and most of them highly desirable as life partners.—Pearson's Weekly.

"The daughter of a society woman is a pencil-browed, frizzled haired, painted nothing" he declared. "She chews gum, plays ragtime, flirts and if you kiss her you are in danger of dying with painters' colic."

SHAMS TAKE PLACE OF FOOD AND CLOTHES outbreak of war to enable her chemists and engineers to turn out a sufficient amount of nitric acid.

Toluol, a very important ingredient of explosives, is obtained from coal-tar, which Germany is naturally able to manufacture at present better than any other country in the world, since she had practically a monopoly in coal-tar products before hostilities commenced.

Evidently, however, substitutes to reinforce goods smuggled through the blockade have not sufficed to meet the chemical demands of the German Government, for great flaming pracards were posted up all over the Empire announcing the commandeering of such commodities as sulphur, sulphuric acid, tuluol, saltpetre, and the like.

COTTON AND THE BLOCKADE.

Germany long ago claimed, though falsely I believe, to have perfected wood-pulp as a substitute for cotton in propulsive ammunition. She made this claim for the purpose of hoodwinking your blockade advocates. Her great need eventually led her to take steps, somewhat less than a year ago, to induce the United States to insist on the Entente Powers raising the blockade on cotton. She went to great trouble and expense to send samples by special means to her agents in the United States.

The cotton shortage began to be seriously felt early this year in the manufacturing districts of Saxony, where so many operatives were suddenly thrown out of work that the Government had to set aside a special fund for their temporary relief, until they could be transferred to other war industries.

The success which Germany claimed for a cotton-cloth substitute has been greatly exaggerated. When the Germans realized that Great Britain really meant business on the question of cotton they cultivated more nettle and willow fibre, and made a cloth consisting for the most part of nettle or willow fibre, with a small proportion of cotton or wool.

It was boasted in many quarters that the exclusion of cotton would make but little difference so far as clothing was concerned. Not only does the universal introduction of clothing tickets falsify this boast, but the cloth is found to be a more makeshift when tested. Blouses and stockings wear out with discouraging rapidity when made of this substitute..

My personal investigations still lead me to believe in the motto of my own Sunny South that "Cotton is King."

Paper, although running short in Germany, is the substitute for cloth in many cases. Sacking formerly used for making bags in which to ship potatoes and other vegetables, has given way to paper. Paper-string is a good substitute widely used, although "no string" was the verbal substitute I often got when buying various articles, and it was necessary for me to hold the paper on to the parcel with my hands.

DISHONEST DEALERS.

The craze for substitute has spread so extensively that there have been some unpleasant results both for the purchaser and the producer, as was the case with several bakers, who were finally detected and convicted of a liberal use of sawdust in their cakes.

Germany has worked especially hard to find a substitute for india-rubber, though with only moderate success. I know that the Kaiser's Government is still sending men into contiguous neutral countries to buy up every scrap of rubber obtainable. In no other commodity has there been more relentless commandeering. When bicycle tires were commandeered—the authorities deciding that three marks was the proper price to pay for a new pair of tires which had cost 310—there was a great deal of complaining. Nevertheless, without an excellent reason, no German could secure the police pass necessary to allow him to ride a bicycle. Those who did obtain permission to ride to and from their work had to select the shortest route, and "joy-riding" was forbidden.

"Substitute rubber" heels for boots could be readily obtained until the late summer, but after that only with difficulty. They were practically worthless, as I know from personal experience, and were as hard as leather after one or two days' use.

Despite the rubber shortage, the Lower Saxon Rubber Company, of Hildersheim does a thriving business in raincoats made from rubber substitutes. The factory is running almost full blast, all the work being done by women, and the finished product is a tribute to the skill of those in charge.

It is impossible to buy a real tennis ball in the German Empire to-day. A most hopeless makeshift tennis ball has been put on the market, but after a few minutes' play it no longer keeps its shape or resiliency.

COPPER AND OTHER METALS.

Germany has been very successful in the substitution of a sort of enamelled iron for aluminum, brass and copper. Some of the Rhenish-Westphalian iron industries have made enormous war profits, supplying iron chandeliers, stove doors, pots and pans, and other articles formerly made of brass to take the place of those commandeered for the purpose of supplying the army with much-needed metals.

For copper used in electrical and other industries Germany claims to have devised substitutes before the war, and her experts now assert that a two-years' supply of copper and brass has been gathered from the kitchens and roofs of Germany.

Of course Germans never boast of the priceless ornaments they have stolen from Belgium and Northern France. They joyfully claim that every pound of copper made available at home diminishes the amount which Germany must import from abroad, and pay for with her cherished gold.

The German authorities delight in boasting to the neutral visitors that they have found adequate substitutes for nickel, chromium, and vanadium for the hardening of steel. If that is really so, why does the Deutschland's cargo consist mainly of these three commodities?

WASHINGTON MORE FAVOURABLE TO ARMING OF MERCHANTMEN

aft and remain a merchant ship, possessing immunity from attack. On the other hand she might leave a neutral port without a gun aboard her and be bent upon an offensive mission.

THE ALABAMA CASE.

The Alabama left British waters without any guns aboard, yet the United States held Britain responsible for a breach of neutrality because it proved that the Alabama was especially fitted up in British waters to receive guns and left British waters for the express purpose of picking up guns at another port, mounting them and preying on Union commerce.

As a reverse to the Alabama case, it is said that a British ship might leave an American port heavily armed fore and aft and yet carry a cargo, a list of passengers and a crew which would give conclusive evidence that she was bent upon a peaceful mission. Such a vessel might act offensively at sea, in which case, it was said, she would lose her merchant status and her immunity from attack without warning. But, it is added, a vessel with only one gun mounted astern might likewise act offensively or even a vessel without any guns at all on board, which deliberately pursued a submarine with the purpose to ram and sink her.

ARMED SHIPS MAY BE CLEARED.

This statement from a high official source indicates that if the Entente governments decide to increase the armament on their merchant ships they may still be able to clear them from American ports.

With regard to the project to have such ships leave American ports without guns and pick the guns up en route at Halifax it is said that this would serve no purpose, inasmuch as the United States would have to refuse clearance to any vessel which it knew was to arm offensively at Halifax, bent upon a warlike mission, just the same as thought it armed in New York. It is the duty of the United States, as a neutral, to prevent ships leaving American ports which intend to engage in the pursuit of an enemy, and that duty holds whether the ship arms for that work at the neutral port or at some intermediate belligerent port.

In September, 1914, the United States issued instructions to port officials describing a defensively armed merchant ship as one which, among other things, had her guns mounted aft. To-day it is explained that those instructions did not state that a vessel mounting a gun forward was necessarily offensively armed, but only that a vessel mounting guns aft only was unquestionably defensively armed. No ship would leave on an offensive mission, to hunt down and sink enemy vessels, with guns mounted aft only. A vessel with guns mounted forward might be bent either upon an offensive or defensive mission. Other circumstances would have to determine her status—for instance, her cargo or her passenger list. No ship, even though armed forward, would leave on an offensive mission with a lot of women on board.

With regard to armed merchantmen sunk on the high seas, it was said, evidence in each particular case would have to determine whether the ship possessed a merchant status and whether she had so behaved as to retain that merchant status.

APPEAL MADE TO PREMIER

LONDON, Jan. 29.—On the principle that misery loves company, the suffering publishers in America may draw considerable comfort from the plight of their brethren in England. If white paper conditions are bad in the United States, they are almost impossible on this side. Up to last November newspapers were permitted to use 65 per cent. of the quantity currently used by them in 1914. Publishers thought these conditions were pretty bad, but they were struggling along, doing the best they could, when the Government notified them that their paper allowance would be cut down to five-sixths of the 1915 quantity, which is equivalent to about 50 per cent. of the 1914 quantity. Recently there has been strong talk of making a still further cut to to a 40 per cent. basis, as compared with 1914. The proposed drastic action led to-day to a visit in force to the Prime Minister, when about forty newspaper proprietors, headed by Lord Burnham of The Daily Telegraph, were received at 10 Downing Street. They made vigorous representation as to the necessity of newspapers to the public in war time and the necessity of white paper to the newspapers. They will receive the same consderaton from the Government that would be accorded to any other industry.

Even if the Government consents to preserving the present status the newspapers are faced with almost intolerable conditions. The Government restrictions on paper and raw materials arise from the need of shipping tonnage for food and munitions, and the growing scarcity of labour and other factors that make for high prices. Leading paper dealers tell me the market price of paper for customers today is $150 per ton, but that, as a matter of fact, a new paper starting would be unable to obtain news print at any price. I am told by newspaper managers that they are actually paying the equivalent of six cents a pound for current supplies, and that they expect the situation to get worse before it gets better.

Thanks to the reserve stocks held by some of the papers, the newspapers have not yet fully accommodated themselves to the scarcity of news print and high prices. The Times has gone from two cents to three cents, and given notice of a probable further increase to four cents. All one-cent papers have made drastic cuts in size and are prepared to carry the condensation still further. They do not find that the cut in size has hurt them with their readers. There has been gossip of The Daily Mail's raising its price to two cents, but it is doubtful whether that will be done in face of the certainty that the Daily Telegraph and Morning Post will stay at their old price of two cents. When the war broke out there was a perpendicular drop in advertising revenue. There has been a gradual recovery, although conditions ar not yet entirely normal. The advertising outlook is encouraging, as the shops almost universally report good trade. London streets were never so crowded as at present. Visitors from the country and the continent compete with London housewives in hunting bargains regardless of the war time.

HOW THE EUROPEANS MAKE STHAW GOOD ANIMAL FOOD

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 29.—In effect, a recent bulletin of the United States department of agriculture asks why the American farmer cannot put straw to the same use as it is put by the European farmer.

In Europe the farmer knows as well as the American farmer that straw is not liked by stock, but instead of burning it or otherwise wasting it the European farmer chops it up, mixes it with beets, mangels, silage, or other feeds, and makes it so palatable that it can be fed to good advantage.

HAD AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

For 5 or 6 Years

Diseases and disorders of the heart and nervous system have become frightfully prevalent of late years.

One can scarcely pick up a paper but he will find recorded instances of sudden deaths through heart failure, or of prominent men and women unable to prosecute their ordinary business or profession on account of a breaking down of the nervous system.

We do not desire to unnecessarily alarm anyone, but to sound a word of warning.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, has shooting pains through it, it is time to stop and think.

To all sufferers from heart and nerve troubles Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. Frank Arseneau, Newcastle, N. B., writes: "I had awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At the present time my sister is using them for nervousness and finds great comfort by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c or three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S ONE PIECE DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

Almost every one piece frock one sees proves that the "straight way of Paris," or the long, slender silhouette is something to be reckoned with for an indefinite time. We might say that the "chemise frock" is looming largest on Fashion's horizon without fear of contradiction. One thing in its favor is the tendency it has to produce youthful effects and to give the wearer grace in moving about—quite enough to keep it in the limelight.

In this illustration you see one of the season's best. One of those models cut straight from the shoulder; the long, narrow girdle goes twice around without confining the fulness to any noticeable degree. A neck finish that is in high favor is the roll collar that believes distance from the neck lends enchantment. Novelty pockets are style features that make much of the skirt section of this one piece dress. A plait in each seam is a feature to gain the necessary fulness without showing it.

Contrasting goods contributes the collar and cuffs on rather full sleeves; the fancy banding which trims the pockets may encircle the skirt at the lower edge, if you like, or fur banding may be employed if the dress is for afternoon wear.

Velveteen, satin, serge, broadcloth, wool poplin and like weaves are suitable for developing. You owe it to yourself to copy the model if you really want to "dress up" at little cost.

The dress pattern No. 8,108 cuts in sizes 34 to 42. To make in size 36 requires 5½ yards 36 inch material, 2⅛ yards banding, 2¼ yards ribbon, or 6 yards 36 inch all one material.

To obtain the pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Holland Satisfied With New Blockade

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

ROTTERDAM, January 31.—Newspapers and shippers generally are unperturbed over the new British mine blockade. Some consider it advantageous as likely to render more difficult the patrol of the Dutch coast by German submarines and torpedo boats. The Courant to-day declared Britain is absolutely right in attempting to protect herself against submarines. If she succeeds in reducing the peril many neutrals will be thankful.

The above despatch which passed through London and the British censors is the first definite reference to the new danger zone as a "mine blockade."

Graduate Nurses Association Object to Graduates of Correspondence "Schools" Being Designated as Registered or Trained Nurses

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, Jan. 31.—That the Nurse Graduates of Correspondence Schools should not be permitted to come under designation of "Registered" or "Trained" nurse was the contention of Miss Dixon representing the "Graduate Nurses Association" of Ontario at the medical commission sitting under direction of Mr. Justice Hodgins in the Parliament buildings today. The principal question before the Commission was, are the terms "registered", "Graduate", "Trained" and "certified" as applied to nurses, intended to indicate only those educated in medical training schools for nurses attached to public hospitals. On the question of Fees, Miss Nixon said that they were fixed by private registrars. Mr. Justice Hodgins asked if it would not be better to have public registrars and fees fixed by public authorities. He asked that this be brought before the Nurses Association.

Albert A. Taggart Found Dead On Stairs At Home

Albert Allan Taggart, a well-known citizen of Peterborough, was found dead at his home, 1035 Water street, this morning.

Mr. Taggart, who since the sudden death of his brother, on Nov. 26th, last, has resided alone, has been in good health and a familiar figure on the streets until yesterday, when he became ill. Mr. Grant, a neighbour called at the house last night, at 10.30, and found him to be evidently better. This morning, on calling, he found Mr. Taggart sitting on the stairway, dead. He had evidently been on his way upstairs and, pausing for breath, his heart had given out. Dr. Greer was summoned and found that death was due to heart failure.

Mr. Taggart, who is 60 years of age, is survived by his mother, who resides in the city, two sisters in the States, and one brother, Frank, in the West.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 from Bellegham's to the Little Lake cemetery.

POET-SCOUT DYING.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31. — John Wallace (Captain Jack) Crawford, the "poet scout," was reported dying at Woodhaven, N. Y., in a telegram received here.

Captain Crawford was chief of the scouts with General Custer at the time of the massacre, but was on his way to headquarters with despatches, and was active in organizing the pursuit of Sitting Bull. Crawford was born in Ireland in 1847, learned to read and write late in life, and afterwards wrote a number of plays, stories and poems.

93RD BATTALION MEN TOOK PART IN SUCCESSFUL RAID

Canadian War Records Office Issues Report of Recent Operations in Which a Number of Peterboro' Men Made the Supreme Sacrifice

TOOK 100 PRISONERS

Undoubtedly the heavy casualties among the former members of the 93rd Battalion reported recently are accounted for by the fact that a draft from the Peterborough Battalion was with one of the battalions mentioned in the following official Canadian communique.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The following communique was issued to-day by the Canadian War Records Office, and covers the operations of the Canadian corps from January 17 to January 23.

Two very successful raids form the outstanding features of last week's operations. It had been intended to undertake them as a simultaneous operation, but conditions rendered a change advisable.

The first raid was made at 4.30 p.m. by a New Brunswick battalion. A mine was successfully exploded close to the German trenches, and the attacking parties advanced under cover of an intense barrage and a screen of smoke. The flanks of our men penetrated the support line, meeting with no resistance. A party of about thirty Germans were met in a communication trench and chased to their d---outs, from which they refused to emerge. In a raid there is no time for persuasion, and the dugouts were destroyed by explosives.

The enemy's trenches were found in a much damaged condition as a result of the mine explosion and our artillery fire, and there were many evidences of the accuracy of our shooting. No prisoners were brought back. A party of four Germans taken by our men were killed by a shell while being escorted across 'No Man's Land.' The raiding party returned to our lines at 5 p.m.

The second raid took place at 7.45 a.m. the following day, and was carried out by troops of two battalions from Ontario. The operation was similar in most respects to the previous day's, although on a somewhat larger scale. The enemy's trenches were penetrated on a front of 800 yards to a depth of 300 yards. The conditions were by no means ideal. The enemy's wire entanglements were exceedingly strong, and the wind was not in the most favourable quarter for the use of a smoke screen. On the flanks lastly, the ground was snow-covered, and the khaki uniforms of our men stood out in clear relief on the white background.

DID THEIR WORK WELL.

As the attacking party left our trenches a machine gun opened fire from the ruins of a high building in the enemy's lines. It had scarcely fired a dozen rounds when a heavy shell silenced it for the rest of the day. The wire presented no difficulties, so well had our gunners done their work that only a few strands remained.

Once in the German trenches our men were complete masters of the situation. In the support line a small party of Germans showed some resistance, but a short and sharp duel with bombs ended in their defeat. Our artillery had played havoc with the enemy's trenches and our engineers completed the work of destruction with explosives, blowing up all the remaining deep dugouts and machine-gun emplacements.

At 8.45 a.m. the raiders were back in our own trenches, having in the space of an hour captured 100 prisoners, two machine guns and a bomb thrower. The number of prisoners taken in this brilliant operation constitutes a record on this front.

These two raids, although carried out 15 hours apart, form one operation. They cannot be considered separately nor judged by the relative number of prisoners captured in each. The first raid distracted attention from the second and was an essential factor to its success.

CASUALTIES NOT HEAVY

Our casualties were not heavy in proportion to the extent and success of the operations and there is no doubt the German losses far exceeded them, to say nothing of the demoralising effects of the raids.

The officers and men who took part tell many interesting stories. A German company commander who was taken prisoner, when ordered to sur-

THE PLEDGE TO BE MADE BY 500 CLUB

Are we at this stage of the war, after we have raised, equipped, trained and dispatched a whole Canadian army of the finest men —some 370,000 of them—are we at this stage going to abandon them or are we going to bring such pressure to bear upon the remaining eligible men who may be spared and see them enlist so that their efforts will tend to relieve the pressure on those men who have been over there for so long? We cannot, nor will not abandon these men, and we will render every assistance to the 500 Club in their efforts to secure recruits.

William Drain, Mark St., Dons the Khaki to Get Revenge ---Has Another Brother in the Same Battalion and is Going Out After More Recruits---Fourteen Peterboro' Men For the 256th Battalion---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Because his brother, Pte. Another brother of Mr. Drain, Pte. James Drain, is also a member of the 247th. "I am going to get the fellow that got my brother,' remarked the new recruit as he was being outfitted. Pte. Drain came to Peterborough from Dummer Township, near Crowe's Landing, Stoney Lake, and is going back there on a recruiting trip, expecting to bring a number of his former neighbours back with him.

There was another case of a second brother joining the 247th this morning, when P. Flannagan of Fort William, a brother of Pte. Alf. Flannagan of the 247th hockey team, became a member of the Peterborough unit.

Woman Fined $50 For Theft From House

The housemaid who was charged yesterday with stealing clothing and other articles from the place of her employment, was let go on suspended sentence in the Police Court to-day, but the married woman who was also implicated, was fined $50 and her husband barely escaped the finding of the court. The woman had been previously employed at the residence and had helped store the goods some of which were stolen. She told the young girl of their location, prompted the theft and helped carry away some of the bundles herself.

Phones For All Kansas Homes; Autos In Third

TOPEKA, Kas., Jan. 30.—There is a telephone for every home and a motor car for every third house in Kansas. That is a record not equalled in this country, and it is doubtful if any similar area or population in the world can come up to this remarkable statement showing the conveniences of modern life playing such an important part in the every day life of the citizens of one commonwealth.

The Kansas public utilities commission has just completed the tabulation of the reports of all the telephone companies operating in the State. The reports are required annually at the close of the fiscal year —June 30. There are 928 separate exchanges in the State, operated by slightly over 600 different firms, individuals, and corporations.

These companies have a total of 137,276 miles of wire within the state and there are 281,548 separate subscriber. There is a telephone for each 5.94 persons within the state, almost a telephone for every average sized family in Kansas, counting five as the average family. There are considerably more telephones than actual residences.

About one-half the telephones are in the cities and the rest in the rural districts. The city telephones are operated chiefly by three companies —the Bell and its allied corporations and the companies allied with the independent telephone organization.

In the rural districts the telephones are operated chiefly by mutual telephone companies, organized by the farmers and townspeople for their own benefit and connected with the exchanges of the Bell or Independent companies.

In this way the farmer many miles from town is able to talk with his neighbours, grocer, or banker, and on some lines is able to talk to any point where the big telephone companies have connections. Some of these rural telephone lines are fearfully and wonderfully mad of 'junk' from city lines, old instruments, old wires, and old exchanges being purchased by farm mutuals. In some cases the wires are strung along the fence posts and used as part of the fence.

The 928 telephone exchanges in the state have a total investment of $14,408,751. The gross revenues for the year were $3,050,236 and the expense of operation were $2,192,110.

16,384 AUTOS IN STATE.

In the office of the secretary of State there has been registered 116,-.4 motor cars in the State since July 1. Kansas requires the annual registration of motor cars and all cars must get new tags July 1. On this registration there is a motor car for every fifteen persons in the state, one car for every third family.

While exact figures are not available as there is no segregation of city and rural car licenses, a test applied to two central Kansas counties showed more cars owned by farmers than by city residents.

Bandmaster Hughes Honoured By His Men

ARE CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY TO KILL LLOYD GEORGE

Four Persons Arrested in England, Charged with Attempting to Poison the Premier—After Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson as Well

THREE ARE WOMEN

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The arrest of four persons charged with conspiracy to poison Premier Lloyd George, became known to-day through the arraignment of this quartet at Derby. The defendants called to the bar to-day were Mrs. Alice Wheddon, her daughter, Harriet, and another daughter, Mrs. Winnifred Mason, with Albert Mason, husband of the last named daughter. Mason is an expert chemist, and has been known as a "C. O." (conscientious objector) to war and war service, as they are known in England. The women are supposed to be all suffragettes. The conspiracy was reported to Scotland Yards Saturday and was followed up by the Secret Service with characteristic efficiency and thoroughness. Chief Inspector Parker, himself, assuming charge. Mrs. Mason was arrested at Southampton; the other three alleged conspirators were taken in custody at Derby.

The cable dispatch telling of the Police Court hearing of the four alleged conspirators is the first intimation to reach this country of an attempt on the Premier's life. Whether dissatisfaction with the war or suffrage issues prompted the alleged plot, was not made apparent by the first despatches passed by the censor. Lloyd George has been a friend of the suffrage movement. However, another agency says these people are also held on a charge of attempting to murder Right Hon. Arthur Henderson, representative of Labour in Lloyd George's Cabinet.

After formal evidence of the plot had been outlined at the hearing in Derby, the four prisoners were remanded until Saturday. The only evidence which the Crown gave against the defendants was the formal statement of charges on which they had been taken into custody. It is understood that the Crown has thirty witnesses to support a charge of "Conspiracy to Murder" Premier Lloyd George and Right Hon. Arthur Henderson.

Mrs. H. Fuller Won the Clock

Oak Hall Time Piece Stopped at 4 Minutes to 11 O'clock Last Night

The clock contest conducted by Oak Hall Clothiers on Dollar Day created considerable interest until the clock itself settled all speculation by stopping at four minutes to eleven last night, Thursday, January 30th. The winner, Mrs. H. Fuller, 518 Gilmour street, who won it twice, with two of her estimates reading 11.10 p.m. and the other 11.30 p.m. The next closest estimate was Miss Ethel Stevens, 554 Rogers street, with 11.50 p.m., followed by Mr. Fred Cann, R. R. No. 2, 10 p.m., and Miss Jessie Cameron, 708 Stewart street, 9.15 p.m.

The first person to personally notify Mr. Maher of the fact that the clock had stopped was Sergt. Kidd of the police force, who got Mr. Maher out of bed at three o'clock this morning. However, on coming to the store this morning a notice signed by M. Pakenham, Downs street, East City, and dated 11 o'clock, was found. Both men will get a prize and are asked to call into Oak Hall.

The following is the certificate of the judge in connection with the contest:

I, R. M. Glover, wish to state that I have checked over the estimates in the Oak Hall contest and find that Mrs. H. Fuller, 518 Gilmour street, is the winner of the clock for the nearest correct estimate. I have also checked over the Oak Hall sales for the period in which the contest was conducted, with the number of tickets issued, and find the tickets issued to be well within the sales for the period.

Popular Leader of 247th Band is Guest of Honour at Banquet at Which He is Presented With a Beautiful Silver Tea and Coffee Set.

HIS SERVICES RECOGNIZED

If Bandmaster Walter Hughes had any doubts of the warm spot he occupies in the hearts of his men in the band of the old 93rd Battalion, now the band of the 247th Battalion, they were removed last night when the popular leader was the guest of honour at a banquet tendered him by the bandsmen at Hooper's. The esteem and regard in which Bandmaster Hughes is held was the keynote of every speech and the climax came in the presentation to him of a beautiful silver tea and coffee set, suitably engraved and accompanied by an illuminated address.

All the members of the band were present and the evening was a most enjoyable one throughout. Bandsman Tom Blunt, chairman of the committee which had the affair in charge, was the chairman of the evening and he kept things on the move all the way. All the old favourite choruses, "The Long, Long Trail," "Pack All Your Troubles," "I Want to Go Back," "Farewell Isabelle," and other hits were sung by the gathering during the evening, while Bandsman Harry Worral sang "Harrigan" in his own inimitable way, and Bandsman John French contributed "Killarney" with the help of the chorus.

After the enjoyable repast had been done full justice to, the chairman called the gathering to order, and the second part of the programme opened with the hearty singing of the National Anthem.

In his opening address Bandsman Blunt explained the objects of the meeting and paid a warm tribute to Bandmaster Hughes. 'It is an easy thing to say pleasant things about such a leader,' remarked the chairman, who went on to remind the gathering of the many kindnesses Bandmaster Hughes had done the members of his band, not only from a musical standpoint, but in other ways.

Bandsman "Dad" Dyer who was introduced as the father of the band, added his tribute. "I have had a lot to do with bands in my day," remarked the veteran, 'a'nd you would have to go a long, long way to find a better bandmaster than Sergt. Hughes. And I might add that I have never been associated with a better lot of fellows than the 93rd Band.

Bandsman Will Dyer said that no men could have been treated better than had the 93rd Band by Bandmaster Hughes. He recalled the dark days at West Sandling when things were going wrong, when the guest of the evening had carried the whole burden of the band's troubles on his shoulders.

Presentation Made.

The feature of the evening, the presentation to Bandmaster Hughes, followed. The presentation was made by Bandsman H. Miles while Bandsman Fred Wolno read the following address:

To Bandmaster Walter Hughes,
93rd Battalion Band, C.E.F.,

EQUAL FRANCHISE.

The question of equal suffrage — votes for women on a parity with men — is still engaging public attention, though responsible bodies, like governments, fight shy of it. It is urged that, with all the bungle men are making in waging war, the harrassment that they are subjected to, women can wait till after the war for her rights. It is not to be forgotten that in waging this war—in doing equally effective, and in some ays, more, effective, service than men, women are earning the right to have their rights considered. It is only simple justice to claim that, if women are doing so much to help win the war, by making and helping make men fit for for active service, they should have some voice in the readjustment that must come when peace brings its new conditions and its new problems.

Said public opinion is crystallising gradually in the direction of equal franchise. The city council of Hamilton have endorsed the petition of the Equal Franchise Association of that city to the Ontario government, for the extension of the voting franchise to women on equal terms with men. In due time the petition will be presented to Premier Hearst, and very probably he will receive it and take refuge in the war plea—a ready refuge for weak-kneed politicians—it is not desirable to deal with so momentous a question while the war is on. Of course this is only an excuse for delay. The government dealt with prohibition as a war measure, and there is nothing to prevent dealing in a similar manner with the franchise matter. Equal franchise could be regarded as a war measure; if its concession could in any possible way make women more efficient, more willing to do their part in the war. It can't, however, do that, for the women of the country are doing their utmost. But if women get the franchise they will have more power to keep men up to the mark.

SENATE REFORM.

There are heard from time to time, demands for the reform of the Senate, but they come to little. There is a popular idea that the drastic way is the only way—on the principle of the proper way of "docking" an undesirable dog—cutting off his tail just behind the ears. Now, however, that the Conservatives have a majority in the Red Chamber, we don't hear anything more, especially from that source, of the abolition of the Senate by the radical way of reform, in a double sense.

But there is now hope for Senate reform—from within, where all true reform begins. The Senate has taken an important step in reforming itself. On Friday the Standing Committee of the Senate on Divorce made its first report. So important was it that the report should be immediately adopted that "rule 24a and h" were suspended and the report adopted. This action shows the anxiety of the august body to reform itself. The report recommended and so adopted, provides that the quorum be reduced to three members for the taking of evidence in applications for divorce. The self-denial exhibited in adopting this reform is better understood when it is remembered that erstwhile the sporty old senators took eager delight in hearing all the frisky details that develop in taking divorce case evidence. Cutting down the number to be thus delighted to three, is heroic, indeed.

And the senators are to be credited with still higher motives, altruistic motives. They evidently desire to protect the morals of the infant senators, the new batch of seven recently appointed, leaving the danger of contamination from the story of the lurid lapses into domestic infidelity to the fewest possible number, presumably the hardest heads of the morgue members.

If the bill for the establishment of a divorce court, of which notice has been given in the Senate, Senate reform will take on a new life. If the hearing of evidence in divorce applications is taken away from the Senate a large part of its raison d'etre and of its attractiveness will be removed, and there will be less allurement to living interment.

RELATIVE LEADERSHIP.

Party journals are prone to give credit to their party leaders, not for doing well so much as for doing better than their opponents under given conditions. The Ottawa Journal-Press speaks in glowing terms of the readiness with which the Borden government pledged Canada's help to the Empire in this war, and contrasts it with the alleged slowness of the Laurier government in responding to the Imperial government's appeal for Canadian contingents in the Boer war. The Brantford Expositor points out that the conditions were different. The Empire's needs in the Boer war were not so great as they are today, and, besides, Sir Wilfred Laurier was creating a precedent. The declared policy of Canada previously, as expressed and applied by Sir John McDonald, was that Canadian troops should not be sent overseas, even in Britain's wars; and they were not sent; the request of Lord Salisbury for Canadian troops was refused. Before and since the Boer war imperial sentiment has grown immensely. Before Sir Wilfred Laurier's regime there was hardly anything like imperial sentiment as we know it now. It was Sir Wilfrid who gave it a fillip by gratuitously granting a tariff preference to Great Britain; and it is adding to his action his attitude in imperial relations brought the imperial sentiment of oneness and co-operation into a more lively being. The imperial spirit that prompted and justified the Borden government's action in 1914, was largely due to the influence of Sir Wilfred Laurier, who, if he had been in power in 1914, would have probably done the same in effect, only in a different way. One thing he would have done: he would have led Canada in an efficient way in contributing war service. He wouldn't have kept three Nationalist ministers in his cabinet, who were opposed to the government's policy; opposed to recruiting, and a positive deterrent to recruiting, especially in Quebec. Sir Wilfred would have been the head of his cabinet, and not been controlled—and "bossed"—by a minister or ministers. He would have made short work of recalcitrants, as the Conservatives now regard Sir Sam Hughes. He would have showed him the way out, as he did to the late Sir Israel Tarte, when he tried to take the bit in his teeth.

SUPREME INTEREST AND DUTY OF CANADA IN THE PRESENT PERILOUS TIMES

There may be some advantages in the adjournment of Parliament just now. It will be an advantage alike to the nation and to the Empire, if Canadians, all Canadians, turn away from the squabbles of party politics and, with high and earnest purpose, set themselves resolutely to the real and serious business of the hour. That first and most urgent business is the winning of this world war in the interest of freedom and of law and of a just and noble peace. Till that is made sure nothing else supremely matters, either for Canada or for the world.

The ins and outs of party politics do not matter. What mattered in Britain was not Asquith or Bonar Law, or Balfour or Lloyd George. What matters in Canada is not Borden or Laurier or any other man or group of men. Nothing matters just now but the leadership of the people—strong, straight, forward leadership.

The people will follow, eagerly follow, into the hardest service and through the sorest sacrifice, if only the lead is strong and straight on. Toronto, with its voluntary campaign for service through giving, proved that last week, proved it to the last letter. How keen it was! keen uncomplaining, glad!

Why can't we have the same spirit in the leadership of the whole country as in the leadership of the whole city? The people are the same. Their interests are the same. Differences among the provinces between the Atlantic and the Pacific, and differences between the races in the Provinces — all these petty differences would be swallowed up into the unity of one commanding service, as happened among the wards of the city and between Jews and Gentiles last week, if only the right spirit dominated and the right lead were given.

Is it not possible for the government, or for some strong and high-minded members of the Government, to strike a new note, and to strike it strongly and continuously, until it find the response of true patriotism in the soul of the people? Is it not possible for Parliament, even before it adjourns, to find its real voice, the voice of the people's freedom, and rising above the bickerings of partisanship, to act the part of a real Parliament speaking in the name of a free people? And it is not possible for the Press, the free spirited and undominated Press, the clearest and most potent voice Democracy ever hears these days—is it not possible for the Press to shut off the noisy chatterboxes, and to give the people the master note, the note of honour and service, and a great lead?

Surely we have all had enough, and very much more than enough, of babble merely for babble, of the jockeying for party advantage; and of the calculated service of the public that in reality means treason.

The adjournment of Parliament will be a relief and a great chance if only the recess gives birth to a new spirit, if only the machine is broken, and if only the soul of the people is set free.—The Toronto Globe.

Murderer Steward Making Ready For Death on Gallows

Send down if not used to-day.

PRISONER SAYS HE NEVER INTENDED TO SLAY OFFICER.

WINDSOR, Jan. 31.—Resigned to the death penalty, which he admits is due him for his crime of slaying Marshal Jackson of Winnipeg Canadian deportation officer, James Steward, who was captured Saturday morning after a two days' hunt, wrote to officials of the Salvation Army on Monday asking that officers be sent to assist him in making ready for the end.

"There is no use denying it, or making any attempt to defend myself," Steward told his guards, who will patrol the narrow corridor in front of the murderer's cell, night and day, until the trial in March. "I will do all I can to make myself right with God."

"As I said soon after my arrest in the Windsor hotel, I never intended to kill Jackson, who was kind to me, and told me of the presents that he intended to take back to his family in Winnipeg; but I did want to regain my liberty, and this is the result—under arrest on the charge of murder."

Steward's appetite has not been affected by the vision of the gallows, which, he says, haunted him Saturday night and all day Sunday, to such an extent that sleep came to his tired frame at infrequent intervals.

Without food or drink from the time he walked from his seat beside Officer Jackson in the railroad coach to take a drink of water, just previous to the shooting, Steward had been provided with an unlimited amount of food. Since being taken to Sandwich jail he has done nothing else, and expresses sorrow for Jackson's family.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

SOLDIERS ANXIOUS TO WIPE OUT THE DEFEAT

Nobel the Only Team That Has Beaten 247th and Local Squad Hope to Get Revenge on Friday Night When Northerners Will Play at Brock Street Rink.

The Nobel hockey team, which will meet the 247th squad at Brock street rink on Friday night will give the Soldiers the hardest opposition they have had here yet, according to the 247th men themselves, who haven't forgotten the game with the Nobel team at Parry Sound at the beginning of the season. Nobel won by 4 goals to 2, and are therefore the only team that has taken a fall out of the Soldiers this season. The 247th are anxious to wipe out that defeat and will be out to do their prettiest. The Northerners have a world of speed and good combination as well and the clash on Friday night should be about the prettiest of the season. The game will put the 247th in the best of shape for their second round fixtures with the Depot Battery, Kingston, which will be played next week. The band of the 247th Battalion will be in attendance at Friday night's game.

GREAT INTEREST IN KINGSTON-PETES GAME

There is great interest being shown in the visit of the Kingston juniors here on Monday night in the O. H. A. semi-final. Not only is it the first time for five seasons that Peterborough juniors have reached the second round, but it is also the first appearance of the Kingston youngsters here in a number of years, and the game will be doubly interesting on that account. The biggest crowd in several seasons will be on hand for the big junior battle, the first game of the series that will decide the championship of Eastern Ontario and give the winners a chance to meet the Toronto section in the third round.

WITH THE CURLERS

Tankard Practice.

Last night the two tankard rinks skipped by R. M. Waddell and W. M. Lang played a practice game in preparation for the Toronto games. An opportunity is being provided for these workouts and the District Cup players will share the same provision. Some one suggested that the Tankard rinks should take on practice games with the District "cuppers" to vary the form.

The Lindsay Engagement.

When the Lindsay-Peterborough cup games are played in the near future there should be a real clash. The tankard and district cup rinks will be the contenders for either side in the Lindsay end of the contest. When the District cup rinks were in Lindsay a few weeks ago they noticed posted on the board of the rink that the Tankard and District cup rinks were even then chosen to play Peterborough in the inter-town games. Peterborough curlers are not exactly gloating over defeating Lindsay twice this season, but it tickles them considerably. Now, if they can capture the Peterborough-Lindsay annual honours, the men of Flavelle can have both ends of the bonspiel here or anything else they can carry away. Of course it is fully recognized here that Lindsay will put up their usual strong game, and will make an extra effort to turn the tables on Rollie Waddell, who was particularly responsible for the Tankard win.

Players Who Are Missed.

There are quite a few players of last year whose absence is felt this season at the Curling Rink. Almost the first person recalled in that regard is Mr. Robert Neill, who is only now recovering from a very serious illness. He was always an enthusiastic curler, and a leader in the activities of the club. His resounding advice to his rink is conspicuously missing. Herb. Martin is another absentee, and while J. E. A. Fitzgerald is unattached he has played but few games thus far. Fred Cressman, one of the younger players, who had been progressing rapidly, is overseas in the air service. W. H. Denham is again a member but the duties of his position with the Quaker Oats Co. has allowed very little time at the rink. His vice-skip, W. M. Bradburn, has been in charge of his rink for most of the scheduled games. Another absentee is Mr. A. Mowat, and Mr. John Crane, unattached this year, has been an infrequent curler.

LAST NIGHT'S SCORES.

The results of last night's games are as follows:

J. H. Parsons	J. K. Parking
C. C. Abbott	A. M. Laidlaw
A. Archibald	A. C. Kay
C. H. Pennefather, Skip.....12	R. Eason, Skip.....21

TO-NIGHT'S GAMES.

Hicks vs. W. G. Ferguson.
Denham vs. Kay.
Sturgeon vs. Davidson.
Archibald vs. Wightman.
Morrow vs. Dr. Greer.

HOCKEY GOSSIP

The Peterborough juniors will practise at Brock street rink to-night, and every player is expected out sharp at 7 o'clock. The Kingston team will be here Monday night and the local youngsters will have to be in the best of shape.

It will be Kingston-Peterborough week in hockey circles next week. The Kingston Hockey Club, champions of Group No. 1 in the junior series, are scheduled to play the Peterborough juniors in the second round, while the Depot Battery team of Kingston and the 247th intermediate will clash in the intermediate second round. It will be the biggest week of the season in hockey circles.

Buffalo Bill's Last $150.000 Sunk In A Mine

TUCSON, Ariz., January 30. — Not generally known is the fact that "Buffalo Bill" lost his last stake in the mountains north of Tucson, where he sunk $150,000 he and close friends had raised.

About seven years ago he was brought to Arizona by Captain J. D. Burgess, who had a group of mining claims near Oracle, at Camp Bonito. Cody with little knowledge of mines or mining, saw much more in the property than did any Arizonan, and plunged in its development, though caution constantly was advised by the local manager, N. H. Getchell.

Additions were made till 150 claims stood in the name of the Cody interests. Thirty five thousand dollars were spent in buying and refitting an old mill, for which there was little ore of worth, and a narrow gauge railway was built to the mill from a couple of mine workings.

HOLIDAY IN CAMP.

Cody took keen delight in visiting the mines, where something of a holiday prevailed on his arrival, always gift laden for the miners' families and where his genial presence really was a trial for the management, for strict discipline could not be enforced as long as the great plainsman lingered.

He insisted on taking the lead in planning. A tunnel 1100 feet long was driven to no profit, and then another was started only 100 feet below.

DIED ALMOST PENNILESS.

The gold claims were of little promise and gave but slight returns for the sums wasted upon them. On one smal group was tungsten ore, sheelite, of some value, and was worked with profit during the late tungsten boom.

After three years the truth dawned upon Cody when his manager made his final protest, and he had gone. Then it was that the "Pretty camp" was abandoned and the great scout entered upon his last trail almost penniless.

COLDEST WINTER OF YEARS IN THE BALKANS.

VIENNA, January 30. — Heavy snows and intense cold have resulted in a slackening and here and there a total cessation of the military operations on all the fronts where the Austro-Hungarian troops are engaged. Blizzards prevail in East Galicia, Bukowina, the wooded Carpathians and Roumania, the snow being several feet deep. The temperature is the lowest in years, which is true also of the northern sectors of the Italian front, and the Balkans.

Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Will you kindly allow me a little space in your paper to ask the woman that was at the Red Cross meeting and pulled a soldier's widow all to pieces if she isn't down-right ashamed of herself, if she isn't, she hasn't got shame. Fancy she says it's no wonder that woman's husband was killed; the woman went out and spent his money and had a good time. It would have suited her better if she had saved his money and got herself a home. Well let me tell that gossiper of a woman, that she don't know what she is talking about. I very much doubt if she knows the one she pulled to pieces because the things she said about this widow, are not true and I can prove them and will do it if that woman will come out and say so to me. This soldier's wife does keep her house clean and also her children and she does own her home and never spent her money anyway only the way her husband wished her to. I suppose this gossiper has no one at the war. It's about time the gossiper did more work and stopped pulling soldiers' wives and widows all to pieces. Do they expect a soldier's wife to never go out, or do they think she should sit in the house, day after day, and look for the sad news of her husband being killed or wounded? God alone knows what these women go through from day to day; the misery they have. They don't need to go around looking sad and long-faced, they must keep up for their children's sake. Don't you think the best thing this woman can do is to go and beg this widow's pardon for the cruel things she has said about her? I do. I think it's time there was a little consideration given to a soldier's widow. I say all honour to them for the great sacrifice they made. Thanking you I am.—One Who Knows These Facts to be True.

Peterborough, Jan. 29.

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Just a few lines with regard to the garbage collection. How is it the ashes were not collected from Aylmer street yesterday? They never collected any ashes yesterday at all. They are very quick in enforcing what receptacles to use in gathering the ashes, and also in having them placed in a certain place, but why don't they demand the same rigid enforcement on the collector's part? They don't care whether they are collected or not. The garbage men handle the utensils about as rough as they know how; you would think they were handling hay. The ratepayers pay for the taking away of the ashes and the ashes should be removed. Why don't the Mayor see that they are taken away regularly? If it was some rich dude it would be attended to at once, but since he is a poor, ordinary man, make nothing out of it. I guess the Mayor don't remain in the city long enough to know how things are being run. Too bad they don't give him an aeroplane so he can see all the city simultaneously.

Sincerely.

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I note with pleasure that the Examiner is a staunch supporter and advocate of School Savings' Banks, and hope your efforts on this line of public service may create an interest that will impel our school Board to make this matter a real educational cause.

Penny savings in its formative influence on the public school scholar is as truly an educational factor as mathematics, and should be regarded by our School Board from an educational as well as an economic standpoint.

Its introduction adds no mental burden to the overtaxed student, as its effect is inspirational and stimulative, begetting and encouroging sense of accomplishment and worth, and a consciousness of ability to achieve, that will incidentally inspire effort in more difficult tasks.

Its benefits are almost immediately appreciable (a great factor of success) and its possibilities in counteracting the spendthrift tendencies of the times are well worth trial.

Economic conditions of the present and future demand that the subject be no longer treated as optional or as a mere good idea. Efficiency, thrift, economy must be our practice if we are to hold our place as a nation, for these are to be our real competitors. It was the peasants' stocking that saved France from the economic consequences of 1870 and it is rendering the same service to-day.

For years to come we shall not be able to borrow abroad, the people of our own land must keep the wheels of industry turning and development active.

The hard school of pioneer privations furnished most of us and our fathers with an economic education. Children of the present day have no such experience and therefore, education in thrift is a national necessity. Many young men of to-day have wasted the equivalent of a modest home before the time of marriage arrives, and education is the only means of counteracting this loss.

The man with a financial reserve is the balance wheel in a dull period or financial crisis and conservation of resources is both an individual benefit and national advantage.

The school is the most effective place to operate; 100 scholars will participate by reason of the natural effect of example where a few would go down town to a penny bank if one existed, and many a careless spendthrift career turned to the pathway of constructive citizenship.

Local difficulties of operation are said to have prevented the School Board from giving this matter a test. We are either melting difficulties or mounting them in every other line, and no doubt it can be done in this; "necessity is the mother of invention." Surely the new needs of the times is sufficient incentive and if our School Board measures up to these imperative requirements, it will serve the present, safeguard the future, and do more towards giving the working man a "full dinner pail" than any policy of the politician.

Respectfully yours,
A. B. CUNNINGHAM.

Ends Life With Razor on Fast Central Train

Buffalo Bank Clerk Boards the Empire State Express After Acting Strangely.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Jan. 31. — A well-dressed man with papers in his pockets bearing the name and address "Nathan MacDonald, Buffalo, committed suicide on the eastbound Empire State Express just before the train reached Syracuse late Monday.

The man was about thirty years of age. He had more than $500 in currency in pockets.

Letters indicated he was a member of the Buffalo Chapter, American Institute of Banking, with offices in the Marine Bank Building.

Fellow travellers noticed nothing unusual in the traveller's conduct when he arose from his seat and went into the wash room of the car, where he immediately gashed his throat with a razor.

Sunday Lid Law Is Laughed At

Buenos Aires, January 30.—People who have not lived in Buenos Aires make queer mistakes as a result of assuming that things are done here exactly as the law prescribes. Every little while Argentines are astonished to read in a North American or European publication of some system or institution, supposedly existent in their capital, of which they themselves have never heard. Investigation usually develops the fact that the thing really is provided for by law—only that the law has practically been forgotten.

For instance there is the law against the sale of certain drinks on Sunday. When an attempt was made to enforce this regulation a few weeks ago the people were perfectly outraged; thinking generally that the police were attempting to exercise purely arbitrary authority.

Finally a few old inhabitants remembered that away back in the dim past such a law really was passed and that on one or two Sundays eight or ten years ago, the police made a previous ineffective effort to put it into effect.

When the authorities recalled the statute to the public's attention on this latest occasion, it is barely possible that as many as five per cent. of the drinking places in Buenos Aires noticed the police order at all. These establishments complied with the regulations to the extent of serving ardent drinks in coffee cups instead of glasses.

Some half a dozen exceptionally law abiding cafes still do so. There is no reason why they should, for the police capitulated on the second Sunday, admitting that they had undertaken too large a contract.

WILL BOTTLE UP HUN SHIPS MORE CLOSELY

BRITAIN HAS MADE CONSIDERABLE EXTENSION OF DANGER ZONE IN THE NORTH SEA.

LONDON, January 31. — Nothing has been officially announced here in regard to the extension of the "dangerous-to-shipping" zone in the North Sea, but the censor has permitted the publication of Scandinavian despatches referring to the new naval measures. According to telegrams from Copenhagen, Scandinavian traffic with Holland hereafter will be very difficult and the Danish fishing industry will be considerably hampered.

A warning that Great Britain had made a considerable extension to the danger zone in the North Sea was received by the State department in Washington on Saturday from the American embassy at London. The new line cuts off the entire German North Sea coast and its purpose is presumed to be to bottle up more closely the German warships at Heligoland and lessen the possibility of the escape of raiders.

Mayor's Inaugural Address Was Unearthed By Board Of Works Committee

Committee Held a Post Mortem Over the Documents and After Preserving a Few Extracts for Posterity Gave the Remains a Decent Burial—City Engineer Parsons Asked to Prepare Plans and Specifications For a New Bridge Over Hunter Street.

Inaugural addresses are something to be forgotten. Not so with Mayor Duffus, who rather than see his inaugural address swallowed up in the dusty archives of the City Hall causes it to be dissected and placed on the and Canals would not agree to such the Board of Works Committee held last evening several extracts from the Mayor's inaugural address were shovelled out of the heap and summarily dealt with. Those that proved too much for the Committee were given a decent burial. page

GOOD ROADS.

The matter of securing an adequate supply of road making material will be made the subject of a report to the next meeting of the Board.

City Engineer Parsons was instructed to prepare an estimate of the quantity of sewer pipe and cement required by the city for the ensuing year, and order it in accordance with the existing contract, which does not expire until the middle of March .By doing this the city will avoid on the increase in price of about thirty per cent.

THE FOOTBRIDGE.

Ald. Langford reported the receipt of a letter saying that the city would have to make a deposit of $1,800 before work would be commenced on the footbridge to be attached to the C.P.R. bridge crossing the Otonabee River. This sum has been deposited and the C.P.R. is expected to commence work at an early date.

Ald. Weir informed the committee that the services of Mr. Pretty could not be secured for the purpose of examining the present Hunter Street bridge as the department of Railways and Canals would not agree eto such an arrangement. An attempt will be made to secure the services of Mr. Caddy of Campbellford.

Ald. Smith recommended a six months' hoist for the sewerage disposal scheme, which was one of the items referred to in the Mayor's inaugural address.

HUNTER STREET BRIDGE

City Engineer Parsons was instructed to prepare plans and specifications for a concrete and steel overhead bridge to replace the present bridge on Hunter Street. Ald. Smith favoured the Board with a dissertation on bridge construction.

ROAD OIL

A circular letter was received from a couple of Oil Companies, setting forth the advantages of road oil. It was generally agreed by the Board that road oil should be purchased in time for the opening of the season. City Engineer Parsons and the Chairman of the Board were instructed to secure prices, also estimates of the cost of a storage tank. Last year the city paid demurrage charges on cars that were held on the track until the oil could be applied. Demurrage charges did not exceed thirty-five dollars. About forty-three thousand gallons of road oil were used last year.

Ald. McIntyre was of the opinion that another oil distributor was required. Ald. Weir was in favour of getting a storage tank in preference to the distributor. Prices will be secured on a distributor.

STREET SCRAPER.

The City Engineer was instructed to write to Ottawa for plans of a sidewalk scraper, to be used in icy weather. The scraper is used to roughen up the icy sidewalks and is cheaper than using sand. It will cost in the neighborhood of sixty or seventy dollars.

On motion of Alderman Smith and McIntyre the Board will recommend that the City Council handle the proposed sanitary plumbing scheme in preference to the Utilities Commission. Ald. Smith referred to the Police Commission as a horrible example of Commission form of administration. "They do what they like and we pay the bill" declared the East City representative.

SMOKE NUISANCE.

Mr. G. O. Cameron addressed a letter to the Board asking the city to take action regarding the smoke nuisance in Peterborough. The writer suggested that a by-law be passed compelling the owners of factories to instal smoke consumers ,thereby "making this a better and cleaner city to live in."

Ald. Smith moved that the matter be received. Ald. Duncan was of the opinion that the matter should be looked into as complaints were numerous. Ald. Smith contended that there was nothing on the market today to mitigate the nuisance sufficient to make it worth while incurring any expense.

Ald. Duncan moved that information be secured from other towns and cities.

Ald. Smith seconded Ald. Duncan's resolution.

SUMMARY ACTION.

Peterborough Utilities Commission was granted permission to erect eleven poles on Elm street, as the poles are already in place, the necessary permission was granted. Similar action was taken in connection with three poles on Water street.

A number of guard rails needed in various parts of the city were reported on by City Engineer Parsons. The entire list was adopted by the Board.

FALSE STEERING GEAR RIDES GUN

PERNAMBUCO, Jan. 31.—From information gleaned from survivors of steamers recently sunk in the South Atlantic by the German raider, it has been learned that the raider was a vessel of the merchant type, about 300 feet long, and with parts of her sides movable. She had two telescope masts, two telescope funnels, a false hand steering gear on the poop deck, which concealed her largest gun, and four concealed torpedo tubes.

The steamer, it is said, mounts four six-inch and two four-inch guns, also smaller guns, including several of the machine type.

The captain of the raider, according to some of the men brought here, informed a captured British officer that he was not interested in passenger boats. He sought only cargo boats, he said, as he had not accommodations for women and children. The raider frequently was repainted and had on board sufficient material to completely change her appearance.

There is disagreement among the men landed here as to whether the raider is armored. All of them agree however, that the raider is thoroughly equipped and that no detail in this respect has been overlooked. As an example, they say, each prisoner on boarding the raider is furnished with a kit, hammock and blanket.

Quoting a captured British captain, the raider is a dangerous boat in the hands of a clever man.

STRANGE VESSEL OFF N. Y.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Officials of the British Government in New York admitted to-day that wireless messages have been sent out warning Allied shipping that an unidentified vessel of a suspicious character is cruising off the entrance to New York harbor.

There is no intimation in the warning despatches that the vessel is a German cruiser, but commanders of ships leaving New York or bound for this port are advised by the British authorities to refuse to answer wireless messages when an answer would possibly betray their whereabouts, and to cut and run and send out S.O.S. calls should they sight a suspicious vessel on the high seas.

LEAVES A BRIDE OF TWO MONTHS

But Missing Barber is Located in the States.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Jan. 31.— A barber going under the name of Thomas Ensby, an American, disappeared from here a few days ago, leaving a bride of two months, the daughter of a Brockville resident. Investigation by the police showed that Ensby had a wife and three children living across the line, and steps were taken to bring about his arrest on a charge of bigamy. The man was located at Stella Mines, N. Y., and upon being brought to Prescott by a U. S. officer he was promptly arrested by the Canadian authorities and brought here. The prisoner is on remand.

AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION'S ANNUAL MEETING FULL OF PROMISE FOR 1917 PROGRESS

Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie Elected President and Major N. H. Sutton, M. D. Hon. President—Financial Statement Shows Balance of $35.88—Fee $3, Same as 1916

The large attendance at the annual meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Ontario Motor League in the Bank of Montreal chambers, last night, left the impression that the Association had been recently revived, if not re-born. Perhaps the members and other automobile owners of this vicinity had undergone something of a baptism of fire from the trenches, disguised as ruts, that appear with disheartening succession on almost every road, or in sections of them, radiating from the city. And this doesn't exclude the city's horrible examples.

Probably many of the autoists who have heretofore held aloof from the Association, have concluded that there is some merit in organizing to secure a measure of smoothness in roadways which, as individuals, they have realised is beyond their uncombined resources and influence. This may account for the fact that last night's meeting was apparently the most successful in the history of the Peterborough Motor League, but at that it should be remembered that good roads are not built in a day, and the present year is not likely to bring about the improvement in this district for which the hearts of automobile owners yearn.

MAJOR SUTTON, M.D., REMEMBERED.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., acting chairman for the past year, presided. When Major Sutton, M.D., enlisted for overseas service, Mr. Gillespie, as Vice-President last year, fulfilled the duties of the position. Last night, when the business of electing new officers was reached, Dr. Amys proposed that Major Sutton be elected Honorary President for 1917. This was unanimously carried, and Mr. Gillespie was elected president.

The officers for this year were chosen as follows:

Hon. Pres.—Major N. H. Sutton, M.D.

President — George A. Gillespie, M.P.P.

Vice-Pres.—Reg. H. Turner.

Sec.-Treas.—C. E. Canfield.

Directors—H. O. Fiske, J. E. A. Fitzgerald, R. Lees, Mark Burnham, and Robt. Dobie.

Good Roads Committee—G. Walter Green, chairman; G. A. Gillespie, Mayor Duffus, C. H. Amys, M.D., R. B. Rogers and Richard Lees.

Entertainment Committee — Fred L. Roy, chairman; W. Howard Warham, Dickson Hall, E. W. Borbridge, Roland Danne, and Dr. M. A. Morrison.

Membership Committee — R. S. Cotton, C. R. Banks, Bert Manning, Andrew Brown, R. J. Munro, T. C. Elliott, R. G. Sturgeon, R. Dobie, M. Burnham, Alex. Anderson, of Keene; Dr. Turner of Millbrook, Noble Kelly of Bridgenorth, W. Blewett of Hall's Bridge, H. G. Fitzgerald of Lakefield, Hal Choate of Warsaw.

FEE SAME AS LAST YEAR.

Moved by Mr. Fiske, seconded by Mr. Roy, that the membership fee remain unchanged at $3.—Carried.

As Chairman elect of the Good Roads Committee, ex-Ald. Green, following his usual directness of method, asked for an outline of the scope of that committee. He pointed out that the League could not improve roads without money and a three-dollar fee was insufficient to permit any expenditure in that direction.

Dr. Amys reviewed the limited efforts that had been put forward in the past. The most promising work had been that of inviting the Township roadmasters to an annual drive at which an expert on good roads gave an address.

scheme recently revived by Mr. Geo. nised that the Motor League could not accomplish any direct results, but the Committee should devote its attention to maintaining city and county interest in the good roads scheme recenly revived by Mr. Geo. Hogarth at a meeting of the County Council. Other speakers on this subject were Messrs. Fiske, Rogers, Morrison, Banks, Canfield and Lees.

GOVERNMENT PATRONAGE STEPS IN.

The question of appointing a member to issue automobile licenses this year was next introduced. Some of the members were discussing it without the knowledge of a recent innovation when Mr. Banks stated that apparently the Association had no longer a voice in the appointment. He understood that the Government had taken it over this year, and Capt. R. J. Soden, as dispenser of local patronage, had selected Mr., Wm. Lytle, Dr. Amys and Mr. Canfield added that they had learned from Mr. S. J. Keyes something to that effect. Mr. Keyes was Secretary of the local Motor League until his removal to Toronto. Several years ago, it was stated, the licenses were issued at Toronto, and through the efforts of the Peterborough Automobile Association, permission was obtained to issue licenses in this city. The appointment was left to the Association. Two years ago twenty-five cents was the fee for each license issued, and last year the Association paid a lump sum of $25 to the person who issued them.

DISAPPROVED OF THE CHANGE

Dr. Amys stated that Mr. Lytle was entirely satisfactory, but he disapproved of the change without even notifying the Association, who had been instrumental in securing the local facility of issuance. He moved a resolution that the Association disapprove of placing the automobile licenses under the Government patronage system and that a copy of the resolution be sent to the Hon. Mr. McDermid, and also to the Secretary of the Ontario Motor League. Mr. Canfield seconded the motion, which was carried.

At that stage of the proceedings the attendance had melted to about one-third of the number present during the evening.

Mr. Green suggested that nothing be done that would cause friction. He was satisfied to have Mr. Lytle as issuer of the licenses.

Dr. Amys replied that he had no criticism of Mr. Lytle, but the principle seemed unfair to the Association.

THE FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

Mr. Canfield's report showed receipts during the year of $286.52, which, with the 1915 balance of $19.76, made a total of $306.28. The expenditures amounted to $270.40, with a present balance of $35.88. There were ninety-one members enrolled during the year.

THOSE PRESENT.

Among those present were G. A. Gillespie, R. S. Cotton, T. C. Elliott, M. A. Morrison, H. O. Fiske, R. B. Rogers, W. J. Hancock ,R. J. Munro, R. Dobie, W. H. Lytle, R. Lees, Dr. Amys, Dickson Hall, R. H. Turner, C. E. Canfield, G. W. Green, R. Sturgeon, A. Brown, F. L. Roy, Bert Manning, Mark Burnham, Dr. Carmichael C. A. White, C. R. Banks, P. Westbye, E. W. Borbridge E. G. Hiland, W. H. Waram and W. Blewett.

Silver Fox Sells for $500

"Sir Roger" Pedigreed Animal, To Be Presented to Zoo.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 31.—"Sir Roger," a pedigreed silver fox, was sold for $500 to-day at the opening of the fur auction. The three hundred buyers represented about 95 per cent of the fur buying capital in the world.

The purchaser of the live silver fox announced that the animal will be presented to the St. Louis Zoological Park.

In the first thirty minutes of the auction more than 2,000 silver fox skins were sold for the United States Government. This lot brought about $80,000. Wart T. Bower, chief agent for the Alaska Fisheries Service, said the price paid for the silver fox skins were twenty per cent. higher than the prices paid at the auction here last September.

Among the buyers were representatives of eight English firms, one Dutch firm, one Russian, five German and two Austrians. It is estimated that the pelts offered at auction this week will bring more than $3,000,000.

Hit Twice In Heart

Marcil Belliveau, N. H. A. Hockey Player, Invalided Home—Has Iron Cross.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Jan. 31. — After being twice wounded in the heart —onle by a bullet and again by Cupid—and the proud possessor of an Iron Cross, Marcil Belliveau, a a Moncton and N.H.A hockey player, has been invalided home. Belliveau got his bullet wound in his heart at Courcellette during the attack on the famous Sugar refinery there. He was operated on and his heart has now moved over to the right side. He got the Iron Cross after a hand-to-hand fight with a German colonel, who was wearing it.

Belliveau married the nursing sister who looked after him in hospital. He exhibited the Iron Cross to friends here and also a prayer book through which the bullet that entered his heart had bored.

Returned men who had won the Military Cross were Lieutenant Simmille, Wiarton, Ontario, and Lieut. F. J. Behan, Toronto. The former did good work on the Somme. He went into action with 48 men and came out of the fighting with but five injured. His work with the grenade section was considered most valuable.

Lieut. Behan went overseas as a private.

Ordered Gin and Cheese Into Sea

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. — Thirty tons of merchandise consisting of Holland gin and Dutch cheese, part of a 300-ton cargo on the Dutch steamship Vulcanus, were thrown into the sea by orders of a German submarine commander, when the ship was held up by a U-boat, December 27, 94 miles off Start Point light on the English coast, according to officers of the Vulcan, on arrival here.

The vessel was on her way from Rotterdam to Lisbon, Portugal, the officers said, when the submarine appeared. An officer came aboard, made a careful examination of the ship's manifests and carefully checked each item. He passed everything that to his mind would be of no use to the enemy, but drew a sharp line on the gin and cheese, declaring them to be "contraband foodstuffs," and ordered them thrown overboard. The submersible stood by three hours while the orders were being carried out.

FRENCH SOLDIER WITH TWO WAR MEDALS IS A PETERBORO' VISITOR

Pte. Ernest Louis Raoul Grosvalet, a soldier of France, the breast of whose tunic is decorated with two medals for conspicuous braver and gallantry in the service of his country, epitomises the spirit of intense patriotism and loyalty of his countrymen, which has won for France in the European war undying fame and the admiration of the whole world.

Pte. Grosvalet will lectur at the Grand Opera House in connection with the Canadian Government war pictures which will be shown here on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Garbed in the blue uniform and blue cap with short vigor of the French infantry, and wearing his medals of honour, he attracts attention whenever he appears on the streets. With his legs encased in black leggins, Pte. Grosvalet walks with an almost imperceptible limp. That he is lame would be unnoticed in a casual glance.

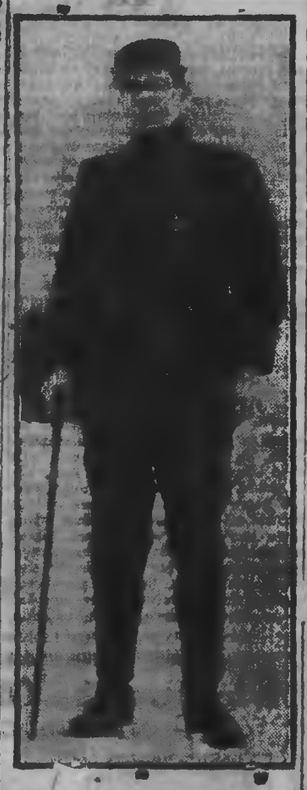
Pte. Grosvalet was born in the French Colony of St. Pierre Miquelon. His father is a French official. Grosvalet, 18 years old at the time, was in Montreal, in the employ of the C. P. R. when France declared war on Germany. He immediately joined the company in which he was trained, the Regiment d'Infanterie Coloniale du Marco, and went to the trenches. He was in Belgium for ten months and in France for two months.

RESCUED HIS CAPTAIN

He received his first medal, the Croix de Guerre, May 9, 1915, for rescuing the captain of his company from death at the risk of his life. After a brilliant charge by the French troops, Grosvalet says, his company was standing in its trenches and peering over the top of the parapet, he saw his captain lying under the German barbed wire in close proximity to the German trenches. The captain was waving his handkerchief and making other signs in calling for help. Grosvalet volunteered to go to his aid. Under the direct fire of a machine gun the soldier, crawling slowly and in a zigzag fashion to avoid being hit, reached his superior's side. The captain had been wounded in the thigh and was unable to walk. Grosvalet placed him on his shoulder and carried him safely back to the French lines. The medal was pinned on Grosvalet by Gen. de Castelneau, one of the chief French commanders.

WINS SECOND MEDAL.

He received the Medaille Militaire, the highest decoration which a French private can receive, under even more trying circumstances. It was in the fighting at Loos, and Grosvalet had been employed in carrying despatches. Three of his company had been killed in carrying out a certain mission which involved the delivery of despatches from a captain to a major



PTE. E. L. R. GROSVALET

The distance between the two points was approximately a thousand yards.

After the death of the third runner, and realizing that the undertaking was extremely hazardous, Grosvalet volunteered. The ground over which the journey lay was under constant German fire. The soldier was given the document, and after much difficulty reached the major. The latter in turn gave him an important order to the captain. In his return Grosvalet had covered half the distance when a shell burst near him and he was wounded in seven places, including that which afterward necessitated the amputation of his right leg near the knee. He fell to the ground, and in trying to regain his feet first realized that the use of one leg was gone. He crawled despite his pain the remainder of the distance, finally reaching his captain's side. That officer, after expressing his astonishment that Grosvalet had managed to return considering his wounds, asked, "But where is the order?" "You'll find it in the barrel of my gun. I had it there so the Germans wouldn't find it." Grosvalet then lost conscious ness.

The captain recommended the medal and when Gen. Joffre next inspected the trenches in that vicinity his attention was called to the act. Joffre visited the hospital Oct. 3, 1915, where Grosvalet was recovering from his wounds, and pinned on him the decoration which the soldier prizes far more than all his other earthly belongings.

For ten months he lay in a French hospital, and was then brought to Montreal, Canada.

WOULD BE AN AVIATOR.

But these honours which have been conferred upon him do not suffice. His ambition has been fired. Despite the handicap of an artificial leg and the fact that he has been rendered unfit for trench fighting, Grosvalet is trying by all the means in his power to join Britain's Royal Flying Corps. His application for appointment as an aviator has been filed in London, England, and Ottawa. It will be considered by Lieut. Orr, who is on his way to Ottawa from England. Grosvalet is hoping that he will be accepted. He does not know of any regulation which should prevent his entrance to this service.

Grosvalet has often seen Canadian battalions going into action, and paid a tribute to the courage and initiative of the men of Canada when he declared, "The Canadians always fight like hell!" He added that the men invariably show bravery and resourcefulness while fighting the Germans.

The other day Grosvalet was strolling along and a Canadian recruiting sergeant, failing to recognize the blue uniform of France, exclaimed, "Hey, what are you doing on this side of the border?" The Frenchman laughed and explained to the officer that he was not an American National Guardsman who had wandered across the line.

SOME EXPERIENCES.

The French soldier also tells interesting stories concerning experiences in which he was mistaken for a "slacker." He was riding on a Montreal street car dressed in civilian clothes, he says, when a young woman boarded it. He offered her his seat, but she drew back and declared, "I wouldn't accept the seat of a slacker."

"Have you any relatives in service?" he asked. "Yes," she replied, "my brother is in France." Grosvalet replied dryly, "ask your brother if he found my leg,' and he showed her his artificial limb. The young woman reddened and profuse apologies followed.

On another occasion a young woman stepped up to him when he was wearing "civies" and pinned a white feather on the lapel of his coat. "Ah, that's nice," said Grosvalet. "That makes three medals I've got." He then showed her the two decorations hidden from view on his vest. As in the first instance, embarrassment and apologies ensued.

FARMER HANGS HIMSELF IN BARN

OTTAWA, Jan. 31.—When the mail man went into the barn of William Tomlinson, a prosperous farmer, living near Ashton, on Saturday night, to look for the owner, who had not been seen for some days, he stumbled against the body of a man swinging in the barn floor. The body was that of Tomlinson, who had hanged himself.

JUMPED 15 FEET.

From what the authorities could learn the unfortunate man had laid a fence rail over the two centre "breast" beams of the barn and to this rail he attached one end of a rope and the other he fastened around his neck. Apparently, he jumped some 15 feet for the shock had completely broken the neck.

As the mail man passed the house of the unfortunate man every day, he discovered on Saturday that Tomlinson had not taken in any mail since Thursday. On Wednesday he noticed a light in Tomlinson's house, but he had not been seen for some days previous. He was a very well-to-do, but lived alone.

Accordingly, the mail man thought it was his duty to investigate so tying his horse, he made a survey of the stables and barns.

STOCK NOT FED.

He found the stock of horses sheep and cattle, without food and indications pointed to the fact that they had not been fed for a couple of days. It was about eight o'clock when the postman made the find, the darkness preventing him from seeing Tomlinson's body when he first opened the barn door. Coroner Shannonhouse, from Richmond, was called, but decided that an inquest was unnecessary. As Tomlinson lived alone, it is supposed that his death was due to melancholia.

BANDMASTER HUGHES HONOURED BY HIS MEN

tc you our respects and in some tangible form to show our affection for you and to tender you our sincere thanks.

We know something of the hard work you put in to raise the membership of our band and we much appreciate the patience you have had with us, and your untiring efforts to make us a band worthy of such a battalion. Your kindly interest in us personally has made us better soldiers and bandsmen. Your just and unselfish disposition has endeared you to the heart of every man.

We also remember during our stay in England, how much thought, time and effort you gave to us and for us, to improve the position of every man when you might have been improving yourown position. Such a display of generosity, unselfishness and kindly consideration makes it impossible for us to render adequate redress. We do do not expect to do that. We therefore respectfully ask you to kindly accept the accompanying as being our way of showing in some measure the appreciation we feel.

In January, 1916, we met you under similar conditions to which we do to-day. At that time we pledged to you our loyalty and support which we have honestly tried to give you. Now as we are no longer to be known as the 93rd Band but as the 247th Battalion Band(we again do so with much enthusiasm for the future.

Under your able leadership we hope to be able to give improved service and we renew and confirm our pledge of January 1916.

We wish you and yours for 1917 and the following years health, happiness and usefulness.

Signed for and on behalf of the membership of the 247th Band in Peterborough.

Horace Miles,
Fred J. Wolno,
Members of the Committee.
Thos. R. Blunt,
Chairman.

The presentation consisted of four beautiful pieces of silver engraved, with Bandmaster Hughes' initials, while one piece bore the inscription: "Presented to Bandmaster W. Hughes, in affectionate remembrance by the 93rd Band."

The guest of the evening was greeted with "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" when he arose to reply. He was visibly surprised and affected, but expressed his thanks neatly. He did not want to take any credit, he said, for what he had done in the past. At a similar gathering last year he had played himself to see that every man got a square deal and he had merely tried to carry out that pledge. It was a great pleasure to know that he had the good will of every man in the band and he wished to thank every member for the hearty support they had given him ,sometimes under very trying circumstances. Col. Johnston had done a great deal for the band in England and had worked hard for them.

"I am looking forward to the time of meeting not only Col. Johnston but the other members of the 93rd Battalion," said Bandmaster Hughes. "We are loyal to the new battalion, but I don't think one of you can forget the 93rd and what a fine battalion it was." (Cheers.)

The band would continue to improve. They were the kind of men who took an interest in their work.

Such gatherings as last night's would be long remembered and the bandsmen would not soon forget the good times they had together. "We are only in this business while the war is on," said the speaker, "but long afterwards in civilian life we will continue to meet as brothers."

When the Bandmaster concluded, he was given three hearty cheers and a tiger and Bandsman Dyer called for a similar salutation for Lt.-Col. Johnston which were given with a will that left no doubt as to the feeling of the bandsmen for their old commanding officer. It was decided to send greetings to Lt.-Col. Johnston on behalf of the band.

Speeches expressing the warmest affection for Bandmaster Hughes were given by Sergt. J. Miller and Bandsman Alan Clarke, Hector Loader and H. Wood. The latter who just rejoined the band yesterday, was greeted with hearty cheers.

On motion of Bandsman R. A. Browne and Tom Smith, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Bandsmen Blunt, Miles and Wolno ,the committee in charge of the banquet, for the manner in which they had made the arrangements. Bandsmen Blunt and Wolno replied briefly, and the evening was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

reader, came up from his dugout, calmly saluted, and enquired where he was to go. His Sergeant-Major followed, and knowing well the propensities of our men, held his helmet in front of him ready to offer an emerging from his dugout. Another N.C.O. came from his dugout with peace-offering of cigars, which he distributed freely.

LOCAL AGENTS GET DAMAGES FOR $952.22 WITH INTEREST AND COSTS

Judgement in Favour of Canadian Hood Haggie Ltd., of Peterboro, Against F. V. Samwell of Kingston

Judgment was given at Osgoode Hall, yesterday, by Mr. Justice Kelly in the case of the Canadian Hood Haggie Co. vs. F. V. Samwell of the Dominion Supply Co., Kingston, which was heard here on Wednesday, November 22nd. Mr. E. B. Fowler and Mr. Torrance Jack have the partnership agency of R. Hood Haggie and Sons, Ltd., of Newcastle-on-Tyne, Eng., rope manufacturers. The local warehouse is at the corner of Bethune and Wolfe streets. The plaintiffs brought action to recover $1,056.30 damages, alleged to have been suffered by them by reason of the defendant's default in delivering nails the plaintiffs had contracted to sell to their customers. Mr. Samwell had agreed to supply whatever the Canadian Hood-Haggie travellers might sell. But when orders were taken from firms in Hamilton and other cities Mr. Samwell failed to deliver the nails and the Canadian Hood-Haggie, Ltd., were forced to purchase them in the open market, at a price materially higher than that quoted to their customers.

Mr. Justice Kelly's judgment was entirely in favour of the Peterborough Agency, as follows:

"I find that plaintiff's claim, except $100 for travelling expenses, etc., on account of which I allow $75, is well founded and must be upheld, less a deduction of 36 cents per keg for the 1,163 kegs charged for a discount of that amount having been allowed on the purchases which were made to take the place of those contracted for by the defendant. Judgment for plaintiff for $952.22 and interest from July 1, 1916, and costs and dismissing defendant's counter-claim with costs.

Mr. J. E. L. Goodwill and Lieut. J. F. Strickland with Mr. J. A. Macintosh of Toronto conducted the plaintiff's case, while Mr. W. F. Nickle, K.C., M.P., and Mr. J. M. Farrell, of Kingston, appeared for Mr. Samwell.

Hon. Robert Rogers May Not Accompany Premier Borden

Report of the Colt Commission is Considered in Ottawa to be Convincing Evidence of Hon. Robert Rogers' Implication in the Manitoba Scandal

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Jan. 31.—The semi-official announcement that the Prime Minister intended taking with him to England on his Imperial visit, Hon. Robert Rogers, and Hon. J. D. Hazen, was published simultaneously this morning with the report of Judge Dysart's condemnation of the former Minister in connection with his Provincial ministry in Manitoba. There are indications that the later event may effect the former decision. It is not thought likely here that the Premier will associate with himself as his chosen colleague on an Imperial mission the minister who is accused by a commission of implication in provincial price boosting for campaign fund purposes. The judge's findings backed as they are by evidence, are considered here to be convincing, and Mr. Rogers' statement in reply has given the opposite impression.

BAD FIRE IN OPS TOWNSHIP

40 Head of Cattle, Pigs, Sheep, Hens, Hay, Grain, etc., Destroyed When Mr. Wm. Reed's Barn Caught Fire

The barn and contents of Mr. Wm. Reeds, Lot 9, Con. 7, Ops, was totally consumed by fire yesterday. The only animals saved were the horses.

For two days Messrs. McConnell and Traynor had been threshing alsike clover for Mr. Reed and it is presumed that a spark from the engine is responsible for the fire, which started on the barn floor in the south end of the building.

The loss is a serious one as all the season's grain, hay and straw went up in smoke, together with 40 head of cattle amongst which were some the owner had received an offer of 8c a pound by the butcher; also 27 sheep, 10 pigs and a flock of hens. The horses in the north end of the building were gotten out safely.

The fire swept with such rapidity that it was utterly impossible to get the cattle out. The fire started at ten minutes to twelve and in 30 minutes afterward nothing but the ashes of the building and the charred remains of the cattle could be seen.

Messrs. McConnell and Traynor ate heavy losers also, their clover mill being consumed before the men could remove it from the barn. The only parties around at the time were the threshers and Mr. Reed's three sons, who were powerless to stay the progress of the flames, or do more than they did.

The barn was 100 feet long by 80 feet wide on a stone foundation and a very fine structure. This with the contents was partly covered by insurance, but will in no way compensate the owner for the loss sustained.

SOLDIER'S ROMANCE SHATTERED BY SPECIAL DELIVERY MESSAGE

Disappointed in his romance, Ezra B. Naylor, Jr., private in Company E., Seventh Regiment, arrayed himself in his uniform, which he had worn in his five months' service on the Mexican border, and then laid down to die. He was found lifeless on Sunday morning with gas escaping from a jet. Beside him lay a special delivery letter, which had been mailed from New York the day before. It read:

"I have married John. We are going away."

Neither the authorities nor the young man's parents could shed any light on the identity of the'John' named in the note; nor did they have any knowledge of a marriage that might have caused their son to end his life. The name of the young woman who sent the letter was withheld.

The young man lived at 251 Fremont street. He was employed by the New York Central Railroad at its terminal building in Manhattan. In the same office worked Miss Mildred Barger, of 312 Walnut street, daughter of Mr. Adolphus Barger, a contractor. She is about 22 years old and it was commonly reported around the town that the two were engaged to be married. The young man went away with the Seventh Regiment the end of June to do duty on the border. His regiment was stationed at McAllen, Texas, and from there the young soldier wrote of his life in the mesquite and the burning sun of 115 and 120 degrees. Their correspondence was as regular as it could be in the circumstances.

Private Naylor returned to Peekskill on Thanksgiving Day and found that the affections of the girl had waned somewhat, according to the story told by his parents. But he did not believe that they were on the point of a break.

Miss Barger went to New York about a week ago and was staying with friends in Brooklyn. The young soldier seemed somewhat depressed after he had received the special delivery letter, although his relatives would not say that Miss Barger had sent it or even that any information had come that she had been married at all.

Voice of the People

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir—In your issue of Saturday last I noticed an article signed "Zero," complaining of the temperature of the Market Hall on Saturday morning. Now, "Zero" should understand that Saturday was an extremely cold day, and considering the space to be heated with ceiling about 35 feet high, I doubt if he, with all his hot air, could have heated it as well. Fires were started in the three stoves at 6 o'clock, and were well attended to with good hard wood, not with "wet, mixed wood," as Zero stated, and any sane person can well understand, with two large doors swinging back and forth by persons coming in and going out, continually, you may know how utterly impossible it is to retain the heat satisfactorily. "Zero" speaks about the pokers not being up to the standard quality. Well, some people find fault with everything in sight, and perhaps he may denote us something better as regards those "noble women" suffering so much from the cold, I am very sorry as they never complained to us, but on the contrary, remarked how comfortable and clean the Market was kept.

Hoping "Zero" may not have any serious results after his visit to the Market Hall on Saturday. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for space in your valuable paper.

SAYS LANSING WAS RESPONSIBLE

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.— Secretary Lansing's "Verge of War" interpretation of President Wilson's peace message, and not the leak to Wall street, "was what killed the market," E. F. Hutton, stock broker, told the House Committee probers to-day. He held that the tip organizing in the House of J. A. Connolly and Co., of which President Wilson's brother-in-law is a member, was not responsible for the break in the market.

Mr. Ball Will Endeavour to Collect $4.00 From the City For Seeding a Boulevard

City of Peterborough debtor to George Ball — four dollars—reads a bill that made the Board of Works Committee of the City Council sit up and take notice at a meeting that was held last evening. The bill is for work entailed in seeding a boulevard in front of property at 272-274 and 276 Hunter street. City Engineer Parsons was invited to look into the matter and report to the Committee. Alderman Smith said: "It was no job at all." He did not favour paying the account, claiming that such action would tend to establish a precedent. The East City Representative said he did his own boulevard for nothing.

Mr. Emmerson, Mr. Brown and Plumbing Inspector Thompson will be invited to meet the Committee with a view of fixing responsibility for an improperly constructed sewer connection opposite the property of Mr. Emmerson at 207 Park street.

CANADA FOUNDRY AND C. G. E. ON SHORT SIDE OF SOFT COAL

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, Jan. 31.—Ontario is up against it hard in the matter of soft coal. The executive heads of large industrial concerns are at their witts' ends and many are faced with the possibility of having to shut down. The Canada Foundry Company here and in Peterborough is perhaps the largest concern in Toronto that is up against the wall. Senator Frederic Nicholls informed The Examiner to-day that they are just living from hand to mouth, using the coal as fast as it was delivered, the deliveries being made in small quantities. They have men out in the railroads trying to chase the cars in. "What would happen if no coal were delivered to you in the next two days," asked The Examiner. "We would have to close down," was Senator Nicholls' reply.

WAITED ON GOVERNMENT

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, Jan. 31.—The Ontario Government heard to-day proposals made by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association with regard to medical aid under the Workmen's Compensation Act. All the members of the Government holding portfolios were present as well as the members of the Workmen's Compensations' Board, and many representatives of manufacturing industries, medical men and representatives of labour. Mr. I. A. Thomas, in presenting the proposals of the C. M. A. said that they were willing to supply medical attendance subject to the approval of the board, subject to a time limit. He thought it would be fair to make the limit of expense $50, and a time limit of 30 days. This extra expense to the manufactures would be very great indeed.

Dr. E. E. King saw objections to the scheme of the C. M. A. He thought each case should be dealt with through the commission. He expressed the opinion that the doctors should send their bills to the commission and that these should be paid through this body. He objected to the doctors having to collect their bills from the manufacturers.

"The workman has tried to take this matter from the hands of private employer and vest it in the State. I think it is inconceivable that the C. M. A. should try to get the control of the medical aid," said Fred Bancroft, representing the workmen.

How British Army Slept As It Marched

In an article, "Sleep for the Sleepless," in the current World's Work, the author quotes an eminent French surgeon, who made a study of sleep in the French army, as follows:

"In the retreat from Mons to the Marne we have an extraordinary human experience, in which several hundred thousand men secured little sleep during nine days, and in addition made forced marches, and fought one of the greatest battles in history.

"How then did these men survive nine days apparently without opportunity for sleep? They did an extraordinary thing—they slept while they marched! Sheer fatigue slowed down their pace to a rate that would permit them to sleep while walking. When they halted they fell they fell asleep. They slept in water and on the rough ground, when suffering the pange of hunger and thirst, and even when severely wounded. They cared not for capture, not even for death, if only they could sleep.

"The unvaried testimony of the soldiers was that everyone at times slept on the march. They passed through villages asleep. When sleep deepened and they began to reel thy were awakened by their comrades. They slept in water, on stones, in brush or in the middle of the road, as if they had suddenly fallen in death. With the ever oncoming lines of the enemy no man was safe who dropped out of the ranks, for no matter on what pretext he fell out sleep conquered him. Asleep many of them were captured. That the artillery slept on horseback was evidenced by the fact that every man lost his cap."

REVERSED SKATING IN SCUGOGVILLE

LINDSAY, Jan. 31. — Beginning last evening a new rule for skaters on the Lindsay Street rink was introduced by Manager Coombs. Each evening at 9 o'clock the skaters will reverse on the rink and skate in the opposite direction. The reason is given that the ice will be kept more even in this way. By continually skating in one direction the ice becomes worn in some places more than others, making the sheet uneven. It also benefits the skaters in being able to skate around the corners the opposite way.

LONGEST BAR IS WIPED OUT BY PROHIBITION

"The longest bar in the world," located at Manning in Carroll county, Iowa, is being dismantled and will soon become a thing of the past. It is or was more than 150 feet long, and for years was the sole solace of the oftsens of Manning in the days when Iowa was in the wet column. Since prohibition was adopted it has served as a dispensary for "near beer" and other soft drinks, but the proprietor finding this unprofitable, has decided to go out of business and the building will be occupied as a general store.

The bar was built in the shape of a horseshoe, being contained in a building about 100 feet long.

In the old days Manning had many saloons and a bar such as this was not a necessity. But with the passage of the Moon bill, limiting the number of saloons to one for each thousand of the population, it became necessary to close all but two of Manning's thirst parlours. The City Council decided to go the lawmakers one better and cut down the number to one, charging the proprietor $6,000 per year for the exclusive license to sell liquor in Manning. And notwithstanding the excessively high license, the business was very profitable, for Manning was an extremely wet town. However, to care for his trade the proprietor was compelled to extend the length of the bar which ran alongside one wall of his building, and the horseshoe bar, said to be the longest in the world, was the result.

The dismantling of the bar and its fixtures, rendering the building hereafter unfit for a saloon, is taken by many to mean that the wets have given up all hope of a return of the saloon to Iowa.
